DOROTHY DIX

The "Grandma Problem" Is One That Is Insoluble. Older People Should Give Careful Consideration Before They Go To Live With Their Married Children

DEAR MISS DIX—We are a middle-aged married couple with half-grown children. Our home life up to now has been exceptionally happy, but it is all being disrupted by my wife's mother, who has come to live with us. Since her advent we seem to have got on each other's nerves. Where there was peace and harmony there is now bickering. My wife and I are having our first quarrels and over nothing. And the queer part is not that Grandma is especially objectionable. It is just that she is there all the time. Always under foot. Always sitting around listening to everything that is said, so that my wife and I can have no private conversation. Always in the front row when company comes, which somehow seems to cramp everybody's style. Wherever we go we have to take her, and that spoils the party. So does it ruin the drive when she is camped on the back seat of the car. Grandma is strong and hearty. Plenty able physically to make her own living or to live by herself. What are we to do? Endure her for the next twenty-five or thirty years and go nuts, or get a divorce, or what? HUSBAND.

ANSWER:

There is no problem that comes to this column so often and that is so pathetic and so insoluble as this one of what to do with the old people who are not wanted in their children's homes; old people who, without intending it, are almost always a source of discord between their children and their husbands and wives.

Why this difficulty should so often occur nobody knows. Grandma isn't always a disagreeable, bossy, meddling, fault-finding and querulous old body. Very often she is a near-saint. Nor are her son and daughter mean, unloving, ungrateful children. Generally they are fond of Mother, appreciative of all she has done for them and anxious to do their duty by her. But, just the same, when Mother goes to live with her children the results are about as if she had brought a charge of TNT in her reticule, instead of her knitting, and had planted it under the doorstep.

In those cases where mother-in-law is a born troublemaker, as many benevolent old women are, it is easy to see how she blew up her children's homes to kingdom come. But when mother-in-law is a gentle, amiable old lady it is difficult to explain how she is such a menace to her sons' and daughters' domestic peace.

Yet apparently she is, and the only reason for it seems to be that every family is a closed corporation that desires no newcomers; every home a little world complete in itself into which any stranger breaks at his peril.

When a man and woman marry they do so in order that they may be alone together. When they set up a home they do it to have a place of privacy, apart from seeing eyes and listening ears, in which they can do what they please without regard for any one else's tastes or pleasure or comfort. They want a place where they can talk out their hearts to each other without any one listening in on them and thinking how silly their endearments of each other are, or taking sides in their spats or knowing their secrets.

The more a husband and wife love each other the more precious this solitude of two is to them and the more bitterly they resent being deprived of it. The more companionable and congenial a husband and wife are the more they enjoy gadding around together, taking joyrides of a moonlight night and renewing their courting days, going to the movies and out to little dinners, having little sprees alone.

So when Grandma comes to live with them she breaks up all of this dear intimacy. Husband can't tell Wife before Grandma all the details of his day's work because he doesn't want her to know and perhaps innocently tell his business secrets. There is no fun in running around together when they always have to drag Grandma with them. The evenings are dull because Grandma, like virtually all old people, monopolizes the conversation and tells about what she and Grandpa used to do forty years ago, and what a cute baby little Johnny was, until everybody wants to scream.

So there it is. The only remedy that I can suggest for the situation is for the sons and daughters to be more patient with Mother. To bear in mind that old people have few interests so that they have to live vicariously in their children's lives. That is the reason that they are never willing to be left alone for a minute and want to go everywhere their children go.

To Mother I would suggest the wisdom of spending much of her time in her own room and cultivating the habit of going to bed immediately after dinner so that daughter and her husband may have their evenings alone.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a widow past 45 and should be old enough to know something, but it seems I do not know much. I became infatuated with a married man who pretended to be very much interested in my business affairs. He recommended a certain investment for me that did not pan out as he represented, and now I cannot get my money back from him. I have consulted a lawyer, but I did not tell him the whole story for I dread to admit the relation that existed betwen this man and myself, yet I cannot afford to lose this money, for my children need help, as they are still in school. I do not want to go into court for fear that something might be said that would involve me in an unsavory manner. What should I do?

ONE WHO HAS BEEN DUPED.

ANSWER:

It would be impossible for you to bring your case into court without having all of the details of your affairs with this man made public. The man knew this and depended upon your dread of scandal to protect him from the consequences of defrauding you.

It is hard for you to lose your money, but it seems to me that it would be a greater misfortune to lose your reputation. It would be better for your children to be deprived of the inheritance their father left them than to have their faith in their mother's integrity taken away from them.

Every woman who has any money is the prey of every scoundrel who thinks he can get it out of her by making love to her. When you had an affair with a married man you knew that you were doing wrong and you deserve to be punished for it by losing your money. But it is hard on the children.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, November 30.

According to this day's astral activities, there may be some conflicting experiences. While there are testimonies of beneficial, if sudden, change or travel, with the support of elders or old connections, there are also hints of disagreements, contention, and opposition, even to the point of litigation. Sidestep these by tact and compromise where advisable and all may be diverted into happy and lucrative channels, with enmities turned into support.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves engulfed in a year of contradictory situations. There is much promise through change, travel and the friendly endorsement of elders or old institutions. At the same time, there may be loopholes for definite friction, strife and litigation. These may be avoided by restraint, diplomacy, and sagacity, and keeping a curb on the tongue and temper.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, practical, and ambitious, thus attracting elders. It may also be hasty, impetuous, and too quick in speech and action for its own good. Its nature may cause many changes in its occupation.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

Knarf always was the one to get into trouble! I don't think there's another one like him in the whole wide world.

The other afternoon the children were writing a letter to their grandmother. "Dear Granny," they write, "we are coming to visit you on Saturday morning." They wrote some more, but that was the most important part of the letter.

Hanid, watching her mistress write, was thrilled.

"Oh! that's wonderful! I'm very glad, aren't you? Granny always has cookies and things when the children come to visit her."

"Yes, I'm glad to go," said Knarf. "But it's such a long walk. Oh—I've got an idea!"

Hanid looked at Knarf. "I hope it's a good idea. Some if your ideas are pretty funny. What is it?"

Oh! I've got an idea!"

"Do you see that letter? As soon as it's finished it's going to be put in an envelop and sealed up. Then the mailman is going to take it right to Granny's house."

"But what has that got to do with you?"

Knarf smiled. "I'm going to make myself small. I'm going to get inside that envelope with the letter and then the mailman will carry me to Granny's house, too. Isn't that a wonderful idea?"

Hanid Objects.

"No!" cried Hanid. "It's a very bad idea. You mustn't do it. Knarf! Stop making yourself small this instant!"

But it was too late. The mischievous shadow had already made himself small and with a light spring landed right inside the envelope just as Frank, his master, sealed it. The next minute the children ran out, and posted the letter in a mail box. "Bump!" went the letter as it dropped in the box.

It wasn't the only bump that Knarf got, you may be sure of that. He was bumped out of the box again by the mailman who bumped him into his large leather bag. And he was bumped on to a table in the post office and bumped through a machine which put marks on the stamp so it couldn't be used again. And then he was bumped into another bag with hundreds of other letters.

"Let me out! I want to go home!" he shouted at the top of his voice. "I don't like going to Granny's house this way! I want to walk there with the children!" But no one heard him.

He was glad when the letter was finally dropped in Granny's mail box and she opened it up. He jumped right out and ran all the way home.

Looking Back
On This Date

Nobody thought of it at the time but it certainly was a coincidence that the demolition of the Grand Opera House in Toronto in 1927 should have been the same date as that other Nov. 29 in 1879 when the building was burned down with loss of life. The theatre, long the leading playhouse in all Canada, had been opened Sept. 23, 1874, with a gala performance of Sheridan's "School for Scandal" in the presence of Lord and Lady Dufferin, the former making the occasion more delightful by a characteristic speech in which he took pride that the great dramatist was a connection of his family.

After the fire of 1879 the Grand was speedily rebuilt and thereafter until the end of the 19th century attracted large audiences to witness the performances of such operatic and dramatic stars as Adelaide Neilson, Henry Irving (long before he was a knight), Ellen Terry (who never thought then that she would be created a Dame of the British Empire), Adelina Patti, Madame Albani (the French Canadian girl, born at Chambly, near Montreal, who became one of the world's greatest singers), E. H. Sothern (in his famous presentation of "Lord Dundreary"), Madame Modjeska (the great Polish actress), Lillian Russell (the belle of the opera bouffe of her time), Clara Morris (Who, a native of Toronto, was always given a demonstration in her home town), and the great Sara Bernhardt. oNt to mention lesser stars.

In course of time the Grand degenerated into a 10, 20 and 30 house, presenting melodramatic thrillers, and finally into a second class movie house, with in between a brief return to its former prosperity when "The Dumbells" were at the height of their popularity. Now there is nothing to tell the passer-by that where is now a gasoline pump and a parking area once stood the Grand Opera House, so long the magnet which drew society to its stalls and dress circle and the common folk to its 25 cent gallery, where they could hiss and cheer as they chose without interference. The players on that old stage have all passed away; only a very few remain of the theatre's patrons; but even in demolition the Grand had its thrilling melodrama, for it was the last place in which Ambrose Small was seen, and perhaps with its demolition went the secret of his murder.

SMART FOX STILL HIGH FASHION

By ALICE ALDEN

Whether it's cross fox, silver fox, red fox, gray fox or black fox, it's a smart fox that can get out of the current fashion picture! While silver fox remains in high favor, there are plenty of takers for lustrous black fox or tawny red fox. Rosemary Lane, LEFT, tops off her monotone crepe dress with a bulky jacket of inky black fox. It has tiny strips of the fabric inset in the sleeves. Shirley Ross, RIGHT, chooses a cleverly-designed cross fox cape over a black frock. The skins are set on black crepe, accentuating the natural markings of the fur.

Do You Know?

Do you like your fried eggs cooked over the top, but have little luck in turning them? Try puting a cover over the pan for just a few minutes until a coating forms over the yolks.

When using cheese in hot dishes it should be blended over a low fire? Cheese that is well ripened has more flavor and blends smoother than new cheese.

That vegetables which cook fairly quickly are delicious fried in deep fat? Dip in egg and crumbs or a thin batter and deep fry. Bermuda onions, sliced green peppers, parsnips (cooked), cauliflower sections, egg plant are all suitable for this method of cooking. Cut the onions and green pepper in rings. Inch or inch and a half squares are about right for the other vegetables.

The many friends of Mrs. Kenneth Moncrief are very glad to learn she is recovering satisfactorily after having developed infection in her arm.

Fashions

Schoolgirls will be delighted with this dark green wool mixture jumper dress ensemble. It has a wool bolero jacket to complete it. The flared wool jumper has your favorite suspenders. The cunning tied neckline separate blouse is of yellow-beige cotton broadcloth.... washable. To keep spic and span, mummy can make an extra blouse or two. The shirt neck blouse is effective of brown chambray or of white pique. Velveteen or plaid woollen is ideal for this popular costume. So simple to sew. The pattern includes a picture instruction chart.

Style No. 2127 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1¼ yards of 39-inch material for blouse; 1⅞ yards of 39-inch for jumper; and ¾ yard of 39-inch material for long-sleeved bolero.

Simple Hand Care

It takes a fair amount of time and effort to make hands that have been neglected for years smooth and white again. However, with plain lanolin or olive oil, if you do not have a special night cream; grandmother's old favorite, rose water and glycerine, if there is no hand lotion available, and a mild bleache, the job isn't so impossible as it sounds.

CHILDREN REMAINED CALM

A circus bear escaped at Carlisle, England, and walked through the corridors and classrooms of a school without creating a panic among the children.

Teen-age Child Needs Kindly Treatment

Parents of the 'teen-age child must mix kindness and good nature with restrictions and allow just enough liberty to satisfy at least a part of that consuming restlessness which is part of adolescence.

A boy cannot learn overnight how to meet the world. Nor can a girl. Little by little they should be allowed to try new ways and learn how to use freedom when they get it.

Young adolescents need kindness and sympathy for another reason, too. They are lonely. They are unsure, too, if we could see their hearts. They are almost pitifully grateful for tender words, although they pretend indifference. The parent who holds the love and gratitude of the young adolescent is doing a grand thing. For it is at this age that faith in people and things either withers away or remains fragrant to beautify the years to come.

Christmas Gifts You Can Make

When times are hard, we occasionally like to make our own Christmas gifts—at least for our immediate family—and often these are more appreciated than would be presents that were picked in the stores. For there is something more than monetary worth associated with Yuletide gifts—at least there should be—and our near relatives and friends often derive a great deal more pleasure from something that we have spent a little time on manufacturing by ourselves.

Along these lines, then, we give you a few Christmas gift suggestions that are easy to make and not expensive. There is a present for mother, one for father, another for sister and one for brother. If there are others in the family or if you think this might be a good idea to extend to include your friends, you won't find it difficult to think up further ideas for home-made gifts.

And now for dad: How about a pretty silk scarf with his initials on it that he can use for formal wear? For this two and one-quarter yards of white crepe are required. The crepe should be hemmed about 4 inches wide at each end. The initials may be worked in afterward in black D.M.C.

For mother a bride table cover is always a useful and appreciated present at Christmas. The cover should be measured to the size of the bridge table with 2 inches for hems allowed. A pretty design may be worked out by applique of little men and dogs in the corners. Then sew elastic across the corners on the wrong side so your cover will stay in place on the table.

The boy of the family will always appreciate a pair of hand-knitted socks. Instructions for the knitting of these may be found in any good men's knitting book.

And now for daughter. How about a set of satin-covered coat hangers? For these, the satin should be cut in about two-inch biased stripes. Then pad the hanger with cotton wool and wind your biased strips of satin around them.

Home and School Association News

PRINCE OF WALES SCHOOL.

In a beneficial and instructive talk on Immunization and the Prevention of Contagious Diseases, given at a meeting of the Prince of Wales Home and School Association on Monday evening, Dr. Murray Fraser quoted the percentages of protection afforded by inoculation and vaccination — figures which brought sharply to the attention of parents present the need for proper preventive measures if contagious diseases are to be avoided. The speaker was presented by the school nurse, Miss Mae Jory, and the thanks of the members for the fine address was expressed by Mrs. F. J. Frape.

Mrs. P. Black presided at the meeting, which was held in the Kindergarten room of the school, and opened with a prayer and the Home and School Creed. Various committees were reported on by conveners, and announcement was made of a study group on November 30 at the Y.W.C.A. An interesting report on the Regional Conference held in Belleville was given by Mrs. G. Penhall, and Mrs. Black reported on the Provincial Conference of the Local Council of Women, which was held recently in Toronto.

A tribute to the late Mrs. S. T. Medd, one of the pioneers of Home and School work, was read by Mrs. S. Harrison. A delightful musical program consisted of a violin solo by Master Kenster Read; a guitar selection by Herbert Henry and Clayton Drury; a vocal solo by Mrs. H. A. Mitchell, accompanied by Mrs. S. Shields, and a piano solo by Miss Eleanor Glover.

The attendance picture was awarded to Miss Burgess' room. The National Anthem closed the meeting, and refreshments were served by the social committee.

Good Advice About Constipation!

A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with any ailment is to get at its cause. If you're constipated, don't fiddle with makeshift remedies. Find out what's giving you the trouble!

Chances are you won't have to look very far, if you eat just the things most people do. Most likely, you don't get enough "bulk"! And "bulk" doesn't mean just a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is what you lack, your ticket is crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the intestinal tonic, vitamin B1.

Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and join the "regulars"! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

DEPARTMENT OF FISHERIES, OTTAWA.

Lobster Salad

Combine flaked cooked or canned lobster with diced celery, moisten with mayonnaise and mound on crisp lettuce on a serving plate. Arrange crisp potato chips around the mound and garnish the top with fine strips of green pepper. Serve with additional mayonnaise.

Fish Crispies

1 tablespoon onion juice
2 pounds of fish—fillets of haddock, cod, whitefish.
1½ cups fine, soft bread crumbs
1 tablespoon of melted butter or fat
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
salt and pepper to season
½ cup milk to mix dressing — more if crumbs are drier

Wipe the fish with a cold, damp cloth and cut in servings. Salt lightly. Place on a greased baking pan. Mix the other ingredients to form a dressing and place a mound on each piece of fish. Sprinkle the fish and dressing with finely chopped bacon and bake in a hot oven (450°F. to 500°F.), until the fish is done. This should not take over 10 minutes, if the fish is not over one and a half inches thick. The dressing and bacon will brown nicely in the same time. Serve with a tartar sauce, if wished. Serves five.

Slapped Ex-Premier

Jacques Ranouvin may have been calling up his seconds when this picture was made; for he may need a few as a result of his sensational encounter with Pierre Etienne Flandin, former premier of France, near the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier on Armistice Day. Flandin, who is the leader of the political party alliance Democratique, had just placed a wreath on the tomb when Ranouvin slapped him, charging that such a tribute from such a source was an insult to the Unknown. Teh affair may reach a climax o nthe field of honor if reports of an impending duel are true.

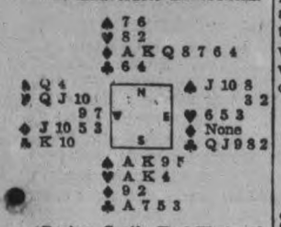
CHEAP INSURANCE

GIVING UP ONE trick, in order to make your rubber game absolutely safe, is a pretty economical premium to pay on such a valuable insurance policy. Yet there are plenty of very fair players who do not think of such moves, but who play as if they expect luck to guard them against unfavorable distributions.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South's opening bid on this deal was 1-Spade, to which North responded with 2-Diamonds. After a 3-Club bid by South, North rebid his diamonds and South then went to 3-No Trump.

West led the heart Q against this contract and South took the trick with the heart K. Declarer could count on two tricks in spades, two in hearts, one in clubs, so needed four diamond tricks.

To the second trick, South led the diamond 2 to the Q and when East showed out, declarer realized that he could win only three diamond tricks. With stoppers in the other three suits, he should have given up one diamond to provide for the possibility that four diamonds were in one hand. As he had no prospect of picking up an additional trick in any other suit, his safest play was to have relinquished one possible winner on the chance that the suit was unevenly distributed in the opponents' hands.

How should declarer plan the hand to make 7-Hearts, after the lead of the spade 6?

Cheats Quicksand

WOLFVILLE, N.S., Nov. 29 (CP). —Saved from death in the clinging quicksands of a tidal marsh, Murdock Carey was recovering from exposure today. Frank Cook pulled him from the grip of the mud in which he was slowly sinking Saturday night.

Carey was shooting along the shores of Minas Basin. He went out to retrieve a duck and stepped into a pothole, sinking up to his shoulders. He fired three shots, but they failed to attract a rescuer. Just as darkness was settling over the marsh Cook came to his aid.

Veterans Appeal To Daladier, Unions For Peace

PARIS, Nov. 29—(AP).—French war veterans appealed to Premier Edouard Daladier and the Labor unions today to settle difference and avert a general strike.

The national confederation of war veterans, representing 5,000,000 members, called upon the premier to "seek all means of calming the nation's emotions and of appeasing the social conflict."

The labor unions were asked to "reconsider the danger of general action, which, pushed to the limit, would compromise the security of the nation."

Both Daladier and the labor unions, which are backed by the Socialist and Communist parties, went doggedly ahead, however, with plans for and against the country-wide strike scheduled for Wednesday.

Called by the general confederation of labor for a 24-hour period, the strike officially would protest the government financial-tax decrees which labor and the leftist parties declared favor the rich at the expense of the poor.

Although Daladier was given decree powers to mobilize 521,000 railroad employees into the army to keep them working, the employees were ordered by their labor leaders to "remain deaf and dumb at your posts" on Wednesday.

The Situation Cases.

The situation this morning in the industries crippled last week by strikes was more nearly normal.

Thirty thousand miners returned to the pits near Douai and Valenciennes, under instructions from their unions to work until Wednesday.

Two thousand railroad men, manning lines from the mines to canals, worked normally after having resumed service Saturday under military orders.

Railroad workers were notified by the government they would face penitentiary terms up to five years if they refused to work after being mobilized into the army.

Labor leaders retorted the government could not possibly prosecute 500,000 men.

About 100,000 French workmen have struck for brief periods since the strike wave began last week.

A step toward compromise was seen last night in Premier Daladier's radio broadcast. The Premier disclaimed all wishes to become a dictator and declared the unpopular decree laws could be changed by Parliament when it meets in December if the deputies chose.

Labor has been suspicious of Daladier's aims since he refused to call Parliament in November. The Premier's friends let it be known than he was ready to dissolve Parliament if it refused to accept the decrees without change.

Daladier in his broadcast charged that leaders behind th strike movement are trying to force the country to accept the will of a "proletarian minority" directed by men with "International connections."

Ontario Women Candidates Scarce In Race For Municipal Posts

TORONTO, Nov. 29. — (CP)—Municipal election battles were in full swing today in hundreds of Ontario municipalities in which the voters make their choices on the first Monday in December. Big fields are the rule though many towns and cities have straight two-man mayoralty contests.

At Kitchener Mayor George Gordon was returned by acclamation when other nominees failed to qualify by nine o'clock Saturday night. Earlier in the week Mayor William Morrison of Hamilton was given an acclamation when no one else was even nominated. Norman Perry at Sarnia became mayor by acclamation nomination day.

Centres of mayoralty battle interest are Windsor and London. In the former Mayor E. S. Wigle, a veteran of municipal politics 30 years ago, is seeking re-election and is opposed by David Croll, former mayor and former Ontario Labor Minister, and by Roy C. Haight.

George Wenige, almost an annual candidate in London but who has served several terms as mayor, is seeking the honor again. He is opposed by Allan Johnston, former alderman, Ald. Allan Towe and Louis Briggs. Johnston and Towe are in the mayoralty contest for the first time.

Four Women In Race

Women candidates are scarce. At Woodstock Miss Jean Ogolvie is one of the 17 anxious to fill the 10 council seats. Mrs. S. E. Horrocks was in a larger field for fewer seats—20 after five—in Windsor's council contest.

Scores of rural municipalities followed a growing custom of giving their reeves second terms by acclamation when the ratepayers have been pleased with the first. Acclamations for village and township councils were not so numerous as for the reeveships.

Mayor R. K. Serviss, Galt, nominated with three others for the Galt mayoralty and who was recently a candidate in the Waterloo South federal by-election, decided he had had enough of elections for a while. He and two other nominees failed to qualify and Dr. W. S. McKay became mayor by acclamation.

Chatham, St. Thomas, Stratford and Timmins are among the places that will see battles between their present mayors and one opponent each. Chatham's mayor J. J. Zink is opposed by W. J. Easton; St. Thomas mayor Ernest Duckworth by Ald. Peter Laiing, Jr.; at Stratford Robert McDonald opposes Mayor Thomas Henry; Timmins sees Major J. P. Bartleman opposed by Dr. Lee Honey.

Guelph has a four-cornered Mayoralty battle. The candidates are William Taylor, Albert Frank, Matthew Macgowan, and Robert Grundy. Nearby Brantford has Walter Dowden, Reginald Waterous and James Ansell are in the field.

Dr. Sandy Out in Kingston.

Dr. W. W. Sands, who made charges that brought a brief judicial investigation at Kingston, is running for mayor and opposing the present incumbent, M. A. Stewart.

Towns that elected mayor by acclamation included: Paris, Allan Scott; Petrolia, Frank Braybrock; Meaford, J. W. Hersley; Aylmer, Dr. H. J. Davis; Barrie, H. G. Robertson; Smith's Falls, J. Bradley; Walkerton, H. K. Watts; Cochrane, A. E. Wicks.

Two famous hockey centres, Waterloo and Kitchener, neighbors—will pass on by-laws for building municipally - owned ice arenas, Kitchener's arena plans including an auditorium. At Woodstock the ratepayers will vote on a Collegiate with an auditorium as a feature.

In Chatham the aldermanic battle line sare drawn on the issue of whether the city should have a combined Collegiate and Vocational school.

ENTIRE SYSTEM AFFECTED

MR. MYRON LINTON

"My system was all run down I couldn't sleep nights and felt terribly nervous," said Mr. Myron Linton, well-known and highly respected farmer of Denfield, Ontario, in a recent statement given to The Syntona Company.

"I had a poor appetite and what little I did eat gave me a full, heavy feeling. Gas would form and give me a congested feeling in my chest and I didn't seem to be getting any nourishment out of my food. When I suffered from these attacks, I was short of breath, had dizzy spells and cramps. Rheumatism settled into my joints and muscles and I used to lie awake at night with a dull, aching pain in my back.

"I read a lot about what Syntona had done for others and finally decided to give it a trial and I am certainly glad I did. After taking a few bottles, the rheumatic pains have left me, I can eat anything I want without suffering from that awful bloated feeling and I haven't had a dizzy spell lately. My condition is better. I am free of headaches which used to trouble me a lot. It is a grand feeling to get a good night's sleep and get up in the morning feeling rested. I think Syntona is a real good medicine and am glad to recommend it to anyone suffering as I did."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29—(AP)—The United States war department has summoned about 180 officers to a conference Thursday and Friday on its program for mobilizing industry in event of war, thus lending new emphasis today to the administration's accelerated defence program.

Other armament developments included war secretary Woodring's urgent recommendation that the Panama Canal be made "impregnable" with new reinforcements for that vital link.

100,000 Pilots

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—(AP).—A plan for training 100,000 civilian pilots and 125,000 mechanics at government expense during the next five years to buttress the United States air defence has ben agreed upon by the army air corps and the civil aeronautics authority.

It must be approved by President Roosevelt, to whom the scheme is scheduled to be presented late this week, and by the new congress meeting in January before it could become effective.

Intended as part of the air rearmament program under contemplation by the government, it would give the United States an air force reserve numerically approximating that which Germany is reliably reported to have at present.

2 Brothers Win "Crowns" In Wheat, Oats

CHICAGO, Nov. 29—(CP). — Two young brothers from Wembley, Alta., are recognized today as world's champion growers of wheat and oats, crowned "kings" at the International Grain and Hay show here.

Francis Lloyd Rigby, 23, won the coveted wheat championship yesterday with a sample of Reward to mark the seventh consecutive year the variety developed by the Canadian government experimental farm at Ottawa in 1924 had won here. It was the 24th Canadian victory in 28 years of the competition.

His 22-year-old brother, W. Justyn Rigby, won for Canada its 11th oats championship since 1920, 10 of them taken by Albertans.

The brothers and their father operate a 320-acre farm at Wembley in the heart of the famous Peace River Country 250 miles northwest of Edmonton and home of Herman Trelle, five-time winner of the wheat title. Another wheat title was won in 1934 by 20-year-old John B. Alsop of Wembley, leading home of grain champions.

Only other five-time wheat winner was Seager Wheeler of Rosthern, Sask., now devoting his time to development of fruit that can be grown on the Western prairies.

Trelle Places Second.

Trelle was second to Rigby in hard red spring wheat and the reserve wheat championship went to R. P. Robbins of Shaunavon, Sask., with a sample of Durum Mindum.

Justyn Rigby's winning sample of Victory oats, weighing 48.8 pounds, made him successor to Alex M. Stewart of Ailsa Craig, Ont., as oats king.

Hugh Jeffrey of Whitby, Ont., won the soy beans championship. Cecil Trowell of Saltcoats, Sask., was the first in the rye competition. W. B. Davidson of Agincourt, Ont., first in early oats, region one, and Robert L. Henry, Urnerville, Ont., first in junior corn, region one.

Treats All Around

VERMILION, Alta., Nov. 29—(CP)—The world's wheat championship cost Francis Lloyd Rigby a dollar. The 23-year-old Wembley, Alta., grain grower was sitting with friends in a cafe here when word was received his exhibit of Reward wheat had been judged best at the Chicago International Grain and Hay Show.

"Anything you want," Rigby replied and he paid for coffee and ice cream.

Lloyd said his brother W. Justyn Rigby, 22, who made it a family double by winning the oats crown, was at their home at Wembley in Northwestern Alberta.

Canada's Trade In South America Increases

Canada Wants Trade Expansion With Latin-American Neighbors

By JAMES MONTAGNES
Central Press Canadian Writer

OTTAWA, Nov. 30—Canada's trade with British Guiana and the Latin-American republics of Argentina, Brazil, Colombia and Peru was on the increase last year, according to government statistics. Trade with Brazil was the best since 1929. Canadian exports to the Argentine, Brazil and Peru were higher than the imports into Canada from those countries. With British Guiana and Columbia Canadian imports were larger than Canadian exports.

These are the outstanding facts about Canada's trade with her western hemisphere Spanish and Portuguese speaking and empire neighbors. Out of a total Canadian world export trade last year of slightly over one billion dollars, the Dominion shipped merchandise and raw materials to the British colonies in the West Indies, Central and South America and to the Latin-American republics valued at about $31,000,000. About two-thirds of this amount went to western hemisphere countries outside the British Empire. During the same year imports from these countries and British colonies were slightly greater in total.

Becoming More Important

The Latin-American countries are annualy becoming more important in the eyes of the world. In recent months these countries and their vast resources have come into the spotlight. Dictatorial nations with little ready cash are endeavoring to increase their trade with these countries by a barter method, exchanging raw products from Central and South America for manufactured goods, machinery and ships, a trade policy not favored by Canada, the United States, Great Britain and other countries who have cash with which to buy and want to sell for cash. With war in China and a possibility that trade there will be hampered for some years to come, the Latin-American countries are the next largest market for the industrial nations of the world.

Canada is interested, for she is now the fourth largest exporting nation in the world, according to League of Nations statistics for the first nine months of 1938. Only the United Kingdom, the United States and Germany exceed Canada in volume of their exports. But Canada's trade with the Latin-American republics is small compared to her world trade. Even analyzed in the most favorable manner, leaving out trade with the British Empire and the United States from the grand total, Canadian trade with the Latin-American countries, is still less than a fifth of her trade with the rest of the world.

Large Investments

Canada is also interested in what happens in the Latin-American countries because some of her largest financial institutions have large investments in those countries. Canadian companies operate electric power developments, street car systems, and industries in those countries. Canadian companies have developed oil fields and gold mines there. Canadian insurance companies and banks have branches in many of these countries and in the West Indies.

And so when the rest of the industrial nations of the world look to Central and South America for new markets, it becomes important that Canada intensifies her trade with the republics to the south. As far as can be learned in Ottawa, the department of trade and commerce has no new plans ready to push Canadian trade more in those countries. What increases in trade have come in the past year have developed through the betterment of world economic conditions, the work of the government's eight trade commissioners in Mexico, Panama, Peru, Brazil, Cuba, Argentina and the West Indies, and the salesmanship of individual commerical organizations.

Canada advertises through her department of trade and commerce in some of these countries. Canada took part in the Buenos Aires British Industrial Exhibition in 1931. Canada's trade commissioners travel throughout the countries to which they are assigned endeavoring to sell Canadian produce and assisting companies to find sales representatives for their merchandise. But no special drive to make the Latin-American countries immediately more Canada-conscious is contemplated at present, it is understood on good authority.

Revolutions Have Little Effect

While most Canadians know only of South and Central American countries from news dispatches of revolutions, Canadian trade commissioners point out that the largest cities, Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro, Sao Paulo, Mexico City, are larger than any Canadian cities, that many of the principal cities are as large as the principal cities of the Dominion. They point out that revolutions are not upsetting to business, are quickly accomplished, change little the foreign policies of the countries.

In recent years some exchange restrictions and growing nationalistic tendencies have been detrimental to furthering commerical relations with some of the countries.

On December 9 at Lima, Peru, the Pan-American conference takes place, which will not only discuss defence of the two continents as outlined recently by President Roosevelt of the United States, but will also deal with trade problems. While Canada does not belong to the Pan-American Union because it is composed of countries without a European political connection, the trade discussions at Lima will be of interest to the Dominion, as they will show how far the swing to barter trade as against cash trade will go in the light of a common western hemisphere front against aggression from Europe or Asia.

Canada will continue, it is understood at Ottawa, to make favored-nation treaties with the Latin-American countries, such treaties now operating with Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Columbia, Costa Rica, Guatemala, Haiti, Surinam, Curacao, Panama, Salvador, Uruguay, Venezuela. Of these the treaties with Uruguay, Venezuela, Salvador, Panama, Haiti, Guatemala, Brazil and Costa Rica were signed in the last two years.

Bomber Fails To Kill Rocco Perri

Blast Wrecks His Car Injures 2 Friends As Starter Pushed

HAMILTON, Ont., Nov. 30 (CP).—While city police investigated the second attempt this year on the life of Rocco Perri, who called himself "king of bootleggers" in the days of the Ontario Temperance Act, two victims of a bomb that wrecked his automobile lay in serious condition in hospital today.

Perri, wealthy adventurer whose life and the attempts to end it have confronted police with mystery after mystery, suffered only cuts and bruises when a bomb somersaulted his car into the air on a Hamilton street at midnight last night.

Frank Depedro, 47, and Fred Cordello, 41, friends of the notorious member of Hamilton's Italian colony, were knocked to the pavement.

Three toes were blown from Depedro's left foot and his left leg was punctured with dozens of wounds. Cordello's left arm was lacerated and the shoulder badly injured.

Depedro, Cordello and Perri had been visiting at the home of a friend, John DeFaro, and the pair had walked to Perri's car with him. They turned to walk away and as Perri stepped on the starter the bomb exploded. The car came down on its side and Perri dragged himself out, to limp to where the others lay on the pavement.

District is Rocked.

The concussion shook the district and soon the street was filled with frightened persons. Police and firemen sped to the scene, to find the three men bleeding profusely and badly burned. The car was a smouldering wreck.

Defaro told detectives the explosion "sounded like an earthquake." He rushed from the house to find the car in flames and electric wires, torn down by the explosion, were curling along the street.

Perri was questioned by police, but they did not say whether he was able to throw light on the blast. It was believed the bomb had been placed beneath the starter in the four hours that Perri, Depedro and Cordello spent in Defaro's house.

To-day police from all over Ontario were here for the funeral of Chief of Police E. K. Goodman, who played a prominent part in investigations into the murder of Perri's wife and in an attempt to kill Perri with a dynamite explosion this year. Chief Goodman died Sunday after several weeks' illness.

Franco Admits Mistake Frees 2 Ships With British Cargoes

London, Nov. 30 (CP Cable) GENERAL FRANCO has admitted a mistake in impounding two Greek ships carrying wheat owned by the British government and will release them, Prime Minister Chamberlain announced in the House of Commons today.

Labor members were blocked by the speaker, Captain E. A. Fitzroy, from holding a full dress debate on the seizures, made Nov. 23 and 26 off Palma Bay, Mallorca. The subject was raised by Wedgwood Benn, who said he had information that other foreign ships with British cargoes were being held by the Insurgent leader.

Ciano Relates Mobilization To Aid Germany

ROME, Nov. 30—(AP).—Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano touched off a noisy demonstration to-day in the Chamber of Deputies for the recognition of Italian interests in Tunisia, French North African protectorate.

He concluded a long review of internation events by referring to the necessity of "protecting with inflexible firmness the interests and natural aspirations of the Italian people."

At once the black-uniformed deputies, attending the last session of the 78-year-old Chamber of Deputies, leaped to their feet shouting: "Tunisia! Tunisia!" Fascist party Secretary Achille Starace led the demonstration, which lasted several minutes and in which cabinet members joined.

Andre Francois-Poncet, the new French Ambassador, was in a box with other members of the diplomatic corps and heard the cries.

A Rap at France?

Premier Mussolini rose in the midst of the demonstration to acknowledge thunderous shouts of "Duce! Duce! Duce!" He smiled and raised a hand to quiet his black-shirted followers.

Troops Stave French Strike Off

Majority Of Services Kept Operating; 495 Jailed In Paris

PARIS, Nov. 30—(AP).—Premier Daladier's nationwide display of force appeared today to have broken the back of organized labor's one-day general strike in protest against his administration.

After some early morning hesitation, public service workers in Paris and most other cities took their posts under military guard.

The ministry of interior announced police were using stern measures to put down strikes in private industry. The announcement said 495 persons in the Paris region alone had been arrested for attempting to keep workers from their posts.

The subway workers' union in Paris conceded defeat and revoked its strike order at 8 a.m. (3 a.m. EST), four hours after the strike started.

Railroads throughout France and buses in Paris and most other cities were running on regular schedules by noon. All other public services in Paris appeared normal.

Public services were the field in which Daladier had chosen to fight out the strike battle.

Daladier's Coup.

There the Premier ruled there must be no defections and put the army in control with requisition decrees against what he called a movement of a minority attempting to overthrow the government and laws of the Republic. In that battle he appeared victorious.

In private industry the General Confederation of Labor, led by Leon Johaux and backed by the Socialists and Communist Parties, proved more successful.

Roughly 30 per cent. of the workers were estimated to have followed the strike order in most mines and factories. Even that, however, was a far cry from a general strike of 5,000,000 workers which labor had sought in its campaign specifically directed against Daladier's labor and financial policies.

Stores, offices, and banks were nearly all open. Military guards, their guns glinting in the sunlight of the cool autumn day, were the only extraordinary evidence of a great crisis.

Troops were put to work in some cases to maintain public services. Soldiers guarded downtown subway

Iron Guard Chief And 13 Slain In Escape Plot

BUCHAREST, Nov. 30 (AP). — Corneliu Codreanu, 39-year-old Rumanian Fascist leader, and 13 others serving prison terms for treason with him, were killed today as Rumanian authorities struck at terrorism attributed to Codreanu's outlawed iron guard organization.

An official statement said the 14 men were killed while attempting to escape from Rumnik-Sarat prison 10 miles from Bucharest and added they were buried in the prison cemetery this morning.

The deaths were expected to bring police and the government to a definite showdown in their energetic and long-standing effort to suppress the Fascist group.

Police reported the 14 were placed in open cars to be taken to Bucharest for questioning concerning an attack., attributed to iron guardists, Monday, on Flory Goanga, rector of the University of Cluj. He was critically wounded.

Guards Shoot All.

A short distance from the prison, the police account said, the automobiles were halted by armed men who jumped from roadside woods. The prisoners were said to have disregarded guards' orders to remain in the cars and there was a blast of firing in which all prisoners were killed.

Three of them had been convicted of assassinating Premier Ion Duca at Sinaia in December, 1933. Ten were convicted of complicity in the murder of Mihail Stelescu, iron guardist, who was shot in July, 1936, as he lay ill in a Bucharest hospital. He was accused of betraying the movement by the guards' "Legion of Death."

Military and civil authorities hastened to the scene and exonerated the guards who, the officials said, acted lawfully by commanding the prisoners to halt before firing.

Authorities, believing they were faced with what seemed a nation-wide conspiracy to foment an iron guard rebellion, had wanted clues from Codreanu to determine whether he had been able to direct guard activities from prison.

Bucharest was greatly excited. Military authorities were alert for an repercussion.

Codreanu, sentenced last May 27 to 10 years' imprisonment for treason, was being moved from his prison to the capital for questioning in connection with government's current drive against his Fascist-inclined organization.

This was set in motion Monday, when Flory Goanga, rector of the University of Cluj, was shot and critically wounded by students described as members of the iron guard.

Given Term In Kingston

TORONTO, Nov. 30—(CP).—"I felt sorry for the girl," said Mrs. Mary Thompson, to Magistrate Prentice today when she appeared for sentence on a charge of attempting an illegal operation on a 15-year-old school girl.

"You have been in similar trouble before," said His Worship.

"Yes, I got a term of two years less a day," replied the woman.

"Apparently you did not learn a lesson then. This time you will go to Kingston penitentiary for two years," ruled the court.

Sir John Aird Banker Dies At 83

60 Years Of Service End Suddenly In Heart Attack

TORONTO, Nov. 30—(CP).—Sir John Aird, former president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, died suddenly at his home here today. A heart attack was given as the cause of death.

For 40 years an outstanding banker, Sir John celebrated his 83rd birthday Nov. 15. Since retiring from the presidency of the bank early in 1937 his health had been comparatively good.

In retirement he retained a directorship in the Bank of Commerce, which first employed him when he was 23. His connection with the bank lasted more than 60 years.

Sir John had anticipated attending the annual ball tonight of the St. Andrew's Society, of which he was a past president. Society officials announced the ball would not be cancelled. They said they had been assured by Hugh Aird, a son, it would have been his father's wish.

He is survived by Lady Aird, two sons and two daughters.

At Hospital Door, Mother Dies, One Twin Saved

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—A 60-mile-an-ohur automobile dash over a rough detour in the Kaw River Bottoms and a hurried delicate operation on a hospital floor gave life to a baby half-born 10 minutes after his mother's death.

But even medical skill and speed could not save the life of Mrs. David Hale of Turner, Kas., and baby Hale's twin.

Mrs. Hale died of a heart ailment a minute before reaching the hospital.

Dr. L. R. Lee and assistants rushed her body into the hospital, placed it on a hallway floor to save time.

Dr. Lee administered respiratory and cardia stimulants to Baby Hale. Nurses rushed in with hot and cold water. The doctor doused the child —its heart beating faintly—first in one, then the other.

A nurse blew the breath of life into the baby's lungs. Dr. Lee bent the baby back and forth in the exercise of artificial respiration.

Nurses speeded the child to an incubator in previously warmed blankets. The doctor administered injections of carbon dioxide and oxygen at 5 and 20 minute intervals.

Four days old this morning, Baby Hale has a good chance to live, attendants said.

1 In Council Race So Election Off

MASSEY, Ont., Nov. 30 (C.P.).—Town Clerk K. S. Teasdale announced to-day Massey's municipal elections have been postponed indefinitely because only one man in the town of 700 population can be found who is willing to face a relief problem that "baffles every one."

Three men were nominated for the Mayoralty on Monday, nomination day, with elections scheduled for December 5. Ten were nominated as councillors. Only F. N. Byers, a member of last year's Council, sought to qualify.

Teasdale said "There's a reason" for the reluctance of nominees to seek public office. "The relief problem baffles every one. It is acute. Already there are 60 of our 700 people on relief, and more are applying every day."

Massey is 50 miles south-west of Sudbury.

Irish Dynamite Gangs Blast Customs Huts

Dublin, Nov. 30 (CP-Havas) — Several customs huts along the border of Eire and Northern Ireland were destroyed today in a series of explosions.

The outrages were believed to have been perpetrated by Irish Nationalist groups as a reprisal against a ruling of the Northern Ireland government banning anti-partition demonstrations in the border zone. The buildings destroyed belonged to Northern Ireland.

Authorities investigating the blasts estimated damage at several thousand pounds and said they had been carefully planned with crude dynamite bombs timed to explode simultaneously.

The explosions followed an incident yesterday at Castlefinn, County Donegal, where what was believed to be a premature explosion of a secret dynamite cache killed two persons. Forty sticks of dynamite and a time bomb believed to have been hidden by members of the outlawed Irish republican army were responsible for the explosion.

Five Explosions

The customs huts destroyed today included the stations at Kinawey, Newton-Butler and Belleek on the Fermanagh border. Land mines destroyed the huts at Carickarnon and Ferry Hill, near Newry.

Hubbell Is Given Five Years For Abducting Nurse To Go On 3,000-Mile Jaunt

"Fake" Doctor Denies Giving The Girl Dope, Asks Chance To Learn Trade; 3 Years For Bad Car Cheque Runs In Term

OSHAWA, Ont., Nov. 30 (CP).—Albert James Hubbell, alias Dr. J. J. Hubbell, Timmins, was sentenced today to five years in Kingston Penitentiary by Magistrate Frank Ebbs when he pleaded guilty to a charge of abduction involving Elizabeth Hymes, 22. On a second charge of false pretences Hubbell was sentenced to three years. The sentences will run concurrently.

Following statements by Crown Attorney Allin Annis that the girl involved had been doped according to medical testimony, Hubbell told Magistrate Frank Ebbs, that he was not aware of any dope being given to the girl as far as he was concerned.

Hubbell said he had considerable medicine, having taken a medical course at a university in the United States, but had not graduated. He said he had been expelled from school before he had graduated.

"I am not proud of what I have done, I feel ashamed of myself," Hubbell said. "The reason I am pleading guilty to this charge because I don't want to put anybody to any further embarrassment, especially Miss Symes."

He asked that he be put in an institution where he could learn a trade. "I served a term in Kingston but they put me in the hospital and I came out of there with nothing more than when I went in."

Crown Attorney Annis told the court how Hubbell had arrived in the city posing as a doctor. He had gained the confidence of an Oshawa doctor as well as the staff of the Oshawa Hospital. He had then purchased a new car with what turned out to be a worthless cheque.

Consulted Other Nurses

"I understand that other nurses besides Miss Symes were approached by the accused before he finally decided upon her as the girl he intended to take to Timmins with him to supposedly open a new hospital," the Crown Attorney said.

Annis said that according to medical testimony, no known tests would disclose that drugs were used or not. He commended Hubbell for his stand in changing his plea from not guilty to guilty.

"You are a menace to society and should be put in a place where you will no longer be able to prey on unsuspecting women," Magistrate Ebbs told Hubbell. He said the maximum for the offence was 10 years.

"This girl was an honor graduate of the Oshawa General Hospital," the Magistrate said, "Until you came along and ruined her whole life, she stood on the threshold of success in her chosen career. You took this girl on a 3,000 mile trip. You could offer her nothing.

"I am taking into consideration the fact that you have pleaded guilty to this charge and thereby spared this girl the ordeal of having to give evidence against you.

"I therefore sentence you to five years in Kingston Penitentiary. On the second charge of false pretences, I sentence you to three years. The sentences will run concurrenly," Magistrate Ebbs said.

All Jews To Die If Any Kill Leading Nazis

BERLIN, Nov 30—(AP). — The Jews of Germany already deprived of economic and social privileges, hastened today to comply with one of the most decisive measures in the long line of decrees to distinguish them from the rest of the population—a requirement for special identification cards.

The cards, compulsory by the end of the year, must carry as first names the government-prescribed Israel of Jewish men, and Sarah for women.

Indications Jews would be deprived of radios was seen, meanwhile, in a court decision that they might be taken to pay debts. Radios otherwise cannot be seized, since they are regarded as an important instrument for spreading government news. The court held Jews are not Germans and there is no public interest in keeping them informed.

Another Warning.

The newspaper Das Schwarze Korps, published by the elite Black Guards, added a threatening note to-day that all the Jews in Germany would pay for an attack by a Jew upon any prominent German.

"On the day a Jewish-purchased murder weapon is lifted against one of the leading men in Germany there will be no more Jews in Germany. We hope we have expressed ourselves clearly enough," the paper said.

It referred to a newspaper in the United States, presumably The New York Daily News, although it was not named, which carried a letter to the editor suggesting pardoning convicted murderers if they would go to Germany to remove Nazi leaders.

"The newspaper made this proposal its own because it published it without comment," Das Schwarze Korps said.

Wed To Mrs. Guinness 2 Years Ago, Son Born Nov. 26, Mosley Reveals

LONDON, Nov. 30—(AP). — Sir Oswald Mosley, British Fascist leader, announced today in his newspaper "Action" that he married Mrs. Diana Guinness, daughter of Lord Redesdale, two years ago and that a son was born to them last Saturday.

Two days ago Sir Oswald issued a statement that he had not been in Germany for more than two years, thus denying London newspaper reports he had married blond Mrs. Guinness in Munich or Berlin last December, with Chancellor Hitler and other high Nazi officials present.

Mrs. Guinness is a sister of Unity Freeman-Mitford, a close friend of Chancellor Hitler. She obtained a divorce from Bryan Guinness in 1933.

Sir Oswald's first wife was Lady Cynthia Blanche Curzon, daughter of the late Marquess Curzon of Kedleston. She died in 1933.

The leader of British Fascists, knocked unconscious by a stone at a Liverpool meeting October 10, 1937, said his marriage was secret because "it is obvious that certain risks are attached to my life and it was my strong desire that no woman should share them."

"How do you know they were loaded?" he was asked.

"Because," he replied, "I took them there."

Hollywood Is Cool To Nazi Actress

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 30 (AP).—Leni Riefenstahl, German actress, sportswoman and motion picture producer, who came here to visit winter resorts, felt the chill today of local opinion and retorted—"I am surprised."

The attractive dark-haired woman who denied on her arrival she was Chancellor Hitler's "girl-friend," issued a formal statement in reply to an advertisement in a film trade paper by the Hollywood Anti-Nazi League, which proclaimed:

"There is no room in Hollywood for Leni Riefenstahl."

She said: "I am surprised that a lady making a vacation trip in America to see the most interesting places of this land should be thus personally attacked.

"Already at my arrival in New York, I informed the press that my trip is absolutely private and that I have no official orders to carry out.

"I should like to assert further that I never held an official position in Germany, and could never have been called head of the Nazi film industry."

Housewives Group Urges Joint Parleys

TORONTO, Nov. 30.—(CP)—Conferences between the housewives of the city, the farmers' organizations and farm women's groups should be held frequently so that joint action can be taken to curb monopolies, it was declared at the first annual convention of the Housewives' Association held in the Temple building today. The suggestion came from the Ward Two delegates.

It was suggested that when there is a likelihood that milk will advance in price the housewives should confer with the dairy farmers if other commodities are to increase in price then contact should be made with other farmers. The convention was also told that farm women should be engaged at times as speakers at housewives' meetings and the latter should address farm women's groups.

When registration opened this morning delegates were present from Toronto, Hamilton, London and Oshawa. About 100 members of various associations were present.

Stores Be Closed Until Wednesday Following Christmas

PETERBOROUGH'S STORES will be closed three days at Christmas, — Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

That was the decision of the Business Men's Association last night. The stores will be open every night of Christmas week.

The proposal was not opposed. "The extra day will be appreciated by clerks who are planning to be out of the city for Christmas," one of the members remarked, and it was also agreed there would be no pressing need or desire to open the stores for business on the Tuesday after the statutory holiday of December 26.

LESSON ENFORCED

DURHAM, England—(CP). — A man who broadcast and wrote an article on "Crime Doesn't Pay," was sentenced to six years' imprisonment when he appeared in court here charged with house-breaking.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(CP-Havas.)—Lord Phillimore, Conservative, gave notice to-day he would raise the question of armament shipments from Canadian ports to Government Spain in the House of Lords next Tuesday.

He announced he would ask the Government whether the following facts are substantially correct and, if so, what steps have been taken to prevent similar breaches of non-intervention agreement in the future:

1. Whether there were shipped from the ports of Montreal and Saint John during the months of April and May, 1938, cases containing 34 Grumann airplanes, avowedly to the order of the government of Turkey, in the Freighters Hada County and Brant County?

2. Whether a further consignment of airplanes was disemarked by order of the Canadian government of airplanes was disembarked shipped aboard the Hada County?

3. Whether the Secretary of State of the United States has since had an inquiry made and established that, as a matter of fact, the Turkish government had made no such purchases and that these airplanes were in fact purchased by an agency of the Republican government of Spain and shipped to Republican Spain.

4. Whether it is known to the British government that Exhibit No. 15,005 of the recent war exhibition in San Sebastian, in insurgent Spain, of captured foreign armaments contains a specimen of the Grumann "FFI" Chaser all metal plane, that this plane shows clearly plates bearing the name of a Canadian firm and other plates bearing United States names?

5. Whether Canada is a member of the Non-Intervention committee?

6. Whether the whole transaction is not a breach of the orders-in-council referring to shipments of arms to Spain?

Pick-a-Back Mercury Flies 90,000 Letters For Christmas To Egypt In Record Time

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Nov. 30 (CP-Havas) — The Pick-a-Back seaplane Mercury, laden with more than a ton of Empire Christmas mail, alighted here at 6:22 a.m. GMT (1:22 a.m. EST) today, setting a new record over the Imperial Airways route with a 14 hour, six minute flight from Southampton.

The speedy seaplane, upper unit of the Mayor composite aircraft, took off from its mother ship over Southampton yesterday for the 2,400-mile flight to Alexandria.

The Mercury, which earlier this year successfully flew the Atlantic to Canada and made a record-breaking flight from England to South Africa in October, carried about 90,000 Christmas letters. From Alexandria the letters will be carried on to other Empire points by air.

Canada To Celebrate The King's Birthday On May 20 When Monarch In Ottawa

OTTAWA, Nov. 30 (CP). — The Canadian parliament will open with traditional ceremony next January 12 for what many observers believe will be the final session before a general election.

The government has six weeks in which to whip its legislative program into shape and prepare for anticipated long debates on such questions as the Canada - United States trade treaty, national defence, unemployment and the railway problem.

Following a Cabinet meeting, Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced the opening date at a press conference last night. He also disclosed that the King's birthday will be celebrated in Canada next year on May 20, when the King and Queen are in Ottawa. The birthday was celebrated last year June 9, although it actually is December 14.

Canadians will celebrate His Majesty's birthday May 20 only for next year. The change was made with the King's approval.

Statutes of Canada empower the Governor-General-in-Council to fix, by proclamation, the date on which His Majesty's birthday will be celebrated, and the necessary proclamation will be issued shortly.

The King and Queen will reach Canada May 15 for their Canadian tour of approximately three weeks. They will land at Quebec and presumably will come almost direct to Ottawa. One of the features of Their Majesties' stay here will be unveiling of the National War Memorial by the King. It is not yet known whether the unveiling date will coincide with that now

11 Chinese Killed In Hong Kong Area

HONG KONK, Nov. 30—(AP).—Eleven Chinese were killed on the British side of Hong Kong's border with South China yesterday and today while fleeing Japanese troops. Heavier border guards were established.

It was reported a protest was made in Tokyo against an incident Saturday when Japanese forces were said to have occupied a frontier military post.

The 11 Chinese dead apparently were machine-gunned while hunting hideouts among the hills near the Canton-Kowloon railway.

Whitby Garages Robbed

WHITBY, Nov. 30.—(CP)—Loot valued at $300 was taken from two Whitby garage firms during the night. Thieves made off with 37 gallons of anti-freeze, about 100 spark plugs and other auto accessories.

Gaining entry into Deverell Motors the marauders took seven gallons of anti-freeze, two car heaters, 60 spark plugs, an electric fan and fog light, electric grill and $15 worth of cigarettes.

At Donald Motor Sales the loot consisted of 30 gallons of anti-freeze and spark plugs.

Delayed Vote

TORONTO, Nov. 30 (CP).—York Township Board of Education last night delayed voting on a motion to allow lectures on sex and social diseases in York Township collegiates.

After a discussion which drew sharp clashes between trustees, the board let the matter rest as a notice of motion until a full meeting is convened. Three members were absent last night.

Deploring what he called a "hush-hush-policy' and "false modesty," Dr. Luke Teskey said failure to eliminate social diseases among the younger generation might impair Canada's chances in a future war.

200 More Police?

TORONTO, Nov. 30 (CP). — The Police Commission will require more than the word of Chief Draper to be convinced Toronto needs 200 more policemen, Mayor Ralph Day said yesterday.

"We are not taking the word of any one man that police efficiency is now at its peak and that any betterment depends on the expenditure of an additional $400,000 or more," the Mayor said.

Comb Surf For 5 Drowned In Plane Wreck

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30 (AP)—In the churning surf off Point Reyes, the gloomy search was resumed today for the bodies of four men and a young woman who met death yesterday through a strange new hazard to aviation.

Officials studied the phenomenon of "too good" radio reception which so confused the pilot of a Seattle-San Francisco United Airlines plane he became lost and had to bring the transport down on the sea when it ran out of gasoline. One said the phenomenon had occurred just three times, and never before had caused an accident.

Added to the grief of the five victims' families was the knowledge that had the plane occupants remained in the cabin instead of scrambling to the top of the fuselage "for safety," they probably would have reached shore without injury. The cabin of the wrecked and battered airliner was dry when it was finally washed ashore. The pilot and one passenger survived.

the British House of Lords next Tuesday, purportedly were assembled in Canada after being obtained from American companies by an agent from government Spain who claimed the machines were to be shipped to Canada and would remain there.

Before the transaction was completed the United States department of state was informed that Canada was not the destination of the planes and that the parts exported were passing through Canada, ostensibly on their way to Turkey. The Turkish government, however, informed the United States the planes had not been purchased by that country.

Before the licences had been revoked, the planes had been shipped to Spain, according to the state department. Documents purporting to show the planes were leaving Canada for Turkey were forgeries.

No Further Clarification

OTTAWA, Nov. 29.—"The statement I issued on the matter of Canadian airplane shipments to Turkey, on October 29, covers all the essential points," Revenue Minister J. L. Ilsley said here today. He was commenting on a London despatch which said Lord Phillimore had given notice of a series of questions he proposed to ask on Tuesday in the House of Lords regarding the alleged side-tracking of Canadian-made airplanes from Turkey to Republican Spain.

"I have nothing to add to that statement," the minister said.

Nose-Printing Idea Is Accepted For Pedigreed Dogs

TORONTO, Nov. 30. — Pedigreed pups no longer need suffer tattooing as a means of identification. The Canadian Kennel Club has received notice from the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa that henceforth it will accept nose-printing for identity records.

The notice represents the end of a long-drawn-out effort of the club to induce the department to abandon identification by tattooing of dogs, which members of the club felt was unnecessarily cruel. Five years ago members refused to tattoo their dogs and under the leadership, particularly of Mrs. Alva McColl, a director of the club, undertook a campaign to induce the government to accept nose-printing instead.

the demonstration as the start of a campaign to obtain from France at least a voice in the administration of Tunisia, if not it transfer to Italian control.

(Tunisia—or Tunis—has been a French protectorate since 1881. It lies between the Mediterranean, Algeria and the Sahara, and has an area of about 44,920 square miles and a population of about 2,000,000).

At one point Ciano paused in his summary of the September German-Czechoslovak crisis and the subsequent implementing of the new Anglo-Italian friendship agreement to turn to look up at the Earl of Perth, British ambassador, who was in the diplomatic box. His gesture was a signal for prolonged cheering Lord Perth smiled and nodded in acknowledgment.

Duce Directed Mobilizing

Ciano told how Premier Mussolini had personally directed the mobilization of 89,854 sailors and 550,000 soldiers to help Germany had the September crisis produced a general wa.

Beginning Sept. 27, three days before Chancellor Hitler's Oct. 1 deadline for getting Sudetenland, Italian preparedness measures included putting the army on a war footing on the western frontier, strengthening aircraft on the Tyrrhenian watershed and increasing garrisons at Elba, Sicily, Sardinia and Libya.

New chiefs were assigned to the air force, new air fields were prepared, reserves recalled, ships were furnished torpedoes and the navy completed its crews.

At dawn of Sept. 28, 23 battleships and cruisers, 114 destroyers and torpedo boats, 91 submarines, 337 minelayers and smaller units, with a total of 5,123 officers and 84,731 men were ready to enter action, Ciano said.

Poll Tax Payments Worrying Hastings

HASTINGS, Nov. 30.—The municipal council of this village held a special session Monday afternoon and decided on some action in collecting poll tax from the eligible. Poll tax papers had been served two months ago but they had received but $1 to date.

Constable W. Wellman was instructed to issue warning that if the $5 tax was not paid by December 14, summonses would be served the delinquents. The constable made his rounds and up to last night had succeeded in scaring $8 more to the town treasury.

Body Is Held 52 Hours For Claimant

Failure of both Havelock and Belmont to accept responsibility for funeral expenses of William Hill, 61-year-old farmer who died at 6.30 Sunday evening in a local hospital resulted in the body remaining in the hospital morgue until 8.30 Tuesday night, a total of 52 hours.

The man was admitte dto the hospital eighteen days ago, supposedly on the certificate of Dr. Holdcroft, medical officer of health for Havelock, and as an indigent. He died Sunday evening. Hospital officials attempted to have officials of either Havelock or Belmont state where the body was to be taken, but they are said to have refused.

Reeve Griffiths of Belmont admitted today that hospital officials had telephoned twice to him, but on both occasions he had refused to accept any responsibility in the case, declaring that Hill was not a resident of Belmont. Reeve Ernest Seeney of Havelock denied that the hospital had asked him for instructions regarding the disposal of the body. He also said the town clerk at Havelock had not been communicated with but other sources state Havelock officials also refused responsibility.

To Bill the County

Warden E. N. McDonald of Dummer told hospital authorities late Tuesday afternoon to have the body turned over to an undertaker as an indigent and the undertaker could in turn bill the county. Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., is also reported to have advised the hospital authorities that under the Act, they have the right to call any undertaker who will accept and order the preparing of the body, then the undertaker may collect the amount set aside by statute from the municipality of which the deceased was a resident.

The deceased William Hill is said to be a brother of Russell Hill, Havelock, and had been living for a time with the latter. More recently he is reported to have been working for a farmer named Petherick, north of Havelock. Reeve Seeney of Havelock claims Hill is a resident of Belmont but Reeve Griffiths on the other hand contends the dead man had been a transient farm laborer and it is doubtful just what municipality will be held responsible for the costs. At any rate he adds Belmont is not responsible.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 30 (C.P.). — Winnipeg wheat prices after an early rise dipped ¼ to ¾ cent near the final gong to-day when Southern commission house selling struck the pit. Big news of the day was sale of 15,000,000 bushels of United States wheat to the United Kingdom.

December closed at 58¾, May 61⅝ and July 62¼ to ⅝ cents.

Price range was narrow throughout the day with some sea-going and commission house buying, principally in December, in evidence. Export sales were believed new and mostly out of Vancouver port. Some local spreading appeared in the closing hours.

Country marketing yesterday reached 415,000 bushels, compared with 224,000 bushels the corresponding day a year ago.

Old Blue Laws Not To Be "Kill Joy" For Ontario, Says Conant

OSHAWA, Ont., Nov. 30 (CP).—Ontario's government has no intention of enforcing the Dominion's ancient "blue laws" and Attorney-General Gordon Conant would like to see the Sunday observance statutes of 1845 and 1906 supplanted by modern legislation.

"I say again that it is quite impossible to enforce such laws," Mr. Conant said in a service club address here yesterday. "We are not going to make criminals out our people on any such statutes and we are not going to take the joy out of life for people by endeavoring to apply such laws."

He called on the Dominion to repeal the laws which, he said, are "out of tune with modern conditions." To illustrate, he referred to motor-bus picnics, golfing, fishing, shooting and swimming as illegal if indulged on Sunday.

Mr. Conant said he did not want and would not stand for "wide-open Sundays as they have in the United States." He favored enforcement of "laws which bear equally and fairly upon all our people."

Dancing Ends Midnight.

In Toronto, Mayor Ralph C. Day hastened to assure clergymen they had been "misinformed" if they had been told the city planned to allow public dancing after midnight on New Year's Eve, which falls on Saturday this year. Hotels will be allowed to serve food after midnight, the Mayor said, but when he had promised not-too-rigorous enforcement of Sunday laws at New Year's he had not been referring to dancing and the serving of liquor.

"Advisability of allowing the hotels to provide entertainment after midnight, possibly in the form of a New Year's Eve cabaret, had been left by the Board of Police Commissioners entirely to the discretion of the Chief Constable," the Mayor said.

Santa Claus And Christkindle Spread Cheer Among The Swiss

By MARIE WIDMER
(Central Press Canadian Writer)

ZURICH, Nov. 30—Ruddy-cheeked Santa Claus is still a much-beloved figure in Swiss rural districts. His visit, however, does not fall on the night before Christmas, but on Dec. 6, anniversary of the first Santa Claus which the world ever knew. He was St. Nicholas, Bishop of Myra, in Asia Minor, who in the 11th century gave presents to the poor yearly on that day.

Bellwald in the Upper Valais has a particularly colorful Santa Claus celebration. It starts immediately after lunch, with a gathering of all the schoolboys on the village square. Every lad wears a good-sized cowbell and four boys are garbed in quaint costumes which in long-forgotten days were worn to keep away the evil spirits of winter.

Stops at Every Home.

"Santa Claus" marches at the head of the procession which stops at every home to collect small gifts. The boys don't confine their calls to their own locality, but also make the round of small neighboring communities. When dusk falls the youngsters return to their own village and after supper they proceed with their parents to the borough hall where the donations received are being divided under the supervision of the teacher.

While Santa Claus has his most enthusiastic followers in the Swiss rural regions, Zurich, the largest city in the country, takes keen delight in observing the old saint's birthday on December 6. In this great metropolitan area a tall Santa Claus with flowing white beard, and carrying a huge bag on his back, leads a long procession of eager "helpers," mostly from 13 to 15 years old. These assistants wear long nightshirts, huge cardboard masks and illuminated headgear which has been elaborately fashioned by the boys themselves under the guidance of their teachers. Equipped with horns and bells, the boys exercise quite a pied-piper spell under the inhabitants. Thousands and thousands of eager spectators, both young and old, line the streets wherever the merry parade goes and suitable Santa Claus gifts, such as cookies, apples and nuts, are generously contributed by friends of youth. Many a house do Santa Claus and his helpers visit afterwards and all obedient children receive their share of presents. Naughty children, however, are sternly reprimanded and in urgent cases a switch, fashioned by Santa himself from twigs of birch, is left with the parents of the little culprits.

Angel Drawn By Reindeers.

On Christmas Eve it is the Christkindli, a lovely angel, who travels about on a reindeer-drawn sleigh, piled high with Christmas trees and beautifully wrapped packages. This fairy-like spirit of Christmas is reminiscent of the Christ Child Himself, who was God's sublime gift to humanity, and as on that first Christmas Eve long ago, sentiments of peace and good-will among men find their expression throughout the land, which in its scintillating garb of white is paradise itself.

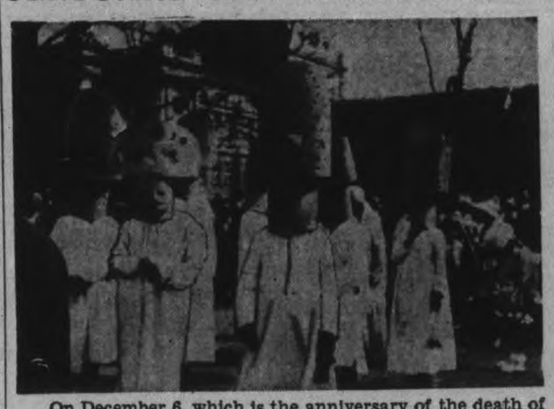
Santa Comes To Switzerland December 6



On December 6, which is the anniversary of the death of the saintly bishop of St. Nicholas at Myra in Asia Minor, the boys of Zurich, Switzerland, pay tribute to "Samichlaus," or Santa Claus, in a most picturesque manner. While the generous old Saint himself appears in a more or less familiar costume his helpers don long white nightshirts, cardboard masks and illuminated headgear, and equipped with horns or bells they stage a huge parade which is thoroughly enjoyed by Switzerland's largest city.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(AP).—A group of prominent educators charged today that schooling received by 80 per cent of the children in the United States is so inadequate as to threaten future successful operation of American government and industry.

The indictment was contained in a summary of a three-year study of the New York state education system by 200 specialists. Among them were seen college presidents and 30 educators of national reputation.

Dr. Luther Gulick, New York, director of the inquiry, told the public education association last night that investigation had disclosed American public school graduates "have no idea what work means, what sort of opportunities there are, how to look for work or how to work when they get a job," he said.

"They are not prepared to be useful citizens or to enter community or home life. "Few have any protections against mob hysteria, propaganda, shallow prejudice or economic gold bricks."

They Did It At Janetville

Rev. H. W. V. Walker, pastor of the Janetville Presbyterian Church, and also the churches at Ballyduff and Nestleton, is leaving that field for Stirling after a ministry of 21 years. Mrs. Walker came to Janetville as a bride and the two boys of the family were born there, so the place seems pretty much like home to them.

But that is not all. Mr. Walker is a Presbyterian, and having been in one place for 21 years he would have been in that community all through the period when controversy existed regarding church union, and when the issue was finally decided and when a number of churches were rather sadly and badly split. There are communities where that split feeling has not yet been healed, but not so in the case of Mr. Walker at Janetville.

When time came close for him to leave the community Mr. and Mrs. Walker and the boys were asked to attend a meeting held in and sponsored by the United Church, and we read the Sunday school room was filled to capacity. Before the affair was far under way there was a presentation for the Walker family of a handsome studio couch, and there were sincere words spoken indicating that the United Church folk were regretful indeed to hear that the Presbyterian minister and his family were soon to leave the community.

We do not know whether that constitutes a record or some such thing, but for the moment we cannot recall such an event having taken place elsewhere. Presentations and words of farewell are not uncommon to departing ministers in any denomination, but for another denomination to join in active participation is unique. The United Church folk at Janetville have made a bit of history by showing their esteem and regard for the Presbyterian minister. Mr. Walker has not spent his 21 years in that district in vain.

Seven Months in New York

The average person might well conclude there would be little opportunity for one to start in business in New York because everything is so crowded in that great city. There appears to be so many in every conceivable line of trade or business. By the same process of reasoning one might well come to the conclusion that it would be hard enough to find a job there; the relief list is formidable and the workless people are in evidence all day and all night.

But it was to New York that Morris Kirshenblatt went last April when the family left Warsaw, Poland. The man had to put up a deposit of $5,000 before he was allowed to enter the country as a guarantee that he and members of his family would not become a charge on the state, and it was all the money the new citizen possessed.

The next report from Morris Kirshenblatt is that he has applied for the release of $3,000 of his funds as he believes with that much money he can establish himself in business. In his statement he shows that he and his sons are now earning $95 per week, and they have stuck together in their efforts to keep a home and save for the day when they would have a business of their own. The details of their earnings show that the father is employed as a watchmaker and earns $35 a week; Abraham, their eldest son earns $25 per week; Jerome, 22, receives $20 per week, and Henry, who is 18, earns $15 per week.

So that Polish family, in the crowded city of New York, inside of seven months after arrival, have an income of $95 per week and all members of the family are working, and now they believe the time has come to go into business on their own account. And a stranger walking around New York for a short time might well come to the conclusion that there would be no chance there to open a business and probably a slim opportunity to even find some kind of a job.

Our Method Is Better

A report of a Toronto City Council meeting says that in less than five minutes of discussion it was agreed to issue debentures to the extent of $2,761,000. The major amounts in this total are made up of $1,100,000 for the city's share of 1938 relief costs, and $521,000 for the balance of 1937 relief. So in these two items for relief Toronto is adding to its debenture debt to the extent of $1,621-000.

Toronto has found its cost of civic government high, and we believe that other municipalities have had similar experience. Fear of driving the tax rate up too far may be the reason why relief has been regarded as something which should be dealt with by debentures, although such a method will of itself make certain that the tax rate will remain up during the period covered.

Peterborough is a lesser city in size than Toronto. Where we have one ratepayer Toronto probably has 25 or 30, but apart from size or extent the problem of administration is much the same. In our city it has been considered unwise to issue debentures for the city's share of relief costs. That policy was adopted in 1932, since when Peterborough has issued no debentures for relief, nor have there been debentures of any other kind issued. Each year the amount required for relief has been placed in the estimates and paid out of the current tax rate. It may be the hard way to do, because when relief costs are running high it indicates that unemployment is also in the same condition. But we are satisfied it is the best way of financing. By retiring debentures each year and not adding any new ones to take their place the city is working itself into a stronger financial condition. We prefer our system to that followed in Toronto where relief expenditure is spread over the years to come rather than being paid for in cash during the year in which the indebtedness is incurred.

You Are Invited

Friday evening of this week is going to be important and right at the beginning we will state why. The Santa Claus parade is on at 7.30 and you will find the route of the parade all mapped out elsewhere in the Examiner. Possibly several times. Last year Santa Claus came in on a train, but this year we do not know where he is coming from; he's turned sort of mysterious once more like he used to be years ago. We mention these things so you will be on hand. If you live outside the city then come along; tell your friends or relatives in the city you will be coming in for tea or better still that you will spend the night with them. We know they'll be glad to have you and all the children.

If there are any conscientious objectors to this sort of fun we'll have to ask you just to pull in your horns for the moment and be a child again. Shake off the years in between and rid yourself of all the worldly wisdom you have been storing for a long time past which may have made you rather unhappy and brought you little enough pleasure. Stand out on the edge of the curb—that is if you can find a place—and when Santa Claus comes along holler out "There he is!" and jump up and down and show other external signs of inward emotion. You will feel better for having done so.

Are We To Blame?

Apparently there are a number of young men who have nothing to do except get into trouble. If one looks through statistics it will be found that the majority of criminals are young men, many of them with youth still upon them.

The news of a day will often show exactly the same thing. In Toronto three young men were placed under arrest because they are suspected of having stolen securities from a safe taken from a doctor's office. They gave their names and ages:

Gus Zanine, 19; Charles Beaumont, 29; Gilbert Bernier, 19.

Same day an officer had a hard chase to stop a stolen car just outside of Toronto. In the car there was $100 worth of stolen goods. The three men arrested were:

Fred Caperchio, 19; Ernest Swan, 17; Percy Waters, 21.

A police cruiser car was stolen from outside the Keele street police station in Toronto, and the young man accused of the theft and afterward taken into custody was Willie Beebe, 19 years old.

Miss Suzanne Ames was walking on a Toronto street when a youth stopped and asked her the time. When she was looking at her wrist watch the youth grabbed her purse containing $40 and disappeared. Miss Ames said the thief did not appear to be over 17 years of age.

So there were eight of them in the news, and six of them were still in the 'teen age group; one of them 29 and the other at the interesting and challenging age of 21.

Perhaps we are satisfied that the police are elert enough to gather in these young fellows and it may be we are inclined to say that catching them will serve as a lesson to others who may be inclined toward lawlessness, but it does not work that way. We know well enough that as we read papers in days ahead we will find more of the same thing; more young fellows in trouble; more young men standing in the dock to hear the sentence sending them to prison, jail or reformatory.

Young men of that age in normal society would be working, and at night they would be tired. They would probably be looking ahead to a life occupation of some sort. We believe there is a close connection between unemployment and this sort of 'teen-age crime. We are making the serious error of becoming used to this sort of news because we see it so often. We think it is none of our business while it is very much our affair. We have virtually no labor policy to keep young fellows from drifting. When we see youth turning to crime we cannot well take the basin and wash our hands, but that's about all we have done so far.

Today's Lesson

A reader of the Examiner brought to this office a copy of the Otago Daily Times, remarking that we might like to look it over. We have stated previously that people in one part of the British Empire do not know a great deal about the other parts of the Empire, and now we believe that to be the case. We can say frankly we did not know there was such a paper in existence as the Otago Daily Times. It is published in Dunedin, New Zealand. This particular issue contained full reports of the latest victory of the Labor government, and the Times contained pictures of the entire 79 elected members. It was not content to publish pictures of merely a few of the leaders in political life.

The Otago Daily Times looks much like an English paper, with the front page given over entirely to advertising, and we find several people informing the public that lawn mowers can be sharpened and delivered in short order, indicating a climate rather different to our own at this season. Today we used a broom to whisk away a bit of snow.

Surprising too the manner in which the dentists serve notice of what they can do. Painless extractions for instance are plainly listed at 2s 6d (60 cents), while "extractions" are listed at 1s, or 24 cents, so the individual who can stand a little pain secures a monetary advantage. A set of teeth can be secured for as little as £2 10s. It is also announced that all work is done "at competitive prices." Whether that means that the individual in Dunedin with dental work to be attended to goes about town securing prices and then selects the lowest offer we do not know, but it indicates that some such custom is in vogue.

Many announcements tell of quick repairs to tennis equipment; there are a number of advertisements calling for help on dairy and sheep farms. There is an announcement advising people to send telegrams congratulating friends who were successful in the elections, and the rate quoted is 1d per word . . . Whiskey is freely advertised . . . we learn a good bicycle costs $47 . . . there was but one successful candidate in the elections who had a card of thanks in the paper . . . railways advertise for business and argue it is much safer to travel on the trains . . . one farm sale is being held at which 680 head of sheep are offered . . . one real estate firm announces it needs a greater supply of houses for sale as they are moving quickly. So that completes our lesson for the day in Empire knowledge, thanks to the Otago Daily Times.

NOTE AND COMMENT

New Brunswick had more tourists last summer than in 1937. And the quints cannot take the credit for that increase.

Nova Scotia reports more horses this year. What is really needed, however, is not more horses but faster ones.

There is considerable written advising people that it is not necessary to grow old. There is not sufficient said about doing the thing gracefully.

France had one world-famous revolution, and one does not need to be an alarmist to conclude that another such event is possible.

Mr. Hepburn says he is not going to make Ontario a haven for all the transients in Canada. That is the role that British Columbia has always claimed to be playing.

Henry Ford was convicted of defrauding the Montreal relief department of $600. And like as not the papers will be requested to say the Henry Ford mentioned was not the one who is fairly well known in Detroit.

With Premier Hepburn engaged in battles with Premier Bracken of Manitoba and his former colleague, David Croll, of Windsor, it must be admitted that the head of Ontario's Government is not ducking any punches.

A young man in the Canadian West desired $150 to get married so he wired an uncle in Hamilton asking for that amount and explaining he needed it for his mother's funeral expenses. At the moment the young man is in jail at Regina, and we cannot think of a better place for him.

WEE ANGUS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Wee Angus is a splendid lad, it makes me feel alarming glad, to see the change in him; I hint at something I want done, and straightway he starts on a run, all ready to begin.

¶ I never have to holler now, to fork hay for the brindle cow, he's right there on the dot; he's right there busy like and keen, the likes of him I've never seen, he acts like what he ought.

¶ Nor does he linger after four, nor go and lose himself no more, comes home when he gets through; and when he gets through any task, he starts in now to search and ask, for things that he can do.

¶ And when I want an errand done, Wee Angus comes now on the run, and dashes through the gate; I can't quite fathom out the lad, but can't help feeling rather glad, his service is just great.

¶ He's helping with the dishes too, a field to him that's rather new, there's nothing he'll refuse he got my overcoat to-day, and well night took my breath away, by shining up my shoes.

¶ When he was going to bed last night, I asked him if he felt all right, then things began to clear; when he was rubbing at his eyes, he said it came as a surprise—that Christmas was so near.

Says China Far From Defeated

(By Dr. A. J. Brace, F.R.G.S., for 30 years a Y.M.C.A. worker in West China as reported in a recent address)

"IF WE TOOK a vote here today we would find that 90 per cent were sympathetic to China, yet we are responsible for keeping the war going."

Fifty-four per cent of the munitions used by the Japs comes from the United States and 17 per cent from Great Britain, of which latter amount Canada supplies some. A total of 71 per cent of the arms and munitions come from two of the countries who are busy trying to Christianize China, he pointed out.

"This is not alone China's battle, it is our battle as well. The Rome-Berlin-Tokio axis is a real threat against democratic nations. If we keep on as we are suppiying Japan with the munitions to continue the war, it is tantamount to helping the burglar get away with his swag."

Petitions are now being signed, he said, and will be sent to Washington and Ottawa asking the governments of both countries to do something to stop the Sino-Japanese war. It could be done, if these countries were so-minded, he said.

Eighty per cent of the present leaders in China are Christians. He admitted that his talk must appear pro-Chinese and that it is based upon his long association with Chinese leaders and people of all walks of life. He is an intimate friend of General Chiang Kai Shek and Madame Shek, he said, and his son is still a member of the general's transportation staff.

The Chinese, he said, are far from beaten. They have lost key cities to the Japs but only on railroads. Away from the railroad there is an army of 7,000,000 Chinese farmers engaged in guerilla warfare and they have the Japanese frightened to the point that none of them will venture into the countryside overnight. Many captures and victories are recorded by the guerillas which are never reported in newspaper accounts, Dr. Brace said.

THE NEWSPAPERS, he said, which report that one-third of China has been captured, have got the situation "all wrong." Only one-tenth of China has been taken and the Japanese are hard pressed to guard it. Guards numbering 25,000 troops which have occupied captured territory, Dr. Brace said, have been reduced to 5,000 by the sporadic attacks of newly organized Chinese.

He paid warm tribute to the Christian spirit of both Chiang Kai Shek and Madame Shek. They have placed themselves high in the esteem of the majority of the Chinese and are doing marvellous organization work. The Japanese powers that be are overlooking the spearhead of the new movement in China, he said, composed of American and British trained native Chinese. Among these, he said, are 5,000 Chinese students with Ph.D. degrees from American and British universities. Sixty per cent of the students trained in the western hemisphere, he said, have returned to China as engineers. They are prepard to build a new China.

"To be objective," Dr. Brace said, "we must remember that there are two Japans. The warm kindly people under the leadership of that great man Kagawa and those who are dominated by the military and naval powers. The latter, he said, are ruthless in their determination to wreck China as a prelude to attacks on Russia and other territory.

China, Dr. Brace said, is today in far better financial condition than Japan, thanks to loans from abroad. They believe, he said, that though Japan may win many battles, China will win the last one.

Chiang Kai Shek, he said, has never lost an army to the Japs except in active warfare. None of the great captures of Chinese troops reported by the Japs, he said, are true. They may have hemmed in the Chinese but they have always escaped and rejoined their leader. The Chinese general, Chiang Kai Shek, Dr. Brace explained, received all his military education in Japanese colleges. He knows just about what the next move will be. "In fact, he is several steps ahead of them."

"We should think this thing through as Canadians and Americans," Dr. Brace urged. "Don't let us fool ourselves. This thing can happen here. I am inclined to agree with Eden, although I do not condemn Mr. Chamberlain and the Munich pact—it saved us from war at least temporarily—but we cannot rely on the word of the dictators. They intend to have their own way and will get it just so long as we are willing."

ALBERTA'S BLIZZARDS.

(Lethbridge Herald)

IT DOES NOT PAY to take chances with the weather in Winter in Southern Alberta. A recent blizzard, in which one man was frozen to death, is proof of this statement.

Early settlers in the Prairie West were much more careful not to be caught in blizzards than we are today. Travel then was slow. Today, travelling in automobiles, the public takes chances with the elements, though it is very well known that there is nothing more helpless in a snowdrift piled up in a blizzard than a motor car.

These storms come with lightning-like speed, and people are likely to be caught unprepared unless they keep always in mind the dangers of our Winter weather. Perhaps one of these days we will have blizzard-warning signals just as storm signals are displayed along our coasts.

HOPEFUL.

"I want to grow some trees in my garden. Can you sell me a few seeds?" asked Mrs. Newlywed.

"Certainly, madame," replied the assistant. He fetched her a packet.

"Can you guarantee these?" she asked.

"Yes, madame ,we can."

"Will the trees be tall and thick in the trunk?"

"They should be, madame."

"And quite strong at the roots, I suppose?"

"Oh, yes, madame."

"Very well, I'll take a hammock at the same time."

• New Brunswick Has Gone Silly

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

HISTORIANS of the future should have little difficulty in getting a very accurate picture of the Canada of 1938. Almost every detail of the picture is to be found in the evidence that has been submitted to the Royal Commission on federal-provincial relations. Almost without exception the briefs have been documents of the highest order, the facts and arguments being set forth by experts.

But it would have been rather too good a picture without the supplementary brief by the Government of New Brunswick yesterday. There have of course been crack-pot briefs contributed to the proceedings by a few private organizations, but until yesterday no government or important national organization became downright silly in its presentation. Without the New Brunswick brief, the future historian might have come to the entirely wrong conclusion that governments in Canada in 1938 never lapsed into silliness.

In the good old tradition of the Maritimes, New Brunswick contends that she has been getting a shabby deal ever since Confederation, and she urges that more federal attention be paid to improvement of her seaport facilities. She has a perfect right to have these views and express them. She also has a perfect right to provide amusement for the rest of Canada in her argument in support of these views. She backs them up with the contention that national seaport facilities on the Canadian Atlantic are so inadequate that they doubtless were a factor in Mr. Chamberlain's mind when he agreed to the Peace of Munich! Owing to the inadequacy of the ports, the United Kingdom would have been in a pretty pickle regarding food supplies from Canada "if the Empire had been forced into a war as a result of the recent European trouble."

So now we know the real cause of the none too firm attitude and position of Mr. Chamberlain at Munich. It was not the result of the lack of proper anti-aircraft protection, as Mr. Hore-Belisha disclosed in that confession which would have wrecked the Chamberlain administration in less confused and less lenient times. It was not the uncertainty as to whether Russia might remain out of it at the last moment, after giving every evidence of support in order to drag Britain and France into it. It was the inadequacy of the Atlantic seaports of Canada that Mr. Chamberlain had in his mind!

• Ontario Muffing Its Chance

IT HAS BEEN ANNOUNCED that the Ontario Government does not intend to have an exhibit at the World's Fair in New York next year. One wonders, says the Ottawa Journal, whether Premier Hepburn, in coming to that decision, has given adequate thought to all the considerations involved.

Millions of Americans from all parts of the United States will visit that fair. Their presence makes an opportunity for Ontario to advertise her attractions for the tourists such as seldom occurs and such as should not be missed.

The Peterborough Examiner puts the case well:

"We should show those visitors what advantages Ontario possesses as a Summer vacationland, show them the wonderful system of lakes and rivers we have and the rapidly lengthening network of good highways over which they can ride to reach these scenic beauty spots. And we shouldn't stop at that. In a world show window, such as this great exhibition provides, we should display our advantages as a location for branch factories of American industries, advertise our cheap power, our publicly-owned Hydro system, our ample railway accommodation and the other facilities we have available for the American manufacturer who is seeking a location on this side of the border."

Ontario makes a very handsome profit from the tourists. Americans in their hundreds of thousands have travelled to Callander to see the Dionne quintuplets and, as Dr. Dafoe said to the Canadian Tourist Association, "figure what that means to the province in gasoline tax alone." This merely illustrates the possibilities of the tourist traffic, considering our fortunate situation next door to a huge population acutely conscious of the pleasure of going to new places and seeing new things. And it would seem that the concentration of Americans at the World's Fair provides an ideal set-up for an aggressive tourist campaign by the Province of Ontario.

An official exhibit, well planned to illustrate the variety of Ontario's attractions, with well-informed attendants to answer questions and give directions, would return its cost many times, we should say.

• Censure And Praise For Treaty

MR. BAKER

TORONTO — Richard L. Baker, Conservative M.P. for Eglinton, last night attacked the new Canada-United States trade pact as a detriment to Canada and a benefit to the United States, charging that for every $3 worth of Canadian goods bought by the United States, $30 worth of business was done across the border by Canadians.

Addressing Eglinton Riding Conservative Association, Mr. Baker contended that Canada's sacrifice of her advantages enjoyed under the Empire agreement with Great Britain would prove a great loss.

MR. FERGUSON

TORONTO—In the recent Anglo-Canadian - American trade treaties, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson saw the birth of a new national relationship, out of which would probably develop, on the part of the three nations involved, greater, concerted effort to maintain the security, the freedom and the liberty for which, he said, they have always stood. "With that great league of nations, the British Empire, supported by the United States," he said, "who dare attack us? We'd never have to go to war again, because the bully only picks one some one he thinks he can whip."

TIME-DEFYING HOSE.

(New York Times)

INDUSTRY now promises the women of America a new hosiery fiber as strong as steel. The question arises whether this isn't a good deal more than the women want. It must be fine to have a synthetic silk stocking immune to runs that flesh-colored hosiery is heir to. But there should be a middle ground between silk stockings that tear at the slightest opportunity and stockings that never wear out. Tradition says that men like to keep on wearing their clothes, but women suffer dreadfully from wearing the same old thing forever, as the phrase goes.

The real boom of stockings as strong as steel is obviously for the parents of small boys, and mothers who mend and fathers who buy. They constitute a very large class of people who never get tired of seeing the children wear the same old thing all the time.

SHE GOT HER MAN.

(Windsor Star)

SOME WOMEN seem to ignore the suggestion that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach, but there is truth in the saying nevertheless.

A recent example is that of Harold T. Youngren, of Lansing, Michigan. On a trip several months ago he stopped at a small Pennsylvania hotel, and was much pleased by the dessert served him. He asked to meet the person who made it and Miss Dortha Philson was introduced to him.

Now the couple are honeymooning in Bermuda. Surely this is a lesson for young unwed women who wish to get husbands! Surely, also, it is one for married women who wish to keep the good husbands they already have!

NOT UNTIL NEXT YEAR

Kitchener Record: The duty on Christmas trees has been lowered. However the new trade treaty doesn't become effective until the new year so this provides no additional stimulus for early Christmas chopping.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

AND IT CAME TO PASS, that, while Apollos was at Corinth, Paul having passed through the upper coasts came to Ephesus. . . . And God wrought special miracles by the hands of Paul. . . . Then certain of the vagabond Jews, exorcists, took upon them to call over them which had evil spirits the name of the Lord Jesus, saying, We adjure you by Jesus whom Paul preacheth.

And there were seven sons of one Sceva, a Jew, and chief of the priests, which did so. And the evil spirit answered and said, Jesus I know, and Paul I know! but who are ye? And the man in whom the evil spirit was leaped on them, and overcame them, and prevailed against them, so that they fled out of that house naked and wounded.

And this was known to all the Jews and Greeks also dwelling at Ephesus; and fear fell on them all, and the name of the Lord Jesus was magnified. And many that believed came, and confessed, and shewed their deeds. Many of them also which used curious arts brought their books together; and burned them before all men: and they counted the price of them, and found it fifty thousand pieces of silver. So mightily grew the word of God and prevailed.—Acts xix, 1, 11, 13-20.

SUCCESSION DUTIES..

Succession Duties raise three important questions. How much will they be? — will my estate have the money or liquid assets to pay them within the time set by law? — what effect will this tax have on my plans? ¶ We invite you to consult our officers who have a practical knowledge of the working of Succession Duty Acts in the various Provinces of Canada. They will be glad to estimate the amount of Duty for which you should make provision, and to discuss your estate plans, as they may be affected by this tax, in the light of this Corporation's long experience as executor and trustee extending over half a century. ¶ Your inquiries will receive prompt attention: they will place you under no obligation.

Chief Newhall Will Appoint Poll Constables

By reason of a change in the Municipal Act the responsibility of appointing constables to act in polling booths on the day of the municipal elections, when such booths are located in public buildings, now rests upon the police commission or the chief of police, it was stated at Tuesday's meeting of the local police commission.

Peterborough has some 39 polls at municipal elections and all but four or five are placed in public buildings so that under the new setup it is necessary for the commission or the chief constable to make 34 or 35 appointments for the coming election.

At the suggestion of City Clerk Armstrong it was decided to continue the practice that has been followed by the city at recent elections of having Relief Officer Metheral select from the relief lists the names of men capable of acting as election constables.

A motion by Mayor Hamilton, seconded by Judge Smoke, that the Chief Constable be instructed to secure from the relief officer the names of suitable men for this duty and to make the appointments, was carried.

The Police Cars

In a letter Chief Constable Newhall suggested the advisability of turning in the two police cars now in use for new cars and of entering into an arrangement to have the police cars turned in every year. He enclosed prices he had received from J. K. Hughes, J. J. Duffus and Hood and Cumming, all three of which expressed willingnes sto enter into agreement to provide new cars at the end of each year. The cars now in use, Chief Newhall stated had covered 40,000 and 26,000 miles respectively.

The commissioners thought it would be good business to turn in the police automobiles each year but could not see the advantage of an agreement with any particular firm, preferring to handle the transaction on a yearly basis. It was felt too that prices should be secured from other dealers before coming to any decision in the matter and accordingly no action was taken at Tuesday's meeting. Chief Newhall will obtain prices from other firms and the matter will be dealt with at another meeting.

No action was taken, either, in regard to an offer from the Canadian Marconi Company to instal a two-way police radio system for around $2,500 or a one-way communication system in the neighborhood of $1,500.

"This is too big a proposition at present," commented Judge Smoke when the offer was read.

"I think so, too,' agreed Mayor Hamilton. "Anyway the amount would have to be placed in our estimates next year."

Chief Newhall stated that a demonstration is to be given here at the end of the week of a new police radio system and he said the commission would be surprised at the low price at which such a system could be installed. A two-way system could be obtained for less than the quoted price for a one-way setup.

At the organization meeting of Hi-Y in Peterborough the following officers were temporarily elected: President, Don Diplock; Vice-President, Ken Gillespie; Secretary, Don Duncan; Treasurer, Ralph Johnson. Alex Young and Ken Gillespie, who were delegates to the Ontario Hi-Y Conference at Guelph gave interesting reports of the conference. Topics considered at some length at the conference included "Vocational guidance," "How to get and hold a job," and "Boy and girl relations." The Hi-Y movement is composed of groups of thoughtful Christian older boys in the Collegiates and High schools of North America who make it their purpose to create, maintain and extend, throughout the school and community, high standards of Christian character. There are over five thousand Hi-Y Clubs embracing over two hundred thousand young men on this continent.

Rescue Work Rushed In Flame Ravaged Forests

Hundreds of persons were forced to flee for their lives before the path of flames which ravaged the San Monica and San-Bernardino ranges of California. Many palatial homes, owned by members of Hollywood's film colony, fell prey to the roaring flames as property damage was estimated at close to $3,000,000. A state trooper is shown here aiding a resident of Topanga Canyon, who is carrying a few belongings, from the path of the flames, which can be seen perilously close to the fleeing couple.

Central Ontario 1st Grade Cheese Shows Upswing In Past Year

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Nov. 30.—(CP)—A distinct percentage increase in first grade cheese in the Central Ontario district this year was announced by J. E. Cooper, Sudbury, president of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers Association, at the opening session of their 11th annual convention which opened here yesterday.

The morning session was devoted to appointment of resolution and nominating committees and greetings from representatives of the Eastern and Western Cheese Makers Associations.

Mr. Cooper deplored the fact that too many cheese have been placed in second grade because of improper markings, which the president said "could be elliminated entirely." The dairy branch has for some time known that an error in judgment had been made when they decided the size of marking for boxes be one-half inch in size, this being very easily blotted. The speaker suggested a large marking and that black instead of red ink be used.

Check Guilty Plants

"We have had brought to our attention," continued Mr. Cooper, "that certain shipments of cheese had been placed in first grade with a score of 93 points but were later re-examined to be found with a serious defect of being mealy in texture. A greater cooperation between the Dominion and provincial departments could remedy this matter by providing the dairy instructors with the registered numbers of the guilty factories so that a check could be made."

The President requested of the Director of Dairying that the dairy instructor staff be placed under the guidance of a chief dairy instructor.

Mayor Jamieson Bone will welcome the delegates of which there are 150 in attendance at the afternoon session and Joseph E. Burgess, chief grading and dairy produce inspection services, Ottawa, will address the convention on the cheese exhibited and will also conduct a class upon grading and the defects of cheese and how to overcome the same.

Nearly five thousand people viewed the exhibit on Monday, practically every school child in the district being on hand. The officers of the Exhabition feel this is a real way to make the people of Canada "cheese conscious."

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—(CP).—Civil aviation in Canada, which has become a $5,000,000 investment, is making tremendous progress and its pilots fly more than 10,000,000 miles a year—a distance equivalent to 400 times around the worl dat the equator.

A report prepared by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics disclosed that since 1933, aircraft mileage for civil pilots has more than doubled and total freight and express carried has jumped sixfold.

In 1933, the mileage was 4,400,000 and this increased by about 1,000,000 annually for the next two years. In 1936 there were 7,800,000 miles flown and last year 10,700,000. The 1937 figures are the latest available.

Freight and express carried in 1933 amounted to 4,200,000 pounds an dthis increased to 14,400,000 in 1934 and 17,600,000 in 1935. The amount soared to more than 25,000,000 the next year and in 1937 was 26,200,000.

Russia Takes Lead.

Soviet Russia, however, has eclipsed Canada as the world's foremost carrier of freight by air, according to the Bureau. The report for the Soviet states that 70,000,000 pounds of freight were transported last year. United States' freight carriage was 6,000,000 pounds.

The amount of mail carried in the Dominion by air showed distinct increase with 539,000 pounds listed as the 1933 total compared with 1,450,000 for 1937.

In every branch of civil aviation there appears to have been an increase in activity. Licensed civil airports jumped from 90 in 1933 to 158 last year; licensed civil aircraft showed an increase from 345 in the mid-depression year to 604 in 1937.

Final figures for 1937 indicated there were 320 commercial pilots in the Dominion, 129 limited commercial pilots, 73 transport pilots, 635 private pilots and 595 air engineers.

Ottawa, Nov. 30 (CP)

R. MELDRUM STEWART, Dominion astronomer, said here last night that the prediction there might be an earthquake in Toronto Dec. 3 is "pure nonsense" The forecast was made by S. H. Penlington, Toronto accountant who makes a hobby of predicting things to come.

Mr. Stewart said that scientists have had some success in predicting earthquakes in such countries as Japan but there was no possibility of such a forecast being made in Canada where earth tremors seldom occur.

Tiny Rising Toronto Jockey Star Out To Ride Derby Winner Then Run Stable Of His Own

By Foster Barclay
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Nov. 30 (CP).—Ride a Kentucky Derby winner and then own a stable of horses, that's the ambition of Ronnie Nash of Toronto, a shooting star in the turf world.

The 19-year-old jockey, home from the United States for a vacation and to shake a cold contracted when winter gales and snow struck Bowie race track last week, confided his ambition today as he sat in a shoe shine parlor.

He would also like to pilot a winner in the King's Plate, Canadian turf classic, and the Santa Anita Handicap, but at the moment his chief desire is victory in the Kentucky Derby.

In less than five months the slight, shy youth has sprinted to fame aboard temperamental thoroughbreds. He has ridden 96 winners and combined with his riding ability has carved a niche in racing honors seldom attained so soon by jockeys making their racing debut.

Unwanted and spurned when the Canadian racing season opened last May, Ronnie is sought now by leading owners and trainers on the continent. Offers to buy his contract, however, fall on the deaf ears of Arthur Halliwell, Toronto sportsman, who gave the midget jockey his chance. Halliwell isn't ready—not at the moment—to release his hold on the contract.

Halliwell didn't know about Nash until a conversation at Hamilton race track last July sparked an interest. A businessman first and last, he decided to scout around for opinions of trainers.

Halliwell Does Business.

"I couldn't reason why nobody had picked him up," he said. "The general view wasn't discouraging but none was enthusiastic."

He decided to have a chat with Ronnie anway. "I stayed away from the track that afternoon," Halliwell said, recalling the conversation. "We sat outside my stables and talked. He satisfied me and I asked him to come around at Fort Erie race track. He was the first person to greet me there. He has been riding for me since."

Halliwell's trainer was ordered to mount Nash on every horse he saddles. Victories didn't come at once, but finally Ronnie broke his maiden July 19 on Nepinaca.

"I wasn't there that day, but I sent a wire of congratulations. Didn't I?" Halliwell said, turning to his protege.

"Yes, sir," Nash nodded, content to let Halliwell do all the talking.

Success has followed the jockey since. He travelled to Detroit, Narragansett and Bowie race tracks. In two weeks he will be in Florida, ready for the winter campaign at Tropical and Hialeah Parks.

So far he hasn't found riding "tough" among big-time jockeys. "They are all pretty good fellows."

At Bowie he struck a new racing hazard, snow three and four inches deep. But that didn't stop him. He rode three winners that afternoon.

MUSSING UP THE MAPLES

Ten teams of Westclox men had a wild time at Duffus Alleys on Monday night when Jake Beckerman team rolled off 3,145 pins, including a 1,228 game to drop the leading McNeeley gang into second place. The above result let Sharpe and Brady slip into the top position in the league standing with 38 points each. Although soaring tempers and strong language were prominent at times, when head pins, splits and fouls took their toll, nine of the clock makers wrangled off good scores, oJe Watson leading with 776 (300), Harry Baptie 724, Ross Currie 684, "Mick" McNeeley 682, Sam Vint 673, B. Brady 668, A. Watson 639, O. Sharpe 612, and D. Craig 600.

The best individual count for the night went to Ross Williamson of the DeLaval office, when he flattened a 326 single to help pile up a 780 total for his three games. F. Vivash hit 621, Miss P. Lawrence 543, Miss T. Pearson 519 (209), and Miss O. Sanderson 448.

"Noggie" Fallon had a run for his money in the Post Office group, his 698 was hounded hard by Carpenter's 697, and Jackson's 696, while Miller had 627.

Chips also flew when six teams of Quaker Oats girls and four teams of Westclox girls bowled off two games each. Dorothy Theobald of the Westclox nailed a 250 single in her 423, Lois Darling had 430 (240), Thelma Harris, Mary English, and M. Elliott 223, 20 and 203, singles. For the Quaker Girls, 209 and 204 singles by Dot Weese and B. Craig, looked high for the evening.

Last night with three leagues rolling, O. R. Williams of the C.G.E. took the honors with a 756 count; J. Wade of the same group nailed a 328 single for 724, while in the Mercantile League C. Barlow led with 713. Bill Burford announced his return to form in the Merchants' group when he cut down 708.

Good scores were marked up all through the C.G.E. League, Williams' and Wade's totals were followed by C. Lustic 679, C. Cowling 661, T. Glover 652, E. Guppy 627, G. Robertson 621, D. Penrose 618, A. Hunter 618, D. McIntosh 610, J. James 610, —. Wilson 607, F. Kirkcaldy 606, F. Cooper 602, and T. Mitchell 600.

In the Mercantile with Barlow's 713, W. Callen hit 645, W. Muirhead 623. Mrs. W. Jeffries again topped the ladies' section for the night with 530 and Vera McInvoy hit off 510.

From the Merchants eight-team loop following Burford were S. Trowbridge 650, Hartley 624, T. Caravaggie 621, B. Lewis 616, and D. Coughlin 604. Three of the ladies went over the 500 mark when Miss Grant's score was 523 (246), Mrs. Roy Penrose 522, and Miss Moore 516 (210).

Busses Or Trolleys?

DETROIT, Nov. 30—(CP).—A five-man commission today studied Detroit's street railway system and administration plans to eliminate street cars and substitute busses. The public lighting commission has opposed plane of the street railway commission to discard street cars, saying they have built many substations to supply power for the street railway and the change will mean a termendous capital loss on these stations.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

IT IS NOTED in the Quinte sheet that Coach Carling-Kelly of Trenton Fliers has some 30 candidates after 12 berths. Several of last year's squad—which the Petes put out—and a bunch of good newcomers. A gee named Brackenbury, who was scoring ace with Camp Borden; a husky Swede defenceman, named Ole Oleskevis; Buzz Cook, a former Halifax Wolverine star; a chap named Johnson from Sherbrooke, who plays right wing; MacNab, ex-Winnipeg puckist; and others. They figure they need just one more good defenceman and they'll be oke for the coming campaign. The Fliers are entered in the VanHorne series now going on in Kingston—and we expect the Airmen will again be grouped in senior "B" with the Petes when the O.H.A. groupings are announced any day.

• • • • • • •

FROM TIME TO TIME, folks here and abroad have crabbed about so many hockey imports brought to Peterborough. But do they realize how many local players are snatched by outside points A grand game of grab. For instance, no less than seven homebrew hockeyists who played O.H.A. here last winter have left Peterborough for this season. Four of intermediate or senior "B" rating: Magee and Ellis to Florida, and Calladine and Vitarelli to Baltimore. And three juniors, who were ready to step up: Al and Gee Clark to a college in N'Yawk, and Jack Jopling to St. Mike's. While Stew Williamson of the Petes' 1938 defence is in Lindsay and may play there this winter. Not counting two veterans from here, now in pro ranks, Mickey Murray and Biffer Ranger. Or not counting guys who came here to play in recent years and left later, gents like Geddes, Covert, Barnes, Brennan, etc. Drake Jopling is another local who left,—going to Kirkland Lake, we understand.

• • • • • • •

They Come And Go

SO THE PETES REQUIRE puck imports to hold their own in fast O.H.A. company. Till the locals get on the ice in another week or so—more likely "so"—it is impossible to figure how the 1939 Liftlockers will look. They will miss Calladine, Vitarelli and Ellis plenty, as they had figured on these as regulars. They hadn't figured so much on Magee, but we think his bashing style on defence would have put some starch in the local rearguard. And the trio of juniors might have fitted in nicely here, too. With several new players in town, and the pick of last year's Bees to draw from—plus the remainder of the 1938 Petes and a few junior grads—the locals may still toss a pretty good gang on the ice. But they'll miss those players who left.

• • • • • • •

MAGEE AND ELLIS must have looked impressive to Bullet Joe Simpson when they tried out for his Havana squad in Port Colborne. On account of there were well over a hundred players from all parts of Canada after berths. Three ex-juniors from Guelph were signed up, too. We might mention now that Jimmy and Mick had been planning for several weeks on going to Miami in December for a month's visit, travelling by bus and, of course, paying their own expenses. Then they heard of this Florida puck workout in Fort Colborne, so they took a chance and battled their heads off to make a place. And now they have a whole winter in the sunny south with all expenses paid! What a break, eh? Another odd angle is that Magee once told us that he much preferred rugby and lacrosse to hockey—but the latter game is getting him a swell chance now. He and Norm Worthy checked on a chance to play winter lacrosse in Rochester but found the expense guarantee too low to make it worth while.

• • • • • • •

Champs Are Honored

QUITE A CROWD sat down to the civic banquet at the Empress last eve where tribute was paid to the Petes' O.L.A. senior "B" champs of 1938. Mayor James Hamilton, members of the Council, O.L.A. officials and players, had a most enjoyable gathering. The spirit shown by the City Council in banquetting and presenting windbreakers to the local lacrossers is one of the main reasons why Peterborough is such an excellent sports centre. Many oldtime tales made the rounds of the tables as veteran gutted-stick performers of other days mingled with the cream of the crop of today. It was a fitting conclusion to a highly successful season for the lacrossers of this city, and a high spot in the recent revival in this district.

• • • • • • •

QUITE A FEW MILES were reeled off by some of the lacrosse gents who wished to attend the function. Hal Leybourne, prexy of the Petes' club, travelled al lthe way from Montreal to get here for the last part of the affair, and he got quite a hand. President Russ Kelley of the O.L.A. motored from Hamilton to present the trophies, and Len Smith, past prexy of the Association, came from Toronto. Not forgetting Johnny Sutherland who got the train up from Campbellford to again sit and chat with exponents of his favorite game. Nor Shorty Reid who blew in from Orillia for the occasion. Seems "the real Canadian game" takes a grip on a guy, eh? Plans are afoot already to field an even better crew in the O.L.A. next semester.

Son Of His Father

NOTED IN THE LINEUP of the University of Detroit football team, which recently defeated the powerful Broncos of Santa Clara, 7-6, out in San Francisco to terminate a successful season, is the name Halpin. It is Jack Halpin, right halfback, who is a son of Grover Halpin of Peterborough. Young Halpin is a first-rate footballer and one of Coach Gus Dorais' main cogs. A chip off the old block—or would it be a block off the old chip, since Grover, former star puckist with Sarnia and Peterborough teams, was never a giant in stature? Over 18,000 fans gasped at the upset as Michigan teams continued their unbeaten record on the West Coast.

• • • • • • •

JUST BACK from a tour with Toronto Goodyears, Bun Morganson, speaking of various hockey squads in the States, says: "Down in Baltimore, Pick Hines is making progress after being handicapped due to a late start. Not until three weeks before the start of the season did Hines get the O.K. to go ahead and recruit a team for Oriole Town. Hines' best move was in signing Goalie Bobby Forster for netminding duty. Forster put Oshawa juniors in the Memorial Cupfinals with his sensational playing last spring. He is doing the same thing for Baltimore. Forster's performance against Goodyears was a classic. It was too good for the Baltimore fans to appreciate. Hines needs more pep on the front lines and is out to get it." The Petes' ex-coach will do okay, we imagine. Calladine and Vitarelli both figured in the scoring the other day as Orioles tacked up another win.

Ross Is Positive Brimsek Has Everything

NEW YORK, Nov. 30 (CP).—Art Ross, the old hockey master of Boston Bruins, fairly bubbled with joy today at the prospect of Frankie Brimsek being the best goalie in the National Hockey League and the possibility of making a flock of money for Art Ross with an unbreakable steel hockey stick.

"I've been watching Brimsek and he's got everything," said Ross of the boy who starts in the Boston goal against Canadiens tomorrow night in place of the veteran Tiny Thompson, whom Bruins sold to Detroit. "He'll be the best goalie in the business."

Brimsek, coming up from Providence in the Int-Am. League, is a native of Eveleth, Minn., a fact which added to Ross' pleasure because of his belief that goal-tending is a "natural" spot for American boys; more natural than for Canadians.

"Americans inherit baseball instinct and grow up with the game just as Canadians grow up with hockey," Ross continued as he took time out from a meeting of the N.H.L. rules committee. "But where the Canadians become skaters, the Americans develop their arms and batting eyes — the foundations of goal-tending."

The Steel Stick.

And about the new stick. Ross said he was looking into the manufacture of a tubular steel stick, unbreakable and with a replaceable wooden blade. He said he would have such sticks available for a trial by the tail-end of the current season.

The shaft would be the same shape as the present one with a rubber grip and a replaceable blade of wood. The Boston manager said the steel stick idea went back two years, but at the time one could not be made weighing less than 24 ounces against 17 ounces for the regulation wooden one. Now a regulation 53-inch hockey stick can be made of tubular steel and weigh anything from nine ounces up.

"Such a stick would certainly cut down on equipment expenses," said Ross, "and I feel confident it will be successful."

Tiger Jack Fox Outpoints Gainer

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(AP).—Tiger Jack Fox, the aged Spokane, Wash., Negro, who has been haunting the light heavyweight throne room for the last five years has only Melio Bettina, the Beacon, N.Y., southpaw in his way, now.

The Pacific coast Negro outpointed Al Gainer of New Haven, Conn., in 15 slow, tiresome rounds at the Bronx coliseum last night in the first of two elimination bouts ordered by the New York state athletic commission. The winner of the Fox-Bettina brawl will be recognized as champion in this state although the National Boxing Association still calls John Henry Lewis king.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP)—If you think those North Carolina folks aren't high on the Duke footballers get a load of this wire Sports Ed Larry Leonard sends from the Greensboro News: Wally Wade might stop off in Knoxville to play Tennessee, and at Fort Worth for a light workout with T.C.U. on way to Pasadena for Rose Bowl...Then Duke would have 12 wins and still no score against 'em...

Now that Solly Krieger has been whipped by Billy Conn, the two-champion "muddleweight" sit-cheeashun may be cleared up today... Snooker Wizard, On Spot, Uses Pen And Splits Billiard World Into Rule Argument On Ethics

LONDON, Nov. 30 (C.P.). — At Thurston's, London's famous billiard hall, the tradition prevails that Charles Chambers, veteran marker, is never wrong. Alec Brown, one of Britain's foremost snooker players, however, has his doubts.

Suggestion that the veteran marker had lapsed temporarily arose during a match between Brown and Tom Newman, in the Gold Cup snooker tournament, in which leading cue artists in the country are competing.

Here's how it all started:

Thereupon Brown drew from his vest pocket what looked like a black propelling pencil, chalked the tip and from the awkward position connected with his object ball. The spectators gasped, but not Chambers, the marker. He promptly chalked up seven points to Newman, declaring the stroke foul.

The referee trotted out the rule book and quoted: "The stroke must be made with the tip of the cue."

No Cue Definition.

"There's a tip on that," said Brown, showing the pen. "And there's no definition of a cue in the book."

But Chambers stood by his decision. R. Bissett, chairman of the Billiards Control Council, agreed Chambers was right in his interpretation of the spirit of the rules, but the experts are sharply divided. The champion, J. Davis and Horace Lindrum, believe Brown was justified in using his midget "cue," and further clarification of the rules is now being demanded.

Brown disclosed he had carried the trick pen in his pocket for 18 months, but hitherto had not been called upon to produce it in a championship match.

"My father invented it," he said, "and I thought the idea so good I had arranged to patent it."

CIVIC OFFICIALS HONOR LACROSSE CHAMPIONS AT BANQUET

Tribute Paid 1938 Champions At Enjoyable Gathering Of City And O.L.A. Officers

Tribute was paid last night to the Petes, Ontario senior "B" lacrosse champions at a banquet given them by the Mayor and City Council in the Empress Hotel. Prominent persons in the civic, business and sports spheres gathered to do homage to the 1938 champions. About 50 sat down to a fine dinner.

Seated at the head table were Mayor James Hamilton, Aldermen R. M. Glover and Walter Stocker, Rev. Dr. Kelly, R. T. Kelley as president of the Ontario Lacrosse Association—he motored from Hamilton—Len Smith of Toronto, past president of the O.L.A., Vice-President Harry Tudhope of the local club, and Manager Frank Randle of the Petes. Later, President H. S. Leybourne of the local club arrived, coming all the way from Montreal for the occasion. Northrop's trio played music during the banquet.

Guests Welcomed

The Mayor welcomed the guests who included: Rev. Dr. Kelly, Jack McCabe, Dr. D. W. Clark, R. T. Kelley, Len Smith, Bill Meagher, Chris Graham, George Lynch, Jos. Begley, George Giroux, John Sutherland and others. He extended hearty congratulations to the team, saying "in these strenuous times, we need such thrills as your play provided." As for Hitler's recent statement that Canada mistreated the Indians, His Worship believed the only mistreatment was where Canadians defeated the Indians in lacrosse. He introduced a number of former players, present as guests, and added such names of disrict players in the past as: Ira Nattress, Wm. O'Brien, John Armstrong, C. H. Davidson, A. Kempt and more. He concluded by telling the gathering that Fred Waghorne, noted lacrosse official, and Sec. Dopp of the O.L.A., had sent word they were unable to attend this banquet.

Harry Tudhope introduced all the players and R. M. Glover presented them with windbreakers on behalf of the Council. He pointed out that Geo. Giroux was the only man present who had been on a previous local lacrosse championship team, nearly 60 years ago. Mr. Glover felt that good, clean athletes stood a better chance of obtaining worthwhile employment than others—if they applied themselves. It was later added that J. J. Howden was another oldtime local player on a championship club.

Presents Pictures

Manager Frank Randle presented large team pictures to the players and President R. T. Kelley of the O.L.A. was introduced by Pete King. Mr. Kelley gave a humorous address, congratulating the locals, advising them to sponsor junior teams, and saying that everyone in this country should support the real Canadian game of lacrosse. He said: "There are three important things which are necessary in sports and in business to make a success and they are: (a) ambition, (b) backbone, and (c) concentration." He concluded by offering the best wishes of the Ontario Association. Mr. Kelley then presented the LaFortuna and Levack trophies and the individual medals.

H. S. Leybourne, local club president, thanked the O.L.A. head for attending and said he was pleased to be present again with a fine gang of sports. Len Smith, oldtime O.L.A. official of Toronto, remarked he had been coming to Peterborough and district for many years and he congratulated Mayor Hamilton on the fine spirit of the team representing this city in Ontario lacrosse competition.

Brief addresses were given also by Jos. Begley, Rev. Dr. Kelly, John Sutherland, Jack McCabe, Bill Meagher, Geo. Lynch, Doug Miller, George Scott and Pete King. Some of the short talks dealt with old times in this game around here, and all were of a congratulatory tone for the success of the Petes in 1938, with best wishes for their continued success.

Wham, Armstrong Lands One On Mr. Garcia

Ceferino Garcia, aspirant to the world's welterweight crown, was feeling the full force of the presence of Henry Armstrong in the same ring with him, when this picture was taken during their fight for the title at Madison Square Garden not so many nights ago. Hammering Hennery, who retained his title via the 15-round decision method, has just landed a right, dead on the Garcia physiognomy, while his willing adversary retaliates with a LEFT, minus much steam, to the champ's body. The result left Perpetual Motion Henry holding two titles, the welter and lightweight.

Goodyears Hammer Brantford 9-2 Despite Absence Of 4 Stars

BRANTFORD, Ont., Nov. 30.—(CP)—Hockey critics of this Western Ontario city are inclined today towards a growing suspicion that Toronto Goodyears, a classy bunch of goal-getters, may go farther down the playdown path this spring than they did last season when they won the senior "A" division title of the Ontario Hockey Association.

Just returned from a strenuous five-day tour of four United States cities, Goodyears rolled into Brantford last night and rode back to Toronto with a 9-2 win over the pointless Red Birds. Despite absence of four stars, Goodyears piled up a total of 19 scoring points.

Victory left the Birds beating their wings against the cellar walls with four straight losses, while Goodyears went into a first place tie with Oshawa, each with two victories. The two unbeaten leaders clash Friday at Toronto, but first, Oshawa reentertains Niagara Falls Brights tonight. Brights share second place with Port Colborne, each boasting three points.

The game, only scheduled tilt in the six-team league last night, gave the home folk little to cheer about. Goodyears increased their margin each period with two goals in the first, three in the second and four in the third. Brantford scored in the first and last.

The Scorers

Toronto pointgetters were George Imlach with two goals and two assists; Don Metz with two goals; John Inglis, a goal and two assists; Eddie King, two goals and an assist; Peanuts O'Flaherty, two goals and an assist; Shorty Robinson, three assists, and Bobby Laurent, one.

Brantford opened scoring on a shot by Ray Krieger, with tough Tony Torti assisting. The other homester score came after 50 seconds of the third period with Ebby Edmison on the marksman on a pass from Jack Webster.

Victory gave Goodyears 16 goals in the two games played—they whipped Port Colborne 7-1 in the season's opener—more than any other team. Only three goals have been scored against Young Harry McQuesten, Toronto goalie, this season.

Referee Dinty Moore must have felt a twine of sympathy for Ted Beatty as the shots whistled behind him into the Brant nets—even if Beatty did receive cheers of the crowd for a grand display. Dinty, who retired from netminding a few seasons ago to take over an O.H.A. executive chair, had been in just such a position many times before—and Dinty was a great netminder.

Defencemen Jack Draper and Blondy Sutcliffe, and forwards Frank O'Brien and Hank Goldup were missing from the Toronto lineup through injuries.

Bears, Ramblers Tangle Tonight

(By the Canadian Press.)

The International-American Hockey League's first "natural" of the season comes off tonight with the clashing of Hershey Bears, tied for the lead in the Western Section, and Philadelphia's top-flying and beaten-but-once Ramblers of the Eastern division.

Victors in eight of their nine games so far, the Ramblers suffered their only defeat at the hands of the eBars two weeks ago at Hershey. They hold a four-point lead over the second-place Providence Reds. The Bears are in a first place deadlock with Syracuse Stars.

The Philadelphia-Hershey contest is one of the two scheduled for the night, with Providence invading New Haven to play the Eagles.

Springfield Indians closed to within two points of the second place Reds last night by whipping Pittsburgh Hornets 3-0 in the only game of the night at Springfield. Joe Lamb, Tommy Filmore and McGoldrick scorde for the Indians.

Grid Fans Enjoy Quarterback Club

WINNIPEG, Nov. 30 (CP).—The Quarterback Club, an organization believed unique in Canada, has provided Winnipeg football fans with a golden opportunity of acquainting themselves with the fine points of the game.

Formed last October by Manager Joe Ryan of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, the club brings moving pictures of Winnipegs' games to fans and players alike, with a general discussion conducted by Coach Reg. Threlfell following each showing.

Lean Joseph has announced that moving pictures of the Dominion final between Bombers and the eastern champions will be brought back for the grandstand quarterbacks in the club's final meeting of the 1938 season.

Since the October day when first the club was formed, detailed movies of each Bomber game have been shown members of the organization whose fee are 25 cents a session. About 200 turned out for the inaugural show and 1,100 crammed to see pictures of Bombers first playoff game at Calgary November 5 against Carl Cronin's Bronks.

New Project.

Lean Joseph has been eminently satisfied with response given the new project and aid he thought the pictures had "greatly stimulated" Winnipeg's football interest.

Coach Threlfall, an accomplished after-dinner speaker, directs proceedings at Quarterback gatherings. Reg usually sees the picture prior to club meetings and searches for points of interest to the average fan.

As the pictures unfold, Threlfall offers explanatory comment, indicating clever blocking and tackling and explaining various phases of defensive and offensive formations.

Following the pictures, fans are allowed to ask questions concerning football tactics and Threlfall answers them. From the outset, interest in the new project spread until at the last meeting the pictures had to be run twice to accommodate the hundreds of fans clamoring for admittance.

Players, at the same time, benefit from the pictures. Threlfall is able to point out mistakes simply and accurately and offer corrective criticism.

Baron Max Von Franz Passes In Toronto

TORONTO, Nov. 29.—(CP)—Baron Max von Franz, former Austrian nobleman, well-known in Toronto sports circles, collapsed and died here today. He was making a luncheon engagement by telephone with Provincial Officer Harold G. Rogers, a close friend, when he collapsed.

In Austria, up to the time of the Armistice, he was known as Baron Max M. von Franz of Achloss Ottmanach and lived in Post Pischeldorf, Karnten.

"He lost most of his fortune when the family estate was absorbed in Czechoslovakia after the Great War," Constable Rogers said today. "His family were related to the Rothschilds and at one time were large beet sugar manufacturers.

"Although he fought in the Austrian air force as a flight commander and was at one time in charge of an airdrome, he was an outspoken, almost violent anti-Nazi. His former wife and three children live in Austria today."

N.H.L. Moguls Decide To Boost Cut For Circuit, Title Winners, And Endorse Player Insurance

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(AP).—Governors of the National Hockey League have decided to increase the monetary rewards for the team finishing first in the circuit's regular season and the one winning the Stanley Cup playoffs by re-arranging the various "cuts" of the playoff gate receipts.

At their regular monthly meeting here yesterday, the governors voted to divide the players' pool in the playoffs into two equal parts. One half will be divided among the six clubs of the seven-team circuit which reach the playoffs, the size of the shares being determined by their finishing positions. The other half will be split up among the teams according to how they fare in the playoffs.

Although details of the splits have not been fully worked out, league president Frank Calder said a team winning both the league and Stanley cup titles might realize as much as $23,000 or $25,000 to divide among the players.

The governors also agreed that insurance should be obtained on players to insure against death from injuries that might be received on the ice. This would eliminate the necessity for benefit games to provide for the dependents of players who might die of injuries. No provision was made for injury insurance but Calder reminded that the league had in the past always taken care of players incapacitated for any length of time by injuries received on the ice.

Card Party Is Held By C.W.L. In Ennismore

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ENNISMORE, Nov. 30.— The local branch of the Catholic Women's League held the last card party of the season on Monday evening with the president, Mrs. James Holland, in charge. A very pleasant and sociable time was enjoyed by those present. Lunch was served by the members of the executive.

Club Entertains.

Mr. and Mrs. William Brock entertained the members of their club on Tuesday evening. Ten tables of cards were played, the ladies' prize being won by Miss Margaret Crough. The gentlemen's prize was a draw between John F. Young and Art. Crough. After the cards, a dainty lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. J. Crough, Mrs. A. W. Crough, Mrs. John F. Young, and Mrs. Richard Hickson. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing and sing-song led by the president of the club, Leo Scollard, and the secretary, Ray Crough. Malcolm Cavanagh acted as floor manager. On Friday evening the club gathered at the home of Mr. James Harrington when Mrs. Harrington made a very charming hostess. The usual program of cards, lunch, and dancing was carried out, with the added attraction of vocal solos by Mrs. Joseph Guiry of Downeyville, sister of Mrs. Harrington. Card prizes were won by Mrs. John F. Young and Richard Hickson. Assisting the hostess to serve lunch were Mrs. T. T. Crough, Mrs. James Hoar, the Misses Julia Hickson, Margaret Crough, and Margaret Donoghue. The evening's entertainment brought the activities of the club to a close until the Christmas season, when they will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Crough.

A large number of relatives, friends and schoolmates of the late Mrs. Fergus Murray called at her home in Downeyville to offer sympathy to the bereaved family. Many also attended her funeral which was held in Downeyville on Tuesday morning. Prominent among those was Reeve James A. Gifford, a cousin of the deceased.

Mr. and Mrs. William Duffus and son Charlie, also Miss Patricia Duffus of Peterborough were guests on Tuesday evening of Mrs. Duffus' brother, William Brick and Mrs. Brick.

Mrs. Joseph Guiry and son Jimmie of Downeyville visited Mrs. Guiry's sister, Mrs. James Harrington, Jr., during the week.

Vincent Donoghue and Miss Margaret of Peterborough spent Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Donoghue.

Mrs. Mac McAuliffe and daughter Yvonne of Peterborough were guests of Mrs. McAuliffe's brother, James Harrington and Mrs. Harrington on Friday Visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. O'Donoghue on Sunday were Jack and Greg O'Donoghue, also the Misses J. Killoran and M. McQuaig, all of Peterborough.

Robert A. Baker and Miss Audrey of Peterborough were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Donoghue.

Mrs. Michael Ross of Otonabee is spending a few days here as the guest of her brother, John P. Flood, and her sister, Mrs. Eugene Murphy.

Miss Rose Lessard was a visitor to the Royal Fair in Toronto.

Miss Margaret Crough is spending a few days in Peterborough as the guest of Miss Mary Sullivan, Downie Street.

Miss Kate O'Connor is at present in Peterborough, where she will spend the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. Elias Disney, parents of Walt Disney, are shown, ABOVE, in a recent photograph. Escaping gas from a water heater pilot light brought death to the noted cartoonist's mother. Removed to the Hollywood Receiving Hospital, Mr. Disney was found to be in a critactl condition. Mrs. Disney was 71 years old at the time of her death.

Janetville United Congregation Honors Presbyterian Pastor

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, Nov. 30—The Rev. W. H. V. Walker, pastor of the Janetville Presbyterian church for the past 21 years, also Mrs. Walker, and sons Jack and Rowan, were guests of honor at a farewell gathering and presentation at the United church on Saturday evening when the large Sunday School room was filled to capacity with members of the church and friends of the surrounding community.

The Rev. M. A. Bury, pastor of the church, was the genial chairman and after a brief address of welcome proceeded with a short program of miscellaneous numbers.

Later the chairman requested Rev. and Mrs. Walker and family to occupy seats at the front, when Messrs. Sam Stinson and Oswald McGill made the presentation of a studio couch and Mrs. R. J. Burn read an address.

Memorable Occasion

Mr. and Mrs. Walker and the boys each made appropriate reply inviting one and all to visit them at Stirling. Mr. Walker stated that the gift spoke volumes but that it was the spirit of good will back of the gift which was most appreciated. Because of tender associations, he said, both boys having been born here and his wife a Manvers girl, coming here as a biride, Janetville would always be home to them.

"Never before have I heard of a community sponsored by the United church presenting a gift to a Presbyterian minister and it is a gesture which I deeply appreciate and will never, never forget."

All joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" and afterward a number of gentlemen including Councillor Albert Heaslip, Percy Hamilton, principal of the public school, J. Howe, also Roland McGill, on behalf of the Yelverton people, testified, in brief addresses, to the high esteem in which the Walker family were held.

After the singing of "Blest be the Tie That Binds," Mr. Bury pronounced the benediction and later lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed, bringing to a close a memorable occasion.

Prior to this presentation Rev. Walker and family were presented with gifts from each church on his charge, which included a walnut tea wagon, a chromium travelling set and belt and collar sets for the boys, from the Ballyduff congregation; an occasional chair and table and military brush sets in leather cases for the boys from the Presbyterian church at Janetville; a tri-lite lamp and Parker pen and pencil sets for the boys from the Nestleton charge; two sets of crystal salt and peppers from the Janetville Women's Institute to Mrs. Walker as well as the studio couch from the United church and surrounding community.

The best wishes of all go with Rev. and Mrs. Walker and family for health, happiness and continued success in their new home at Stirling.

Parliament

chosen for the birthday celebrations.

1939 Election Year

In the opinion of many political experts here 1939 will be general election year and a heavy legislative program is expected to be forecast in the speech from the throne to be read by Governor General Lord Tweedsmuir at the opening of Parliament.

First question to be considered after the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne will be the new trade pact with the U.S. and a lengthy debate is forecast as the government seeks to have parliament ratify it.

The forthcoming session, the fourth of the 18th parliament, will see several important changes in the Commons. Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, who sat in the green chamber for 18 years as a private member, leader of the Conservative opposition and Prime Minister will not take his place in the House. He has announced he will take up residence in England and retire from Canadian politics.

Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, his successor, as national Conservative leader, will take Mr. Bennett's seat across the floor of the House from the government benches. Dr. Manion was elected in the London by-election last Nov. 14.

The report of the royal commission on Dominion-Provincial relations will be tabled in parliament about the middle of the session and Mr. Justice H. H. Davis' report on the Bren Gun contract will likely be tabled in January if it is not made public before parliament meets.

OUTPOST SCHOOL

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T.—(CP),—Plans for construction of the first school in this mining outpost 620 miles northwest of Edmonton were made at a meeting here. Grant of $500 from the Dominion Government has been promised and a teacher with standing equivalent to Alberta and Saskatchewan requirements will be appointed for the 20-pupil school to be erected.

Gas, electricity, and water services were said to be functioning normally. Telephone service also appeared to be normal.

Marseille Trollies Still

The strike was more effective in some other larger cities. Marseille was without street cars and taxis, but gas, water and electric services were operating as usual. Dock workers appeared on their jobs at the regular time.

Marseille, like Paris, was heavily guarded by mobile guards and troops.

At Bordeaux, stevedores went on strike en masse. Street car service was curtailed, with cars guarded by mobile guards.

In the northern industrial regions where Left-wing Labor is strongest, infantry reinforcements were moved in to join the regular troops there.

Valenciennes, where disorders occurred yesterday, came under the heaviest guard its residents could recall. Troops patrolled all public buildings, factories, and railroad lines. Twenty men were arrested on charges of interfering with freedom to work.

Mines and factories there functioned although at a reduced rate.

No Food Shortage.

For a time it had seemed as if Paris would suffer from a shortage of food as wary buyers in the Great Central Market held off until it became apparent most of the city would be working as usual.

The general impression was that Daladier had strengthened his position by his firm stand.

Although he had lost his former Socialist and Communist supporters, members of his own Radical Socialist party and Conservative groups privately applauded his action enthusiastically.

Political observers believed Daladier now had a better chance of obtaining ratification of his decree laws when parliament returns. He would then be in a position to proceed with his three-year recovery plan.

Should Daladier succeed in smashing the strike, he was expected to move ahead with his program "to rebuild France" without consulting organized labor.

Only five morning newspapers out of the usual forty appeared in Paris. These were published for the most part in makeshift ways — handwritten or typewritten, then engraved.

Bomber Fails

ands of Hamilton residents were terrified by a dynamite blast that destroyed the front verandah and entrance to Perri's home. Perri was in a nearby drug store at the time and his maid was out visiting.

Suspects Never Traced.

Sticks of dynamite, it was found, had been tied together, placed beneath the verandah and set off with a detonator and fuse. Two pedestrians were swept from their feet by the blast. Windows of nearby houses were broken.

Two men were seen to climb into a maroon car near the house just before the explosion, but they never were traced.

Perri said then that he didn't know whether the dynamiting had anything to do with the murder of his wife, Bessie, the night of August 13, 1930. On that night the Perris were entering the back door of their home when a spray of shotgun and revolver fire killed Mrs. Perri. Three men were seen running to a parked car from the garage at the rear of the house, and it was believed they had set up a line of fire between the garage and the back door.

The crime had the earmarks of a gangster plot. Perri offered $5,000 reward for apprehension of the slayers and the city offered $1,000 more.

Long Line Of Notables Given Britain By Jews–350,000 Now In Isles

LONDON, Nov. 30 (CP Cable)—Millions of pounds have been raised in Great Britain to assist refugee work among German Jews while the government conducts surveys in distant parts of the colonial empire to find a permanent home for that distressed and persecuted race.

There are 350,000 Jews in Britain and over a long period of years British Jewry has taken a conspicuous part in banking, industry, the arts, science, and politics.

There are 20 Jews in the House of Commons and 10 Jewish peers. One Jew sits in the cabinet—Leslie Hore-Belisha, Secretary of State for War—and another holds a junior ministerial position—Sir Philip Sassoon, of the Bombay and Baghdad banking family, who is first commissioner of works. None spoke in the parliamentary debates criticizing the Nazi anti-Jewish decrees and policies.

The Jewish race has given Britain one prime minister, Benjamin Disraeli who later became the Earl of Beaconsfield; one Viceroy of India the Marquess of Reading; a Lord Chancellor, Lord Herschell; economists such as David Ricardo; bankers such as the Rothschilds, and industrialists such as Lord Melchett.

Viscount Samuel has filled half a dozen cabinet offices. His cousin, Edwin Montagu, was one of the historic secretaries of state for India. There have been Jewish Lord Mayors of London. Sir George Jessel was one of the great English judges.

The Jewish race gave Britain literary lights such as Louis Zangwill, Sidney Lee and Israel Gollancz; in art, Simeon Solomon, Jacob Epstein and Sill Rothenstein; in music, Benedict and Costa; and in science, Sylvester, Meldola and Hoffkine.

Sir John Monash, an Australian Jew, was wartime commander of the Australian troops. Sir Isaacs was the first Australian to be appointed governor general of that Dominion.

The history of the Jews in England began with the Norman conquest. They had varied fortunes, depending on the King who was on the throne, but life in general was a hard one, with many pogroms, massacres, and economic persecutions. In 1290 Jews were expelled and their property confiscated. It was 350 years before they returned in any numbers.

After centuries of oppression in most parts of the world the Jews began receiving fair treatment in England about the middle of the 18th century. At first they were given trading rights and religious concessions, but the House of Lords blocked their naturalization.

Disraeli, who was a descendant of a family of Levantine Jews, led the way for his race to political emancipation. Although proud of his race, Disraeli was baptized into the Christian church at an early age, enabling him to enter the House of Commons when he was elected in 1837. At that time orthdox Jews were barred from the House because of the oath of office aimed at Roman Catholics and non-Conformists.

The Catholics were emancipated in 1829 but the Lords were still obstinate about Jews until 1845. Baron Lionel De Rothschild was elected in London in 1847 but the Lords would not vary the oaths. In 1858 he was permitted to take his seat through a compromise arrangement. In 1885 his son became the first orthodox Jewish peer.

Learns Flying Fast

SIMCOE, Ont., Nov. 30—(CP).—Miss Connie Culver, 19-year-old Simcoe aviatrix of less than one month's experience may realize her dreams next Sunday when, if weather conditions are favorable, she will taxi a Brant-Norfolk Aero Club plane off at the Brantford airport for her first solo flight.

Miss Culver began her flying career this month. She has completed two-and-a-half hours dual flying, receiving instruction from the club's instructor, Thomas Sims, at Brantford.

Junior Champions Scattered Afar

WINNIPEG, Nov. 29 (CP).—The happy-go-lucky bunch of kids that flashed to a national junior hockey championship against Oshawa Generals at Toronto last spring in the flaming scarlet of St. Boniface Seals have scattered and 13 youngsters freshly graduated from juvenile ranks today are entrusted with defence of the Memorial Cup.

From Coach Mike Kryschuk down to the last spare, Seals have gone elsewhere. Some are making theinr bow in Western Canada senior company, some in eastern circles, and others in far-off England.

Only cigar-smoking Gil Paulley, Seals' manager since the club made its junior debut some five years ago, is left. Around him he has an entirely new organization, a new coach, 11 lads of 18 years, one 19, and a 16-year-old. But Gil is confident. "Don't sell us short," is his warning.

Goalie Doug. Webb, so-called "weak-link" in the machine that joked its way to the Dominion title, and Captain Bill McGregor have crossed the Atlantic to England. Hermie Gruhn and Bill Reay, McGregor's mates on the champions' first line, are teamed together with Calgary Stampeders in the Alberta senior loop.

Members of the second line, Georgie Gordon, Jack Mossett and Jack Simpson, moved as a unit to South Porcupine, Ont., to join the Dome Mines club, while utility Patch Couture went to Flin Flon Northern Manitoba's mining centre, where he will play with the Bombers in the Saskatchewan senior group.

Defenceman Wally Stanowski, after making a decided hit in the Toronto Maple Leafs' training camp this fall, has taken his sensational weaving rushes to Syracuse Stars in the International American professional league. His defence mate, Bert Janke, rugged blocker whom many termed the Seals' defensive bulwark, has gone to a Quebec Senior club.

Herbie Burron, lone member of the national title-holders eligible for junior hockey this winter, moved to Brandon to lineup with the Wheat Kings, a club that carried Seals to five games before falling from the Manitoba picture last spring.

So the cocky Seals of 1938, a team that never was serious until the chips were down, is no more, and carrying the scarlet banner this year is a group of youngsters who aren't to be "sold short."

To those who sleep in a kind of way, but whose rest is broken by bad dreams and nightmares.

To those who wake up in the morning as tired as on going to bed, we offer in Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills a remedy to help soothe and calm the nerves and bring them back to a perfect condition, and when this is done there should be no more sleepless nights due to shattered nerves.

Empire Trophy Is Won By Canada

Canada will have the honor of being the first name to show on this prize, presented by S. J. Hungerford for competition within the British Empire by pistol and revolver associations. The Canadian team, led by Captain R. G. Pickrell, of Winnipeg, led teams from Great Britain and India. For the 1939 shoot an attempt will be made to induce New Zealand, Australia, South Africa and all crown colonies to enter the competition.

Members of the County Council wrestling with the problem of what to do with the colony of Indians, halfbreeds and white people located on Trent Canal property at Burleigh, were given a liberal education on the definition, privileges and customs of an Indian by Vincent Eastwood, Jr., Indian Agent, on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Eastwood called before the committee in the hope he could assist in the solving of the problem promised his utmost cooperation but explained he had no authority to deal with any person who was not an Indian in accordance with the Indian Act. He defined an Indian as a person of Indian blood, who lives on a reserve or elsewhere. A white woman who marries an Indian is also an Indian under the Act.

He explained that by treaty rights Indians may travel any place on the North American continent even into the United States, and do not forfeit treaty monies unless they are absent without authorization for five years. If they return to the reserve before eighteen months have elapsed they will still receive free medical treatment and tuition fees to cover education of their children. Treaty Indians who marry white men lose their status as Indians but are still eligible for interest on treaty monies. Usually, he said, a settlement is made and they sign off all rights.

Relief Camps Residue

"I believe this settlement is the residue of the relief camps which were set up in the north country about five years ago, said Mr. Eastwood.

The Department of Indian Affairs does not regard this settlement as our responsibility but rather as one for the municipality in which the colony is located. I am ready and willing to take care of all bona-fide Indians but there are only five among the entire population of fifty-two people who qualify under the Act. Some of the nineteen children of school age were ejected from the Burleigh School which is five miles distant. I think this is a deplorable condition, that these children are denied an education. It may be necessary for Harvey Township to build a school for their benefit."

Mr. Eastwood explained further when asked as to the status of Gerald Johnson, now an indigent patient in Nicholls Hospital with a disease that has already made amputation of one leg necessary.

He said investigation had revealed this boy's grandfather had been an American white man named Johnson who had married an Indian woman when in this part of the country. Hence the boy was, according to the Indian Act, a white.

Council Bewildered

His explanations left the council members more bewildered than they were before in so much as they are no nearer a solution of the problem. They admit there is considerable disease in the colony, the huts are unfit to live in during the Winter and the children are not getting an education.

A. L. Killaly, superintending engineer of the Department of Transport, was to have appeared before the Council also, but failed to make an appearance. Miss Batten reported his office as saying he was out of the city.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Nov. 30.—Members of A.Y.P.A. branches in Campbellford and Marmora were guests of St. John's A.Y.P.A., Havelock, on Monday when the local group held a very enjoyable social evening in the Albion Club rooms. While the guests were assembling community singing was lead by Messrs. Bert Kouri and Eugene Reynolds of Marmora, who played guitar and harmonica accompaniment.

Opening the program Miss Marjory Leng, Havelock president, welcomed the visitors, then called upon Rev. R. E. Lemon, local rector for a few words. Rev. Gault of Campbellford also spoke to the young people.

Each A.Y.P.A. present provided three numbers for the program—President Earl Wood of Campbellford first taking the chair for their portion of the entertainment. Roy Ramsden gave a tap-dance with piano accompaniment by Jack Casson; Richard Ramsden sang an old English ballad; and Earl Wood contributed a humorous negro reading.

Marmora's president, James Burridge, introduced a special number on the evening's program, a comic skit and songs, by W. J. Cottrell. Mr. Cottrell sang first "Now Don't Get Too Sentimental" with music by a Deloro friend and arranged by L. Ashworth, a transient composer who stopped at Marmora, enroute from Vancouver to Montreal. His next was entitled "Johnny Needs a Ditty." Mr. Cottrell sang as his third selection, his recently published song, "The Eternal Pearl" which has been sung twice recently over station CKCL, Toronto.

The second number on the Marmora branch's program was a selection by Bert Kouri and Eugene Reynolds, followed by a short play entitled "Sulky Susie."

Jack Clarke gave a monologue entitled "I'll Get It Tomorrow," for the first number on the Havelock program, of which Marguerite Roche was the convener. Mrs. D. J. Holdcroft contributed a vocal solo, and Meryl Clarke, Ted Fleming and Ralph Young, two harmonicas and guitar respectively, played "The Old Apple Tree" as the concluding number on the program.

Refreshments were then served and a short period of dancing much enjoyed. There were over 100 A.Y.P.A. mmbers present.

Burned To Death

TORONTO. — The totalitarian states have an advantage over democracies because they can act "while we are making up our minds," A. J. Stallworthy, former Minister of Health in New Zealand, said today. "The British Empire need dynamics, not static," said Mr. Stallworthy.

Business Men Complete Plans For Santa Claus Parade Schedule For Friday Evening

Nine decorated floats, four bands and from 60 to 75 clowns and other comics are to be high lights of the Santa Claus parade Friday evening as its plans were reviewed by the executive of the Peterborough Business Men's Association at a dinner meeting last night in the Hotel Champlain.

Everybody remembers the thorough success of the welcome to Santa Claus a year ago when it seemed the whole city turned out in carnival spirit. From that experimenting experience the Business Men feel assured that they are going to exceed in attractiveness and moderate whoopee the festive affair of last December that introduced Santa Claus to the children of Peterborough.

J. W. Watson presided at the dinner with an executive attendance that was almost one hundred per cent.

The Floats Outlined

Don Scott, convenor of the floats committee, said that at least nine floats would be in the parade, and were now practically completed. One of them will present Punch and Judy to the crowds. It is sponsored by the Canadian General Electric Company who are also supplying some of the characters.

Mr. Watson is contributing a float entitled the Old Woman Who Lived In A Shoe, stepping from the pages of the nursery rhymes. Mr. Scott said J. J. Turner & Sons would be represented by a float which he expected would be up to the Turner standard of smartness. A Christmas tree float is being fabricated by Reg. Dixon of C.D.S. and Fred Trotter of the Richard Hall store

The Scott Coal and Lumber Company will accentuate the spirit of the parade with a toreasor float, and Canada Packers are sending along a Mickey and Minnie Mouse and Three Litle Pigs idea on their float.

Reg. H. Turner's float will be of an arctic motif, including an igloo; Dick Raine is contributing another, and then there will be the decorated float showing Santa Claus and a group of girls.

Chief Gimblett is fixing up a calithumpian fire brigade with an old and obsolete engine and an antique cab which wil serve as the chief's gig or something. Ross Hood's old Ford of 1905 will provide contrast with the streamlining of this year. Harold Moncrief will have five ponies and a group of Mexicans.

Of course there will be clowns and burlesque policemen, animals, sailors and other comic stunts. Fifty-two costumes have been ordered for that fun-making specialty.

Four Bands Assured

It is likely that the Prince of Wales Rangers band will lead the parade, and the Santa Claus float will be in the van. The three other bands that are virtually assured are the Lindsay Boys' Band, bugle band of the Rangers and the Peterborough Lions Club Boys' Band.

Bags of candies will be distributed along the route for the children, and before the parade reaches the business centre a group of St. John's Church choir boys will sing Christmas carols.

Dick Lush will be parade marshall receiving Santa Claus on Charlotte street as he arrives from Westgate. The route extends easterly on Charlotte street to Water, north to Hunter, west to Aylmer, south to Charlotte, east to George, north to Murray and east to Victoria Park where Santa Claus will be officially welcomed and will then depart.

The Y.M.C.A. is sending fifteen men and the Y.W.C.A. will be represented by ten young ladies in costume.

Among those who reported progress of preparations were Don Scott, Al Sharpe, Jack Smith of Turnbull's Flower Shop, D. Hewitt, Wilfrid Cunningham and others.

T. A. MacKay volunteered to muster cars for the children of the Children's Aid Society and St. Vincent's Orphanage who will probably be given places at second floor windows of one of the large stores.

It was suggested that automobiles should be kept off the George and Charlotte street sections of the route to make sure that the smaller children will be able to see the parade from the sidewalks. It was decided to interview Chief Constable Newhall about that proposal.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

By an Examiner Reporter.

EUCHRE FRIDAY NIGHT.

The Horticultural Society's euchre party Friday night will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stabley Cummings, Hunter Street East.

PARADE APPROVED.

The Santa Calus parade on Friday night received the official approval of the Police Commission at Tuesday's meeting, with the stipulation that the route should be announced to the Chief Constable in advance.

QUARRY CLOSED.

Operations at the city's quarry in Smith Township have been suspended for the season, City Engineer Parsons said this morning, and for the rest of the year Board of Works activities will have to be curtailed to avoid an overdraft.

PROBATION COMPLETED.

At Tuesday's meeting of the Police Commission, C. J. McGillen was appointed as a third-class constable following a report from Chief Constable Newhall that he had completed his six months' probation satisfactorily.

IS HONORARY PRESIDENT.

ROOM REMAINS CLOSED.

Members of the County Council are determined the Council Chamber will remain locked when not being used by the county officials. They are considering different suggestions on means of providing another entrance to the barristers' room, and expect to reach a decision before the sessions are concluded this week.

ATTENDED BANQUET.

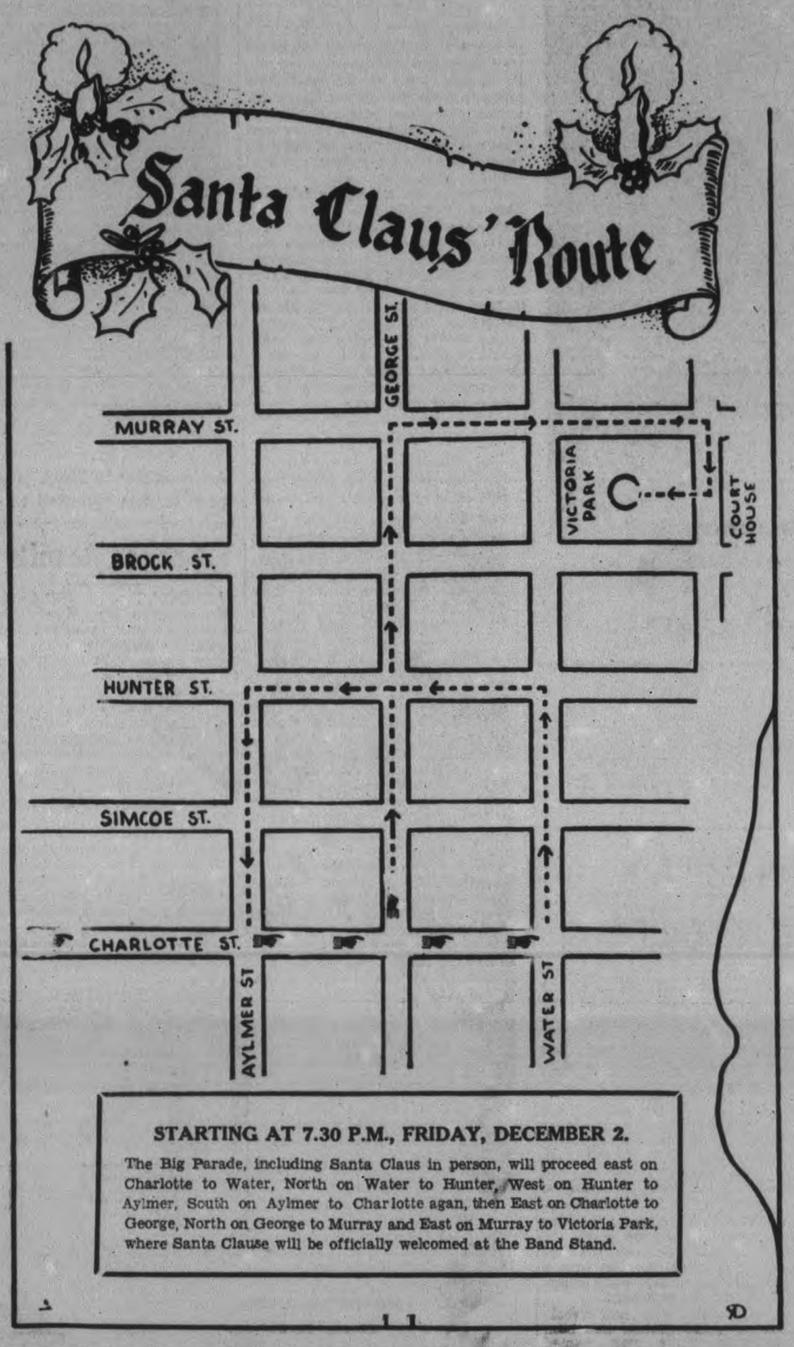
The civic banquet to the Peterborough lacrosse champions of Ontario was half competed in the Empress Hotel on Tuesday night when H. S. Leybourne walked in. The president of the Petes' club had come all the way from Montreal, where he was transferred when the Auburn Mill closed, to attend the function. He was given a big hand.

ANOTHER CITY TRUST.

Vincent Eastwood, chairman of the City Trust Commission, showed the Examiner today the private bill passed by the Ontario Legislature in its last sessions establishing in Fort William a board of trustees to administer the city's sinking fund. The purpose of that special act was substantially the same as the authority given to Peterborough's City Trust Commission. The assent of the Legislature was given last April.

MAY DEMOLISH BUILDING.

The old Registry Office south of the Court House built more than three-quarters of a century ago, may be demolished if present plans of the County Council mature. It was suggested the buildings, at present an eyesore, might be taken down and the materials used to construct another building for the storage of road equipment. No decision was reached, but the Property Committee of the Council will investigate the merits of the plan.



Y's Men's Club Purchases Shoes For Needy School Children

On Wednesday and Thursday evenings of this week the Y's Men's Club are sponsoring a musical comedy, "Front Page Frolics" under the personal direction of George Zarfas, well-known to local audiences. The special project of the show is to provide funds for the purchase of boots and shoes for children whose parents have not the funds or any source to provide these shoes, to enable the children to attend school. The Y's Men's Club has been carrying on this work for the past two years with the guidance of the attendance officer, so that no deserving case is overlooked.

Active Service Club

While the Y's Men's Club has been hiding its light under a bushel, it has been one of the most active service clubs in the city, even to the extent of assisting two of the other clubs in their service work. Second in size only to Rotary, the International Association of Y's Men's Clubs embrace seventeen countries of the world. The local club has an outstanding record in International, and on numerous occasions has numbered among its members, officers of the International body.

An outline of the club's activities for the past year will indicate not only their work in the Y M C A., but to the whole city of Peterborough. For several years memberships to Y.M.C.A. have been given to deserving boys. This past year 35 were enabled to enjoy the privileges of the Y. The club purchased an Ellam's duplicating machine and installed it in the Y. A hobby shop for the boys has been outfitted, and additions are being made each year. In the spring the assistance of the whole club is given not only in time but in money to the financial campaign.

Sponsored Extension Lectures

Some of the other highlights of the past season were the sponsoring of the University of Toronto extension lectures, and the special train to the skating carnival. Each member of the club in turn spends one evening in supervision of the bowling alleys and the bingo game at the Exhibition is well known.

The Y's Men's Club was instituted as a service club, of and for the Y M C A., and its sphere of activity has mainly centred there. However, the conditions of the past few years has shown the need beyond this, and the club has nobly accepted the challenge.

The show on Wednesday and Thursday nights is to raise money for this special need, and is worthy of the support of the citizens of Peterborough. Your help is needed.

At the open forum meeting in George Street Church on Sunday afternoon J. H. Burnham will be the speaker, and he has selected as his subject, "Is the Old Order Passing?". Mr. Burnham informed the Examiner that his material will have to do with the new challenge of Germany to the world. Mr. Burnham added: "The ideas which Germany and Italy are now placing before the world with the resolute intention of compelling the world to adopt them make the subject one of the most interesting now before the world. They involve a new idea of life and are intended to transform the world." The speaker announced that at the conclusion of his address a limited number of questions would be permitted.

James Woof Is Given Suspended Sentence

Pleading guilty, before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning, to obtaining a cheque for $300 and a credit note for $350 from Lillico Motors, under false pretenses, James Ross Woof of Toronto was allowed to go on suspended sentence, one of the conditions being that the accused should facilitate his admission into a mental institution.

It was represented in his behalf by his counsel Reginald J. Chandler that restitution had been made and the accused had been examined by two doctors with the result that it had been discovered that while a defense on the ground of insanity could not be set up the man's condition was such that he would become worse if not treated in some institution. He was willing to be admitted into such an institution, his counsel told the court.

J. Ford Strickland, K.C., who was present in the interest of Lillico Motors said his clients were agreeable to a suspended sentence and no objection was raised by V. J. McElderry, K.C., Crown Attorney.

Traffic Charge Is Dismissed

When the case of Fred Wilson of Springville, who said he was 74 years of age, was called in Traffic Court before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning, the elderly defendant, who was charged with not obeying the traffic lights at Charlotte and George Streets, entered a plea of not guilty, and said he was ready to go on with his case.

However, the prosecution announced that in view of the age of the accused and the explanation he had made, no evidence would be offered, so the case was dismissed.

Another traffic case was withdrawn, the explanation being that a stop sign had been knocked down and therefore a charge of failing to stop could not be proven.

R. Plunkett of Keene, on a written plea of guilty, was fined $10.00, and costs, for driving without a licence. George Heffernan, Cobourg, paid $3, and costs, for taking more than his share of the road.

Among the city cases, George E. Whipp was fined $2, and 75 cents costs, for not stopping at a "stop" sign, and George Bolton of Burleigh Falls the same amount for double parking on Charlotte Street.

Pontypool Man Found Guilty Drunk Driving

"I have not the slightest hesitation in registering a conviction in this case," declared Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court today in finding Leonard Morton, twenty-seven-year-old Pontypool farmer guilty of drunken driving on Highway 28 on the night of November 21.

Morton was sentenced to ten days imprisonment in the county jail and his driving permit was suspended for six months. At the same time Magistrate Langley made a direction that the accused's automobile should be impounded for a period of three months.

The accused was not represented by counsel and conducted his own case while the prosecution was in the hands of Crown Attorney V. J McElderry, K.C.

Provincial Traffic Officer Gordon E. Broughton told of arresting Morton at Whittington's service station on the night in question. He swore the accused was intoxicated at the time.

"He was unsteady on his feet, his speech was slurred and he was in a sort of stupid mood" the officer told the court.

Describing the car Morton admitted he had been driving the witness said that there was no bulb in the taillight or in one of the headlights while the wires of the other headlight were disconnected. Instead of glass in the front windows there was plywood or tin or something of that sort.

Wine In Car

In the car Officer Broughton said he found an empty wine bottle, a full bottle and four caps from wine bottles, all of which were entered as exhibits.

Constable Archie Menzies testified he was in the police station when Morton was brought in by Officer Broughton and that the accused had been intoxicated. Morton was staggering, he said, his speech was thick and his eyes were red.

Vincent Whittington, proprietor of service stations here and on Highway 28 said he was driving out to the latter on the night of November 21 when he saw a car parked on the highway, with no lights showing. When he returned an hour later the car was still there and one headlight was burning. He had stopped and shouted to the driver of the other car to get it off the highway. The parked vehicle, he said had plywood or something like that instead of glass in the front windows. Afterward he had brought a car of that description from his service station on instructions from Officer Broughton.

Called as a defence witness Harry Brown, night attendant at Whittington's service station on Highway 28, testified to Morton driving to that station on the night of November 21 and buying two gallons of gas and some oil. Witness had asked Morton for a ride down to Springville as he was going to close up in a few minutes. In the meanwhile Constable Broughton arrived and arrested the accused.

"I wouldn't say he was intoxicated," he said in reference to Morton. He told of watching through the window as Morton walked out to Broughton's car and said he did not see him stagger.

"I notice you said that you would not swear that Morton was intoxicated," commented Magistrate Langley. "Would you swear that he was not intoxicated?"

"No, I would not," replied the witness.

Explains The Bottle

James Harness said that the empty wine bottle and the caps found in Morton's car had been placed there by him. Morton had driven him from the Montreal House to the wine store with a quantity of empty wine bottles and the one in the car was a bottle that had been bought at the Liquor Store and the wine store staff refused to accept it so he had put it back into Morton's automobile. He said that he had a drink of beer with Morton early in the evening at the Montreal House and another at the Hotel Champlain.

The Accused's Story

Morton, giving evidence in his own behalf, swore that the reason he had stopped on the highway was that his car engine overheated and the car stopped. He remained there until it cooled off and said that it was as far off the highway as he could get it.

As to drinking the accused said that he had a drink of beer at the Montreal House and another at the Montgomery House. Harness, he said, must have made a mistake when he said they had had a drink at the Hotel Champlain.

In cross-examination he denied that he had told Constable Broughton on the night he was arrested he had had three drinks of beer at King's Hotel.

Called in reply, Constable Broughton swore that when he asked Morton about what he had had to drink the accused had said that he had three drinks of beer at King's Hotel and he had repeated that reply when asked again.

Magistrate Langley said that in his opinion it was a clear cut case and the stench of liquor was all through it.

The Rambling REPORTERS

BEATEN AT OWN GAME.

With the true tolerancy of the sports sphere, Hitler's recent statement that Canada was mistreating its Indians was deftly turned by Mayor James Hamilton on Tuesday night at the civic banquet for the local lacrosse champions of Ontario. After welcoming the guests, His Worship remarked: "In these troublesome times, we need those thrills which you lacrosse players provided for us during the past season. Herr Hitler seems to feel that we mistreat our Indians here in Canada, but the only mistreatment I know of is when our boys beat them at their own game of lacrosse!" The sally drew a hearty laugh from the assembly.

A MISERABLE OFFENSIVE

Lt. Col. J. A. Dewart accompanied by his Medical Officer Major Raymore Scott, visited the Papineau Hunt Club in North Hastings where Dan Goodwin and a party from Peterborough, including Dr. S. Y. Walsh, E. A. Chalmers, Vernon Ferguson, Dr. H. J. Long, Dr. Ralph Honey and Alex. L. Elliott were hunting.

They arrived on Tuesday during the first week of the season to spend one day in which they intended to launch a short and quick offensive. Starting out Wednesday morning resplendent in hunting toggery and high powered rifles they presented a formidable appearance to command the watch known as "Big Point". It seemed that the wild denizens of the forest knew of the danger that lurked in their way as they gave "Big Point" a wide berth that day for never a deer did they see. These two Peterborough hunters left early Thursday morning for Peterborough empty handed but compensated in that they enjoyed wild duck and fresh vension when in camp.

Otonabee Reeve Is Opposed To Grand Juries

New opposition to the cost of grand juries was forecast during this morning's session of the County Council by Reeve William Anderson of Otonabee. He intimated he would urge abolition of grand juries when the measure is discussed later in the week.

Warden McDonald explained that a resolution was being prepared which would be debated when presented to the Council. Reeve Anderson was absent for the first two days of the Council sessions, and therefore had no opportunity to take part in the first discussion.

Would Urge Abolition.

He said this morning it was his opinion the members would be well advised to urge abolition of the grand juries.

Objection Is Taken.

Considerable discussion resulted over payment of hospital, medical and funeral costs for Dorothy Tucker, a ward of the Children's Aid Society.

Reeve Brown objected to the proceedings leading up to this girl's adoption by the Children's Aid. He claimed the Children's Aid officials could save money if they co-operated more fully with the reeve of the municipality in every case of a similar nature. In this particular case the decision was left to a committee composed of Reeves Anderson and Brown and Warden McDonald.

Fife Memorial.

A letter was read from J. J. Duffus, M.P., urging the Council to press for a suitable memorial to the late David Fife, originator of Fife wheat. He pointed out that through the joint efforts of himself and other government officials, a film depicting the part played by Fife wheat in the development of the Canadian West had been made.

A preview of this film is being shown on December 1st in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto. Mr. Duffus extended an invitation to one member of the Council to accompany him to see the preview. Reeve William Anderson of Otonabee was named as he comes from the home township of David Fife.

An invitation was received also from Dr. J. J. Craig, president of St. Paul's Men's Club, to attend a showing of this film which is called "The Kinsmen," next Tuesday at 8 o'clock in St. Paul's Church. Warden McDonald moved, seconded by Reeve Martin Coughlin, that the invitation be accepted and a letter of thanks be sent to Dr. Craig for his kind invitation.

MONTHLY CLEARINGS.

Presbytery Of United Church Favors Canada Taking Fair Quota Of Jewish Refugees

Prime Minister Mackenzie King will be informed that the Peterborough Presbytery of the United church approves of Canada taking a fair share of the quota of Jewish refugees, it was decided at a meeting of the Presbytery in George Street United Church Tuesday. The motion was introduced by Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt of Knox church, seconded by Rev. E. W. Rowland of Mark Street church.

Persecution of Jews in Europe was a matter that concerned members of the presbytery during a considerable portion of the session. At the request of the Evangelical and Social Service committee, the following resolution was introduced by Rev. F. W. Craik. "Your committee views with alarm the situation in Europe where people of the Jewish race have been unduly persecuted and where privation and suffering have been pressed upon the Jews when circumstances prevented them from defending themselves against the action of the German people through their officials. We therefore would make a plea for the need of tolerance toward the Jewish people."

The presbytery accepted the recommendation of Rev. Mr. Craik and Rev. Dr. A. T. Young of St. Andrew's church that the presbytery, through its committee on evangelism and social service, arrange for a public meeting to be held in Peterborough, and to be addressed by Rabbi Maurice Eisendrath of Holy Blossom synagogue, Toronto, or another leading representative of the Jewish race, that ministers might consider some line of action in defence of the Jews. Rev. Dr. Young was empowered to seek the cooperation of the ministerial association in the plan at its meeting on Monday.

The presbytery was meeting in the board room of George street church with Rev. M. C. Parr as chairman and Rev. J. R. Trumpour of Cavan as secretary.

New Delegates Accepted

Messrs. Thomas Petrie and Duncan Drummond of St. Andrew's church and George E. Wilson of Bethany were accepted to the court for the meeting, and Rev. F. G. MacTavish of Omemee in Lindsay presbytery and Rev. T. M. Wesley of Camborne in Cobourg presbytery and formerly of Norwood and Lakefield, were welcomed as visitors. Rev. F. W. Newell and Mr. J. G. Keefer were absent through illness.

The application of Rev. M. I. Johnston of the Illinois conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, who desires to return to Canada, and who is married to a Peterborough girl, has been before the presbytery before. Rev. E. W. Rowland, for the Pastoral Relations committee, reported on his credentials and many recommendations. The presbytery recommended that his application be endorsed and the usual notice of intention to ask for his acceptance into the minstry of the United church was sent out to all presbyteries.

Addressed Presbytery

C. A. Salmonsen, works manager of the Canadian General Electric company, plant addressed members of the presbytery and other clergymen in Peterborough on "methods adopted by the company to assist their employees." Quoting attacks made on the industry Mr. Salmonsen said it was a pleasure to give authoritative information on the history and progres sof the company which has more than 5,000 employees and at present has 1,760 in Peterborough, with an average for twelve months of 1,870.

Dealing with the desirable items in a social security program, he said his company competes with firms which pay the same wage for 54 hours as his does for 40 hours. Wages in the C.G.E., he claimed, were equal to or higher than community rates for similar labor. The company endeavored to maintain a standard of living and does all it can to keep its organization intact and busy, he said. "There is a close relationship between fair wages and good management," he admitted.

Opportunity for advancement was given by training courses, payment of night school fees and additional wage rates to those who attend. Preferred shares of the company's stock were offered to employees, to yield five per cent and to which the company has added two per cent in recent years. Vacations with pay after a period of service were given to office and factory employees.

The recreational club, picnic and Christmas tree projects were outlined; and the canteen fund, with proceeds devoted to worthy causes. The Kawartha Golf and Country club gave an opportunity for better games at low cost.

The thanks of the meeting were conveyed by Rev. A. McLauchlin and J. F. Morrison. The address was described as a gesture toward good will and understanding. Rev. Mr. McLaughlin presented the report of the Evangelisation and Social Service committee and the presbytery approved findings of the general council in regard to gambling and moving pictures.

The presbytery ordered the recent findings of the general council on "Economic and Social Research," "Control and Profit in the Liquor Trade," and "The Call To Advance," brought before the official boards of the church; and made provision for three addresses on evangelism to be delivered at the next meeting by Revs. H. Wilkinson, M. I. Robinson and A. McLauchlin.

Student Endorsed

The report on colleges and students was presented by Inspector R. F. Downey. Kenneth Stickney Brenton of Peterborough, who was recommended as a suitable candidate for the ministry of the United church by the session of George street church upon motion of Messrs. Alex Stewart and C. Stanton; and whose candidature was sponsored by Rev. E. W. Rowland and Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt of the committee; and whose educational standing, health, and moral fitness were properly certified, was approved upon recommendation of the committee and accepted as a candidate under the direction of Peterborough presbytery.

In the Home Mission report presented by Rev. H. Wilkinson, it was shown that Hiawatha Indian congregation had redecorated their church and provided new hymnaries. Rev. J. S. Ferguson of Keene was added to this committee.

Permission was given the Trent River church to sell part of their sheds in a scheme to repair and beautify their property. In the report on missionary and maintenance, given by Rev. G. S. Easton, special commendation was awarded the Indian congregation of Curve Lake, who have already met their full allocation of local and missionary support for 1938.

Old Picture Is Added To Denne Collection

The picture was taken about half a century ago, and the photographer stood facing north in the lane directly behind the building now occupied by The Examiner. In the foreground is Harry Morgan, famous hockey player, then about six years of age, and he is shown seated on a small wagon to which is hitched a dog. His father, P. Morgan, proprietor of the Morgan House, which was on the premises now occupied by The Peterborough Examiner. A grey horse on a old-style sulky is also shown.

MARY REYNOLDS.

The sudden death in Toronto on Thursday last of Miss Mary Reynolds came as a great shock to her many Peterborough friends. She was the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Mary Sheelah Reynolds was born in Kitchener 27 years ago and lived in Saskatchewan until moving to Peterborough 14 years ago. Her outstanding characteristics were her radiant personality and her ardens love of music in which she was so talented. She obtained her A.T.C.M. degree, solo performance, from St. Mary's Convent at the age of 16, and will be remembered by many for her tireless work in connection with the musical shows sponsored at that time by the Kiwanis Club.

She was an honor graduate of St. Peter's High school in 1929 and subsequently attended University of Toronto, and Toronto Normal school when her father was moved to that city. She taught music in St. Francis school, and for the last four years at Bolton Ave. school for mentally deficient girls.

Funeral was held from the residence of her parents, 94 Lytton Blvd., to Holy Rosary church, where Mary was organist for the last seven years. Among the pallbearers were her brothers, George and Bernard, and Donald Tudhope.

Many Peterborough friends visited Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds on the occasion of their bereavement, among whom were Mrs. F. P. McNulty, Miss Margery McNulty, Miss Joan Lynch, Miss Hilda Sullivan, Sr. M. Austin of St. Mary's Convent, who was Mary's music teacher, Dr. Eugene Snider, Scott Medd, Bob White and Gerald Duffus.

County Plows Available To Townships

In future townships which do not own graders or snowplows may for brief periods rent the equipment owned by the county for snowplowing and road grading. This will only be permitted when it does not interfere with the regular work on county roads.

Allan B. Mann, reeve of Smith, said at Tuesday's session of the County Council it would be much wiser for townships to rent the equipment rather than make a capital expenditure. Reeve Coughlin of Douro felt such an arrangement might be safely left with the county engineer. It was, however, embodied in a motion made by Reeves Mann and Gifford. The motion gives County Engineer A. E. Chalmers the power to rent the equipment to neighboring townships.

The engineer was also given permission to plow any township road with county equipment so long as this does not interfere with the regular county snowplowing.

Work on County Building

Reeve Milby occupied the chair at the late afternoon session when the Council went into committee on property. He reported on the work which had been done on the county building during the year. The total expended was $2,631.66. Jury rooms were redecorated, rooms in the jailer's house were decorated, all windows in the building were painted, the outside doors were varnished. New plumbing and concrete flooring was installed in the lower cell block at the jail, and the upper floor is to be done later. A mulch surface was put on the road in front of the court-house at a cost of $681, and a concrete curb was added at a cost of $155. The curb was smoothed and polished with jail labor at no cost to the county.

A motion from Havelock Council re indigent patients was received. The motion sought to have the county enter into an agreement with Mrs. Cummings at Havelock so that all indigent patients from within the county who so desire may be given treatment at the hospital. The members moved that the motion passed at the January sessions be effective in this case. The motion was that any municipality that desires to enter into an agreement with a private hospital re admission of indigent patients do so provided they receive approval of the department, and that such municipality be permitted to submit their accounts to the finance committee of the Council with a view to securing a grant of 50 per cent. on same, as the committee so decide.

....Now that the first snow has "snowed," and the air is taking on an exhilarating crispness that sends one's blood briskly racing, feminine thoughts turn to skiing and skating — and the planning mentally of smart and practical togs to add the right sporty, cosy fashion touch.

....In anticipation of such wants, the shop windows are filled with bright ideas, and counters are laden with "tops" in styles, which include a ski suit of Boy Blue wool gabardine with white calfskin on the jacket and trimming the parka; a set of red wool bonnett, mitts and socks embroidered in floral pattern, and an attractive Princess frock for skating of black velveteen colorfully embroidered, and made to be worn with black wool jersey underpanties.

....We mentioned parkas in the above paragraph—aren't they the warmest, flattering things you have ever discovered? You can make them yourself of wool — wouldn't they make an acceptable Christmas gift—or purchase them for a ridiculously low price, considering their chic, in the shops. Pets of ours are the fluffy ones in delectable shades of angora, with shaggy, matching gloves.

ERMINE IS CHOICE OF MODERN TRILBY

By ALICE ARDEN

TRILBY still is in circulation —or, at least, the famous du Maurier hair-do is. While the battle over the upswept coiffure continues, there are two lovelies who still prefer the trilby hair-do. They are the socialites, Sally Clark and Whitney Bourne, the latter depicted here Miss Bourne, who has made a name for herself in the movies, likes this coiffure at night. In this picture she wears a delightful ermine jacket over a black crepe dress, simply styled to form a background for gems. Gauntlets of black antelope enhance the sleeves.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"The world goes up and the world goes down,
And the sunshine follows the rain;
And yesterday's sneer and yesterday's frown
Can never come over again."
—Charles Kingsley.

Dear Friends:

Well, I don't agree with Charles Kingsley, about yesterday's sneer and frown never coming back again. The world goes up and down alright, now we are on top of the world and the next time we seem to be ground down into the mud.

But, apart from that, life is more like a chain to me, a chain of days in which we form a chain of events, one thing somehow relating to another.

How many of us would like to run that chain through our fingers, and when we came to the bad parts, to be able to cut them out join our chain up again, as if those bad parts had never been?

For, the things we did yesterday, and many yesterdays before that, have a way of repeating themselves in our brain, so that we not only suffer at the time, but suffer again and again.

Naturally, the wrong things we ourselves have done will haunt and torture us much more than what has been done against us, for then this badness came from within us, and nothing hurts like that.

But, the smile of derision, the sneer at our weak moment, the scorn which is not hidden, and the whispers behind one's back, these things do not only happen once, they repeat themselves in our brain and years later can rise to hurt us once more.

The past is linked up with the present, and with the future. We can go on, but we can never go back. We may make frequent journeys by car, or bus, or train, but we have only a one way ticket in the journey through life.

And history has a way of repeating itself, for the things that hurt us once can hurt us many times. It's a funny thing how quickly we can forget pleasant happenings, and how often we remember unpleasant ones.

In the heat of summer we remember all the days between when we were comfortable. In the winter we remember certain storms, but don't remember the clean crisp days which we enjoyed.

We remember the quarrels we've had with this one or that, forgetting the pleasures we enjoyed with them. And we remember pain and sickness far more than we remember the healthy times we have enjoyed.

I wonder why the bad things imprint themselves so clearly on our memories? I think it may be that we do not expect these things, that we do not ever see them as part of life.

We resent them as we resent a bad road after riding on the smooth pavement for many miles, yet to get to our destination we must often go over roads deep in ruts, and it is a good driver who can escape trouble.

And it is a good weaver who can make yards of cloth without a flaw here and there. And so, as we weave our chain of life, let us not dwell so much on the flaws here and there, but think of the yards of good clean chain we have made.

When we look at the bad pieces, the bits which are ravelled out, the parts that are smudged and dirty, we shouldn't let them get us down too far, but just determine to make the other parts so lovely and so perfect, that the beauty of them will stand out and overshadow the rest so much, that they will not be noticed. Only that way can we make our chain of life worthwhile. Let me know what you have done with yours.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Evening Branch Of W. A. Tea Hostesses

The Evening Branch members of the Women's Auxiliary of All Saints' Church were hostesses at a succesful tea on Tuesday evening. Miss Gwen Dobbin, president, received the guests in the ladies' parlors, where a bright grate fire augmented her gracious welcome.

Mrs. J. D. Paterson and Mrs. John Edgar presided at the tea table, which was attractively arranged with a cut work cloth and a lovely crystal centrepiece, and lighted with four tall pink tapers in silver holders. Miss Meta Hart and Mrs. V. Chandler were tea room conveners, and assistant tea hostesses were Miss Gwen Parsons, Miss Edna Lee, and Miss Myrtle Dark.

Miss Emily Parsons was convener of the homemade candy table, where boxes and baskets of delicious candy were very pretty in their dainty jackets of two shades of green crepe paper.

Mrs. J. Cooper and Miss Etta Hill were conveners of the fancy work table, where many beautifully made fancy goods were on display. Suggestions were here in abundance for the Christmas-minded shopper, and deserving of particular mention were tiny organdy flowers in delicate pastel shades; fragrant organdy sachets; demure little frocks for children; gay, carefully made aprons, and a Sunrise pattern quilt, finished with finely-done quilting, which had been made by the W.A. members.

Miss Ethel Allan was treasurer for the delightful affair.

Do You Know?

You can silence a squeak in your carpet sweeper by applying oil on a feather or from a small oil can? Use the oil on the bearings and around the wheels. Then run the sweeper over a paper to catch any surplus oil so it won't drip on your rugs.

Tips For The Good Secretary

Good at her work, yes, but she's not liked by her "boss." The reason: She hasn't learnt office manners; she's casual in her behavior, forgets to pay him those small courtesies which count so much in business life. For instance:

Sometimes she comes into his office in absent-minded fashion; laughing to herself, twiddling with her hair, or fiddling about with her dress. This sort of behavior may denote nervousness—more often than not lack of concentration on her job.

If someone calls through on the 'phone from another department while she's taking his letters, and she knows the voice, she says, "Oh, hello," and has a little conversation on her own before passing over the receiver. (It's about time she worked out a technique for business-like telephone-answering.)

She slouches against the door of his office, swinging on the handle while he's giving her some "after-thought" instructions when she's been on the point of leaving the room. (No man is going to stand that amount of casualness for long.)

She throws her typed work sulkily on his desk when she has to work late, instead of handing it to him politely, with a pleasant smile as he would like her to do. Not nice to work late of course, but that sort of behavior get no one's sympathy. She should learn to "grin and bear it."

If visitors come into the office while she is there, to call his attention to some urgent matter she stares rudely at them as if resenting the interruption. (Whatever thoughts she may have—justified or not—she should keep to herself. That's what good secretaries are for.)

She slouches all over his desk when she's taking notes, leans on him: murmurs "What did you say?" into her hand when she can't follow his dictation. (She should sit up straight. concentrate, and make some show of enthusiasm.)

ROMANCE INC.

BY OREN ARNOLD

Read This First:

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, creates a furore on the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, when she erected a sign in front of her cottage announcing "COUNSEL IN ROMANCE". Her plan is to help guide 100 student "members" in their social and love affairs for a small fee. Bob Towne, campus football hero, attracted by Sara Sue, is the first to enroll. This enrages Peaches Pomeroy, a senior, who regarded herself as "Bob's girl" the previous year. Worthington Gurley, unprepossessing freshman, provides another interesting problem for Sara Sue. But the climax in her Cottage Plan occurs when Dr. Thornton Holgate, new member of the faculty, begs Sara Sue to help him . . . then confides he has fallen in love with Peaches Pomeroy. Gurley obtains a date with Sara Sue for the freshman ball, which displeases Towne; but Bob accepts it gracefully. Sara Sue finds her affairs growing complicated, but feels much better after confiding her troubles to a close friend, Roxy Powell. At a meeting of the college faculty, it is evident that Sara Sue Davis, Inc., is playing a prominent part in campus life. Dr. Holgate receives his first lessons in "how to become more human", and begins to mix with some of the students at Sara Sue's house. He phones Peaches Pomeroy to ask her to the freshman ball, but she gives him no definite reply.

THE FIRST game of the season for Rice Institute in this autumn of 1938 was with the University of Oklahoma, played in the new Rice stadium. It was bound to be a worthwhile game, regardless of the score, for the Sooners had edged ont a 6-0 victory over the championship Rice team in 1937. Everybody with his wife and dog would be there.

Mr. T. J. Saunders had no wife, but he did have a dog.

This dog, a bench-legged bull, was so ferocious looking that it had been named Nightmare. And by adoitly painting its face, tieing false ears on it, and otherwise dressing it in feathers, poor Nightmare had been made to resemble a dangerous looking owl. The Rice football players are called Owls.

But Mr. T. J. Saunders was not a Rice student, nor even an alumnus. He was southwestern representative for the Columbian Sporting Goods corporation, and as such he attended the major games each season, keeping an eye on the players who achieved most skill and fame.

This year his firm had offered $1,000 cash to the Rice man who should achieve rating as "the best individual player", in return for that player's endorsement of new football equipment to be offered. All of the Rice seniors yearned to win that prize. Everybody said the race for it lay between Captain Jess Hines, a tackle, halfbacks Ollie Cordill and Ernie Lain, and big Bob Towne, the end. But decision couldn't be reached until the end of the season, even though Mr. Sanders was keeping a sharp lookout meanwhile. Houston was a good headquarters for him, anyway; he could sell many a school account working out of the big town.

Half an hour before the Rice-Oklahoma game began, Mr. Sanders proudly led Nightmare into the stadium, and with a friend was escorted to a seat on the 45-yard line. Right away, though, Mr. Sanders lost interest in Nightmare and his oulish getup, and even lost major interest in the football game itself.

You see, Mr. Sanders was a comparatively young business man. He had been around a great deal, possessed a certain savoir faire, was adept at meeting people and dressing himself well, held a definite self-confidence. And now his mind was suddenly distracted by a feminine person who happened to have the seat diagonally in front of him. With two companions she had come there and sat down.

"Wow!" murmured Mr. Sanders to the friend who had come with him.

"Don't know her," that friend replied, already acquainted with Mr. Sanders' mind and temperament.

"Strawberries and cream," said Mr. Sanders.

"Check," agreed the friend.

"Roses in the springtime," said Mr. Sanders.

"Yeah, and June under a moon with youn in a canoon on the lagoon! Come on, T. J., th' team's warming up. Out there—see!—on the football field."

Now any good salesman is necessarily a resourceful man, and T. J. Sanders was a good salesman. Forthwhile, therefore, he maneuvered for Nightmare to put his paws up on the back of the girl's seat. She turned to see the dog.

"Git down, Nightmare, I'll break your neck!" growled T. J. "I beg your humble pardon, Miss. It won't happen again." T. J. smiled and tipped his hat.

"It's quite all right," the girl said. "I think he looks darling! He really looks like an owl. Here, boy—" she reached to pet him.

Which was just enough for Mr. Nightmare. That canine gentleman promptly deserted his master, bounded over to the girl's seat. She accepted him temporarily, bought him a soda pop and bade him drink from a paper cup; bought him an ice cream cone to lick, made him bark lustily when the Rice rooters yelled, made him stand on his hind legs—along with everybody else—when the band played "For Rice's Honor", and for the remainder of the afternoon completely ignored Mr. T. J. Sanders.

Mr. T. J. gleaned one other significent bit of information, however, while his heart was yearning. He heard the girl call the lady next to her "Mother". This, no doubt, cramped Mr. T. J.'s normal style. In fact, he accomplished nothing; he merely collected his dog at the end of the game and left the stadium.

That Saturday night wasn't very exciting for Mr. T. J. Sanders. He felt no urge to go to a show or a road house or otherwise make whoppee. Unaccountably, he stayed at home and read a stuffy magazine. Sunday he slept a lot, but his mind wandered some. Monday afternoon he was back on the Rice campus, hanging around the athletic field as usual, chinning with the boys and such. But he acted rather morose.

Tuesday he began to listen to the rather frequent references being made to a Mrs. Sara Sue Davis and her cottage for Counsel in Romance. She sounded like she was the most important thing about the campus, next to football. People said she was a deft matchmaker. Four or five romances were actually blooming under her sponsorship. Good wholesome work, everybody said. She got shy boys and girls together. Furnished a loafing place, a place to meet people.

Meet people. Heck—he, T. J. Sanders, was yearning to meet somebody! A girl! Maybe this Mrs. Davis could—say, why not? If she advertised help for people in search of romance, maybe she could help him find the girl he saw in the stadium. He'd know her anywhere. She was one in a million.

She was just a little higher than his shoulders. She dressed in blue—and the sassiest, cutest hat. She had cheeks that were rounded with natural pink on them, and with a dimple in one of them, and lips—wow!

Mr. Sanders departed from the field house without a word of explanation. He was that sort of a salesman. Whenever he sensed or saw a course of action, he moved at once.

"You wishes to see Miss Sara Sue, suh?"

"That's right, Calculus. Is Mrs. Davis in? I need her advice."

"You in need of romance, Mister T. J.?" The colored man had known T. J. for a long time.

"Doggone if I ain't Calculus. They say this Davis lady is expert at helping people meet other people. I want to meet a girl I saw Saturday. Wow, was she a honey! No, seriously, it's a business call, Calculus. Go on, where is Mrs. Davis?"

"Come in, Mistuh T. J. She is heah with the others."

Mrs. T. J. Sanders entered, removing his hat. At this juncture he suddenly felt like a fool. Imagine it—me, T. J. Sanders, asking a woman to find a girl and introduce her to me! Why, I ought—

But then love is like that. It does unaccountable things to people, makes man and woman alike break their normal routines of thought and action. It wasnt altogether silly, at that. This strawberries-and-cream girl very probably was a Rice student herself; she looked like a senior. So, this Mrs. Davis stood a good chance to know her. It was worth trying.

Calculus had escorted him into Sara Sue's private office, where all business callers were ushered first. T.J. sat down and stared at pennants and pictures on the walls, at lacy curtains, and other girly things.

He had a brief moment of panic, thought to flee. Then he laughed at himself. Might as well see it through, silly as he felt. After all, it would be in strict confidence. And he had fallen down at trying to scrape up an acquaintance with her, something he rarely ever had done before when pertty girls impressed him.

But this girl had impressed him more than any other, he was thinking now.

He gave thought to her appearance again. Wow! She was divine! He could just hear the music of her laughter, the easy southern tinkly happiness of her speech. He was imagining every delightful tone of it.

Or was he?

"Did you wish to see me, Mr. Sanders?" she was saying behind him.

He arose from his chair. He stared, incredulous.

Wow!

Sparkling Vocabulary Means Social Success

She's never tongue-tied—or a conversational dead-weight who complains, "I can't just express what I mean." The men who date her know she'll gaily hold her own in any group.

She's never boring. Instead of overworked words like NICE, INTERESTING, LOVELY, she chooses lively adjectives that appeal to the five senses—HARD, COOL pavement; TITTERING sparrow; SPICY fragrance; CRISP, SAVORY bacon; BLACK, SCURRYING clouds.

And she doesn't make embarrassing blunders. She knows better than to say, "Oh, I was so AGGRAVATED!" when she means EXASPERATED, or "The bride PROCEEDED the bridesmaids," when she means PRECEDED.

Is your vocabulary large enough for your conversational needs? Is it colorful? Correct? Check up on yourself with the help of our valuable 32-page booklet, Personality in words and phrases. Good usage. Accepted slang. Word magic. Practical vocabulary exercises.

Don't Quit Because You Have Reached The 40-Year Mark—There Is Plenty of Work If You Use The Right Approach In Seeking It

LISTEN, all of you middle-aged sisters who have lost your husbands or your money or your jobs and who have sunk down on the do-nothing stool while you wail out that there is nothing a woman can get to do by which she can earn a living after she loses the glamour of youth.

Here is great news for you. Two women prophets have arisen to lead you out of the valley of despair to the green hills of prosperity, and to show you that the door of opportuity is just as wide open to the woman who has lost her figure as it is to a stringbean flapper, if only she has enough energy and enterprise to batter on it.

These two women to whom fate had done its darndest in the way of personal sorrows, sickness, breaking banks and business failures that did away with their jobs, refused to believe that woman is automatically down and out when she is no longer young and beautiful. So they started out to test by actual experience what a woman can get to do when she is middle-aged by which she can support herself.

And they have written a book about their adventures that they call "We Are Forty and We Did Get Jobs" that is published by the Lippincotts. It is as entertaining as fiction, as full of common-sense and practical advice as an egg is of meat, and is so overflowing with the gospel of hope and courage that it should brace up the backbone of the flabbiest feminine whiner, and make her roll up her sleeves and go out and find something to do.

The problem of the idle woman is more than financial. It is psychic and moral, for no one will deny that a great deal of the misery in the world is caused by women who have nothing to do except to stir up trouble. Nearly every family has one of these parasites hanging on it, sucking out its life blood of peace and happiness.

Sometimes, it is a mother who is stronger and healthier in her forties and fifties than she was in her twenties. She goes to live with her children when her husband dies, and is so overflowing with vitality that she cannot keep from meddling in all of their affairs. Sometimes it is a widowed daughter who has to come back home when her husband passes away and leaves her penniless. Or it may be a sister who has been thrown out of the work in which she was engaged. But, however it is, the situation is the same, and it is always tragical.

Idle women, with nothing to do except to brood over their misfortunes. Women eating the bread of dependence and finding it bitter in their mouths. Unhappy, humiliated women who take out their discontent and their hurt pride on every one about them and who bite the hands that feed them.

We all know stormy homes that would be peaceful and quiet if only Mother would find some occupation that took up her time and attention and made her self-supporting. We all know children whose lives are being blighted because a little income has to be stretched so far to cover taking care of Aunt Mary and Sister Sue that it does not provide the food and medical attention the youngsters need.

When we ask why these able-bodied, middle-aged women hang themselves like millstones around their families' necks instead of hustling out and earning their own bread and butter they cry out that they can't get jobs, that only debutantes are wanted in the commercial market.

It is this fallacious theory that the authors of "We Are Forty and We Did Get Jobs" refute, and that is what makes it such a godsend to so many women who writhe under dependence. They have accepted it as their inevitable fate because they have been taught to believe that middle age is the deadline for women, beyond which there is no hope. They have given up, and so they are beaten before they ever start to fight. And mostly they don't even try to fight. They just lie down and take it.

To all of these discouraged women I commend this book. It will point out new avenues of occupation to them of which they have never thought. It will tell them where to look for work and how to find it. It will teach them a thousand tricks in selling themselves to employers. It will tell them how to dress when looking for a job and what attitude to take. And it will warn them against the mistake that so many women make of looking gloomy and discouraged and down-at-the-heel instead of perky and cheerful and competent. Surely after reading it every woman of 40 will say: Huh, middle age! What of it? And go out and get a job.

Every wardrobe needs a dress that's neither too tailored nor too dressy. You'll like the shirtmaker styling of this attractive rayon and silk crepe dress. A yoke emphasizes the square look about the shoulder. Shirring falls into soft fullness over the bosom. A panel effect right down the front, adds inches to your height. It's a model that also takes to fabric contrast, so popular this season. It's exquisitely lovely in black satin-back crepe with the shoulder yoke, front panel, collar and sleeve cuffs of the glistening side of the crepe. It's outstandingly chic in velvet for afternoons.

Style No. 2848 is designed for sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39-inch material with ⅝ yard of 39-inch contrasting.

By MAX TRELL

The children always were glad when Ed came to the house. So were Knarf and Hanid, the shadows of the children (children, of course, always have shadows and shadows, of course, always have names). Both the children and their shadows liked Ed very much. He was a tall, strong man. He always wore rough clothes because he was a carpenter and there was hardly a day when he didn't have lots of work to do.

He came to the house the other morning and went right into the playroom. "Hooray!" cried the children. "Ed's ging to fix the little table that got broken."

"I think the legs are too high."

The children took Ed over to the table.

"You see," they said, "the leg fell off."

"I think it would look better with shorter legs," Knarf said, trying to make his voice sound loud. "And, if you ask me, I'd like it best without any legs at all."

But Ed didn't ask him.

"I don't know why he doesn't listen to me," Knarf said sadly to his shadow-sister, Hanid. "No one listens to me—not even my master. And I stay with him all the time."

"Children aren't supposed to pay much attention to their shadows," Hanid replied. "But tell me, Knarf—why do you think the table would be better with shorter legs?"

"Because," said Knarf, "it's not a regular table — it's a children's table. And children's legs aren't as long as regular legs. So it ought to have shorter legs."

"Well, perhaps you're right about that. But then you said that it would be best of all if it didn't have any legs. What made you say that?"

"Oh!" said the shadow-boy with a smile, "I was thinking of you and me. The best kind of table for us is a table that sets right on the floor."

Knarf had scarcely finished saying this when Ed suddenly remarked: "Do you know what I think? I think the legs on this table are too high. A children's table ought to have little legs like little children."

"Yes," said Knarf, "That's what I said! Do it! Do it!"

And Ed did it. And everyone in the house thought it was the loveliest children's table that anyone ever had seen.

Young People Meet

FAIRMOUNT, Nov. 30—The young people's meeting was held in the Howden Memorial Hall on Friday evening with a good attendance.

Mrs. R. K. Earle, missionary convener, took charge and opened the meeting by a hymn and prayer led by Miss Jean Hanbidge, Allin Downes and Mrs. Earle. Miss Jean Dalnard read a poem followed by a piano solo by Duncan Seymour and a duet rendered by Mrs. H. M. S. McBain and Miss Betty Allen.

Mrs. Earle then introduced the new study book, 'Canada Faces A New World" and the first chapter was taken.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE —with Major Hoople

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, December 1.

A day of confusing or mysterious adventures may be expected, judging by a rather curious or perplexing planetary configuration. It seems as if some underhand, peculiar or subtle situation may be brought into the open, the affair might be turned to good account. In all be cautious and beware of dangerous intrigue and possible misconstruction or slander. Romance may enter the social or domestic life.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves enshrouded in a year of intrigue or situations involving a rather spectacular romance. This may cause tongues to wag, especially following the revelation of some peculiar, subtle, or suppressed occurrence, affecting the private associations. It is not entirely sinister and gifts and pleasant things may be expected, but be cautious with correspondence or unwelcome publicity.

A child born on this day may be sympathetic, generous, friendly and high-minded, although secretive, subtle and mysterious in its actions and peculiar in its ideas. Its most noble objectives may be pursued under cover and be subject to suspicion.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

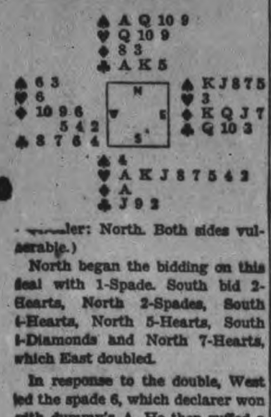
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

WATCH THE LIGHTS

JUST AS A good automobile chauffeur watches the lights in order to govern his driving safely, so must a declarer heed the indications given him by the defenders. A double can tell him that certain finesses are bound to fail and that he will have to build other means of making his contract.



(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

North began the bidding on this deal with 1-Spade. South bid 2-Hearts, North 2-Spades, South 4-Hearts, North 5-Hearts, South 5-Diamonds and North 7-Hearts, which East doubled.

In response to the double, West led the spade 6, which declarer won with dummy's A. He then ruffed a spade in an endeavor to set up the fifth card of that suit to provide a spot for his losing club. A trump was then led to the Q and another spade ruffed. When it developed that East held as many spades as dummy, declarer had to resort to other tactics to make his contract, so he decided to try for a squeeze. He led out all of his hearts and the diamond A, and forced East to unguard his club stopper in his endeavor to protect the spade suit. Then when clubs were led, East had to toss his spades, so that declarer was able to take thirteen tricks.

Premier's Plan To See Duce Pleases Press

LONDON, Nov. 30—(CP-Havas).—The Times and other newspapers to-day expressed satisfaction with last night's announcement that Prime Minister Chamberlain will visit Premier Mussolini in Rome, early in January.

The diplomatic correspondent of The Daily Mail (Independent) said Mr. Chamberlain may leave for Rome on January 9, accompanied by Foreign Secretary Halifax, Lady Halifax, and Mrs. Chamberlain. The Prime Minister, he added, "has a strong friendly feeling for Mussolini as a result of the friendship of his brother, the late Sir Austen Chamberlain, with Il Duce."

"Those who know the Prime Minister well," Vernon Bartlett, who last week was elected to the House of Commons as an opponent of Mr. Chamberlain's foreign policy, said in the News-Chronicle (Liberal), "do not believe that he would listen to any possible attempt by Mussolini to win the grant of belligerent rights (for the Spanish insurgents) by promising not to sign the proposed alliance between Germany, Italy, and Japan.

"Besides, important British circles are at last realizing how much a Franco (insurgent) victory would be a British defeat."

"Announcement that the prime minister is to pay a visit to Rome during the parliamentary recess," said the Times (Independent), "is welcome for many reasons. Mr. Chamberlain has set himself a perfectly definite policy which he is carrying out as and when circumstances permit.

Favors Personal Contact

"Like Sir Austen Chamberlain before him, he believes in the value of personal contacts. The Anglo-Italian agreement is manifestly the beginning of a new era as well as the closing of an old one—and the prime minister and the foreign secretary are going to inaugurate it with Signor Mussolini in person.

"There was a time when all the principal statesmen of Europe met regularly in Geneva. But since then the process of division and alienation became even more marked. It has been Mr. Chamberlain's great service in foreign policy that he has checked the process. It may be said that he has reversed it.

"He has established personal contacts with both Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini without diminishing by one little bit the cordial personal and political relations of his predecessors with the prime minister and foreign minister of France, and without, despite the charges of his critics, sacrificing British honor or our interests.

"Great Britain has to live side by side with these countries, and means to do so on the basis of equality and cooperation. When the British ministers reach Rome there will be much to discuss—notably Spain, the Mediterranean, and colonial collaboration."

Causes Dad's Arrest

Braving recognition and jail, Russell Woodworth, escaped Pennsylvania larceny suspect, made arrangements for his baby (shown with Mrs. Woodworth) to be born in a Los Angeles hospital. The day Shirley Ann was born, Woodworth was arrested. Pennsylvania authorities wired that they no longer wanted him.

This is quoted from just one of thousands of earnest testimonials praising Mentholatum. All over the world millions of men and women are grateful to this time-proved family remedy. Mentholatum is a simple, direct way of treating nasal catarrh. This healing balm is no sooner inserted in the nostrils than the antiseptic vapours begin to penetrate to the farthest nasal passages . . . relieve congestion . . . fight germs . . . retard gathering of mucus . . . clear your nose and help keep it clear. Get a 30 cent tube or jar today. Apply it regularly. Mentholatum should bring you relief . . . as it has relieved millions . . . or your money will be refunded. A4

Puff, Puff, And They Are Ready To Start

One of the doubtful pleasures of the fine winter sport of skiing is the long walk back up the hill, after one has sailed smoothly down on the wooden runners. But in this instance a pretty picture was formed as the equally pretty subjects reached the top again, their shadows making a pattern on the undisturbed snow as they were silhouetted against the skyline. All set to start over again!

B.C. Speaker Demands Retraction Following Press Attack

VICTORIA, Nov. 30 — (CP). — Speaker Norman Whittaker in a statement in the British Columbia Legislature yesterday said he thought the Legislature was entitled to expect that a retraction be made of an editorial criticism of the speaker's office, made by the Vancouver Daily Province Nov. 25.

The speaker's statement followed discussion of the editorial by Premier Pattullo, the speaker himself, former Speaker H. G. Perry, Liberal member for Fort George, and by R. L. Maitland, Conservative Opposition Leader and member for Vancouver-Point Grey.

Mr. Maitland commented: "If questions concerning public business can't be asked by members of the Legislature; if resolutions can not be put on the order paper; if newspapers can not comment on the proceedings in this House, then democracy is smashed."

The Editorial in Part

Premier Pattullo read the editorial which said in part: "The known character of Mr. Speaker Whittaker precludes even the suggestion that he would be deliberately or consistently unfair in his rulings. What does matter is that Mr. Speaker Whittaker is now the inheritor and custodian of a bad tradition in his office which has crept in of comparatively recent years. The degredation consists in this, and it is notorious and every member of the House and every reporter in the press gallery has known it for a long time now—that the Speaker of the Legislature is no longer the impartial chairman of the House which elected him to office, but he is the recognized servant of the government which nominated him and maintains him in his chair solely at its convenience."

The editorial commented on a debate in the Legislature November 26 in which one ruling of Speaker Whittaker was sustained on division 27-16 and in which another ruling of his was termed "damnably unfair" by H. E. Winch, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation member for Vancouver East.

Premier Pattullo today said: "This editorial is wholly misrepresentative. It is a reflection on the Speaker, the members and the government. This is not liberty but license of the press."

Mr. Perry, who was Speaker from 1934 to 1937, when he was succeeded by the Liberal member for Saanich, Mr. Whittaker, said the editorial was a reflection not only on Mr. Speaker Whittaker but upon himself and his predecessors. He said that during his term of office he had ruled against the government five times and in oral decisions many times. His predecessor, C. F. Davie, had ruled against the Conservative government of Premier S. F. Tolmie on four occasions that he recalled.

Speaker Whittaker said he had ruled against the government on several occasions last year and during this session had delivered one judgment against the government.

Some Difficulty.

Mr. Maitland said there was a "clear line of demarcation between Mr. Perry and Mr. Speaker Whittaker." During the past two years, he said, there had been more difficulty getting questions on the order paper.

Mr. Speaker Whittaker at the close of the discussion said: "The freedom of the press is a precious thing, but newspapers have a responsibility not to exercise that freedom in such a manner as to bring into contempt our democratic institutions and system of government.

"In view of the fact that the House, although realizing the gravity of the offense, has not expressed a wish to take any drastic action such as calling the author of the article before the bar of the House, I think the House is entitled to expect that the newspaper will publicly retract."

Cleveland, Nov. 30 (AP).

The man who is generally recognized as the best contract bridge player in the United States said there is no such thing as a "perfect partner."

"No one can play bridge better than 75 per cent perfect," explained Jacoby.

"There is too much luck and distribution entering into things. The cards don't land where you want them — they land where they are dealt."

Houde Out Again For Mayor's Job

MONTREAL, Nov. 30. — (CP). — Camillien Houde, once a power in Montreal and Quebec politics but long out of the spotlight, found his way to a political comeback cleared today of one major obstacle.

The Montreal mayoralty comeback aspirations of the rotund campaigner, three times the city's chief executive, brightened with the announced retirement of Mayor J. Adhemar Raynault, one of the few men who have managed to give the energetic Houde a political licking over his 15-year public career.

Raynault's announcement last night that he wouldn't be a candidate for reelection in the Dec. 12 election left the field, for the moment, to Houde and two lesser-known candidate. The others who have taken out nomination papers are Salluste Lavery, lawyer whom Houde defeated in 1934, and C. A. Gascon, a businessman and newcomer to the mayoralty lists.

The mayor, who also sits in the Quebec Legislative Assembly, as Union Nationale member for L'Assomption, said he was leaving city hall because of his health, because he was tired of receiving threats and being the "butt of slanderous accusations," and because he wanted to get back to his insurance business.

Boys Are Nuisance Norwood Streets

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Nov. 30.—The town council here published a request recently, urging parents to keep their children off the streets during late evening hours. The appeal came as a sequel to a petition containing forty names which was presented the last session of council calling for a curfew law in the village.

Public Nuisance.

Young boys were said to be making public nuisances of themselves, according to a business man. On one occasion they faked a phone message to town constable Harry Baker requesting that he hurry up town to attend some boys causing a disturbance. When he arrived the boys had disappeared.

However it is understood certain Norwood church organizations are taking up the cause and will endeavor to find something to entertain the boys rather than have them on the streets.

Italian Concern Over Pope, Seen Tip To Duce

By Dewitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer.)

ROME, Nov. 30—(AP).—The deep concern of the Italian public over the illness of Pope Pius served to emphasize the delicacy of the situation created by the clash between church and state over the Fascist anti-semitic policy.

The reaction of the people when any pontiff is sick is always such as to reaffirm their fidelity as a whole to the church.

That reaction is no less marked now than in the past. To put it another way, any major controversy between the Vatican and the Government might, if protracted, resolve itself into a test of the loyalty of the public to its deep-rooted religion, and of course by the same token into a test of loyalty to the temporal Government.

An element which is likely to have a bearing on relations between church and the state is the fact that Premier Mussolini's ally, Chancellor Hitler, is attempting to force regimentation on the church in Germany by methods which the faithful denounce as persecution.

Should the controversy become greatly aggravated the time might arrive when Il Duce would have to ask the people to choose between him and the church, and it would indeed take a bold person to essay a test of strength with the spiritual sovereign of one-sixth of the total population of the earth.

As a matter of fact, in travelling through many countries I have found that observers generally feel that one of the gravest dangers any dictatorship can court is to try to enforce regimentation on religion—Catholic, Protestant, Jewish or any other. Even the primitive savage of Africa will fight for his right to worship his own way.

Thus far, while there have been some difficult moments between the church and the Fascist Government, Mussolini has not given any indication he intends to force such an issue. In fact, it was he who signed the Lateran treaty in 1929, ending the church-state quarrel which had been going on almost 60 years. Under this treaty the Catholic religion became the state religion, and the Pope, the "prisoner of the Vatican," was once more free to set foot in the outside world.

26 CHILDREN DIE UNDER FAST FREIGHT

2 Die In Coupe As Flames Follow Crash

Think Hamilton Men Victims In Car Laden With Alcohol

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 1 (A.P.). —Two persons were killed late last night when a coupe loaded with tins of alcohol smashed into a truck and trailer on U.S. Highway 12 a mile west of Ann Arbor.

Fire broke out immediately in the coupe and several explosions occurred, during which flaming gasoline and alcohol shot into the air and menaced spectators.

The bodies were burned beyond recognition, but one of the victims may have been William Leuchter, 26, of Hamilton, Ont., to whom the car licence plates were issued on Tuesday.

Although Leuchter's brother informed the sheriff's office here that Leuchter had left home alone, it was learned that a man giving the name of William Leuchter drove through the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel yesterday with a companion, a man.

Hamilton police informed the sheriff's office early to-day that Leuchter may have been accompanied by Rocci Perri of Hamilton who was injured on Tuesday in Hamilton when he stepped on the starter of his car and exploded a bomb planted under the hood. Later, however, Perri was found to be at his home.

Pair Were Friends.

Perri and Leuchter were friends, the Washtenaw County sheriff was informed.

Coroner Edwin C. Ganzhorn said it was not possible to determine immediately whether both the victims were men. The bodies were taken to the Stafan Mortuary.

A deputy-sheriff said the coupe was equipped with double rear springs. He estimated that it was carrying 1,500 pounds or more alcohol in five-gallon and one-gallon tins, some of which were salvaged.

The weight of the coupe was considered a factor in the wreck. The impact demolished the coupe, drove the motor back into the seat, and

Toronto's Chief, Draper Resigns

The resignation was handed to Judge Frank Denton and relayed to Mayor Ralph Day. It read: "Please accept my resignation as of this date."

"The resignation will be dealt with by the police board at its meeting tomorrow," Mayor Day said. "This is a serious matter. I have no further comment to make."

City hall officials said that on two previous occasions this year on which Chief Draper submitted his resignation, matters had been adjusted and the resignation withdrawn. He recently requested the commission to ad 200 men to the Toronto force but no action has yet been taken.

Chief Draper, who is attending a meeting of the Ontario Police Association here today, said "any information regarding the report of my resignation will have to come from the police commission."

The chief constable was born 64 years ago in Brome county, Quebec. At the outbreak of the Great War he joined the Fifth Canadian Mounted Rifles with the rank of major. He rose steadily through the ranks to his present post as general and was warded the distinguished Service Order.

Immediately prior to his appointment as chief constable here, General Draper was connected with the International Paper Company at Quebec. On Sept. 12, 1828, he married Miss M. Hume, daughter of a Sherbrooke physician.

Perri Escaped Rocco Perri, of Hamilton, self-styled 'King of Bootleggers,' had a remarkable escape from death when a bomb hidden in his automobile, exploded as he pressed the starter. The car was blown to bits, as evidenced by the wreckage BELOW, but Perri escaped with burns about the face and hands. Two of Perri's companions were seriously injured by the blast.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1—(AP).—The grand champion steer of the 1938 International Livestock Exposition sold at auction today for $3.35 a pound, $1 a pound more than last year's champion and the highest price since 1929.

The steer, an Aberdeen-Angus fitted and shown by 14-year-old Irene Brown of Aledo, Ill., was purchased by the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, with Horace Milhone, the company's farm service bureau director, doing the bidding.

"Mercer" weighed approximately 1,130 pounds on which basis Miss Brown realized $3,785.50 from the sale. She bought the calf last January for $60.

Miss Brown said she would put away most of the mony for her college education.

The price of $3.35 was the highest since 1929 when the all-time record of $8.25 a pound was paid for "Lucky Strike" a grade Angus exhibited by Elliott Brown of Rose Hill, Iowa. Last year's champion, Ashbourne Orange, a shorthorn shown by Oklahoma A & M College, brought $2.35 a pound.

County Council Takes Exception To Statement Of S. S. Breckon

Warden McDonald took exception to statements made recently by S. S. Breckon, principal of Norwood High School, at yesterday's session of the County Council when the members discussed school costs.

"Mr. Breckon apparently knows nothing about the problems of ratepayers in the county. Many are not getting much for their labors, and therefore find it impossible to send their pupils to High School. He should realize that it is one thing for a salaried man to have his children educated and quite a different problem for the average farmer.

Reeve Thompson of Norwood said the principal's remarks probably were prompted by a few relief cases in Norwood. "I can't understand why he made such sweeping statements when the cases in question turned out satisfactorily."

Appeared on Saturday.

The statements which provoked the anger of Warden McDonald appeared in last Saturday's account in the Examiner of the annual commencement exercises at Norwood High School. The statements as reported were: "It is a selfish attitude on the part of parents in not letting their children attend High School. Books fo ra school year up to Fifth Form cost less than $5, and there is no excuse for parents in the town or country not giving the young people a break, in receiving a High School education to prepare them to go out in the world. Last year the cost of secondary school education at Norwood High School was 26 cents per pupil each day."

"It is one thing to make a speech and another to substantiate it," remarked Reeve Tanner of Lakefield.

"I don't think any High School could operate at a cost of 26 cents a day. If they could Government grants would be cut off," Reeve Anderson added.

Reeve Thompson said a member of the School Board had estimated at least $1,800 would be required from the county in addition to the payment already made to carry through this year.

Miss Batten reported $1,000 had been paid to date. It was then reported by Reeve Anderson that the board had attempted to obtain $3,000 from Norwood Village, but had been given only one-third of that sum. On this basis the members figured

LONDON, Dec. 1.—(AP).— Great Britain is mobilizing her huge industrial machine to keep Germany from strangling the markets of Southeastern Europe — Rumania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and others.

Subsidy of British industries to permit strong competition with the dictator states was considered likely in financial circles.

The trade situation was outlined to the House of Commons last night by R. S. Hudson, Secretary of the Overseas Trade Department, who declared that the countries of Central and Southeastern Europe "continually are turning to us and asking us to help them out."

Mr. Hudson warned Germany to cease what he considered unfair tactics threatening world trade or risk having Great Britain beat her at her "own game."

He charged Germany was buying above world prices and selling her goods at less than cost of production. While Britain desired agreement with Germany, he said, Britain would not hesitate if necessary to "put on the screw."

"Certainly this country is stronger than any of the totalitarian states and, therefore, we have a great advantage which I believe will result in our winning the fight," he said.

German Tactics.

Germans once this year bought southeastern wheat at about $53.50 a ton when Manitoba No. 1 wheat was selling on the London market at about $37.45, the Minister said. His disclosures caused some surprise because Prime Minister Chamberlain has declared there is plenty of trade for both Germany and Great Britain in the Danubian basin.

Another surprise was a statement in the House of Lord by the Marques of Londonderry, in the past friendly toward Germany. He denounced German anti-Jewish actions as "the most detestable the world ever has known," and continued:

"When we are faced with a policy of truculence and threats, if we cannot overcome it by the policy we have tried to follow—of peace based on friendship—we should adopt another policy, one of truculence and vehement protestation against any threats."

Fylde Retained By Tories

PRESTON, Eng., Dec. 1. — (CP-Havas).—The Government to-day retained with a reduced majority the Fylde division of Lancashire in a parliamentary by-election necessitated by the death Oct. 16 of Lord Stanley.

In the 1935 general elections Lord Stanley obtained 39,731 votes against 16,379 for T. McNamee, Labor. Thus the Conservative majority was reduced from 23,352 to 20,615.

Captain Lancaster, a friend of the late Dominions secretary, is 39, and is interested in the coal and iron industries and in agriculture. His election leaves two vacancies in the House of Commons—East Norfolk, created by the succession of Viscount Elmley to the peerage, and Kinross and Western Perth, which the Duchess of Atholl, formerly a Conservative, resigned in order to contest the constituency in a by-election fought on questions of foreign policy. She is standing as an independent.

Iceland Rejoices, 20 Years' Peace, Prosperity Without A Soldier, Navy Or Air Force

REYJAVIK, Iceland, Dec. 1. (AP)—Iceland, the only nation in the world without a single soldier, warship or fighting plane, rejoiced today in 20 years of sovereignty, peace and prosperity.

The anniversary of the state's sovereignty was observed by student processions to the grave of the statesman Jon Sigurdsson and speeches by government officials, including a broadcast by Prime Minister Hermann Jonasson to Icelanders in America.

On Dec. 1, 1918, King Christian X of Denmark confirmed an Icelandish-Danish law which made Iceland a sovereign state. Since then Iceland and Denmark have operated as separate nations, with King Christian representing the supreme executive power in each.

Iceland is proud of these things:

It was from Iceland, according to some authorities, that America was first discovered.

Iceland has a language unchanged for 1,000 years and every adult in the country can read and write.

Collections Increased

OTTAWA, Dec. 1—(CP).—Income tax collections in November totalled $4,436,474, an increase of $1,201,924 over last November when $3,234,550 was collected, the National Revenue Department reported today.

Collections for the eight-month period April 1 to Nov. 30 were $128,878,589, an increase of $22,441,483 over the corresponding period of 1937 when collections totalled $102,437,106.

Bodies Strewn Nearly Mile As Utah School Bus Is Struck In Snow Storm

Driver Believed Blinded By Driving Sleet Escapes Among Dozen Injured; Had Halted, Train Hour Late Fooled Him

W. E. Speakman, chief clerk of the Rio Grande and Western Railway, said 26 dead had been counted. The bodies were taken to mortuaries throughout the city and attempts were being made to locate relatives to assist in the identification. The victims were children between 12 and 16 years of age.

Mrs. Sarah Bergstrom, business superintendent of the Salt Lake General Hospital, said she personally aided in the recovery of 18 bodies.

The accident occurred at a rural crossing about 10 miles south of here. The bus was bound for the Jordan High School.

The condition of the bodies and the inaccessibility of the crossing made a definite check on casualties difficult.

Sheriff Young later said he believed "at least two thirds of the occupants of the bus were killed."

Bodies Strewn Mile

The bodies were strewn along approximately one mile of the Denver and Rio Grande railroad right-of-way.

The crash scene is two miles south of Midvale, a community south of Salt Lake City.

Doctors and nurses from all surrounding towns were recruited hurriedly.

The freight train, "The Flying Ute," was an hour behind schedule due to a snow storm when the crash occurred at 10:56 a.m. EST.

The students mostly were children of farmers.

The driver, Silcox was believed to have been unable to see the approaching train because of the sleet. He was among the injured taken to the hospital.

Dr. J. S. Alley of Midvale, who brought victims to the hospital, said: "The freight train, about half a mile long, struck the bus broadside. It was travelling so fast the caboose was on the crossing by the time it stopped.

"The cab of the bus was tossed to one side, about 100 feet from the crossing. Bodies were strewn everywhere for a quarter of a mile down the track.

Some of the bodies were mangled beyond recognition.

There were 12 ambulances at the scene an hour and a half after the tragedy.

A sleet storm had reduced visibility and had delayed the schedule of the Denver and Rio Grande Western freight.

30,000 New Jobs In Mining Last 3 Years

MONTREAL, Dec. 1 (C.P.). — Canada is "blessed with minerals as few other countries are blessed" and the mining industry is the "opportunity" for thousands of young men in the Dominion, Hon. T. A. Crerar, Minister of Natural Resources, said in an address last night.

Mr. Crerar told the Chamber of Mines, a division of Montreal's Board of Trade, that the mining industry in the last three years "has provided new jobs for the 30,000 young men of Canada, new jobs which had not existed before." Besides the wages and salaries of $135,000,000 the industry paid in 1937, "it benefitted the factories of Quebec and Ontario which provided machinery."

"If we are to get anywhere in Canada we must have a national outlook," the Federal Minister said. "We have a priceless boon in our Canadian citizenship—there are few countries more favored than ours—and we should think a little less in terms of our localities or of our provinces and think more of Canada."

Taxation Too Heavy.

Mr. Crerar called taxation "heavy, almost unbearably heavy in this country," and suggested that in the future "we should chart in a sensible fashion when it comes to the expenditure of public money." All Governments in the country, "Federal, Provincial, and municipal, should take careful stock and perhaps leave to another year some of those things that seem necessary in modern civilization."

The Minister estimated that Canada's gold output in 1938 would exceed $165,000,000, compared to $143,000,000 in 1937 and said that the surface has been "little more than scratched."

A brighter future for mining in Quebec also was predicted by Hon. Onesime Gagnon, Quebec Minister of Mines, who said the Province's output of gold this year should "exceed" $30,000,000. Some 10,000 men were given direct employment from mining in Quebec with a like number being affected indirectly from the industry, said the Mines Minister.

"It has necessitated the organization of new towns, new roads, new railways, new Hydro - Electric plants."

Land Demands In Europe And Africa Hinted From Italy Soon

LEGHORN, Italy, Dec. 1 (CP-Havas).—Il Telegrafo, mouthpiece of Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano, today indicated Italy would advance formal demands for European and African territory in the near future.

Commenting on the Foreign Minister's speech in the Italian Chamber of Deputies, during which a reference he made to Italy's "natural aspirations" was greeted with shouts for cession of French Tunisia to Italy, the newspaper said a change in existing frontiers was necessary to improve the "organization of Europe and colonial territories."

"The Minister's speech is not only of historic and retrospective interest," Il Telegrafo said. "It also constitutes a program. The Minister has alluded to natural Italian aspirations. These 'aspirations' essentially tend to link integrally all men of our race and our language and the complete unification of our empire, which is blocked today by international plutocratic interests and by colonial establishments and possessions, held to our disadvantage and to the profit of their present holders.

"These natural aspirations do not necessarily threaten the peace of Europe. The spirit of Munich should continue to act to accomplish these just reparations, these compensations for old and recent wrongs and —why not?—these necessary frontier rectifications, to improve the organization of Europe and the colonial territories. If there are state-

Gift To Help Pay State's Debt Claimed Insanity

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 1 (CP) MICHIGAN COURTS today tried to decide whether giving money to help pay off Michigan's public debt constituted a sign of insanity. John Barlow, Tecumseh farmer, died last March leaving $45,000 to pay part of the state's public debt. His cousins, Walter Barlow and Edwin Barlow, Detroit lawyers, contend this bequest showed John Barlow was incompetent.

Homes Being Sought For 5,000 Children

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—(AP).—A committee of British Jews in Berlin today disclosed plans to take some 5,000 Jewish children under 17 to the British Isles in the near future.

The committee hopes to find British homes for these young exiles from Germany, where restrictions on their people are being tightened.

The plans call for emigration of children of Jewish parents now professing the Christian faith as well as fully Jewish children. The 5,000 children can be absorbed only gradually, it was said, but the committee plans to call for British volunteers to take them into their homes.

Daladier Moves To Punish Strike Chiefs

By Robert Parker
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

PARIS, Dec. 1—(AP).—Premier Daladier, victorious in his battle with organized labor, hastened today to consolidate his reinforced authority and prepare measures to punish leaders of the abortive one-day general strike.

Undisputed master of the situation, the premier ordered a three-year state of "economic mobilization" for France to carry out the recovery program which labor had challenged.

He conferred with individual ministers on plans for parliamentary approval of his decree laws, which provoked the unsuccessful protest strike, and planned a cabinet meeting before the end of the week to decide what punitive measures to take against Labor, Socialist and Communist leaders.

Daladier's quick move to capitalize on the suppression of the strike was spurred by Italian territorial demands on France.

Italian deputies' yells of "Tunisia! Tunisia!" during a speech by foreign minister county Galeazzo Ciano, with Premier Mussolini and the French ambassador looking on, were taken by French officials to mean France was facing a determined Fascist campaign for control of the North African protectorate.

It was known that some of Daladier's close advisors had counselled him to call ambassador Andre Francois-Poncet back to Paris for a "vacation" as a sign of protest.

15,000 Refugees For Australia

CANBERRA, Australia, Dec. 1. — (AP).—The Australian Government will admit 15,000 European refugees within the next three years, John McEwen, Minister of the Interior, told the House of Representatives today.

Co-operating with Great Britain in efforts to alleviate the plight of German Jews, Australia will give preference to those able to establish new industries.

It was held that 15,000 is the maximum number Australia could absorb without disturbing economic conditions. Opposition leaders commended the principle and said the quota was reasonable.

Britain Opens Campaign For Recruits

Plans Laid For Quick National Register In Case War Breaks

LONDON, Dec. 1—(CP Cable.)—Sir John Anderson, Lord Privy Seal, today announced a nationwide voluntary recruiting drive for civilian defence and plans for a quick national register in wartime.

The minister outlined his plans to the House of Commons. He said 20,000,000 handbooks would be sent to all householders in the country setting out the many forms of national service open to volunteers.

Men and women who join up, either in active or passive defence forces, will enter intensive training and arrangements will be made to keep the census machinery, which ordinarily would not be used until 1941, on a full time basis so it could be used quickly for a compulsory register on the outbreak of war.

Sir John said that "after weighing very carefully all the arguments which can be adduced from either side, the government have come to the conclusion that a compulsory register is not at present necessary or desirable." But he added a warning that compulsion will be necessary in the event of war.

Services to be Listed

"We are satisfied that all the immediate needs of the situation can be met b ya voluntary register combined, as we intend it shall be combined, with proper measures for ensuring that all who wish to serve their country shall have the means of knowing how their services can best be utilized," Sir John said.

The handbooks will enumerate the services for which volunteers are wanted, including the regular forces and the auxiliary, reserve, and civil defence services. A list will be made of key occupations which, if the

H. B. Hanna Dies In 81st Year

TORONTO, Dec. 1.—(CP).—D. B. Hanna, prominent industrialist and the first president of the Canadian National Railways on its formation in 1918, died suddenly of a heart seizure early to-day. He was 80.

Mr. Hanna apparently had been in good health recently. Yesterday he expressed shock at the sudden death of Sir John Aird, former president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, who was one of his closest friends. He and Sir John lunched together Tuesday.

Born in Thornliebank, Scotland, Mr. Hanna came to Canada in 1882 and obtained a clerk's position in the Grand Trunk Railway, Montreal. After several years in railway work he assisted in the formation of the McKenzie and Mann interests which led to the building up of the second Transcontinental railway in Canada, the Canadian Northern.

Third vice-president in charge of the operation of the Canadian Northern Railway, Mr. Hanna resigned when the Dominion government purchased the line in 1918. He was appointed first president of the Board of Directors chosen and appointed by the government to direct the C.N.R. He retired in 1922.

After passage of the Ontario Temperance Act he was appointed to the first chairmanship of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario in 1927, a position he relinquished the following year. At the time of his death he was a director of the Western Canada Flour Mills Company, Limited, of which he formerly was president.

Mr. Hanna was identified prominently with Western Canada. In 1886 he was appointed chief accountant of the old Manitoba and Northwestern Railway at Portage La Prairie, Man., and in 1889 married Margaret Garland of Portage La Prairie.

Japs Balk At $2,000 For Stolen Plane Plans And American Youth Is Jailed As Spy

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 1.—(AP) —An accusation of espionage was levelled today at 21-year-old Karl Allen Drummond, aircraft worker, for what United States federal agents charged was an attempt to betray his country's military secrets to Japan for $2,000.

Arrested as the climax to a secret inquiry by the United States naval intelligence and federal agents begun six months ago, the youth was arrested last night on an espionage charge.

An indictment by the federal grand jury alleged that young Drummond stole 150 photographs and 15 blueprints of a new naval plane from the Northrop plant and tried to peddle these, together with confidential construction papers, to Japanese officials.

The thefts, it is said, started last May, a year after the youth was hired in the advertising department of Northrop, a division of Douglas Aircraft Corp.

In turn, a Japanese government dignitary, a member of a Japanese plane-buying commission, and a Los Angeles Japanese attorney, were approached, but suspiciously turned down the overtures.

In his sales campaign in Los Angeles, the indictment said, the youth gave one Japanese official an opportunity to study aircraft blueprints at his leisure, without closing the deal.

Conscription Planned For Libya

New Troop Source For Italy In Tunisia Clamor

ROME, Dec. 1.—(AP). — Italy is preparing measures to permit military conscription in an emergency among the natives of African Libya.

The Fascist Grand Council last night approved the plan for compulsory military service " in time of need" under a proposed statute of "special citizenship" for natives of the four coastal provinces of Libya.

They would be permitted to hold colonial civil posts, belong to the Fascist party's Moslem division, and carry arms under the military conscription regulations—if they could read and write Italian and meet other requirements.

The conscription phase could increase Italian armed forces in North Africa at a time when a clamor is being raised in Italy for acquisition of French Tunisia, which lies alongside Libya.

There are 688,000 Arab and Berber natives in the four Libya provinces affected but how many would be liable to military service was not estimated.

Fascist deputies shouted a challenge to French control over Tunisia yesterday in the presence of the new French Ambassador to Rome.

The display over Tunisia brought to the fore an old source of friction between France and Italy which has been aggravated in recent months.

Andre Francois-Poncet, the new French ambassador, listened from the diplomatic box. He peered at the shouting deputies through his monocle but did not change his expression.

Tunisia—French protectorate on the north coast of Africa — has a population of about 2,000,000 including 90,000 Italians, about half the white population.

Cut Off Lindsay Relief Steals Chickens Gets Five Months

Lindsay, Ont., Dec. 1 (CP)

LEVI CLAYTON, 30, stole fowl from more than a dozen district farms because "I was thrown off relief in Lindsay and had to supply food for my wife and five children," he told Magistrate E. A. Gee here today.

He was sentenced to five months definite and six months indeterminate in Ontario Reformatory. He pleaded guilty.

"I was thrown off relief because I borrowed a car and used it to collect scrap iron," he told the court.

Permits Taken Out For 53 New Homes

Permits for 53 new homes have been issued since January 1st, an examination of the building records in the city engineer's office revealed to-day and the total for twelve months of 1937 was 32.

Building totals for the first eleven months of this year show the highest total since the boom year of 1930 when the figures topped the half a million mark. The total for the period ending November 30th is $393,069.00.

The total for the month of November last year was $4,133 while the month just finished brought permits totalling $17,440.

The totals for the first eleven months of 1938 are more impressive when compared with the totals for the same period of 1937. The latter amounted to only $198,751 as against the total of $393,069.00 for 1938.

Four permits for homes were taken out in November and the estimated cost of the four is $11,600. There were 10 garages at $895.00 and miscellaneous permits covering a total of $4,945.

country were mobilized for war, would become so essential that the workers could not be spared for other service.

Steps will be taken to build up a national service organization with local committees throughout the country, with a coordinated recruiting campaign to start the middle of January.

Meanwhile the government will press forward arrangements for training, with the ultimate object of teaching all men, women and children how to protect themselves during air raids, which, Sir John said, has now become "part of the ordinary duties of citizenship."

Special registers will be made of persons possessing exceptional professional or technical qualifications, such as doctors and scientists.

Labor, Oxford Group Seek Revolution

LONDON, Dec. 1—(CP-Havas).—British Labor and the Oxford Group understand each other perfectly since they are "both out for revolution," Dr. Frank N. D. Buchman, president and founder of the Oxford Group, declared in a speech last night at the National Trades Union Club of Great Britain.

"The Oxford Group is a revolutionary movement," he said. "That is the reason why Labor understands it. It is also why the Oxford Group understands Labor. They are both out for revolution.

"British Labor is the cradle of a great spiritual awakening, and it was from this awakening that the movement has gained its impetus.

"President Roosevelt said that there is no problem—political, social or economic—which would not melt before the fire of spiritual awakening.

"It is that which makes the Oxford Group a national necessity, for it creates a moral and spiritual climate where people of every party, class and creed can work together."

he was on the right side of the cab and the bus was coming from the left. His fireman screamed for him to stop, he said.

Dreadful Sight

Young said the freight normally is going about 60 miles an hour at the crossing. The sheriff said apparently the bus driver stopped at the crossing and then started up again so that the engine hit it broadside, bending the big bus around the front of it.

"It was the awfullest thing I ever saw," David Witter, 22, of Denver, riding on an oil tank close to the freight engine, told sheriff Young.

"It was snowing pretty hard," said Witter.

"All of a sudden I felt a terrific bump . . . finally the train pulled to a stop.

"I got off. It was the awfullest thing I ever saw. It looked like a bunch of cattle.

"One little girl was standing there screaming, holding for dear life to a little pocketbook.

"None of them seemed to die right away.

"One by one they would stop screaming.

For hundreds of feet down the railroad tracks books, clothes, handkerchiefs, even shoes, were scattered.

Five victims were so badly mangled hospital attaches said identification probably won't be made for several hours.

Parents Jam Hospital.

The hospital was jammed with parents—fathers wept openly and mothers screaming. Attaches had to set aside a special room for persons who fainted.

"I got on the bus at 8.30 about two miles from the crossing. I think there must have been about 40 others in the bus with me.

"When we came to the crossing, we stopped and Mr. (Farrel) Silcox, the bus driver, started up again. I was sitting in the very back in the centre, but I couldn't see much because of the snow.

"I thought I heard someone yell 'Train!' and then I saw something black coming from the right, and then it hit us.

"When I woke up I was lying in the snow near the bus. Mack Bateman and Mabel Smith were nearby. Mabel was lying near the bus and Mack was lying by a fence. I guess they're all right now.

"There was an awful lot of screaming and moaning. They were all just kids—15 to 18 years of age.

"And then they came and brought me to the hospital."

RELIEVES FIERY, ITCHING SKIN

Here is a clean, stainless, penetrating antiseptic now dispensed by chemists at trifling cost.

Not only does this great healing antiseptic oil promote rapid and healthy healing in open sores and wounds, but boils and simple ulcers are relieved and cleanly healed.

In skin diseases the itching of Eczema is instantly stopped. Pimples—skin eruptions dry up and scale off in a very few days. The same is true of Barber's Itch, Salt Rheum and other inflammatory skin disorders.

You can obtain Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) in the original bottle at McDermid & Jury or any modern drug store.—Advt.

Regina Dales Coming East

Saturday they will meet Westmounts in Montreal for the coveted title, at stake without the official blessing of the Canadian Rugby Union. The Dales who lost at Hamilton in the final last year against Italo-Canadians, left Regina this morning.

Climaxing a week of uncertainty, the game was "on" definitely after a final exchange of wires last night.

Westmounts have guaranteed the Reginans $920. The trip will cost around $1,800 and if the gate receipts in the east fail to make up the difference "the boys will have to quit eating and sleeping on the way back," said coach Paul Dojack.

Czech's New Path Close To Germany

PRAGUE, Dec. 1—(AP)—Czecho-Slovakia henceforth will work in close co-operation with Germany through a Government of Youth, the new President of the republic, Dr. Emil Hacha, said to-day.

"It is not difficult to understand these new developments since a glimpse of the map clearly reveals the joint space of living," the 66-year-old Dr. Hacha declared in an interview with the correspondent of The Berliner Lokalanzeiger.

"We should never forget Germany in many fields always has been an example for us."

For the turn from the days before Germany absorbed Czechoslovak Sudetenland, the president said he would "call as many men of the younger generation as possible into the government."

The republic's policy toward Nazi Germany, said the president, must "be a very close relationship, born out of a great idea," a relationship in which "destiny has played its part."

Doors Open, Victims Helpless.

Read said the coupe was ablaze when he pulled to the side of the road and looked back. Both doors were open but the occupants were unable to help themselves and witnesses could not approach. A deputy said the occupants probably were killed by the impact.

Flames shot into the air and attracted many spectators. One man, not identified, had his hair singed by a flaming fluid sprayed upon him. A companion threw a coat over his head. He apparently was not hurt.

Women spectators reported fur coats were burned by the fiery spray.

Both coupe and truck were bound for Detroit.

Coroner Ganzhorn said the alcohol may have been of the anti-freeze type used in automobile radiators.

French Indignant.

PARIS, Dec. 1 (CP-Havas).—The French press today expressed indignation over demonstrations for Italian annexation of Tunisia. French protectorate, in the Fascist Chamber of Deputies during Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano's speech yesterday.

Newspapers agreed the demonstration was not a spontaneous occurrence and charged it had been planned in advance.

"The shouts of 'Tunisia! Tunisia!' were not raised by chance," said the Independent Petit Parisien. "Everything is regulated in this parliament.

"It must be noted that the French Ambassador attended in the diplomatic gallery. We reply to these cries that Tunisia belongs to the French empire. And it has for a long time and probably more solidly than Ethiopia has to the Italian empire."

WINNIPEG, Dec. 1 (C.P.). — Winnipeg wheat futures prices showed a firm tone to-day, reflecting steadiness at Liverpool, Buenos Aires and Chicago. Export sales totalled approximately 750,000 bushels, 300,000 of which were included in a reported sale of a cargo of Canadian wheat to India.

Values closed 1 to ½ higher, December at 59¾, May 62⅛ to ¼, and July 63 cents.

Information concerning sale of wheat to India was limited, but it is believed to have been made up of new sales shipped out of Vancouver. Export sales to-day brought the week's total well over the 2,000,000 bushel mark.

Good buying was reported from outside commisison houses and domestic mills. Liberal offerings were well absorbed throughout the day.

Liverpool closed 1⅛ to ½d higher and Buenos Aires was unchanged to 1⅞ up near the close.

TRIAL DAY OF WINTER.

Some people regard the first Thursday of the season as a trial day of the weather for the next three months. If there is anything in this bit of lore the weather today was bright and sharp, and probably means nothing more than winter will suit itself in the weeks ahead.

Canada's Riches Safe From Turmoil Of War Again Drawing Foreign Capital Says Ilsley

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(CP). — Foreign capital is again turning to Canada as a haven of refuge, Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Canadian Minister of National Revenue, told the Association of Life Insurance Presidents here to-day.

"Canada's geographical position remote from the scene of war, her stable institutions, and the opportunities for profitable investment offered by her wide and varied resources appear to be acting as a magnet for foreign capital," he said.

In the last few years Canada had repatriated a substantial volume of securities held abroad, and that had added to the financial strength of the Dominion. This would be further reinforced "if new foreign capital comes in to find, not a temporary refuge, but permanent investment in productive undertakings."

The minister emphasized the progressiveness and the stability of Canada, and the adherence of Canadians to British institutions.

"Although they have lived beside this great republic for 150 years," he said, "they have a vivid consciousness of their relationship to a modest young man who lives much of his time in Buckingham Palace and Balmoral Castle. Whether it is because they respect him so deeply as a man or because he sums up in their minds those traditions and institutions which are close to their hearts, their emotional response to the appeal of the Crown is one of the basic realities of Canadian life."

While Canada labored under the handicap of a small population "scattered over an immense and largely inhospital territory," the country was nevertheless progressive. In 30 years its population had nearly doubled, while the country's trade had expanded by a considerably larger ratio.

Cites Recovery.

Mr. Ilsley cited trade and employment recovery since the trough of the depression to illustrate the advances the Dominion had made. Canada's largest source of revenue was the income tax which "had considerable merit as a modern and progressive measure."

The Dominion was "well advanced in social legislation," he said. He outlined the various provincial and dominion statutes in this sphere. To some extent this social legislation was reflected in living standards and these were fairly high in Canada. Those facts indicated a flexibility of attitude and warmth of social sympathy "that have no place in the picture of a static or unprogressive nation."

Canadians were "intensely democratic." In no country would a dictator "have harder sledding," he said. He described the system of government and the responsibility of the executive to parliament. Those features of the Canadian administrative system, when combined with freedom of the press, freedom of speech and freedom of assembly, enabled the people really to govern themselves.

No Muzzling Parliament

Apart from discussion of re-division of powers as between the Dominion and the provinces, there was no demand in Canada for constitutional change.

"There is much demand that democracy be more efficient, but none that democracy be curtailed," the minister said. "There is grumbling because parliament talks so much, but no suggestion that parliament be muzzled. The courts are respected. The people are for law and order."

The population is divided along so many ways of thought "that the leader of any new cult or 'isms' must expect prompt and intelligent criticism on a broad scale from the elements of the population to which he does not appeal," Mr. Ilsley said.

"Excessive enthusiasms and fine frenzies of one kind and another are in this way checked. Generally speaking, Canadians are a sober, stable people going about their business in an orderly and sensible way."

London, Dec. 1 (CP-Havas)

SIR KINGSLEY WOOD, Air Secretary, appealed last night to science to find an antidote for the monster of its own creation—threat of death from the air.

Speaking at a dinner of the Royal Society, Sir Kingsley said:

"I ask the scientists to give more of their time to measuring the wind and weighing the air. It is almost impossible to estimate what scientists and research workers might achieve to relieve the menace from the air today.

"One of the greatest contributions to the peace of the world and to the happiness of mankind would be the conquest of the bombing plane. I don't despair myself of that being achieved."

Given 5-Year Term

BRANTFORD, Ont., Dec. 1 (CP). —Lawrence McGuinness, of Hamilton, convicted of a charge of being in possession of narcotics and of forging a prescription to obtain drugs, was sentenced today to five years in penitentiary.

Marie Laidd, Hamilton, companion of McGuinness, charged with selling or giving him drugs and forging a prescription, was sentenced to six months in reformatory and fined $200, or an additional two months.

BOILED HIS GOLDFISH

LONDON—(CP). —When one of his goldfish caught cold, a resident here turned up the flame of the paraffin lamp used to heat the aquarium and all 20 fish were boiled alive.

People who smother to death die because oxygen has been completely cut off from them. Just as surely you are slowly smothering if your blood lacks red corpuscles. Red corpuscles are your oxygen-carriers. They carry the oxygen you breathe in to every part of your system. Without enough oxygen-carrying corpuscles, your kidneys, liver, stomach and bowels slow down. Your skin gets pale, flabby, often pimply. Your nerves may become jittery — you tire quickly — feel depressed.

What you need is Dr. Williams Pink Pills. These world-famous pills help make more and better red corpuscles and thus increase the oxygen-carrying power of your blood. It Does Not Make Sense

London, Ont., is gaining notoriety as the place where existing laws and regulations are announced to be of no further use. It was in London a few days ago that a magistrate declined to impound the truck of a driver who had been convicted of being drunk. And the next one from London is a magisterial decision that a civic bylaw dealing with window-peepers is not effective.

The exact wording of the bylaw is: "No person shall commit what is commonly known as window peeping, and shall, if he commits the offence, be guilty of a disorderly offence."

A London man was brought into court and there was sufficient evidence to show that he had been window peeping. After listening to witnesses the magistrate said he had no doubt that the accused had been doing as charged—peeping in bedroom windows. But there was no conviction and the case was dismissed.

The reason given was that a municipality could not set up a code of morality different from that established by the Criminal Code. Likely enough that bylaw has been in effect in London for years and possibly it has been regarded by the people as being right enough. It had a direct bearing on a case which was brought to court, and the guilt of the accused individual was fairly established. After which comes the announcement that the bylaw which has served the community for years is invalid because it invades a field which is the exclusive property of Criminal law.

Before this sort of business goes much farther it might be well if some one with authority to do so took a hand and set us right about our laws, bylaws and regulations in general. When a man goes out at night and starts peeping in bedroom windows he is engaging in a miserable and low-grade practice, and he has earned for himself the punishment he should receive. And yet, although he has been found guilty, he walks out unpunished because the particular bylaw which provides punishment is claimed to be out of order.

That may be good enough as far as the opinion of a magistrate is concerned, but it is not good enough to satisfy people who desire to have laws which operate and do the things which they were intended to do. It does not make sense that a man should be guilty of an offence and then be informed that there is no way to punish him.

Chamberlain Going Again

Premier Chamberlain is developing a new type of diplomacy. He is no longer content that communications between one country and another shall be confined to diplomatic notes delivered here and there by members of the foreign service. He tried his own plan when nearly every person in the world believed there was going to be war. He packed into a plane and was off to talk with Hitler and with Mussolini to see what could be done about it. And something was done.

When the month of January arrives Mr. Chamberlain announces he is going to start again. When he was at Munich several weeks ago it was the first time he and Mussolini had met, and now the British premier is going once more to see Mussolini. There are a number of matters he wants attended to and we take it he desires to know just what Mussolini has in mind for the future, and will be willing to discuss that question on the basis of what Britain desires to do. Certainly he can inform the Italian leader that Britain does not desire any more territory and has no intention of making war on any friendly nation.

There is something to be said for that man-to-man form of diplomacy. It is human nature that it should be so. One can write and receive letters from a person he has never met, but when he comes into personal contact with his correspondent he knows him better and understands him more thoroughly. Premier Chamberlain is undoubtedly a high-ranking personal ambassador; he is mature in judgment and persuasively firm in his presentation of a case. Human qualities run high in his list of assets and he is the epitome of British culture and statesmanship. When he talks with Mussolini nothing but good can come of it.

The Work Goes On

Ratepayers may not have paid much attention to work done by the Board of Works this year, especially in the permanent improvement of the Aylmer street hill, the Brock-Rubidge neighborhood, and also the stretches of Stewart and Reid streets south of Charlotte Street. The routine activities of this department seem to be taken for granted, and usually it is only when icy sidewalks suddenly need sanding, or surface drains become clogged that citizens seem to become aware of the Board of Works.

Perhaps it is generally known that several years ago the council bought a quarry property on the east side of the Lakefield-Peterborough highway, set up a crusher and began to turn out road metal. Then it was found that another crusher was needed to reduce the stone to a smaller size for spreading on the streets. That was one of this year's purchases. A road oiler was another, and it was used not only to lay dust on the macadam roads but also in spraying a binder for the crushed stone base for the surface material commonly known as retread, an asphaltic mulch. In other words, the department has gone to work with its new equipment, making streets, several of them not to be surfaced until next summer. These roadways will stand up under ordinary traffic for many years, and extension of the program as moderate policy will result in the paving of most of Peterborough's streets without any burden on the ratepayers.

In such routine municipal affairs the interesting feature is that the investment in the quarry and the buying of necessary equipment escape the notice of most citizens. Nor is much credit given to the succeeding councils that approve and authorize them. Such projects are just homespun duty accepted by the people as essentials. It is only when they are neglected and shock-absorbers protest that the public gives heed to them.

Too Much Inspection

Being a member of a grand jury may sound like an exalted position, but when the bill for services rendered as such are presented to the County Council it means just another document which is going to be made the subject of vigorous dispute.

The objection seems to be based on the feeling that the grand jurors do too much inspecting. Their primary duty is to make certain that no one is being held in custody without being brought to trial. That part is more traditionally preventive than it is actually based on reality. After which they listen to evidence and as a rule generally agree with the previous finding of a primary court which has ordered an individual to stand trial before a higher tribunal.

Then comes the inspecting business which takes them to points a number of miles separated and the county clerk-treasurer reports that as time progresses grand jurymen are becoming more fussy—or something like that—regarding the manner of their travel. We learn that in past years two cars were sufficient to transport them from here to there and from there back to here, but in more recent times the number of cars called for is greater. In the good old days as many as seven grand jurors could be housed or transported in one car, but the jurors of today will have none of that. Perhaps they found that when it came time to unload their legs and arms were so tangled that it took up good time trying to get each juror well separated from his brothers so he would be a self-contained entity. Such a process would lack dignity of course, and a man who is bent on a spell of inspection should not have his poise disrupted. He should step out unruffled.

But there does appear to be a good deal of inspection taking place; much of it by grand jurors and much of it by men appointed and paid by governments. It might be well if the County Council could order a certain amount of inspection in a definite way just the same as they would purchase a ton of coal or a load of wood. They would know in advance what they were going to get and what they were going to pay for it. Perhaps inspection cannot be purchased exactly that way, but the County Council might consider it from that angle. If they consider that $50 worth of inspection is sufficient for a year then place the figure in the estimates and cause it to be known that they are in the market for no greater quantity. Whether it would work we do not know but it would be worth trying.

A Scottish Mystery

In connection with the annual observance of St. Andrew's Day we have noticed reference made to the Scots' church in Jerusalem. In H. V. Morton's splendid book, "In the Steps of the Master," there is a good description of this church, in which it is related that on a brass tablet sunk in the floor are these words:

> "In Remembrance of the Pious Wish of King Robert Bruce that his heart should be buried in Jerusalem. Given by citizens of Dunfermline and Melrose in celebration of the sixth centenary of his death."

Mr. Morton also adds in his writing:

> "I remember the story of the death of Douglas in Spain when he rode against the Moors with the King's heart in a silver box round his neck. And I remember the broken arches of Melrose Abbey beneath which the heart of Bruce is supposed eventually to have been buried."

In Scotland one hears generally the words "Robert the Bruce" when speaking of Bruce, and the reference which the author Morton makes to his heart having been buried in Melrose Abbey brings to the front for the moment a question to which no person seems able to provide adequate answer.

We recall well enough visiting Melrose Abbey on the way to Edinburgh. There is something more historically impressive about the ruined arches than there would be in a restored and perfect building. As we recall it there was a fee to enter the place and a guide who was supposed to know the history of the place told many interesting stories. Finally he came to one spot in the old abbey, and then looking about with that air of mystery which guides know so well, as though to make certain no person was looking or was within hearing distance, he pointed rather dramatically to one particular spot and whispered: "Right in there is where the heart of the Bruce is buried!" That was intended to be the climax of his efforts. And it was.

Turning into the little main street of Melrose it was found that a card in the window of a little stone shop announced that one could secure tea there. And there were scones as well and home-made jam. There was conversation too from a dear old Scottish lady who operated the little store. We told her about having seen the place where the heart of Robert the Bruce was buried in the old abbey nearby. Then it was that her hands went up in a gesture of amazement and in fine Scottish accent she proclaimed: "Losh, man, they tu' it awa' eight years ago!" Inquiries as to where it had gone produced no information. The little Scottish lady of the tea store admitted no one seemed to know, adding there were many good folk about who had always "hae their doots" as to whether the heart of Robert the Bruce had ever been interred in Melrose at all. But the guide in Melrose Abbey could not entertain any such doubts, otherwise the finest part of his trade from which he collected fees from the tourists would be gone.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Minister for Municipal Affairs in Ontario says municipal credit is high. He could truthfully have said the same about our debts and taxes.

Col. Drew says if he becomes premier of Ontario he will pledge himself to honest government. Could not that much be taken for granted?

Children should not be worried about stories of Santa Claus breaking his leg. The old gentleman will be around as usual, come Christmas eve.

Premier Chamberlain is going to make a visit to Mussolini early in the New Year and he may also call at Berlin. Before he starts it will be necessary for him to find his umbrella.

London, Ont., is going high-hat in that it now claims the population of "Greater London" is 93,000, although it has to go out in the township to reach that figure.

The Ontario Government announces it is not going to interfere with the guardians of the quintuplets. That puts the aforesaid guardians distinctly in the preferred class.

Japan is urged to speed up the making of munitions as a break with Russia is expected. According to the ethics of war Russia should tackle Japan right away while that country is tied up in China.

Ontario's municipal credit is said to be at the highest peak in years. That speaks well for the durability of the municipal taxpayer in view of the demands that relief has made upon civic treasuries.

A report from New York says $40,000,000 of Canadian government bonds were "quickly snapped up." Now if we could devise a means to pay them off in the same way we might be getting along fairly well.

Appearing in New York court for sentence on several serious counts a prisoner received terms which call for 137 years behind the bars. When he gets out one of the first things he will want to know is how the Spanish war is getting along.

Roll call in Peterborough shows there are ten ex-members of the R.C.M.P. living in this city. Having covered a good deal of territory in their day these gentlemen could be counted on to select a highly desirable spot when they decided to settle down.

PROBLEM

¶ I like to give at Christmas time, it seems to warm my heart and spine, I like to make a list; I like to know when things are through, and when there's nothing more to do, that no one has been missed.

¶ The thing that bothers me enough, when I go out to buy the stuff, and causes me surprise; I often stop to scratch my head, and get a feeling much like dread, for I don't know their size.

¶ I gave my cousin Jake some socks, all fancy patterns out in blocks, I had that on my list; but I have found out well since then, that Jake has feet like monstrous men, that's something I had missed.

¶ I saw Jake's son two months ago, and he was dressed like quite a show, you'd see him for two blocks; and when he got up close to me, and crossed his legs upon his knee, I saw the Christmas socks.

¶ My relatives are big and small, I'd like to measure up them all that plan would just suit me; then when their Christmas stuff would go, I'd feel at peace because I'd know—they're like they ought to be.

Fight Japan In Own Gorilla Way

IN MOST of the 430,000 square miles of China thus far "conquered" by the Japanese, hundreds of thousands of embattled Chinese peasants keep up today an endless sniping resistance to their conquerors. The daring and resourceful Chinese who are trying to thwart and exhaust the Japanese in this most extensive of modern history's guerrilla campaigns have made some of the most exciting stories of the war. By the nature of the fighting however, they make them in the dark.

The Associated Press sent a correspondent southward from Peiping on June 11 to plunge into guerrillaland and get the story. His dispatchers are now reaching this continent by mail. For the present, AP dares not divulge his identity. When it does come out his name will be listed in journalism's evanescent hall of fame, as one who went through danger and discomfort to find the big story of Chinese operations deep in the interior behind Japanese front lines.

The Chinese guerrillas, largely operating in Shansi, Hopeh, and Shantung Provinces, are loosely organized into a "People's Self-Defense Army." Crude village arsenals make their grenades, bullets and broadswords, but much of the ammunition is unwillingly furnished by the Japanese. Clad in green cotton uniforms enabling them to melt into the countryside after a daylight raid, the guerrillas are taught to wreck Japanese troops and supply trains, ambush food convoys and attack isolated Japanese garrisons.

Their military headquarters, located in dozens of central villages, keep in touch with each other by telephone and wireless equipment, much of it filched from the Japanese. At their general headquarters, where a "general staff" of young officers, lent by the 8th Route (former Communist) Army, veteran Manchuria fighters and college students plan widespread attacks, the Associated Pressman discovered their well-thumbed textbook on guerrilla warfare: a translation of "The Seven Pillars of Wisdom" by the late famed Lieut.-Colonel T. E. Lawrence of Arabia.

PRIDE of the guerrillas are two train wreckers, both dignified Chinese scholars, who in pre-war days occupied professional chairs in the chemistry departments of Peiping universities. They explained their technique to the correspondent. "It's like a game of chess. Our opponent is the Japanese army engineer. He tries to check-mate every move we make in wrecking his trains, but thus far we have kept one jump ahead."

The erstwhile professors admitted they had copied Lawrence's method of train wrecking—setting off an explosive charge under the rails as a train passed over—until they ran out of explosives. Then they used a cheaper method—pulling out the inner rail spikes, especially at spots where the tracks curved. This usually caused the tracks to spread when heavily loaded Japanese trains ran over them. "Under optimum conditions it requires from one to four days for the Japanese to clear away the wreckage," said the smiling onetime physics professor.

Train wrecking is only one of their stratagems. For the most part they organize "thieving parties" to carry off rails and telephone poles. Some 200 farmers near Paoting, 90 miles south of Peiping, devote two nights a week to demolition work. In one night they can tear up and hide ten rails, chop down 28 poles.

To repair their one night's damage the Japanese engineers send out 3,100 lbs. of steel rails, 240 spikes and 28 poles. Total cost: 4,780 yen. Thus, if the Paoting farmers keep up their twice-a-week raids, they will cost the Japanese half a million yen a year. If 1,000 villages do the same, Japan will have to increase her army budget half a billion yen a year, reason the guerrillas. Therefore, 2,000 organizers have recently been sent out to carry on concerted rail-raiding parties.

When the Japanese discovered that the guerrillas were pulling out the inner rail spikes, they temporarily stopped derailments by having a light train run over the line in the morning to spot missing spikes. Led by the two professional train wreckers, the Chinese soon had the upper hand. They carved wooden spikes, painted them iron-color, inserted them in place of the removed ones. The light Japanese trains crossed the rails without causing them to spread, but when the heavy munition cars came along the wooden spikes broke, spilled the cars on the trackside. This ruse has derailed over 30 trains south of Peiping in the last three months.

EXTREMES MEET.

SO TIGHT a hold is the State acquiring over the management of industry and the lives of the workers that Germany, if the pace continues will soon be as much a socialist State as Russia.

Soviet Russia started with an urge on the side of the proletariat. National Socialist Germany started with an urge on the side of the privileged bourgeois. Soviet Russia started with a hatred of war, and preserves it to this day. National Socialist Germany started with the intention of regaining by its own force what it had lost by force. But though the spirit in the two cases is different, the methods are similar. The real opposite of National Socialists, dictator-ruled, totalitarian Germany is not Communist Russia, but those countries which cherish freedom and retain democratic governments.

LIFETIME TITLES.

(Toronto Globe and Mail)

HEREDITARY TITLES are not in harmony with the ideals of the Dominion, but there is no reason why a public servant who has earned recognition should not receive knighthood or a baronetcy for his lifetime without the level of democratic citizenship being disturbed. There is no valid reason why a Canadian subject of the King should not be able to look forward to a reward of this kind. It would be an incentive to young men to give their energy to public service, and it would

• If They Come What Will They Do?

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

CANADA and other countries have had rather unfortunate experiences with people belonging to towns and cities who have migrated with the idea of settling on the land. It is a popular fallacy that almost any one, whatever his previous surroundings or his occupational history, may succeed as a farmer. Occasionally this happens. More frequently, however, the individual belonging to an urban environment who essays a career in agriculture (which is, after all, a highly specialized occupation requiring experience and aptitude if there is to be success) discovers after a comparatively short space of time that his training as an office employe or as an artisan is poor preparation for farming. He struggles on for a time, becoming more and more discouraged, and eventually makes his way to the town or the city, where he is much more at home but where, if employment is not available, he finally becomes a public charge.

That has happened in so many instances that the governments of countries which stand in need of additional population have had to establish regulations which will protect them against its repetition. For the most part, they are now prepared to welcome only those who desire to become permanently identified with agriculture, who have had experience in it, who have the necessary stamina to take their share of hardship and disappointment, and who have at least sufficient resources to tide them over their period of establishment.

Very unfortunately, many of the people who now wish to remove themselves from persecution or a form of government which they dislike fail to qualify in any of these particulars. They have urban rather than rural associations and lack experience in agriculture. Whatever funds they may have had have been taken from them. Some of them may have little more than the clothes which they are wearing and the few small belongings which they are able to gather together. It is not at all certain that all of them would make satisfactory settlers or that, however diligently they might apply themselves to a new occupation in a new and strange environment, they would not become discouraged and drift to the cities, there to add to the unemployment problem.

For these and other reasons, it is advisable for patience to be exercised with governments which display some hesitancy in respect to admitting any large volume of this type of immigration, and the situation is undoubtedly one calling for joint international action such as that which is contemplated. We may feel very sorry indeed for the people who have been dispossessed and who are no longer wanted in the land of their birth, but it would be scarcely rendering them — or, indeed, our own country—a great service if they were brought here in large numbers only to become indigents or public charges.

• Can't Take "No" For An Answer

A DELEGATION from the Toronto Welfare Council appealed to Premier Hepburn to take some action in respect to the unemployed transient men. The council suggested, says the Toronto Star, that the Ontario government might do some of the things which are being done in other provinces, and should take the lead in securing federal action along the lines recommended by the National Employment Commission.

To all of which Mr. Hepburn said "No." The Ontario government, according to him, will take no steps to secure any measure of aid for these unfortunate men, most of whom are residents of this province. There is neither reason nor heart in the premier's attitude. And such an attitude is hard to understand, since Mr. Hepburn's human sympathies and economic sense are well known.

The problem of the transient unemployed worker is not one which involves sentiment only, although that need not be absent in government work. The problem is urgent from economic considerations. The transient worker is part of Canada's and Ontario's labor force. He is as important in the life of the country as are the raw materials and equipment with which he is required to work. While he is unemployed, he should at least be helped to maintain his physical strength so that he may be able to work when he finds employment.

The transient worker shows desirable qualities. He makes an effort to find work and does not stay in one spot and collect relief. Because he moves around in search of work, this man technically forfeits his claim to unemployment relief. He should not be forced to forfeit it. In refusing aid to such men Ontario condemns their efforts to find work. There are hundreds of such unemployed men all over this province, most of them provincial residents with a just claim to provincial relief.

One of Mr. Hepburn's arguments to the Welfare Council's deputation was that if Ontario provided aid to transients, this province would be flooded with unemployed transients from other parts of the country. There is no such danger. For one thing, the government could protect itself by its own regulations. For another, and Mr. Hepburn very likely knows this, almost all other provinces have schemes for taking care of their transient workers through farm placements, public works or emergency camps. A few weeks ago British Columbia opened a number of camps into which 2,000 men are being settled for the winter's work at forestry.

It is agreed that this is a federal problem. But it is still the responsibility of the provincial government to do something for its own men, at least to take the initiative in pressing for proper federal action. This is what the welfare council asked of the premier. For Mr. Hepburn to give a categorical refusal is not reasonable. Something should be done. Citizens cannot take "no" for an answer.

KITE FLYER?

(Financial Post)

MOST VOCAL of Ontario cabinet ministers is Hon. Colin Campbell, Minister of Public Works. He minces no words in telling Ontario audiences about the "usury" of bank interest and his plans for solving world problems by ballooning our gold into paper money.

When Mr. Campbell appeared on the platform last week with his ministerial confrere, Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, the latter dubbed Mr. Campbell the "professional agitator of the cabinet."

Many people suspect that Mr. Campbell is doing a little kite flying for progressive Premier Hepburn by his attacks on orthodox banking and monetary systems. It is time that Premier Hepburn, who lacks neither courage nor originality, spoke up for himself. Unless he speaks up, the public will have a right to believe he shares Mr. Campbell's fantastic money notions.

SERIOUS ENOUGH..

(Chatham News)

REV. D. P. ROWLAND of York Presbyterian Church, Toronto, says the churches and the Government should close up shop unless they do something for young men out of jobs. He suggests setting aside 300 acres to train youth in farming. If something isn't done, he claims the young men will end up in jail. The plight of unemployed youth is one of the most serious we have to face and certainly both the church and the Government should be interested.

LOVE AND LATIN.

(Winnipeg Tribune)

HOUSEWIFERY is the finest—yet most arduous—profession in the world. It takes no mean brain to pursue a calling that includes cooking, laundry, sewing, household finance and general house-keeping with success. The sooner young house-wives-to-be begin their training the better for them — and for husbands and their pocketbooks.

Men cannot live on love and Latin alone. Ability to bake a good cake—even with chocolate icing—is likely to be just as important for happy domesticity as plane geometry or Tennyson's Idyls of a King.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

THEN when Mary was come where Jesus was, and saw him, she fell down at his feet, saying unto him, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died. When Jesus therefore saw her weeping, and the Jews also weeping which came with her, he groaned in the spirit, and was troubled, and said, Where have ye laid him? They said unto him, Lord, come and see....

Jesus therefore again groaning in himself cometh to the grave. It was a cave, and a stone lay upon it. Jesus said, take ye away the stone...

Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jesus lifted up his eyes and said, Father I thank thee that thou hast heard me. And I knew that thou hearest me always: but because of the people which stand by I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me.

And when he thus had spoken, he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth. And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with graveclothes: and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus saith unto them, Loose him, and let him go.—John xi, 1, 4, 20, 21, 32-34, 38, 39, 41-44.

ON SPELLING.

(Ottawa Journal)

IN THESE DAYS when advertisements urge us to see vodvil shows tonite and every nite this week it is difficult to be dogmatic abput the rules of spelling. The u jumps in and out of honor, theatre becomes theater and indeed there seems to be no centre (center) at all.

In such an atmosphere it is no wonder that the spelling bee drones about with such notable (no e) success. He is an embarrassing bird of prey who flirts with r's and s's, who pretends to rarefy man's mind by feeding him on rarities. He inoculates with jeering innuendo all who reveal a niche that might accommodate him. Some of his taunts are irrelevant rigmarole, others show him guilty of wilful sacrilege that should be inadmissible.

To learn to spell is a task that should be undertaken with earnest intent. But the spelling bee sometimes picnicks on anomalies, make play of rules and heinously makes plain that i does not always precede e except after c. He separates man's conscience from man's science with a fusillade of weird though seemingly innocuous paraphernalia designed in irresistible manner to give him chilblains and hemorrhage. If in this paroxysm man learns to spell he is an unmistakable King Bee, a czar, tsar, tzar.—Boy, put this dictionary back on the shelf.

Painful To Bend a Joint

Hospital Case of Rheumatism

The value of perseverance with Kruschen, in the treatment of some cases of rheumatism, is proved by this man's experience. He says:—

"I was abroad for over seven years. When I returned I began to suffer from rheumatic pains — particularly in the feet and arms, and I was eventually taken into hospital, unable to move without groaning with pain. When I left the hospital after two months, I was somewhat better. I was recommended to take Kruschen Salts, have taken them continuously, and until now I am entirely free from pains. I would not be without my Kruschen Salts for anything." — M.B.

Two of the salts in Kruschen are effectual solvents of uric acid the excess of which is decidedly injurious. They swiftly dull the sharp edges of the painful crystals — the cause of pain and stiffness — and convert them into a harmless solution, which is then expelled through the natural channels.—Advt.

Traffic policemen in Brussels, Belgium, are to be given portable microphones and loudspeakers so that they can reproach jay-walkers and bad drivers 300 yards away.

Double Knockout

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Dec. 1 — (CP). — Dave Carstens, local fighter, knocked out Nick Wolmarans and then was knocked out himself. He damaged his right hand and en route to hospital his car was in an accident and he collapsed.

Treasurer Dies

ORANGEVILLE, Ont., Dec .1 (CP) —John Norris, 76, treasurer of Orangeville, 45 miles northwest of Toronto, and treasurer of the Hydro Commission here for the past 20 years, died last night. Mr. Norris had been partner in an Orangeville clothing business for 35 years. He lived as a youth in St. Catharines for 10 years.

Cardinal Suspects C.C.F. Program Parallels Communists'

MONTREAL, Dec. 1 — (CP). — Because the "C.C.F. and Communism economic programs are practically the same" and because the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation's program contains "several fundamental errors" it is "not acceptable to the Catholic Church," Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve of Quebec said last night in an address before the Montreal Junior Board of Trade.

Speaking on the church's attitude towards social problems and political "isms," the Cardinal said difference between the communistic and C.C.F. programs was that "Communists admit that they are prepared to attain their object by violent means, while the C.C.F. think they will accomplish their purpose peacefully."

Actions of Chancellor Hitler and his followers in their "persecution of helpless minorities," Cardinal Villeneuve saw as a "striking example of what a Godless Government will commit when it reverts to paganism."

One Cause of Grief

"The view of the Pope on exaggerated Nationalism are well-known," he said, "and I unite my voice in condemnation with that of his Holiness. But I am grieved to think that the wave of universal protest aroused by the persecution in Germany did not also arise when priests and nuns were being subjected to shameful treatment in Spain."

Cardinal Villeneuve thought it would be "manifestly unfair" to place Hitler and Mussolini on an equal moral level "particularly since the latter's presence at Munich contributed so largely to averting war." The church was "not blind," however, to dangers in Italy's Fascism nor was it oblivious to "possible abuses" in other forms of government.

No Fascists in Quebec?

Reports of Fascism's existence in Quebec Province, the speaker qualified as "a false alarm," while the only separatism he and other Quebec churchmen might teach was the distinct development of French-Canadian characteristics.

"I believe that the more French-speaking people will be themselves, with their proper spirit and ancestral peculiarities, the more they will nourish in their hearts their deep precious love for Canada," he said.

With regard to Social Credit, the church was neutral to it as a political party, but if its object was to effect a social reform, it was regarded as ineffective to accomplish its end. But the Cardinal did not believe it would be fair to judge the movement by "what has happened in Alberta," where no money is coined.

The Main Objection

Foremost among reasons for the church's opposition to the C.C.F. was the latter's "materialistic conception of the social order."

"The suppression, or at least quasi-suppression of private ownership," the Cardinal said, "constitutes a fundamental fallacy in a new conception of the state."

In drawing together various classes of society, Christian institutions were "marvelous and manifold" in their efficacy, the speaker said. While inequalities in society were inevitable, "it is ordained by nature that the rich and poor must dwell in harmony and agreement. Each needs the other."

According to teaching of the church it was shameful and inhuman to look on men merely as chattels or as so much muscle with which to make money, but it was required also the employee work fairly and honestly. Workers had no right to injure the persons or property of employers, while strikes were justified only to demand fair working conditions.

"If the working people could be encouraged to look forward to becoming owners, the gulf between vast wealth and extreme poverty would be bridged somewhat," the Cardinal said.

Woodsworth's Stand

WINNIPEG, Dec. 1—(CP).—J. S. Woodsworth, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation leader, commenting last night on a statement in Montreal by Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve that C.C.F. principles were "practically the same as the Communistic program," said the Cardinal had been misinformed.

"We have actually been strongly opposed by the Communists in several elections," Mr. Woodsworth said.

"Modern communists have thought largely in terms of Russia. The C.C.F. believes in bringing about economic changes through constitutional means and believes thoroughly in democracy. It is thinking entirely in terms of the Canadian scene.

"We have never opposed religion. Many of the people in our movement are actually ministers of the gospel.

"We are against monopoly. We believe in extension of public ownership in those realms where monopoly is coming into control."

CLUB PLANS FLOODLIGHTS AT NASSAU FOR NIGHT SKI JUMPING

Referee's Task Been Lighter In N.H.L. Games

By Central Press Canadian

TORONTO, Dec. 1.—Just a few scattered jottings from the National Hockey league front as the teams reached their second and last four day siesta of the schedule...one or more games were on the schedule for ever Saturday, Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday, from November to March except for two Tuesdays, Nov. 8 and Nov. 29...two Monday games are on the docket both home games of the Rangers in New York, the day after Christmas and ditto for New Year's...maybe they'll get some of the late revellers for the last one ...looking back on the November battles we glean a few figures of interst...possibly...the boys seem to pace themselves like boxers and usually take the first period of each game to feel each other out.. every outfit in the league has scored more in the second and third periods separately than in the opening stanza ...Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs in particular disdaining to take advantage of their opponents just as the game gets under way... they've only registered first period goals in two of their games...Red Dutton's happy and hilarious Americans aren't fussy when they bang 'em in and have counted on a 7-8-8 ration, in addition to getting the only overtime goal scored so far... for a bunch of doddering old men and castoffs (allegedly) the star-spangled crew it's doing too bad!

Razzle-Dazzle Amerks

Either the official scorers are up to their old "aw let's give as many as we can a point" tricks or those Americans play a dizzy game that would seem more appropriate played by their fellow townsmen, the Rangers...Only ONE goal scored by the Amerks has failed to draw an assist in the records for someone and three-quarters of their counters have resulted in the maximum of two assists being awarded...in addition to generosity on the part of the scorers, of course, there's the system of play used by the Merry Men of Manhattan...The "Keep Punching" maestro has his men using a checkerboard style when ganging and they spread themselves out inside their opponents' blue line and pat the puck back and forth with great gusto... until somebody flips it in...Canadiens, who went into a great winnin streak with a tie and a win as the month ended, have drawn at least one assist on EVERY goal, but they've scored considerably fewer goals than Dutton's men...maybe the scorers don't want to dishearten the men of Hart completely by taking their scoring points away from them...the other teams are always taking victories away, and that's bad enough...At the other end of the piling-up-points scale are Boston Bruins, who, on less than a third of their counters have been credited with as many as two assists...even at home, where the men responsible for such things are supposed to leap all over themselves in an effort to help the home forces.

Three players have hit the bulls-eye for three goals in a game... Harvey Jackson of the Leafs, Sweeney Schriner of the Amerks and Johnny Gottselig ,the Bleck Hawks' stick-handling ace...all three are left wingers and they all made Cecil Hart's failing Frenchmen their victims...Those Americans get in the data column again...they're the only team whose goals have all been scored by forwards..."Defencemen for the defence" seems to be another Dutton slogan...even without dynamic Eddie Shore the Briuns lead when it comes to rushing defencemen...nearly a third of their goals have been scored by men back of the blue line, led by the veteran Dit Clapper . . . Wilf Field, defence rookie with the Americans and Syd Abel, centre star with the Red Wings, are already gaining support for the best rookie award . . . only four months to go!

Peace and Quiet

The new officiating system with the linesman looking after offsides and the referee keeping an eye on fistcuffs and such, has resulted in many peaceful evenings for the latter...some of their jobs must have carried them back down memory lane to the days when they flitted lightly up and down the river close to home...but the governors and managers, who pull the strings on the officiating systems, appear quite contented with everything...Montreal fans have yet to see Canadiens win or score more than two goals in one game...fans in Boston have not seen their favorites beaten and only in the opening game did they score less than four goals...The Amerks and Leafs, in five road appearances, haven't been able to register more than two in a game, but the former have secured five out of a possible 10 points, while the Toronto squad has come away with six...Boston is the only team that hasn't felt the white-wash brush as yet...but they haven't wielded the brush either...in the latter category keeping company with Americans, Canadiens and Red Wings...and you know what's happened to the goalies on three of those teams!

Early Season "Bad Men"

There seems to be even more than the usual amount of confusion this year as to who has how many points and how many penalties in the National League, there being frequent disparities between the official and unofficial figures. According to the official records the "bad men" at this early juncture of the schedule are Alex Levinsky, ABOVE. Chicago Black Hawk defenceman, and Bingo Kampman, alongside, who holds down the same positon with Toronto Maple Leafs. Levinsky is credited with 22 minutes in durance vile, while Bingo has amassed 21.

SPORT SPICE

(By SID FEDER)

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(AP).—Report from Pittsburgh says the 19 freshmen in that scholarship-tuition row at Pitt will quit the Panther campus the end of this semester, and transfer to such other schools as Miami, Ohio State, 'Bama, etc. . . . Good old Doc Sutherland certainly dug up some nice material for the other fellows on that one . . . Walter Boswell St. Denis, Mike Jacobs' ballyhooer in chief, slipped on the ice in front of the hippodrome and busted his shoulder the other day. . . . 's'-too bad, Butch . . .

Will McKechnie is taking no chances picking Cincinnati Reds for the '39 National baseball league pennant . . . "You writing boys do the picking," he writes. "You have more fun, anyway" . . . You don't hear them bragging about it down at Princeton, but if all accounts are true, the tiger'll have one of the top passers in the east next year when Bobby Peters, up from Kingport, Tenn., graduates the freshman squad. . . .

Boston Red Sox may not know it, but they'd have had Joe the Flash Gordon if it wasn't for Bill Reinhart, the George Washington University baseball coach, who was then at Oregon . . . Seems Joe was all set to sign with the Sox for 10G's, but turned it down when Bill suggested he wait for the Yankees bid—which was less (no foolin') . . .

Johnny McDermott, who captained little Wagner College's footballers on Long Island, (N.Y.) just got a fan letter from South Africa inviting him for a visit to "Asafoatche Afflo's Villa, Obom Quarters, Dodowa" on the Gold Coast . . . The fan explained he "love footballing very favouritely," and that he'd read in a paper how Wagner this season won its first game in four years.

Montreal Maroons Finally Disbanded

MONTREAL, Dec. 1—(CP).—Last names on the roster of the disbanded Montreal Maroons Hockey Club were removed today with the announcement by ex-manager Tommy Gorman that Dave Trottier had been given his unconditional release and that Alan Shields would play with New Haven in the International American league.

Trottier, a brilliant skater who earned his amateur fame with the Toronto Varsity Grads, winners of the Olympic title in 1928, and the Allan Cup the previous year, declined to play outside Montreal, Gorman said. Trottier indicated last season he was through with professional hockey but he was out a few weeks ago practicing at the Forum, home of the old Maroon team.

Early this month Shields, a big defenseman, who learned his hockey in Ottawa, was scheduled for the minor leagues after other N.H.L. teams had bought all they wanted from the Maroon sale. But reports said he refused to go.

Membership Drive Is Started By Peterborough Ski Club As Activities Are Outlined

The Peterborough Ski Club organized its 1939 membership drive at a meeting held on Wednesday night. The drive will be under the chairmanship of Toby Westbye, club president. The "General" met his "Colonels" and "Captains" at a supper meeting to draw up the following organization:

Division "A"—"Colonel" Gerald Duffus and "Captains" Bun Graham, Otto Laderach and Ross Thompson; Division "B"—"Colonel" Lahring Parsons and "Captains" Jack Holland, Margaret Wood and Spike Matthews;. Division "C"—"Colonel" Tobey Westbye and "Captains" Jack Couper, Jack Sullivan and Don Shiner; Division "D"—"Colonel" Isabella Reid and "Captains" Jack Richardson, Bob White and Pat McCarroll. Each team has four members with the drive concluding Dec. 10th, a prize being offered the man and lady getting the largest number of paid-up members in that time.

President Westbye outlined the accomplishments of the club in the past and the plans for the coming season. Beginning with a small group of skiing enthusiasts a few years ago, he said, the club membership approached the 200 mark last winter. Facilities for members increase each year and now consist of an improved first-class jump at Nassau, with a cabin. This season floodlighting will be installed at Nassau for night skiing, and the new lighting will also make night-jumping possible, comething unique in this country. Free instruction is given to members on Tuesday and Thursday evenings all winter at Victoria Park, and a "run" is arranged each Thursday from the Club's cabin at Jackson's Park.

A new property has been opened in the vicinity of Bethany where the Provincial championships will be held in February. A great deal of work has been done by members in this territory through the summer to prepare for the big event in mid-winter. It is felt that the club must have wide-spread support this season as it will be several years before the citizens of Peterborough may again see the best skiers in the Province competing for honors in such a competition. The name of this city as a hospitable host should be upheld when the skiers again congregate for this fine winter sport.

By CEC. PERDUE

NEXT NUMBER on the program, ladeeeez and gentulmen, will be that touching melody: "I've Got Those Low-Down Hockey Blues!" And it'll be sung in broken English by the assembly of redhot puck fans and season pew-holders, and led by Signor Perdowski in his pleasing baritone. Well, it pleases him, anyway! Altogether now—using improvised melody:

Of the class of Petes of '38,
Four hit south to leave but eight;
One quit and another's gone west,
As London took one of the best.

Lindsay's got a local too;
So we wonder what the Petes'll do
(With three juniors gone away to school)

YESSIR, the "Gone With The Wind" gang of Petes' puckists. If Mick Magee, for instance, could play goal—and he can play almost anything else in sports — we could name a pretty fair hockey team from the boys who shook the dust of George St. off their heels since the last ice season. We would place Mick between the pipes and have four good defencemen in Barnes, Brennan, Williamson and Al Clark. And two good forward lines in Calladine, Vitarelli, Tompkins, Jopling, Ellis and Gee Clark. We lost three-quarters of our 1938 O.H.A. senior "B" semi-finalist squad defence, and half of the forwards—since Al Gratton is being transferred from here shortly. With several of our best intermediate gang and the pick of the junior team. Why, even the Trenton Fliers didn't lose that much puck talent.

• • • • • • •

WITH THE WORD OUT that Honey Tompkins had left yesterday for London to play in the Mich.-Ont. senior amachoor loop, we figured that at least four sure bets on the 1939 Petes' lineup were gone. Meaning Ellis, Vitarelli, Calladine and Tompkins. The latter came here from Belleville and was a fine junior, finishing the season with the senior outfit. He had a chance to try out with Canadiens and possibly make a minor pro team. Of course, there are several new players in Peterborough now, plus most of the disbanded local intermediates of last winter and a few junior grads, so the Petes may not prove to be as badly crippled-up as many expect. Of last year's regular senior team, they how have just Ray Harding in goal, Archie Weir for defence, and Eddie Starr, Bun Kingdon and Shrimp McDougall as forwards.

• • • • • • •

BUT THE FACT REMAINS that, if a couple more of the expected Petes' edition of 1939 should pull out, we will have to don the blades once again and do or die for deal old Gate Receipts! Yessir, none other but us. And it is quite some years since we split the defence with a deceptive shift to go right in on the goalie over Ashburnham way on Poverty Pond—them were the days! It is not lack of condition, as we are always in the pink—not lingerie, either!—nor worry over financial returns that is bothering the writer. But what in the world would he do if he had to cover an O.H.A. game besides playing in it? Just suppose he happened to score six goals and was the individual star, what could he say? Folks might sneer if the next day's sport page had a headline like this: "Examiner Writer Leads Petes to 6-0 Triumph Over Fliers." No, we're too doggone modest.

• • • • • • •

AT LEAST, local fans and critics from other centres can't say they don't see a lot of hockey talent—coming and going—in this thriving borough. We import plenty, but we export a lot, too. And Peterborough puck chasers must be well regarded or so many of em wouldn't be offered berths in such places as Baltimore, Miami, London, etc. But this town manufacturers plenty of hockey talent, too, with all its minor loops—and we'll have lots of good hockey again here this winter.

• • • • • • •

LAST NIGHT saw N'Yawk Rovers nose out a nod over Baltimore Orioles, and it was the first reverse for Pick Hines' hopefuls in their last six starts. They are in second place now and playing at home before sellout crowds of 3,000 fans. In a recent 4-0 win over Hershey Cubs, Bill Calladine counted twice and Ned Vitarelli hit the headlines like this: "Vitarelli Sparks Birds in 4-0 Win Over Cubs." Ned had two assists to give him 11 points and the scoring lead in the league to date. Calladine was third in loop countering with six points, so you know the local lads are doing okay for themselves in Oriole Town. Bobby Forster, young goalie from Oshawa, is playing a bang-up game in the nets for Pick's pack. Weather down there is quite cool, and outdoor skating on ponds and creeks is in order.

• • • • • • •

ANNUAL MEETING of the Southend Hockey League will be held tomorrow (Friday) night at eight bells in the Sacred Heart Church club rooms, and all those interested are invited. Loop will be re-organized for the coming season, with officers elected and entries taken. There were 13 teams in last year and at least as many are wanted again. Sections are bantam, under 14 by Jan. 1st; midget, under 16; and juvenile, under 18. This is a first-rate minor hockey league and many of our O.H.A. stars in late years got their start in the Southend Circuit. Games will be at the Sacred Heart rink and schedules open in about three weeks.

• • • • • • •

NIGHT SKIING and ski jumping by floodlight at Nassau Hill is planned for this winter by the energetic young officers of the Peterborough Ski Club. This will be quite an innovation in Ontario ski centres, but the local gang of enthusiasts refuse to let any grass grow under their skis. Membership drive is on now with these leaders in charge of the various divisions: Jerry Duffus, Lahring Parsons, Toby Westbye and Isabella Reid. Lot of work has been done already—and these ski ossifers aren't afraid to get out in the country and do heavy work like clearing brush, etc.—and they don't have many idle moments from now until the provincial championships are held in Peterborough in February.

• • • • • • •

DESE, DEM AND DOSE: Local puck officers say Honey Tompkins may have just gone to London for a tryout, since he didn't ask for a release here; and he must have his release....They rather expect him back soon....O.H.A. junior clubs of this part of the province meet in Port Hope tonight to discuss a grouping, schedule, et al.... Joint Y.W. and Y.M. swim meet is being held in the Y.M.C.A. pool next Wednesday een at 8.15....Sarnia's junior grid team says it'll dispute the right of Montreal and Regina putting on a Dominion final ....Niagara Falls' senior pucksters stepped into Oshawa last gloaming and copped a 5-3 nod; local fans were on hand....Ed Thomas of But this town manufactures plenty of hockey talent, too, with all its but the goalie each swoop....Boston scribe says Tiny Thompson was sold for criticizing Ross and that Dit Clapper—the Hastings' gift to pro hockey—will go soon, too, for the same reason....Bummer Stirling of Imperials is just eight points away from the 500 scoring mark in senior rugby....Lot of fencers and boxers taking instruction at the C.G.E. Athletic Club in the Armouries at present....Gotta go down to Boyler's Crick now and practice for our hockey comeback!

Tough Referees In M.-O. League

(Detroit Times)

It's going to be a little tougher picking from now on for those of the sporting gentry of London (Ont.)who feel inclined to throw amateur hockey referees out in the street.

The boys up London way had themselves a time at the Holzbaugh-London game last Wednesday when they tried for a new distance record in pitching Referee Chick Appel out in the street.

Appel was just a former sports writer with five children and he wasn't used to bouncing on the cobblestones. He went to the hospital.

So the Michigan-Ontario Amateur Hockey League governors last night picked four referees who can take it. They have arranged to have seven constables of the London police force protect officials and all visiting players at future games in London.

HAINSWORTH NAMED

The new men are George Hainsworth of Kitchener, former goalie for the Toronto Maple Leafs; Gordon Fraser, former Detroit Caugars defenseman, now of London; Bert Hedges and Norman Lamport of Toronto. All of these officials not only are well versed in the pro rules, in contrast to some of the officials who handled London games, but they can hold their own in any man to man struggle.

It probably will not be necessary for them to fight their way out of the London Arena, however. Harry Garside, London Mohawks manger, reported to the Michigan-Ontario League governors at Olympia that the presence of the seven constables had been guaranteed by the arena management at all remaining games.

NO MORE BOTTLES

Another aid to law and order in London will be the absence of bottles from the stands. Charles Jacobs, who has the concession at Olympia and London, has agreed to dispense all soft drinks in paper cups, thus depriving the London marksman of the missles with which they laid down a barrage against the Holzbaugh club.

Garside declared that the Mohawks were taking care of the hospital expenses incurred by Appel in the recent riot, but said that as far as damages were concerned, Appel's hopes lay in a suit against the arena, which failed to provide proper protection.

Former Pro Here Dies In States

Ball fans of a generation ago will be sorry to learn that Jimmy Beard who played centre field for the Peterborough Canadian League club in 1912 and part of the season of 1913, died recently at his home in Reading, Pa. Beard was one of the squad of ball players brought here by Manager "Old Folks" Templin when Peterborough made its plunge into professional baseball in 1912 and he was one of the few originals who managed to stick around, although one of the oldest of the club.

He was a good outfielder and a fair hitter, and in addition he surprised the fans on one occasion, when the Petes were in a slump and the regular pitching staff was taking beatings daily, by going in and pitching a winning game. Whereupon one of the directors of the club, who was a good business executive but a little hazy about baseball, gravely proposed that the twirlers should all be released and Beard be asked to pitch all the games. Beard at various times played with York, Reading and Trenton in the Tri-State League and with Spartanburg and Frankfort and for a short time with Guelph, and also umpired in the Blue Ridge and Lebanon Valley Leagues. Death was due to heart failure. The veteran player was 62 years of age.

Fred Hickey tumbled off 788 pins in the C.G.E. Drafting Room League last night, his fine score was the best for the evening, when the Draftsmen, Quaker Oats, Automobile, Westclox Office, and Trent Canal Leagues rolled off.

All "Hick" got for his work was thanks, as his team dropped all three games. Max Metheral dangled off 672, Bob Hay 657, Walter Jackson 639, with a 304 single, Os Price 618, and Harold Foster 610.

Miss M. Johnston and Miss D. Ackford of the Westclox Office each packed in big singles to count 532 (250) and 558 (236). Hayden hit 615 for the men.

Nearly 100 men from the big Quaker plant were on hand, and although walloping singles were chalked up all through their circuit, only nine of them really got over the hump. A. Guerin's 712 was high, M. Caccavella 694 (309). M. Leonard 638, F. Shine 636, A. Barrett 626, W. Pallant 613, J. Ferguson 610, W. Farr 606, and J. Hopcroft 604.

The Chrysler team in the Automobile League went down 8-0 to the Nash entry when Copping and Shadgett came through for 717 and 619. Spectacular strike-outs by Johnson and Purvis pulled one game out of the fire for Pontiacs, when they hit Clayt Ruth's strong Graham five, Mortimer salting away 627 for the Graham clan. Ford and Dodge had a real collision when they tied with 4 points each. Kenny Kane heaved off 636 for Lillico's and Clark Weldon 593 for the V-eighters. Postponed games kept the other six teams out.

Harvey, Phillips Meet For British Crown

LONDON, Dec. 1.—(AP) — Len Harvey and Eddie Phillips, Great Britain's leading domestic heavyweights, square off for 15 rounds tonight in a bout at Harringay that will decide the British heavyweight championship.

Tommy Farr, now in the United States, held the title until he failed to defend it here as directed by the British Board of Boxing Control. The title then was declared open.

Dr. M. B. Annis Wins Eleven Checker Games

The Checker Club's session at the Y.M.C.A. Tuesday night afforded several interesting features for the members. Dr. M. B. Annis of Lindsay, one of the outstanding players in Central Ontario, engaged thirteen of the local men at the same time. He made the remarkable score of eleven wins, one draw and one loss. Earl Kidd set Dr. Annis back for his only loss, and Walter Kidd played him the draw game. Peter McArthur and John Buck were referees.

When the games with Dr. Annis were completed, Mr. McArthur and Mr. Buck chose sides of ten men each, victory going to to Buck group with 11 wins. seven losses and two draws.

The Club is beginning a league on Tuesday, December 6, at 8 o'clock, and it is suggested that all those desiring to join up for the season should register for those games and be on hand for the opening events. New players are cordially invited, and will be given special instructions.

The Port Hope-Cobourg checker players will meet the Peterborough-Lindsay men on December 13. Every person interested in checkers is invited that night. The game is taking a strong hold this season, and as there is three or four months ahead the membership should be further increased by the promise of a pleasant winter in congenial company.

Shortt Scores Twice To Upset Experts

OSHAWA, Ont., Dec. 1 (C.P.). — Just as the early-season experts thought they'd figured out who'd be playing for the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A title, come spring, along pranced a dark horse and upset everything.

Toronto Goodyears and Oshawa G-Men generally had been considered the class of the six-team league. Niagara Falls Brights, showing improvement every time out, blasted that theory last night.

The Brights skated on to Oshawa ice and with the season's best display of speed and back-checking took the G-Men for a 5-3 fall. It was a clean-cut, richly-deserved victory.

One of the biggest thorns in the Oshawa side was Whip Shortt, who helped Oshawa Juniors in their march to the Canadian finals last season, but now patrols a Falls' wing. Shortt whipped in the first two goals for his team and made such a good job of checking Cliff Maundrell, the Oshawa ace had few scoring chances.

Chirp Brenchley, Steak Morrison, and Swanee Swanson shot the other Bright goals. Jerry Cooper, best for Oshawa, sank two tallies and Winkie Smith one.

Victory vaulted Brights into first place in the league standing with five points. They have, however, played two more games than the unbeaten Goodyears, and one more than Oshawa. Oshawa and Goodyears meet in Toronto Friday, while Niagara Falls entertain St. Catharines and Brantford travel to Port Colborne.

Thompson Happy Over His Trade

DETROIT, Dec. 1 (C.P.). — Tiny Thompson, who starts his playing days with the Detroit Red Wings to-night at Chicago, told friends here he was delighted to play goal for the Motor City club, because if he had been traded to the National Hockey League clubs at either Toronto or Montreal, he would have refused to play hockey any more.

Both the Toronto Maple Leafs and the Montreal Canadiens were bidding for his services, Thompson said. Thompson was purchased from the Boston Bruins this week for $15,000 and another goalie.

Thompson explained he was glad to be back with his former teammates, Marty Barry and Herbie Lewis, and knew all the Detroit players as good fellows.

Break Fails

JACKSON, Mich., Dec. 1—(CP)—Two Detroit men serving life sentences were in solitary confinement today after an attempt to break jail at Michigan state prison. Harry Riley, 42, and Ralph Stewart, 29, stole prison guard uniforms from the tailor shop where they worked and marched to the gate when guards were changing shifts. A veteran guard recognized the two as prisoners.

Pictorial Lesson On the Fine Gridiron Art of Tackling

This fine magic-eye sequence of pictures shows a ball-carrier being brought to earth by a tackler. The scene was a gridiron across the line, and the obliging (but unknowing) parties are Sid Luckman of Columbia, toting the ball for what he had hoped would be a large gain, and Swarr of Syracuse, who had other ideas which he proceeded to put into effect.

Lou Nova, 23-Year-Old Californian Looms As "White Hope" To Lift Crown From Joe Louis

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Anyone looking for a good long shot, say, about 20 to 1, might do worse than to wager the world heavyweight boxing champion a year from to-day is not Joe Louis, but is Lou Nova, a blond, 23-year-old from Alameda, Calif.

Nova is the official "white hope," in fact, the only hope of any color. If he doesn't dethrone Joe Louis, then it seems a safe prediction the big negro will retire undefeated within a couple of years. Joe has plenty of money, he has avenged his loss to Max Schmeling and he has fought himself out of opponents.

Promoter Mike Jacobs' twentieth century club is banking on Nova to make Joe change his attitude, and to resuscitate the heavyweight division. Nova is the youngster who stopped Gunnar Barlund here last October. He fights Tommy Farr two weeks from to-morrow at Madison Square Garden, and if he gets past the tough Welshman he will be thrown against Louis in one of the local ball parks next September.

Some think they are rushing Lou too fast—pitting him against such an able and experienced veteran as Farr. Nova has had only 25 professional scraps, he won 13 of them by knockouts and lost only one decision, to Maxie Rosenbloom. But Jacobs evidently figures there is a need for haste if he is to continue to cash in on Joe Louis' tremendous drawing power. So he is gambling on Nova. There is no other real prospect for a $1,000,000-gate.

Hamilton Tigers, fielding one of Eastern Canada's most powerful teams in years, punched out a 23-3 victory over Sarnia Imperials for the Eastern Canadian football championship at Toronto three years ago today. Winnipeg whipped the Bengals 18-12 that year and took the Grey Cup West for the first time.

Canadian Rouge To Be Tried By U.S. Squads

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—(AP)—The North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference voted today to try the Canadian rugby "rouge" during spring football practice as a means of eliminating tie games and opening up offensive play.

The "rouge" is a point awarded to the kicking team, if its kick—whether punt or unsuccessful try for field goal—should land in the end zone and not be returned to the actual playing field by the defensive team.

Should use of the score, new to United States intercollegiate football, but old in rugby, prove a success during spring training at the seven colleges of the conference, it will be adopted for use in all conference games next fall.

Suggested by C. A. West, athletic director of North Dakota University, the trial rule provides that any ball kicked into the end zone and not kicked or run out by the defending team will score as a point for the kicking team. If a point is scored, the ball will be put in play by either a free kick or a kickoff by the defending team from its own 20-yard line, similar to the present rule on a safety.

Recruiting for an anti-aircraft brigade in Northern Ireland will begin next Spring.

He's Sniping Again

Third player this season to bang home three goals in a National League game was Sweeney Schriner, ABOVE, flashy left wing star with Red Duttons Americans. Sweeney bagged his trio as the Merry Men of Manhattan walloped Canadiens, 7-3. Harvey Jackson of the Leafs and Johnny Gottselig of the Black Hawks have also turned the trick, and oddly enough, they've all registered against Cecil Hart's helpless crew.

Argo-Imp Battle A Toss-up; Most Bets Even

By Sydney Gruson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Dec. 1.—(CP).—The conviction is growing stronger every day that Toronto Argonauts will run up against the strongest opposition of the fast-fading football season when they tangle with Sarnia Imperials for the Eastern Canadian championship Saturday.

Observers here like Sarnia's chances better than Ottawa's because, for the first time this season, the opposition will have a better kicker on its backfield. The man in question is Hugh (Bummer) Stirling, as fine a triple-threat back as ever trod a Canadian gridiron.

This Sarnia team, however, is not Stirling alone. Imperials proved it last Saturday when they swamped Montreal Nationals in the Ontario Union final with the Bummer watching more than half the game from the sidelines. The team has a nice balance and if it must concede Argos anything, it is at downfield tackling only.

Third Title Tangle.

The teams, meeting for the third time in six years for the section title, will be playing for high stakes—a spot in the Canadian final the following week against Winnipeg Blue Bombers, champions of the west. Argos were the victors when they met Imperials in 1933 and 1937.

The most severe blow to Sarnia's chances was dealt by the Canadian Rugby Union at a special executive meeting Sunday. Henry (Hi) Living, star snapback, was ruled ineligible under the C.R.U.'s residence rule and Living's absence will be hard to fill. He has starred on Sarnia's secondary all season.

Veteran Ralph Burr, brittle around the legs, will replace Living. Otherwise the team is at its peak. Improving after a shaky start that led to predictions of their downfall as Ontario Union champions, Imperials showed an all-star cast against Nationals. The line was strong, Stirling and Arnie McWatters kicked well and Tony Golab came into his own as a plunger.

Argos the Interprovincial Union and National champions, will be without Johnny Munro and Frank Stukus, two regulars, because of injuries. Big Bob Isbister will do the bulk of their kicking with Earl Selkirk in reserve.

17,000 To Turn Out

If the weather holds good the game should draw between 17,000 and 20,000 fans to Varsity Stadium. Most of them will go expecting a wide-open battle, for both teams have excess speed, good passers and a variety of trick plays to satisfy the most rabid razzle-dazzle fan.

With the best pair of ends in the East, Wes Cutler and Bernie Thornton, Argos have been conceded an edge in that department. But recently, noted improvement of Ike Norris and Ken Stevenson, Sarnia's pair, has buoyed Imperial hopes. There is little to choose between the lines while on the backfield, Argos have a little more speed and Imperials more power. Most of the betting has been at even money, although here and there Argo supporters have gone overboard at eight-to five.

Fred Apostoli Comes Through When The Chips Are Down

By Lawton Carver
(Central Press Canadian Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Nov. 29. — It may be that Fred Apostoli will be forgotten long before the Ketchells and the Grebs and others of his predecessors in the middleweight division, for some of the super-experts insist that he doesn't have the all-around class of the various champions of the past who are loosely brought together under the comprehensive soubriquet of immortals. To some he appears to be just a good workman who can box pretty well, hit with speed and authority, but not with killing punch, and perhaps too often he doesn't work himself up to the proper stage of brutality, with the result that he is liable to blow a fight now and then.

But I'm pretty sure he is going to be remembered as one of the best money fighters that ever battered an opponent senseless, or cut him into thin slices to achieve the same eventual finish. When the thing really counts, Apostoli performs his blood lettings just as though there could be no other conclusion to the evening's entertainment, and the myriad shortcomings detected by the super-experts are wrong. It is barely possible that the experts are wrong, and that they place too much importance on his workmanship now instead of regarding with more discernment his potentialities.

Loves His Work.

All I know is that whenever the chips are down he always seems to have sufficient equipment to do a real thorough and artistic job of rearranging somebody's face, or intellect, or both. And no other fighter except Henry Armstrong seems to love his work quite so much. Given any kind of co-operation at all by his opponent, Apostoli is an earnest and quite enthusiastic butcher to the very best of his ability.

And his ability is not greatly limited as I see it from records. Twice they threw him in there with Solly Krieger, then all the rage around here and currently a disputed claimant to the middleweight title. Apostoli won both starts, and on one of the occasions Krieger was converted into quite a mess before it was stopped.

Then they gave him Marcel Thil and a crack at the middleweight title, with much the same result. Thil was battered and bashed and sliced until finally he was rescued by the referee. In his next important fight Apostoli took Freddie Steele, who then was the recognized middleweight champion. Apostoli was sizzling at Steele on that occasion because the fight was one of those non-title things when by all that was fair Apostoli should have been belting for the championship, and what he did to Steele left the latter unfit for much further use. He was technically knocked out, too, like the rest, and severely whipped.

Enter Corbett.

Soon after that, to the surprise of all, Apostoli blew a fight with shopworn old Young Corbett 3rd, with the result that Corbett earned for himself a rash of lumps and a knock-out in a return engagement recently, when they did an encore, this time for New York recognition as middleweight champion.

In each of his real payoff fights, Apostoli has been at his best, in taking Krieger, Thil, Steele, and Corbett, and now that he has a share in the title, with all that prestige riding on the line in every start, I'm pretty sure he is going to by an extremely difficult problem for the boys. He is a tough baby in that ring, especially when the occasion is an important one.

FRED APOSTOLI
....a tough baby. He chops 'em up fine when the chips are down. Maybe he'll never be an "immortal," but he's plenty good right now.

Cocky Ramblers Fall 9-6 Before Bears

(By the Canadian Press.)

The Hershey Bears must have been wearing ear muffs while word was going the rounds about Philadelphia Ramblers being a minor league "wonder" hockey team. Either that, or they didn't believe a word of it.

Oblivious entirely to the great record that Ramblers, a New York Rangers farm club, have compiled the Bears made it two in a row over Ramblers last night with a 9-6 victory. The Ramblers, in scoring 60 goals in 10 games so far this season, have been beaten only twice. Two weeks ago the Bears took their measure 3-1 at Hershey.

Although they lost, Ramblers still hold first place in the International-American Hockey League's Eastern Section. Their 16 points from eight victories are two more than the total compiled by Providence Reds, who topped New Haven Eagles 4-2 in the only other scheduled International-American game last night.

Windy Steele, Wally Kilrea, Dede Klein, and Shannon each scored twice for the Bears against Ramblers, while Reardon added the other. Philadelphia marksmen were Allen, with two, and Joe Cooper, Cliff Narton, Lloyd Roubell, and Lude Wareing.

The Reds rallied to score three goals in the third period to beat New Haven. Providence scorers were Ron Hudson, Art Giroux, Art Lesieur and Crossley Sherwood, while Tony Hemmerling and Louis Trudel tallied for Eagles.

OXFORD GOLFERS BEATEN

OXFORD, England—(CP).—Oxford University golfers were defeated by the League "A" team of internationals and former Blues in a two-day match here. After the singles and foursomes series the League won by 30 matches to nine with three halved.

Reeves Protest Cutting Off Of Two Bridges

Warden McDonald, chairman of a special committee on bridges submitted a report covering all bridges in the county. The report was compiled so that whenever repairs were needed on a bridge, all information would be available on file. Previously there was no official list of county bridges.

Rep.-Reeve Melville Johnston chairman of a committee on roads and bridges presided as the council examined the list.

Urged Bridge Retained

Reeve Griffith urged that the Burnt River bridge be retained as a county bridge. He did not ask for any repairs but suggested the tourist traffic in the future might warrant it. Reeve Mann contended it would be a hardship on Smith if the Lily Lake bridge was taken out of the county system. Neither of the two bridges mentioned in the foregoing were on the list. The feeling of the committee was that the traffic over both bridges was not sufficient to warrant the expensive repairs that would be made if these two were county bridges.

Oppose Adoption

Both Reeve Mann and Reeve Griffiths opposed the adoption of the report vigorously. When the motion was put Reeve Griffiths, Mann, Clarke, Caldwell, Thompson and Dep.-Reeve Fowler opposed the adoption of the report but it carried.

A committee was named to regulate traffic over county bridges in the matter of speed, loads etc.

thousands of its boasted membership of 5,000,000.

Conservative leaders called Daladier's victory the end of Socialist, Communist and organized labor influence in France.

There were some worried members in the Premier's middle-of-the-road Radical Socialist party. They feared their leader would be forced to fight the ultra-Conservatives to keep them from snatching his victory.

For the Rightists, calling the strike suppression a "total liquidation of the people's front and all its policies," already had started planning Daladier's new program for him. With the Socialists and Communists now firmly in opposition, the Premier must have Conservative votes to stay in power.

He lost no time in decreeing the three-year "economic mobilization," announced as soon as it was apparent his soldiers and police had broken the strike. The plan was disclosed in a note explaining the government's 1939 budget demands.

"During the whole (three-year) plan," the note said, "the French must understand they are in a state of economic mobilization."

Store Windows Broken

The worst disorders were at Toulouse and Clermont Farrand where strikers paraded through the streets smashing store windows. Three police inspectors and the mayor of Toulouse were injured in clashes with workers.

There also were encounters between strikers and mobile guards at Lille, Lyon, Nantes, Dieppe, Grenoble and Marseille.

Military control of the public services, instituted for the period of the strike, ended at midnight when it appeared the disturbances were over.

At least two results of Daladier's victory over labor were expected to be reflected in his foreign policy—the dispatch of a French representative to insurgent Spain and possibly moves to break the French-Russian mutual assistance pact.

These steps were believed by some to be the price of Rightist parliamentary support. Communists, Socialists and labor unions generally had been credited with balking representation in insurgent Spain and insisting on continued bonds with the Soviet Union.

One thing that was believed to have deterred Daladier from such action in the past was fear that these groups could make an effective general strike in protest.

Painful Boils
Bad Blood the Cause

When boils start to break out on different parts of the body it is an evidence that the blood is loaded up with impurities.

Just when you think you are rid of one, another crops up to take its place and prolong your misery.

All the lancing and poulticing you may do will not stop more coming.

Why not give that old, reliable, blood purifying medicine Burdock Blood Bitters a chance to banish the boils? Thousands have used it for this purpose during the past 60 years.

Training Ship Is Dismasted and at Mercy of Sea

The barkentine Marsala, used for training merchant marine officers, is pictured here after she had had her five masts carried overboard in a storm off Cape Henry, Va. With 25 merchant marine students aboard, the Marsala wallowed in the heavy seas, helpless without radio equipment. The S.S. Savannah City summoned coastguards to the disabled craft's aid when she sighted distress rockets sent up by the Marsala. The coastguard cutter Mendota towed the crippled craft to safety.

Low Quality Cheese In 3 Provinces Cut Dominion Average

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Dec. 1 (CP).—A drop of 1.09 per cent in first-grade cheese in Canada last year was accounted for by lower qualities in Ontario, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Central Cheesemakers' Association was told at the closing session of its convention yesterday by T. J. Hicks, senior dairy produce grader at Montreal.

The Dominion average grade was 4.29 per cent lower than the top mark set in 1935 and lower than for any year since 1927, Hicks reported. Outstanding defects in graded cheese lay in openness and texture.

"An objectionable class of cheese, which seems to be more numerous this fall, is cheese damaged by vermin," he said. Marketing and finish showed improvement, however.

J. F. Singleton, associate director of marketing services for the federal agriculture department, told the delegates Belleville Cheddar cheese was sought so eagerly in the United Kingdom that purveyors had special cards printed to advertise the product.

"The cheese industry is the balance wheel of the dairy industry," Singleton declared. "But at the present time it is rather light for the duty it should perform."

The increased demand for mature cheese could be met by manufacturing at about 85 pounds to the box, the official said.

Singleton believed competitors were marking their boxes for shipment to England better than Canadian shippers. He urged maintenance of "quality and quantity" to hold the British market.

with 60 pupils from the county and 40 from Norwood, the county should pay only an additional $500.

No estimates had been received from the School Board, Miss Batten reported. Reeve Brown of Burleigh said no payments should be made until estimates are submitted.

Scan School Costs.

Warden McDonald remarked that for years little attention had been paid to school costs, and he believed the Council should scan accounts very carefully.

"I agree that Norwood High School is well managed and operated economically," said Reeve Anderson. "The school is well filled with pupils and is not over-staffed. Still if Norwood Village is paying only $1,000 we should go slow on our payments.

Miss Batten, answering the chairman, said the total expenditure for the school in 1937 was $9,095, of which the county paid $3,410 and the grants amounted to $1,419.

The committee decided to shelve the question until Friday when it is expected a copy of the estimates will be in the hands of the county treasurer. Reeve Thompson told the members, A. Weir, secretary of the School Board, had assured him the estimates had already been sent in.

Charge France Lax

Under an Italian-French convention of 1896, France recognized and agreed to honor civil rights and properties acquired there by Italians, but recently the Fascist press has accused France of failing to observe provisions of the convention.

The chamber, to be supplanted by a new lower house composed of representatives of Fascist units and guilds under which industry, labor and the professions are organized, met only to hear Count Ciano's address and to ratify cabinet decrees, and to vote itself out of existence.

Commenting on Count Ciano's speech, the authoritative Fascist editor Virginio Gayda said in the newspaper Giornale D'Italia:—

"The interests and rights of all nations must be satisfied even at the cost of some sacrifice.

"It is well to establish very clearly now that today Germany cannot be considered satisfied and that Italy still has reason to ask respect for important interests and rights in harmony with its demonstrated capacities and needs as well as with undeniable principles of justice and equilibrium of forces and possibilities."

Gayda said Ciano's remarks on "this henceforth open problem" has placed "the inflexible aims of Italian foreign policy before the consciences of peoples and the responsibility of the governments."

(France and Italy were rivals for trade dominance in Tunisia prior to the spring of 1881 when French troops unexpectedly invaded the country and established a protectorate two years later.)

Find Nurse Guilty Concealing Birth

BUFFALO, N.Y., December 1 (A.P.). — A Federal Court jury early to-day convicted pretty Mary Katherine Reed, 23, on a charge of her cealing the birth and death of her baby while she was a nurse in a United States veterans' hospital.

The jury of seven married women and five men acquitted the young nurse on a charge of involuntary manslaughter. As the verdict was read the defendant slumped in her chair and burst into tears. Her mother and father from Hillsdale, Ind., sought to comfort her.

The birth concealment charge is a misdemeanor and carries a maximum sentence of one year or a $500 fine, or both. Sentence was deferred.

Chair Of Gastronomy Suggested By Chef

LONDON, Dec. 1 — (CP).— A famous chef last night suggested to a gathering of 50 eminent physicians and surgeons that a chair of gastronomy should be founded at Oxford or Cambridge.

The speaker, Emile Amyoz, who presides over the kitchens of a big London west-end hotel, spoke on "The Chef's Work for Humanity."

Purpose of a chair of gastronomy, said Aymoz, would be "for the study of the cuisine, research in nutrition and the training of men to minister to the bodily needs of the nation."

Napoleon had said "The character of a nation depends largely upon its chefs." The destiny of a nation, too, added Aymoz "for a man who has dined well can face the world and its problems with a clear mind and eye."

He recalled the defunct era of great banquets and predicted that in future "although we shall not eat more than we do now, we shall probably eat a smaller amount—of a greater number of courses."

MASSEY, Ont., Dec. 1 (CP).—It's hard to keep the wolf from the door in Northern Ontario these days with lumbering almost at a standstill. Without lumber-camp cooks to throw out refuse, the wolves are becoming bold. Some were seen on a street here and one seven-footer was caught in a trap.

Many Leaders Come From Small Centres

When Archbishop Owen said recently that more leaders in Toronto's civic life come from rural than from urban communities, he might just as well have said Peterborough as well. For more leaders in the life of this city come from villages and towns and small cities than come from large centres, a survey made this morning revealed.

Of twenty leaders in the clerical, manufacturing, business, and civic life of this city twelve were born in communities smaller than Peterborough, only eight in cities as large or larger. Among the city's clergymen only was the number in favour of urban centres. One clergyman from each denomination was contacted with the result that three were found to be from urban centres, two from rural communities. Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church was born in a seaside town in the county of Fife in Scotland, which has a population of about 1,500. Rev. Dr. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's United Church hails from Ballincar, a mile from Sligo in Connaught province, in northwest Ireland. Rev. P. J. Kelly of St. Peter's Cathedral was born in Peterborough. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Baptist Church was born in Philadelphia, Pa. Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson of St. John's Anglican Church was born in the city of Cork, in Ireland.

Of five manufacturing leaders, three were from small communities, two from cities. Charles Shaw, general manager of the A. Wander Company, hails from Burton-on-Trent in Staffordshire, England, a city of some 30,000 population. C. A. Salmonsen, works manager of the Canadian General Electric Company plant here, was born in Schenectady, N.Y., a city of some 90,000 population. J. H. Vernor, general manager, and Orley A. De Graw, sales manager of the Western Clock Company were both born on farms, Mr. Vernor in Michigan, Mr. De Graw in Wisconsin. Ald. James Dutton, manager of Stock's Bread Company, was born in the tiny hamlet of Reddish, in Lancashire, England. It is definitely rural, boasts only nine houses, in front which flow the Goyt River, one of the tributaries of the Mersey.

In the city's business life only one of four heads was born in a city. He is E. F. Mason, who was born in this city. W. C. Hughes, manager of Grafton's, was born in Dummer township. C. G. Collins, president and managing director of R. Neill, Ltd., was born in Petrolia, a town of 3,000 population. C. H. Saunders, manager of Richard Hall, Ltd., was born in Boscastle, Cornwall, England, a village of 300 persons.

Among the city council members, of half a dozen checked, all come from communities smaller than Peterborough except two who were born in this city. The two are Mayor James Hamilton and Ald. H. Bradburn. Ald. Malcolm McIntyre and Ald. Herb McCannon were born in Otonabee, Ald. Robert Cotton was born in Gananoque, Ald. R. M. Glover was born in Ashburnham, then a separate community.

Smile Weather Man On Santa's Parade For Children's Sake

Weather man! We are asking a special favor of you for Friday evening when Santa Claus comes to town.

We know you have to be about your wintry business, but please don't take it too seriously for an hour or two that evening. Keep it mild enough for the little folks to come out with their parents to see Santa Claus and all his attendants.

A little snow for the effect of reality would perhaps be acceptable, but if the northwest wind is impatient to wander abroad tell him to go around to the south entrance and temper his December mood to the sentiment of this community, anxious that every little gir land boy may join in the reception the Peterborough Business Men's Association has prepared for old Santa.

The happiness of Friday evening is going to depend largely on you, Mr. Weather Man, and if you could hear wee John and Margaret talking about trucks and airplanes and trains that run on tracks, dolls and dishes, and such a lot of other things Santa Claus represents to them you would give us such an evening that all the little ones would be down town, along the streets of Santa Claus' procession.

They have only a few years of that pure joy, these wee ones who live with us, but in a world apart. You may not know that, but the Business Men do, and that is why they obtain so much delight in planning a gay and noisy welcome to Santa Claus. They have done their part, and now it is up to you.

We are not greatly concerned about the youngsters of nine and ten and twelve. They can shift for themselves; and besides they get a bit familiar with Santa Claus.

No, it is the smaller ones who have to come out with mother and dad, or they can't come at all. And you must know how every mother, and every dad, too, for that matter, is eager to have Betty and Jim see Santa Claus, yes himself in person, and the bands and clowns and all the rest of the parade.

And, how they will talk about him every day, and especially every everning at bed time when "bairnies cuddle doon," until Christmas eve itself, and then it is all over.

Probably you do know, Mr. Weather Man, that the grown up folks in some countries have shut their borders and their doors against Santa Claus. So, if the northwest wind insists on going out Friday night let him take himself to those lands. And what if we are sentimental about the Old Chap? We're not ashamed of it, nor do we apologize for it; not when we see the light in Junior's eyes as his mother gets him ready Friday evening to go down town for the Santa Claus parade.

Such fancies as this big event of Friday night are part of the spirit of what we call somewhat ponderously our civilization, and that comprehends intangibles as our firesides, and mother love, and don't leave dad out of it, and our traditions; our faith in things and even our hope and charity; the wholesome and sweet and enduring things of life.

Isn't all that extremely important? That's why we ask you, Mr. Weather Man, for your favor Friday evening about the time that Santa Claus is moving gaily along the streets of Peterborough. And don't forget that it starts at 7:30 p.m.

Judgment was given by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. at an afternoon session of the police court Wednesday in the case of Wilbert Gilliland, trapper, charged with taking a muskrat out of season. The charge was laid by Fish and Game Overseer L. J. Lyons and the evidence in the case was heard at a previous session.

Magistrate Langley found Gilliland guilty and as it was the second conviction against the accused, the penalty was doubled and a fine of $10 and $4.65 costs imposed.

Gilliland was defended by W. B. Gordon.

Gene Hurtubise Plans To Relate Mighty Battle With Buck Deer

FROM HIS OWN LIPS will come the story of mighty wrestler Gene Hurtubise's heroic combat with a buck deer in the northern bush, when the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association holds its annual meeting on Wednesday, December 7.

The meeting will take the form of a complimentary dinner to members of the association at 6.30 p.m., at the Legion hall on Murray street. Non-members will be welcome to the dinner to the extent that catering facilities will permit, at a charge of fifty cents. Reservations should be made by phoning Al Sharpe, as accommodations are limited.

The general meeting will be at 7.45 p.m. and will be open to the general public. There will be a short program of entertainment followed by the election of officers and a general discussion of fish and game matters.

But the special attraction will be Gene Hurtubise. Gene has not entirely recovered from his experience and still walks with a limp. He has received a great many letters from all parts of Canada and the United States congratulating him on his feat. His presence at the dinner will probably bring out many an envious hunter to hear the story of the battle of the giants.

Y's Men's Show Makes Hit On First Night

A fast moving melange of music, dance routines and comedy, the musical revue, "Front Page Frolics," presented in the Collegiate Auditorium Wednesday night under the auspices of the Peterborough Y's Men's Club and under the direction of George Zarfas of the Canadian Production Company Hamilton, was a complete success from the opening chorus to the final curtain.

Mr. Zarfas has given Peterborough a number of such delightful productions and when it is said that this was a typical Zarfas show the high point in praise has been reached. There was not a dull moment, principals and chorus both scored heavily, the stage settings were adequate, the costumes colorful and the musical numbers had been carefully chosen and were effectively presented. The result was "Front Page Frolics" was an emphatic hit, registering completely with a large audience and meriting a capacity attendance for tonight when the revue will be repeated.

Newspaper Background

As the name suggests the production is built up around the idea of representing in musical comedy form all the departments and activities of a modern newspaper and upon that framework a very enjoyable entertainment has been built. During the two sections of the program the cast manages to get around to about every feature of the newspaper of today and George Nicholls and George Moore make the thing complete by introducing a comic "strip" during the last skit.

There were so many things in Wednesday night's revue that it is difficult for a reviewer to decide where to start. The inimitable George Nicholls perhaps might be selected as a begining for he acted as master of ceremonies during the cabaret scene that was a big feature of the show but also played a prominent part in several of the skits, was a member of the quartette and introduced a burlesque sports broadcast a la Graham MacNamee that was one of the comedy highlights of the night. Other contributors to the fun-making side of the revue were Orville Martin, Oscar Sloan, George Moore, Jack Dobbin, Eric May and Arnold Lillow.

Outstanding musical numbers were the singing of "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," by Mrs. Dorothy Goldie and her encore number, "I Love Life," both of which were sung in splendid voice and with fine expression and George Coleman's rendition of the always popular, "That's Why Darkies Were Born" and the spiritual, "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" the singer excelling himself in both songs. Marjorie White scored heavily in her presentation of "Chinatown," and especially in her effective singing of "Small Fry," a number that was one of the gems of the night. Arnold Lillow contributed a tuneful number, "Will You Remember Tonight Tomorrow" that was greatly enjoyed and Orville Martin made a hit with the popular "Lambeth Walk". Oscar Sloane put a lot of pep and swing into his rendition of "Walking Stick" and Eric May gave a spirited presentation of "Yam" with assistance from the chorus. A quartette composed of Clifford Hall, Jim Ridyard, George Nicholls and Arnold Lillow was heard to advantage in "Buckwheat Cakes" and had to respond to an encore.

Specialty Dances

A feature of the program was the dancing of Audrey Patterson and Jim Gosselin in several specialities, the nimble-footed pair earning generous applause from the audience. The dancing of the youthful and pretty chorus was another outstanding factor in the success of the revue. The routines were smartly and expertly performed and the girls earned brackets for their clever work in this department.

The "Little White House" number with Ivy James and Victor Coleman doing some notable vocalizing and Jack Smith contributing a clever bit of pantomime as the preacher was thoroughly appreciated as was the "First Nighters" skit with Betty Lytle, Roy Lewis and Rolly Krant featured and the amusing little blackout "Memory Test" offered by Jean Weir and Dave Grant.

Don Crawford and Earl Wilson were featured in an entertaining little playlet, "The Gordion Knot," an unusual sketch with a surprise ending. They had the assistance of George Nicholls as the burglar in this well acted number.

"Mrs. Snobleigh Entertains" was a comedy sketch that was just that. It found George Nicholls and George Moore who had started out to be burglars called upon to play the part of footmen at a society event and we do not propose to tell you how the two obeyed the order to serve the salad "without dressing." Cliff Hall was the hen-pecked "Murphy" Mrs. Arthur Nelson the aspiring society woman, Arnold Lillow the amusing butler who was always "just going to do it." Ivy James, the winsome daughter, Clifford Cruickshanks the gallant hero and Harold Coleman the dignified but foiled foreign ambassador. A lot of fun and a host of laughs were packed into this merry mixup before the kinks were satisfactorily eliminated.

The girls and boys who did so much to make "Front Page Frolics" a "smash" entertainment were listed as follows on the program: Muriel Miles, Rosamund Burns, Mary Wainwright, Betty White, Frances Wolfe, Margaret Bair, Hazel Tighe, Verna Allen, Margaret Louden, Margaret Weir, Marion Shaughnessy, Isabel Duffus, Jean Nicholls, Jean Belleghem, Dolly Sproat, Marion Moore, Audrey Patterson, Bink Shadgett, Isabel Shadgett, Betty Goldie, Evelyn Ranger, Betty Lytle, Jean Weir, Harry Marsh, George Broadley, Clifford Cruikshank Howey Hammell, James Gosselin, Lyle Leckie, Jack Skitch, Dave Grant, Wm. Taylor Rolly Krant, Roy Lewis, Jack Smith, George Moore, William Saunders, Jim Ridyard, Harold Taylor, Victor Coleman.

Mrs. George Nicholls was the efficient pianist for the revue and was assisted by a five-piece orchestra.

"Front Page Frolics" will be repeated to-night, and there should not be a vacant seat when the opening chorus swings into action. It is a fine show in aid of a good cause.

Transient Sentenced To Seven Days In Jail Feared He Would Miss Christmas Dinner

Stating that he had a sister in St. Thomas whom he wished to visit and that he had not been home for Christmas for several years, William McVey, a transient, who pleaded guilty in police court this morning to a charge of having been drunk in a public place asked Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., for a chance.

"You will be able to see your sister by a week from Sunday", replied the court. "I am going to make it $10 and 75 cents costs or seven days in jail. You can make it by a week from Sunday if you walk fast enough".

"I'll get out on the highway", said the accused smilingly as he manipulated his thumb in the well known hitch hikers' gesture.

Auburn Mill Was Built 75 Years Ago Operated By James Kendry For Years

The closing of the Auburn Mills writes the word "finis" to one of the city's oldest industries. They were built in 1862-3 and first carried on by Messrs Palon and Muir, and afterwards passed to James Kendry and a new company. Equipped with what was at that time, the latest and best type of machinery, they met with great manufacturing success. As far back as 1864 the company won a gold medal at Dubline Exhibition for the best Canadian tweed, and a silver medal in the same year at Montreal Exhibition.

Mr. Kendry, who died 20 years ago in November, 1918, was buried on the day on which premature news of the armistic came through. It was one of the largest funerals ever seen at Little Lake Cemetery. In his lifetime he had been always interested in local affairs, both in the municipal and parliamentary field.

He was born in Oshawa in 1845, and in 1870 came to Peterborough as manager of the Auburn Mills. He was Mayor 1892, 1895 and in 1900; Alderman 1883 to 1981, and member of the Board of Education 1883-1900. A keen politician and strong Conservative he was elected to the Dominion Parliament on June 23, 1896, defeating the late Richard Hall by 319 votes, and held his seat on November 7, 1900; but on November 3, 1904, he was defeated by R. R. Hall.

FOR THE GUIDANCE of the public the police department announces in connection with Friday night's Santa Claus parade that no cars will be allowed to park on the east side of George street from Charlotte street to Murray street from 6 o'clock until after the parade. No parking will be allowed, either, on any of the four streets bounding Victoria Park.

The public is asked to remain on the sidewalk and not crowd out into the roadway as the parade approaches. It is pointed out that if everybody will obey this police order, it will be possible for all to have a clear view of the Christmas procession and the floats and other features will show to better advantage.

Dr. Harold Long Heads Dentists

Members of the Peterborough District Dental Society met Wednesday in the Empress Hotel for an afternoon and evening clinic. The clinician, Dr. Lawrence Twible, a member of the Faculty of Dentistry, Toronto, gave a most interesting and educational lecture together with a practical demonstration in prosthetic dentistry.

This being the last clinic of the present year the annual election of officers took place. Dr. Harold Long was elected president, with Dr. Wilfred Preston, secretary-treasurer.

At the dinner meeting which followed the afternoon clinic, Dr. Long, the new president, assumed office from the retiring president, Dr. Ralph Honey. During dinner Dr. Gullett, Picton, the Central Ontario representative on the Board of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, gave a very interesting review of the work of the board, and also discussed the problems which the board had to deal with in their negotiations with the Dominion Dental Council.

The evening clinic was attended by a large group, including men from Cobourg, Port Hope, Brighton, Millbrook, Lindsay and Bobcaygeon.

Plea Is Changed In Liquor Case

Joseph Delore had pleaded guilty to a charge in police court this morning of illegal possession of liquor and started to make an explanation to the effect that he had been taking the liquor "up to his place" when he was interrupted by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C.

"If you were taking it from one legal place to another then you are not guilty", he informed the accused. "Possibly he wanted to plead not guilty", remarked Crown Attorney McElderry.

"If that's the law, I'll plead not guilty", said Delore who declared that he was ready to proceed with the case.

The crown was not ready, however, and Delore was remanded until Monday for trial.

On a second charge of having stolen two cords of body hardwood from Herb Doig the accused promptly pleaded not guilty this time and that case also went over until Monday.

December Gloomy For Many Homes

The month of December with its prospect of Christmas, is a gloomy month for several hundred people in this city—fathers of families of small children, who are out of work, who know not where to turn for employment.

At least a hundred men call at the Employment Service of Canada every morning, looking for any kind of work that will bring them a little money, according to Dan Douglas, superintendent. "Everything is quiet," Mr. Douglas said today. "And we particularly need little jobs of one sort and another at this time of year." He urged that if any man or woman in the city has any kind of a job that would give even an hour or two's employment to these men, they should call him immediately at 571.

Only bright spot in the entire day came this afternoon when a jobseeker called at the office and his face lighted up. "I'm sure glad to see that things are brightening up," he told Mr. Douglas. Puzzled, the superintendent asked him what he meant. "Well," came the reply, "I see you have your furniture all changed around again, and I've noticed in the past that when you change it around things seem to pick up for a while." Mr. Douglas is a little dubious, but he's hoping the observation is a sign of something or other.

Big Cosmetics Job Painting Faces Of Clowns

Come, Boys! Come!
Says the Big Bass Drum,
There's a show in town,
And a funny clown
Riding a bicycle upside down.

That's the song of a little boy who is eagerly waiting for the arrival of Santa Claus on Friday night and the reception and parade that has been arranged by the Peterborough Business Men's Association.

The procession is scheduled to be under way along Charlotte Street promptly at 7.30 o'clock in the neighborhod of Aylmer Street. It is easy to remember the route: Charlotte, Water, Hunter, Aylmer, Charlotte, George, Murray, Victoria Park.

The Business Men consider that the parade is primarily for children, and they have appealed to Chief Newhall to keep the east side of George Street clear of automobiles from Charlotte Street to Murray Street. Some parents bring their children down town in cars, but many others have to come on foot, and it is only fair that a long stretch of street should be vacant of obstructing automobiles.

A Big Make-up Job.

Those who are taking part in the parade are being asked to report at the Empress Hotel around six o'clock. Sixty or seventy clowns and other characters have to be made up in about an hour, a wholesale cosemeticians' job. The Empress Hotel is again the headquarters of the parade. Sample rooms have been assigned for the group make-up detail. Several experts are coming from Toronto for that purpose, and the Business Men are also hoping to enlist the skill of Al Plunkett, formerly of Dumb Bells, George Zarfas, who is director of the Y's Men's Frolic, and others who have had experience in that work.

T. A. MacKay is undertaking transportation of thirty-five children from the Children's Shelter and St. Vincent's Orphanage. They are going to see the parade from the second floor windows of Zeller's Store, and they are hoping that Santa Claus will pause a moment there as he passes by.

Another bit of news this morning was to the effect that Reg. Turner is preparing an additional float for the parade, but is keeping its subject a secret.

FICTION AND FEATURES

ROMANCE INC.

BY OREN ARNOLD

Read This First:

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, creates a furore on the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, when she erects a sign in front of her cottage announcing "COUNSEL IN ROMANCE". Her plan is to help guide 100 student "members" in their social and love affairs for a small fee. Bob Towne, campus football hero, much attracted by Sara Sue, is the first to enroll. This enrages Peaches Pomeroy, a senior who regarded herself as "Bob's girl" the previous year. Worthington Gurley, unprepossessing freshman, provides another problem when it is evident he is interested in Sara Sue. The climax in her Cottage Plan occurs when sedate Dr. Thornton Holgate, new member of the faculty, begs Sara Sue to help him . . . then confides his love for Peaches Pomeroy. She does, and gives him his first lessons in "how to become more human". Then T. J. Sanders, a sports goods salesman, appears on the scene and seeks out Sara Sue to help him locate a pretty girl he had seen in the stands at a local football game. The girl, of course, is Sara Sue herself.

CHAPTER 14

WHEN quick - on - the - trigger salesmen such as T. J. Sanders are caught with nothing to say, that's news. It means one of two things: they are ill, or they are in love. Mr. Sanders was not ill.

He certainly did not, as a rule, stand gawking at pretty girls like a yokel, either. He had never been known to blush, or to poke his finger awkardly at girls and mumble, "You—you—y-you—"

But he was doing all these things now.

He had expected Mrs. Sara Sue Davis, personally and incorporated to be a somewhat stoutish widow of perhaps 52, wearing a benign smile, wearing a little too much face paint, and having a definitely officious, managerial manner. The Mrs. Davis who came to him, therefore, was glorified by contrast.

She had greeted him politely, and waited. Now the moment's wait threatened to stretch into a century. Not that a century is too long a time to stare at Sara Sue: nothing of that sort. But, well, when a young business man calls on a young business woman on business, somebody just has to start talking sometime. Sara Sue perceived that she would have to go a step further.

"Won't you sit down?" She invited. "If there is something I can do for you—"

"Oh. Oh, sure," he said. "Gosh!"

"Am I, then, so shocking?" Sara Sue smiled.

Oh, No, ma'am! Ha, ha! I must be acting like a freshman. The fact is, I was quite surprised. Fact is—well—I wondered if you would want Nightmare? That's it, Nightmare!" He grasped at Nightmare somewhat desperately, and in obvious relief.

"Nightmare?"

"Yes'm. My bulldog. Don't you remember? At the game? I had him dressed like an owl."

"Oh, yes. Surely! I recognize you now. You sat just behind mother and me, didn't you, Mr. Sanders. He was a nice dog. But do you mean now—?"

"Yes, ma'am. I've got to get rid of him, I mean, circumstances are such that I shall be unable to keep him for the next year or so, and I remembered you got along with him and seemed to like him (Mr. Sanders' poise and tongue had returned) so if you want him, he's yours."

Now the fact is, T. J. Sanders valued Nightmare somewhat more than he did his own soul. As a matter of comparative statistics T. J.'s books would show that he gave $25 to churches, community chest and other charities last year but that he planked down a $50 check for Nightmare as a pup. Sometimes Nightmare even slept with him.

But remember that Mr. Sanders had been suddenly faced with a girl who, although unknown, had haunted him for days. When you come abruptly face to face with love like that, you do unaccountable things. He just simply had to have some logical excuse for calling on Sara Sue Davis like that. He couldn't blurt out news of his infatuation; he couldn't get fresh with this girl; to this girl he absolutely must appear gentlemanly and refined, he felt. What, therefore, had they in common? What conceivable mission could have brought him logically to her private office?

Frantically searching his mind for an answer as she stood before him, he had hit on poor Nightmare. And before he realized it he had given Nightmare away!

Sara Sue was delighted. T. J. brought the ugly bulldog from his car and presented him in the flesh. Strangely, this did not hurt his (T. J.'s) feelings, either. Nor for that matter did it appear to hurt Nightmare's. He (Nightmare) licked Sara Sue's hand in apparent happiness and contentment. Mr. Sanders didn't, but could have done the same thing.

T. J.'s financial mind was reasoning that the world is full of good bulldogs, but contains only One Girl. If Nightmare had cost him $500 instead of $50, the introduction he was getting to this girl was worth it. He stooped to pet old Nightmare with genuine affection. There was much conversation. A deal of talk anent diets, habits, worms, collars, leashes, puppies, pedigrees, tricks—Nightmare could stand on two legs, do somersaults, roll over, play dead, wear spectacles, and hold a cigaret in his ferocious looking mouth. He could, and had on one occasion, torn an aggressive, ill-tempered police dog to shreds, but despite his appearance and ability, Nightmare distinctly was not a mean bully. Few bulldogs are, for that matter. Sara Sue thought him grand. T. J. thought her grand. T. J. gave deep thought to the matter of asking for a date with Sara Sue.

Normally he wouldn't have wasted any thought on such a detail. He would simply have flung out, "I'm coming by with a can of paint Thursday night, kid; some of the town needs re-painting." That or some similarly cocky remark. Usually he found he had an affirmative answer. But he sensed that he must take another tack with Mrs. Davis, Inc.

"I just felt that you liked good dogs, Mrs. Davis," T. J. began, fishing for an opening. "So I wanted you to have Nightmare. It is much better that he be with someone who appreciates him, I said to myself yesterday. By the way, have you even seen the Gulfport kennels? Nightmare was sired there."

"No. No, I haven't."

"Well, say, you may think I'm—did Calculus tell you who I was, ma'am? I've been around Rice here for three years. I'm representative of the Columbian Sporting Goods corporation. Here's my card. But what I was going to say was, that I'd like to show you those Kennels. Just so you could discuss Nightmare's points and background and all with them, if you wanted to. He's really a well-bred dog. I could—I could drive you out there and back in half an hour some afternoon."

"I'd love it," said Sara Sue, petting Nightmare.

"I'll drop by sometime when it's convenient for you," T. J. beamed. He decided to advance with caution. An initial victory should be nursed a while.

He departed in what he felt was her good graces.

Everything was rosy until after supper.

Nightmare made himself quite at home. Cleopatra didn't like his looks, but when Sara Sue put him through his tricks, Cleo, the cook, decided he was worthy, and so fed him. Nightmare yawned prodigiously, curled up by the living room fire and went to sleep. Such domesticity would perhaps have been undisturbed, even with the clatter and laughing of collegians who dropped in, if Mr. Robert Towne hadn't been among them.

Big booming Bob, never meek, came in noisily as usual. Not only was his voice dominant, but it was recognized. Nightmare bestirred himself and came forward eagerly to greet an old friend, one who had frequently petted him.

"Say, isn't this — whose dog?" Bob asked Sara Sue.

"Mine. Don't you just love him?"

"Your's Where'd you get him?"

"Must I tell you everything, Mr. Towne?"

"T. J. Sanders been hanging around here?"

"He gave Nightmare to me."

"No. He wouldn't."

"He did. Why wouldn't he?"

"Gave him to you? Outright?"

"Yes. Why? Did you want Nightmare yourself?"

Bob stared hard at her. He knew T. J. Sanders well.

"Listen to me, Sara Sue. Have you got a date with T. J. Sanders?" He jabbed it at her, rather abruptly.

"No! Why—why yes, come to think of it, I do have. A sort of date."

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—A man who is an instructor in one of our large colleges wishes to marry me. He has traveled widely, has degrees from several colleges and can converse freely with people on any subject. I did not finish high school. Have been in business since I was a young girl. And I feel that this man knows too much for me. When I am with him I feel so small and limited in my education and knowledge that I am uncomfortable and am dumb, but when I am with others on my own level I can chatter like a magpie. This man is all any woman could wish in a husband, but if I should marry him I would have to live on the campus of the college where he is teaching and associate with other people like him and I am afraid they would look down on me. He is almost overambitious and I am satisfied with a quiet, peaceful home life. I can cook and sew and keep a neat, clean house, but can I come up to his standards in education and mix gracefully with his associates?

READER.

ANSWER:

Of course, there are exceptions to all rules, especially to those that apply to the marriage game, but, generally speaking, it is a mighty safe bet to marry in your own class intellectually as well as socially and financially.

Congeniality is the one essential thing in marriage, and unless a husband and wife have the same interests, the same tastes, the same habits and thoughts and like to do the same things, they are sure to be in perpetual quarrels, or bore each other to death, or both.

A man and a woman can, for instance, have a perfectly thrilling evening together reading Sophocles. But if one wanted to read Sophocles and the other was dying to get back to a detective story where buckets of blood were beginning to flow, either he or she would have a pretty thin time of it. And fancy the agony of having to live with a husband or wife who was a swing jitterbug if your taste ran to classical music!

Of course, if either one of a married couple has to be intellectually superior to the other, it is better for the man to be, because a clever man is not ashamed of a dull wife as a clever woman is ashamed of a dull husband. Also, men like to feel that they are superior to their wives, but unless a woman is a Patient Griselda—and there are not many of them in these days—it doesn't make for the wife's happiness to know that her husband regards her as a nice little thing, a pretty plaything, or a good cook, but not in his mental class.

I think you have answered your own question as to the advisability of marrying this man when you say that when you are with your own kind of people that you are bubbling over with conversation and laughter and have a free and easy gay time, but when you are with your professor that you are ill at ease and have nothing to say. That feeling will be intensified if you go to live among his college crowd, whose background and interests have been so different from yours.

We always pity the brilliant men who have commonplace wives, but our real sympathy should go to the wives who have the humiliation of knowing that their husbands' friends think that they have married beneath themselves: of knowing that they are dragged around to parties into which they do not fit because they have to be invited with their husbands. And, worst of all, of knowing that their husbands go to other women when they want to discuss the things in which they are really interested.

Unless you are so devoted to this man that you are willing to spend the balance of your life burning incense at his feet don't marry him.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—For some time I have had an affair with my office manager and it has been fun to realize that I can hold his affection, although he is younger than I and is married and has several children. He lived with me while his family was away and was so sweet to me. Bought me and my children lots of things, and, of course, I tell him that I love him more than any person in the world. And it is the most fun to see how he believes it all and still spends most of his time with me. But this worries me: His salary isn't enough to support two families, so he has borrowed money and I am afraid he may lose his job and there will be a scandal. Also, I would lose my job. But if I break off the affair he will probably get mad and stop payment of some of the things he has bought for me. So what shall I do?

EDWINA.

ANSWER:

Laugh yourself to death, for a woman who has as little heart and as few morals as you possess has no place in a world of decent human beings. If your idea of humor is wrecking a home, breaking a sister woman's heart, half-orphaning little children and getting a poor, weak man into trouble you must be having a perfectly hilarious time.

You think it is "fun" to take a man away from his wife by flatteries and cajoleries. You think it is "fun" to destroy her faith forever in him. You think it is "fun" to deprive little children of a father. You think it is "fun" to induce this man to spend money on you that he cannot afford and which he has to borrow or steal.

I think the devils in hell must laugh at jokes like that. Certainly no one with a vestige of sympathy or kindness could think them funny. And perhaps when you have lost your job and your little easy mark and are smirched with scandal, you won't think them so amusing, either.

• • • • • •

DEAR MISS DIX—When I was a small child my mother and father separated because of his affairs with other women. My mother worked and supported me until I graduated. Then I went to work and repaid her by taking care of her until she died. Now my father, who is quite an old man but whom I have never seen since I was a child and who never did anything for me, wants to come and spend the remainder of his days with his "dear daughter" and his "beautiful grandchildren." He has a small income each month and a home of his own, so I do not see why I should bring a stranger, for whom I have no affection, into my house, certainly making a disturbing element for my husband and children. Is it my duty? WORRIED DAUGHTER.

ANSWER:

I do not think so. I do not see what claim a father who has deserted his children in their infancy and who has never done his duty by them has upon them. He has forfeited all his rights by his own conduct. DOROTHY DIX.

For Friday, December 2.

The lunar transits for this day may be expected to give excellent impetus to employment, industry, relations with superiors and those in power, with prospect of advancement, preferments, and probably increased finances. Elders also seem to play an important part, through inheritance, trust or insurance. However, there is much concern regarding the bereavement or grave condition of an elderly person.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year of advancement, promotion or other marks of preferment from employers, elders, or superiors. There also are auguries of gifts, insurance, bequest or trust, although there may be much grave concern regarding an elderly person. Be discreet in social matters and safeguard finances.

A child born on his day may be steady, studious, profound and responsible, attracting the attention and preferment of those in places of power and influence. At the same time, it may be inclined to remain aloof, enjoying solitude and a life of contemplation.

TOO ANXIOUS

PRINCE ALBERT—(CP). — Joe Pocha, 77, who for many years has been the first Prince Albert resident to cross the Saskatchewan River each fall after freeze-up, almost lost his life this year in the attempt. About 200 yards from shore the ice gave way and he plunged waist-deep in water. Firemen rescued him.

By MAX TRELL

"Ah, good evening, my dears," Mr. Punch, the puppet said, as Knarf and Hanid, the shadow-children with the turn-about names, walked into the playroom.

"Good evening, Mr. Punch," the two shadows replied. "Would you like to take a walk with us?"

"To be sure I would. There's nothing in the world I like better than a nice brisk walk, especially on a fine moonlit night like this. But you must walk briskly. Will you promise me that?"

Must Have Stick.

"We'll walk as briskly as you like. Let's start right away," said Knarf.

"Yes, of course—right away. But first I've got to find my—find my—"

"Would you like to take a walk?"

Mr. Punch was looking all over for something.

"Find what, Mr. Punch?" asked Hanid.

"My Walking-stick. I can't walk without my walking-stick. My goodness! It's lost."

So Hanid and Knarf began helping Mr. Punch find his walking-stick. They looked in all corners of the room. Finally Mr. Punch said: "Well, never mind. I'll do without my walking-stick this time."

"Hoo-ray!" shouted Knarf. "Now we can start."

"Yes," said Mr. Punch. "I'm all ready except that—dear me, I do need a hat, don't I? I can't go walking without a hat."

"Where did you leave it?" Knarf said, feeling very disappointed again.

"Why, it was hanging on a peg somewhere."

Once more the shadows helped him to look. But they couldn't find any sign of Mr. Punch's hat.

Go Without It?

"Well, I'll do without my hat," he said at last. "Walking without a hat will be fun. And now I really am ready. H'mm—" he added the next instant. Knarf, who had already reached the door, stopped suddenly.

"Have you forgotten something else?" he asked in alarm.

"Just my—ha-ha—just my shoes. I don't seem to see them on my feet. That is strange, isn't it? I guess perhaps I'd better wait right here until you come back. Then you can tell me how much you enjoyed it!"

Looking Back
On This Date

"Now that they have so completely all the advantages of self-government they ought to have some of the burthens."

These words written by Earl Grey, then Colonial Secretary, to the Earl of Elgin, governor-general of British America, on Dec. 1, 1848, illustrate once more how history repeats itself. Now, 90 years after, Canada, as an autonomous nation within the British Commonwealth, is undertaking a complete system of national defence. Perhaps by the time the full century has run out she may be able to say that the job is complete.

Lord Grey told Elgin that the imperial government was ready to defend the provinical capitals and fortresses and to support any local force in the event of war or internal disturbance, but thought that "the colonists should support themselves the troops wanted to preserve the tranquility of the country." He asked that the Province of Canada should undertake the upkeep of the barracks, except at Quebec Citadel and at Kingston, both of which were imperial outposts.

Lord Elgin disagreed. He thought that a mistaken mode of dealing with the subject, for "to enter into bargains with the provincial legislatures would furnish perpetually recurring occasions for jealousy and mutual irritation." First, he said restore commerical prosperity, and then "I will not say to what extent you may not then entrust the safekeeping of the province to the patriotism of its inhabitants . . . But do not broach new doctrines regarding colonial defence when there is no enemy in the field and at a moment when every individual in the colony is ascribing all the mischief to the inconsistencies of imperial legislation."

The defence question eventually worked itself out with the development of the country. Cartier's milita bills, both before and after Confederation, paved the way for a gradual withdrawal of the British regular garrisons, except at Halifax and Esquimalt, where they remained until the beginning of this century. And on the whole, considering the financial aid the militia has been given, it has done pretty well.

PAINFUL PILES

Can Be Quickly Relieved

If you think there is no way to relieve the misery of piles, it's because you don't know HEM-ROID, an internal medicine, from a prescription written by Dr. Leonhardt, a western physician.

The real cause of piles is on the inside—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel, with the tiny rectal veins full of stagnant, impure blood.

Dr. Leonhardt decided the way to relieve piles was internally, with a medicine which would ease the congestion of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and help to heal and restore the sore, tender spots. After many tests he wrote the prescription which has been so successful in giving quick relief from pile misery, it is now offered to you with our promise that you may have your money back if you are not completely satisfied after using one bottle.

No matter what kind of piles you have or how long you have had them, HEM-ROID must show you the quick, clean way to get rid of your pile misery or your money will be given back to you. McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store or any other druggist can supply you with HEM-ROID and will back up this promise.—Advt.

HOW ARE YOUR KIDNEYS?

FOR the relief of minor kidney irregularities Dr. Pierce's A-nuric Tablets have been found very beneficial. The action of this stimulant diuretic in flushing the kidneys, diluting acid, and relieving irritation has given relief to men and women in every part of Canada. Read what Mrs. C. Wilson, 612 Park St., Niagara Falls, Ont., said: "My kidneys didn't function properly and my rest was often disturbed at night. Dr. Pierce's A-nuric was the medicine that helped me. I certainly had a trying time of it before I used 'A-nuric' but since I have started to take these tablets I have improved beyond my expectations."

CAMPBELLFORD

O.R.E.C. Holding Leadership School

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 1. — An option of four different courses is being provided by the Leadership Training School which opened here for the second in its series of meetings on Wednesday evening. Held under the auspices of the Seymour, Belmont and Campbellford Ontario Religious Education Council the course has attracted a large number of young people in this district. Officers for this district are headed by Alex Milne of Burnbrae; Miss Elsie Rannie, secretary-treasurer; and Rev. Harold B. Neal, Dean of the School. The concluding meeting will be held in St. Andrew's Church on Dec. 6 when prizes will be awarded and diplomas will be given to those successfully completing the course. Intensive study of the Old Testament, the times and work of the prophets forms a general basis for the work. From the New Testament the Gospel of St. Mark is being stressed. The third and fourth options deal with Christian young people's problems and worship. Those offering instruction during the coure are Rev. Dr. C. S. Reddick, Rev. J. A. MacMillan, Rev. Harold B. Neal, Rev. B. Simpson Black, Rev. A. McLaughlin and Captain D. Sharpe, Book Steward.

To Entertain Norham Y.P.S.

Preparations for the program to be presented next Monday evening when the young people from Norham will be their guests were made by members of St. John's Y.P.U. on Monday evening. It was decided to send delegates to the Winter School which will be held in Belleville. Miss Mae Stotts had charge of the program and during the devotional period gave a delightful poem. Miss Pat Cryderman lead the group in prayer. Considerable attention was focussed on the situation in Germany by a thoughtful address given by Earl A. Bell. Mr. Bell's topic was "The Christian Church in Germany." Other items on the program included a vocal duet by Constance and Frank McKelvie; reading, Donald Holmes; a sing son led by Harold Kitney and Miss Dorothy Henson. Wilsie Phillips provided the accompaniment for Constance and Frank McKelvie. The meeting concluded with a few interesting games.

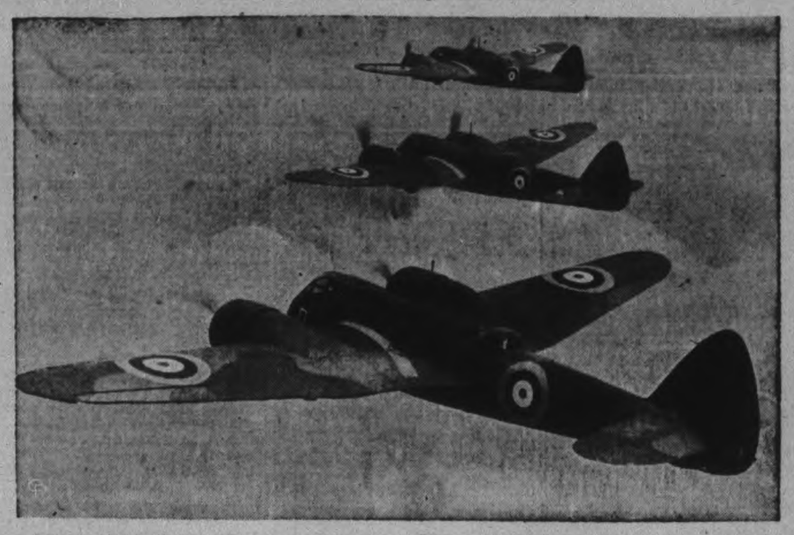
Get Wise to Constipation!

When you're constipated, it's a great temptation to be satisfied with quick relief. But physics may become a habit. And they don't keep constipation from returning. It's so much better to get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat what most people do, chances are the only thing the matter is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean how much you eat. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

What to do? Eat a little Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. This crunchy toasted cereal is not only rich in "bulk"—it also contains the natural intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1. All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ontario. Sold by every grocer.

Canada Manufactures War Airplanes



The Bristol Blenheim is currently the standard day bomber of the Royal Air Force, and a squadron of these fast planes are incorporated in the Royal Australian Air Force. Eighteen of these high performance twin-engined models are now under construction at the Fairchild Aircraft factory, Longueuil, Quebec, for the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Cool Consideration World's Need Today

OSHAWA, Ont., Dec. 1 (C.P.). — Dr. H. C. Wallace, principal of Queen's University, told the University Alumni Association of Oshawa district last night that sane thinking and cool consideration are needed vitally when dealing with international conditions of to-day.

Dr. Wallace told the gathering at the 10th annual dinner, that he believed a shorter coure within the university would serve the purpose of the student to-day, with the course to be completed in practical experience and study in the business world.

'Recovery Of Moral Health Needed To Hold Place In World'—Meighen

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Dec. 1.—(CP).—Only "by a supreme recovery of moral health and martial vigor can we hope to hold our heads high and retain our place in the democracy of the world to-day," Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader in the Canadian Senate, said last night at the 139th anniversary dinner of the St. Andrew's Society of Saint John.

Senator Meighen dealt with the "immediate presence of crisis around us" from an International aspect.

Referring to criticism in the United States against the Chamberlain policy and Munich agreement, the speaker wondered why the British government should have more concern over the principles of democracy than the United States.

Britain had no written or moral obligation on behalf of Czechoslovakia, he pointed out. "Why should Czechoslovakia become a shambles and cemetery," he asked, referring to an opinion that Prime Minister Chamberlain was "ungallant" to that country in the matter of Germany's minority demands in th Sudetenland.

The former Canadian Prime Minister denied the right of any Canadian or people of other countries to question Great Britain's course unless they were prepared to share in another course. The force of democracy needed sympathy and active help. National defence was a pressing necessity.

Maintenance of Britain and France as the "two great fortifications of democracy" was essential, declared Senator Meighen. He urged that Canada gird herself to retain the ideals of democracy.

"I tremble for the fate of Canada should it fail to pursue the right course," he said.

CHICKS ARE VICTIMS

Coe Hill Skater Has Near Call

(Examiner Correspondence.)

COE HILL, Dec. 1—Eugene Parks, eight-year-old son of Rodolphus Parks of Coe Hill, narrowly escaped drowning in Eagle Lake, one mile south of this village on Sunday afternoon while skating with his brother Clifford and his uncle, Frank Parks.

Eugene had gone out on thin ice against the warnings of his uncle, and his disappearance was first noticed by Mr. T. Luke, a neighbor, who gave the alarm.

The boy was rescued, as he was going down for the third time, by his uncle who risked his own life by going out on the thin ice and reaching into the icy waters to grasp him.

The Coe Hill Gospel Tabernacle of the Associated Gospel churches, purchased last week a house and lot as a parsonage for the pastor of the Tabernacle. The pastor, Rev. F. Wicks, under whose leadership the Tabernacle work was founded 7½ years ago, built and paid for, has already moved into the new parsonage.

The Ladies' Guild of the Anglican church met at the home of Mrs. Charles McCormack on Thursday.

French-Canadians Said Misunderstood

GANANOQUE, Ont., Dec. 1 (CP). —J. Alex. Edmison, Montreal attorney, told the St. Andrew's Society dinner here last night that "one of the greatest barriers to Canadian unity is the great ignorance of most people, particularly Ontario, concerning the French-Canadian."

Mr. Edmison, candidate for an aldermanic seat in Montreal, in urging interprovincial unity and understanding, told his listeners he spoke "as one who has spent the last 10 years in the Province of Quebec, after spending 25 years in Ontario."

"When I lived in Ontario I had a complete misunderstanding of French-Canadians, and a prejudice against them based on current misconceptions.

"The sooner the people of Ontario get to know the French-Canadian, get to appreciate his viewpoint and understanding, his aspirations and ambitions, the sooner we well bring about inter-provincial unity, which is absolutely necessary in the future if Canada is to take the leading part she should in world affairs."

Mr. Edmison declared democracy is one of the safeguards against inroads of Fascism and Communism. He attacked evils of election corruption and political patronage and warned that "we must keep our house in order."

As a graduate of Queen's University, Mr. Edmison paid tribute to the contribution by Scottish people generally and Presbyterians in particular toward the building of a university known all over the world.

We Noticed

....Let's talk about clothes today—after all, we can't think about Christmas gifts ALL the time!

....Did you notice a trio of intriguing little frocks in one of the shop windows on lower George Street? Just the type for informal Christmas parties, and in such enchanting colors.

....A dress to slay any stag line—or merely a single stag—is one of smooth, light-weight wool in soft rose. It is simply made, with a tucked skirt, and on the shoulder is a shaggy chrysanthemum of grey, old rose, and blue, fashioned of selvage edges. A second is of teal blue crepe with a new neckline, and a wide band of soft suede in a tomato shade girdles the slim waist. A third is of dusty pink, its skirt and bodice pintucked, its short sleeves, two pockets, and demurely rounded neck edged with half circles of fabric in the same lovely shade.

Bazaar Reflects Happy Christmas Spirit

Mrs. W. R. Morris opened the Salvation Army Christmas Bazaar which was held Wednesday afternoon and evening in the Boys' Sunday School hall of the Salvation Army Temple.

"No matter how fine our purpose or wholesome our thought, we must have money to carry on, and if we strive for that money to further a worthwhile interest, our efforts will be blessed," said Mrs. Morris in declaring the bazaar officially open. She was introduced by Mrs. N. Warrander.

Festive yuletide colors in crepe paper festoons of green and red, sprays of evergreen, and tiny Christmas bells decked the entrance to the separate classrooms and the bazaar tables, which lined each side of the wide entrance hall. A tall Christmas tree gaily trimmed with sparkling tinsel and colored balls delighted the eyes of shoppers as they entered.

An inviting tea room was arranged at one end of the bazaar quarters, where tea was served at individual tables under the direction of Mrs. S. J. Richardson, Mrs. A. Scott, Mrs. A. Wilson, Mrs. W. Butcher, Mrs. G. Thomas, Mrs. T. Rose, Mrs. R. C. Braund and Mrs. F. Grey.

Mrs. S. Winterbottom and Mrs. J. Craig convened the apron booth, where crisp gingham aprons, dainty organdy banded with red and navy, or quaint peasant styles found a quick sale. Mrs. R. Routley and Mrs. M. Bond were in charge of the ladies' wear stall, where nightgowns, cosy knitted slippers and bedjackets, house dresses, etc., were on display. Mrs. G. Routley and Mrs. M. Shadgett were conveners of the fancy table, with its variety of attractive and useful accessories for the home.

Mrs. S. Boorman and Mrs. A. Mills presided at the candy table, where ice cream was also sold. The pretty candy boxes were white and trimmed with appliques of red. Quilts were sold by Mrs. A. McDougal. Outstanding in the collection was a quilt in the brown-eyed susan pattern, and single bed size quilts in a colonial doll design, its pattern outlined with black blanket stitching. Mrs. C. Barringer and Mrs. B. Jewell were in charge of the children's wear table. Nurse dolls dressed in crisp white uniforms and caps; in knitted suits, and a Salvation Army lassie wearing the navy costume of the Junior Girls' Choir, its removable cape lined with red, were commanding attention here.

Mrs. G. Kennedy and Miss Florence Rose were in charge of the pound stall, where delicious jams, jellies, apples, etc., were on sale. Mrs. W. Jones and Mrs. Childs convened the surprise package table, where dainty handkerchiefs were also shown. Mrs. R. Routley, Mrs. J. James and Mrs. W. McGee were in charge of the novelty booth, which displayed attractive articles to delight the Christmas shopper.

General conveners of the affair were Mrs. N. Warrander, Mrs. E. Hedge, sesretary and Mrs. B. Smith, treasurer.

During the evening a fine musical program was provided by the Saxaphone Party, composed of bandmaster G. Routley, and bandmen M. Shadgett, L. Boorman, A. Mills, L. French, B. Smith, Butcher and W. Scollard.

WRONG WAY ALSO RIGHT WAY

BY ALICE ALDEN

DOUGLAS Corrigan, the wrong-way aviator, may not be keen about the fair sex, but he has done his bit to help popularize a fashion. We refer to the Corrigan "wrong way" sweater, a garment that looks good when worn front side front or vice versa. Here are two views of it, both front and the wrong-way, to show you how nice it is in reverse. Specifications include a V-neckline and wide revers, fastening with one button at the side back. It may be fastened in front, too.

Salads Remain Standbys Of Good Menus

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

JUST because we are pre-occupied with thoughts of holiday meals and menus, we should give our attention also to salads, fresh or molded. They are always good standbys, for they can be prepared well in advance of service and put away in the refrigerator.

After a morning of shopping it is nice to come home to a luncheon that is easily prepared. A can of soup, nice and piping hot, a delicious salad, a nice sweet and there's a splendid lunch, satisfying but not too heavy.

A nice supper or luncheon salad may be made with an envelope of plain, unflavored gelatine, one-quarter cup cold water, one cup hot water, one-half teaspoon salt, one-quarter cup vinegar, one-half cup stuffed olives (chopped), also one-half cup celery (chopped), one-quarter cup green pepper (chopped), one-third cup cream or evaporated milk (whipped), and one and one-half cups grated American cheese. Soften gelatine in cold water. Add hot water and stir until dissolved. Add salt and vinegar, cool, and when mixture begins to thicken, beat until frothy. Fold in cheese, olives, celery, pepper and whipped cream or evaporated milk. Turn into mold that has been rinsed in cold water and chill. Unmold on lettuce and serve with mayonnaise or a boiled salad dressing. It makes six portions.

Tuna Fish Salad

Tuna fish salad is always nice and this recipe is especially nice. One envelope plain, unflavored gelatine, one-quarter cup cold water, one cup tuna fish, ane-half cup celery (chopped), one-half green peppers (finely chopped), few grains cayenne, two tablespoons olives (chopped), three-quarters cup cooked salad dressing or mayonnaise, one-half teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon paprika and one tablespoon mild vinegar will make six portions. Soften gelatine in cold water. Set bowl over hot water and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Cool, and add salad dressing, fish separated into flakes, celery, pepper (from which seeds have been removed), olives, salt, vinegar, paprika and cayenne. Turn into individual molds that have been rinsed in cold water and chill. Remove to nests of lettuce and garnish with stuffed olive slices, diamond shape pieces of green pepper, celery tips and watercress.

A plate of nut and date bars means that there is always a healthful dessert or a toothsome tidbit on hand. Mix and sift one-half teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt and three-quarters cup flour. Mix one-half package pasteurized dates (sliced) and one-half cup nutmeats (Chopped) through flour with finger tips. Beat two eggs until light; beat in one cup brown sugar gradually. Stir in dry ingredients, nuts and dates. Spread mixture evenly over shallow pan which has been oiled. Bake in moderate oven (350 F.) for 30 minutes or until surface will spring back when pressed lightly with the forefinger. When cool, cut into strips four inches long by one inch wide.

At the conclusion of the affair students voiced their appreciation of what was generally believed to have been one of the finest parties ever given, by giving three cheers for Principal E. H. Greig and members of the school staff. Among the visiting teachers were Principal Brachen and Dor Craighead of Norwood.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

X. L. Circle Marks 20th Anniversary

A very delightful birthday tea was given at their November meeting, by the X.L. Mission Circle girls of St. James' United church. Among their guests were Mrs. E. Mesley, representing the Bay of Quinte branch of the W.M.S. and Mrs. W. H. Morton, president of the Peterborough Presbyterial, both of whom in their greetings congratulated the girls upon their twenty years of progress and success. Rev. and Mrs. Rowland of Mark Street church were also guests.

The room and platform were prettily decorated in yellow, white and green, the Circle colors and the program was presided over by Miss Jessie Martin, the president.

Among the guests were several charter members of the executive of the Circle which was organized twenty years ago by the present advisory president, Mrs. E. J. Wagar.

The program included an appropriate playette, "Racial Brotherhood," led by Jean Hammond, assisted by Alberta Frost, Gladys Rutherford, Dorothy Drysdale and Nancy Pooley. The latter also gave an interesting reading.

The worship service used was specially prepared for the anniversary occasion by Miss Helen Day, of the W.M.S. Board and was led by Marion Wagar, assisted by Edith Wright, charter members and officers, while "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer" was sweetly sung in solo by Mrs. Bert Cutmore, another charter member, formerly Ruby Young.

Mrs. E. R. Frost (nee Annetta Wright), an early member of the Circle, sang "Follow the Gleam" and with guitar accompaniment, Mesdames Turner and Moynes contributed "Must I Empty Handed Go" in vocal duet. Mrs. H. F. Doig accompanied the other soloists, and Anne Deyell played for the hymns.

A short resume of the organization and building of the Mission Circle during twenty years, by their leader, was read by Connie Wagar.

The pastor, Rev. Mr. Craik, spoke in commendation of the work being done by this Mission Circle, saying that with such a foundation upon which to build, its success was assured. Mr. Craik announced, also, that the Circle girls had chosen this anniversary meeting as a fitting time to honor their advisory president, after twenty years as their leader, by renaming the Circle 'The Jean Wagar Mission Circle.' Mrs. Wagar thanked the girls for this mark of fidelity that came while she was still with them.

The doors into the tea room were opened upon a lovely lace-covered table centred by the gaily decked three-story birthday cake with its twenty tiny candles. Yellow mums formed the floral decoration which made a pretty setting for the silver services from which Mrs. Craik and Mrs. Wagar poured tea.

In charge of the tea arrangements Mrs. Gerry Cuff and Mrs. Ashton Fife were assisted by a bevy of girls, including Jean Rose, Gladys Langton, Mrs. S. Rowe, Mrs. W. M. Wood and Jessie Martin.

A pleasing feature of the evening was the letter read by the corresponding secretary, received from Miss A. Emerson of Toronto enclosing a gift of $1.00 to the Circle which was organized at her home twenty years ago, and of which she was charter secretary of Christian Stewardship.

VEILED FOR SMARTNESS

BY ALICE ARDEN

UNLESS you are a veiled lady, you just aren't in the fashion swim when it comes to the mode millinery. The veil isn't tied tidily to hold down the coiffure and anchor the hat; instead, it is draped and twisted and hung to present a deliberate degage effect, to create a line that is part of the whole effect of the hat. To show you what we mean, here are two grand veil jobs. The black felt hat Joan Fontaine wears, above, has geranium velvet bows and a flowing veil. The hat she models at right is a raised bandbox of teal blue, with bronzed coque feathers and a looped veil of filmy blue.

Children Like Creative Toys

Creative work is a source of inner joy and satisfaction to all who undertake it whether it be the baby piling block upon block to make his handsome tower, the small schoolboy making his first model boat or airplane, the engineer supervising the construction of the perfectly arched span of a new bridge or a proud mother teaching her child to derive this same satisfaction from his own toys.

But in order to do effective creative work, one must have acquired skill in the use of his tools, and this can only be done gradually. So it is well to begin at babyhood to teach the child to use his materials competently, says the Christian Science Monitor.

Since blocks are the first things he will have with which to work and because, in one or more varieties they will be used over such a long period of time, it is essential that they be selected with care according to his ability to use them. In this way it is possible for a child to develop considerable skill in giving form to the things his imagination creates.

The semi-hard rubber blocks make a good set to use at first. After he has learned to pick them up, hold them, and possibly to place one on another, he will be ready to use the large well made, hardwood nested blocks. Because each is one plain color, he soon learns the primary colors. Likewise he will quickly distinguish between sizes.

By this time he will be ready for the solid wooden blocks, which come in a variety of sizes and shapes and which allow him to form structures which have a more definite likeness to the things he has begun to notice about him. It is best to give him at first only a small number of shapes and gradually to add more, a few at a time. For instance, oblong, square, and triangular ones will suffice for a beginning. Arches and circular ones might be added next and so on through the panels, pillars, diagonals, doors and windows.

Soon (if he lives in the United States) he will be hearing stories of early American life and then the Lincoln logs are excellent for building log cabins, forts, and stockades. There is a cardboard early American stockade to be had, one of the put-together toys which is quite complete, and which would be a splendid basis for imaginative play, especially if toy Indians, early settlers, ox carts and covered wagons are at hand.

Pretoria, South Africa, has a building boom.

There Is Still Time For Planting Bulbs

There is still time—but none too much—for planting bulbs for indoor bloom. Many gardeners who have grown narcissi and hyacinths for this purpose have never tried tulips.

While many of the Darwins and other large, late sorts may be a bit difficult for the beginner, the single Earlies and many of the Cottage varieties—and even some of the Darwins—force so readily that any one can succeed with them. No special equipment is required—merely a few pots or bulb pans, and a cold cellar, a cold frame, or a trench dug in the open to store them in while they make roots before being brought into light and warmth.

Tulips take about four weeks to flower, from the time they are brought indoors for forcing. Thus gardeners who have potted bulbs early this season may have Early Singles in bloom by New Year's.

Among my favorite tulips for growing indoors are the lovely little Darwin William Copeland; Fred Moore, De Wet and La Reve, all deliciously fragrant; and the graceful lily-flowered Sirene, Picottee and Yellow Picottee.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by Mrs. MARY MOORE

Question.—About three or four years ago there was a recipe in the Page for a White Christmas Cake. I believe the same recipe was in the paper last year also. I have lost my recipe and if at all possible I would like to have the recipe again. It is a large cake—about six pounds. I remember it contained 10 egg whites, almonds, raisins, cherries, orange, lemon and pineapple peel. If you can help me I would be very grateful.—Mrs. H. N.

Answer.—Thank you for your letter.

The following recipe for White Fruit Cake is a great favorite with me and has been printed twice on the Cookery Page. It fits your description, too, better than any other I have—except that it contains 10 whole eggs. Any cake containing so many whites would be similar to an angel food——but I don't think this would support such a variety of fruit.

White Fruit Cake (repeated by request).

One pound each flour, butter, sugar, 10 eggs, 1 pound almonds, ½ pound each white sultanas, mixed green and red cherries (candied), ½ lb. mixed orange and lemon peel, ¼ pound crystallized pineapple, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 whole nutmeg, granted fresh, ½ cup cider. Reserve 2 cups sifted flour and use it for dredging the raisins, the nuts, which have been broken or preferably sliced after blanching, peels, cherries and pineapple.

Cream together the sugar and butter, and add the well-beaten eggs. Add the remaining flour sifted with the baking powder and nutmeg, the floured fruit and nuts, the cider, then mix all thoroughly. Pour into 2 pans 4½ x 8½ x 3 inches, lined with unglazed paper and greased well. Steam in a roasting pan for 2½ hours and bake ½ hour longer at 300 deg. Fahr. This recipe will make two 3-lb cakes.

We hope you like this and that we can help you again.

Question.—I have always enjoyed your page as I find your recipes are not extravagant and beyond one's budget.

I would like some information on how to cook artichoke, kale, and broccoli, if you would be so kind. I have a family of four, three boys going to school, and like to have a change of vegetables. (Mrs.) J. R. S.

Answer.—Thank you for your letter.

Since Jerusalem artichokes are procurable now and since you mention them in the same breath with kale and broccoli I am going to assume you mean them and not French artichokes.

Jerusalem Artichokes.

Scrub well and pare 1 quart artichokes and cut in quarters lengthwise (or leave whole if you wish), and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and add 1 tablespoon flour to 3 tablespoons melted butter, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley, one-half teaspoon salt, and few grains cayenne. Cook 2 minutes over low heat, then add artichokes and serve very hot.

Artichokes must be removed from boiling liquor as soon as tender or they will start to harden again.

Always service artichokes with a sauce of some kind—like that described above or cream sauce. They may be pan roasted with meat—if so gravy should be provided.

Broccoli.

Broccoli should be washed and leaves trimmed off, and the coarser ends of stalks peeled—however much of the stalk is used.

It should be put in large amount of unsalted boiling water and boiled rapidly uncovered just until tender—and immediately drained—or it will become yellowish and faded.

Since you mention the lack of extravagance in our recipes, I am giving you the recipe for Mock Hollandaise to serve with broccoli—although you must give yourself the treat at some company dinner of serving genuine Hollandaise sauce with it.

Mock Hollandaise) to be served with cauliflower and broccoli, etc).

Two tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, ¾ cup milk or liquor in which vegetables were cooked, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, few grains cayenne, yolk of 1 or 2 eggs, ¼ cup butter, 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Melt the first quality of butter and stir in flour, and stir until well blended; then add milk, salt, pepper and cayenne, and bring to boiling point. Stir in the yolk or yolks and butter bit by bit, and lemon juice. Serve at once.

Kale.

You would wash kale well in several waters, trimming away all undesirable leaves and as much of the stalk as is too tough. Boil in plenty of water just until tender, then chop and serve either with plenty of butter and salt or very thick cream sauce. It is sometimes nice if served with sprinkling of mild cheese or cheese may be added to the cream saurce.

We hope we can help you again.

Tested Favorite Recipes

(By MARY MOORE)

Desserts for Two Days.

One of our time saving tricks that is a favorite dessert for two meals is to bake an apple batter pudding—making twice as much of the plain cake batter as we need for the pudding and baking the excess in a square shallow cake pan. We make this into Orange Sponge Custard.

Cut day-old plain or sponge cake into one-inch cubes and place in 6 greased custard cups or 1 large casserole and pour over them 1 cup orange juice in all. Prepare

Boiled Custard: Two yolks, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons sugar, 2 cups scalded milk, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Combine yolks with salt and sugar; and gradually stir in hot milk, and cook over boiling water 5 minutes, stirring constantly, then immediately remove. Add vanilla and cool quickly.

Pour this over the orange-soaked cake in custard cups. Make a meringue with leftover whites, by adding 4 tablespoons sugar and beating until stiff. Pile meringue ligely on desserts and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for about 15 minutes. Serve hot or cold.

Plain Cake Batter for Above Desserts (Quick):

One and one-half cups sifted flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons melted butter (or other shortening)—milk to fill measuring cup in which shortening is melted, 1 teaspoon vanilla or lemon extract. Mix dry ingredients. Break egg into measuring cup—add melted shortening (or melt shortening in cup, add enough milk to fill cup ¾ full, then drop in egg) and fill cup with milk—pour these liquid ingredients into mixing bowl, slowly add dry ingredients while stirring, then beat well one minute. Pour half mixture over sweetened raw apples sliced into small loaf pan which has been well buttered and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. Serve this apple batter pudding with plenty of cream. Pour other half into cake pan to bake at same temperature for Orange Sponge Custard (see above).

St. Alban's Guild Holds Fine Bazaar

Among the week's successful events was the annual Christmas Bazaar which St. Alban's Guild of St. George's church held Wednesday afternoon in the Sunday School rooms. Guests were welcomed by the president of the Guild, Mrs. Jack Cooper.

Scarlet poinsettias in silver vases added a gay and festive note to the individual tea tables, which were convened by Mrs. C. Nixon, Mrs. Walter Bannon, and Mrs. H. Bradley. Tea cup reading was done by Mrs. A. McKinley.

Business was brisk at the fancy work and novelties table, which featured delightful pieces of needlework and a varied assortment of dainty gifts, and was directed by Mrs. W. Thompson and Mrs. S. Legon. Mrs. W. Morley and Mrs. S. M. Millard convened the country store and home cooking stall, where fruits, vegetables, jellies, jams and delicious homemade baking found a ready sale.

Dolls were on display at a table decorated with a diminutive and gaily colored Christmas tree. Two dolls, one a "nigger baby" i na knitted suit of blue angora, and a baby doll also in fluffy angora, were won in a draw by Mrs. C. Nixon and Mrs. Alex McKinley.

The draw was made by Mrs. Leonard Cooper. A draw for a pair of flannelet blankets was made by Raymond King, and won by Mrs. E. Abraham of Brown street, with ticket No. 81.

No Cheese Factory To Get License Minus Inspector's Sanctions As Rules Tightened On Industry

BELLEVILLE, ONT., Dec. 1-(CP) The new director of dairying for Ontario, C. E. Lackner, made his first address in the Belleville district at the Wednesday session of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers Association.

He reviewed the new dairy regulations that will go into effect next year and left no doubt the stand the department was going to take. No new Plants could be opened without permission of the director and common sense and judgment would be used when deciding if a plant was needed in any community if that community was already well provided with factories.

"Commencing next year," said Mr. Lackner "All cheese factories will be licensed and as a result alterations and improvements which inspectors had orderd would have to be made before a license would be granted and any changes ordered by inspectors would have to be made before opening next spring."

He said cheesemakers had a direct responsibility as to the kind of milk they accepted. "Too much reliance has been placed on the fact instructors were visiting the farms," he said. "We are putting the issue up to you."

The department has the names of factories where flies, nails, glass and other impurities had been found and we have also found cases where cheese has been eaten by mice, he said. This has to cease. There is only one word for sending out such cheese and that is "plain fraud."

Whey To Be Pasteurized.

Dealing with pasteurization, he said, it is something "that could not be overlooked." For the food of the industry "we are going to insist on the pasteurization of whey," said Mr. Lackner. He said a dairy instructor for Belleville district would be appointed next year. In closing he told the delegates that to have a better year "there must be cooperation from the milk pail to the finished cheese."

Prof. W. H. Sproule of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, referred to the unclean starter in cheese, stating that New Zealand had cleaned up their trouble by using a different starter. He described in detail the working of micro-organisms through the whole process of cheesemaking. The effect of high cooking was revealed in a table which showed more first grade cheese at a cooking temperature of 100 degrees than at 106 degrees. "Some high cooked cheese is tallowy," said the speaker and "generally results in corky, harsh texture."

Oscar Boisvert, inspector of General Dairy Branch, Quebec, extended an invitation to the Quebec convention in December. He said stabilization of the cheese industry in Quebec was necessary and he believed educational training among farmers would bring this about. M. C. McPhail, of Kemptville Agricultural College, extended the use of the school for their benefit.

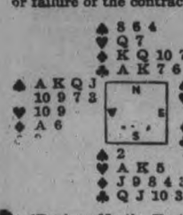
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

WONDERS NEVER CEASE

NOBODY WOULD EVER dare predict in advance some of the peculiar things that happen on bridge hands. Too often to believe, almost, a player with an apparently worthless hand manages to take a trick with some insignificant little card which happens to decide the success or failure of the contract.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North bid 1-Club on this deal, South 1-Diamond, West 3-Spades, North 4-Diamonds and South 5-Diamonds, which West doubled.

Holding the trump A, West figured if, in addition to that and a spade, he could get a club ruff, he could prevent South from making the contract. He therefore led his singleton club and declarer won. South then led a trump to West's A. West could possibly cash one spade trick, but that would not be sufficient to kill declarer's chance for game.

How to get East in the lead was West's problem, and the chances for that were very slim. One slight ray of hope was that East might hold the spade 5 and the 4 might be played from dummy. He took the chance of sacrificing a possible trick in order to gain two. The spade 3 was his lead, on which the 4 was played from dummy, East put up the 5 and it held the trick. The reason for the underlead was quite apparent to East, who returned a club for the setting trick.

Heavy Boost Predicted In Outlay For Canada's Defence Needs

OTTAWA, Dec. 1—(CP). — Estimates for the National Defence Department are being drawn up for submission to the Treasury Board, it was learned to-day. Indications are that they will disclose a considerable increase over previous years.

From the statement of Defence Minister Mackenzie in an address Monday night it is expected that one branch of the service which will be allowed a more generous appropriation than in the past will be the non-permanent militia. The vote for the citizen-soldiers in recent years has been regarded as skimpy, and, outside of pay issued during camp training, officers and men of the non-permanent force have generally turned their allowances back to their unit treasuries for the purpose of purchasing clothing and equipment which the government failed to supply.

One grievance of the non-permanent militia is that the troops have to buy their own boots, even to go to camp. Various resolutions from the defence associations have urged the government to provide these. It is not improbable that this grievance will be removed in the forthcoming estimates.

Gaps To Be Filled.

The appropriations are being prepared against the background of the International crisis which came to a head last September. Large gaps in the way of fighting equipment disturbed the defence authorities and efforts will be redoubled to make these good.

Coastal fortifications and flying bases will likely receive closest attention. Surveys during the past year disclosed the need for air stations in Canada that had previously been neglected. Existing stations will be strengthened, both with equipment and personnel and some will be expanded.

The air appropriations will take into account the possibility of training in this country fliers for the Royal Air Force. If this plan is approved, the training schools across the country will be enlarged, with the possibility that instructors and machines may be sent here from the United Kingdom.

Recruits will be taken provisionaly on the strength of the Royal Canadian Air Force, at Canadian rates of pay it is learned, and after their training period wil be required to engage themselves for a stated number of years in the Royal Air Force. At the conclusion of their service, the Canadian members will be returned to Canada, if they so desire, and be posted to the Royal Canadian Force reserve.

New Moncton Station.

In various public addresses the Minister has spoken of developing air bases in British Columbia and in the Maritimes. It is considered not unlikely that, with the terminus of the Trans-Canada Air Lines planned for Moncton, advantage will be taken of this situation to hook up that city in the Defence Department's scheme.

During August an expedition was sent to survey Anticosti Island with a view to incorporating it in the defences planned for the St. Lawrence. The appropriations will contain votes for this purpose.

Anti-aircraft equipment in the way of guns and searchlights is receiving the Department's attention. While tenders for searchlights were called in some month sago and the money available for them has been earmarked, no contact has yet been awarded.

It is understood that the chances of obtaining the heavier items of armament from the United Kingdom are now better than they were and that this problem may be satisfactorily solved in the coming months.

Reports that further additions will be made to the naval service lack confirmation, and the department is reticent on this point. Some consideration has been given to the matter of constructing small and speedy motor-driven launches, lightly armed but carrying torpedo tubes. These have been experimented with in the Royal Navy. If they are adopted in Canada they could be made in the Dominion.

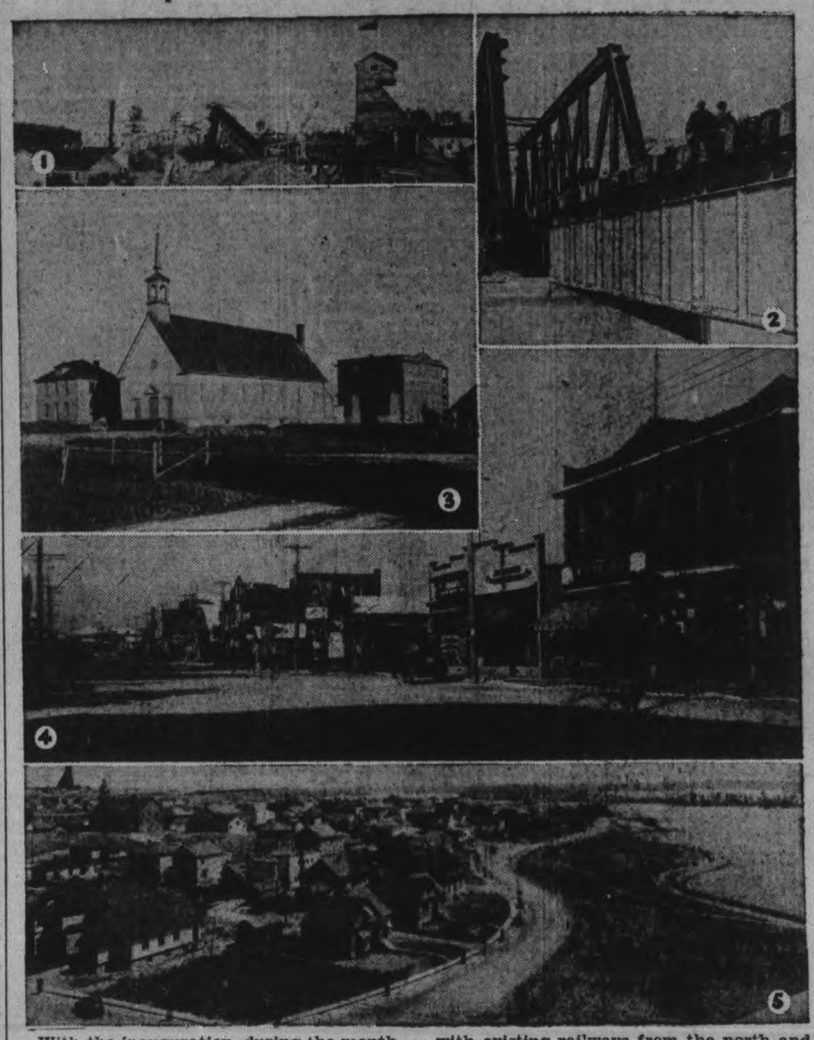
New Railway Line Serves Quebec Mines



With the inauguration, during the month of December, of service over the complete new Senneterre-Rouyn branch line of the Canadian National Railways, important mineral areas of Northwestern Quebec will gain the advantage of necessary freight and passenger transportation. Slashers Strike In Four Towns

LONDON, Dec. 1—(AP). — The menace of razor slashings from phantom assailants in this Yorkshire industrial town had spread to four other towns to-day.

At Wigan, 35 miles from Halifax, pretty Winifred Walsh, 18, reported she was attacked in her backyard by a man who cut a five-inch wound in her left arm.

From Manchester came the report that 14-year-old Marjory Murphy was wounded four times on the arms yesterday by a man who jumped out of a dark corner with a razor.

Another 14-year-old, Ivy Smithe-man, staggered fainting into a candy shop at Brentford, five miles from London and 200 miles south of Halifax, with blood streaming from 12 cuts on her arms which she said were inflicted by a man who fled as soon as he had struck her.

There was a similar assault at Platt Bridge, Lancashire, 50 miles frm Halifax, on Monday night.

Descriptions of the slasher in each case were similar to that of the Halifax marauder who has cut 13 persons in the past eight days, but police did not believe he was responsible for incidents in the other towns.

They thought rather that he might have an accomplice, or at least an imitator inspired by stories of the Halifax terror.

Halifax women still kept indoors after dark in fear the assailant would appear again. Volunteer firemen were sworn in as special deputies. The Halifax branch of the British Legion was mobilized. They cruised about the town in automobiles. Shopkeepers sold out their stocks of heavy walking-sticks, "knuckle-dusters," and anything resembling weapons.

Rich Publisher Loses Fight To Shake His Wife Over Her Affair With Canadian Guide

NEW YORK, Dec. 1— (CP). — Donald Stewart Tuttle, wealthy New York publisher, was loser to-day in a court action for annullment of his marriage on the grounds his wife was too friendly with a Canadian north woods guide.

Tuttle's suit was dismissed by Justice Fawcett in Supreme Court last night and the publisher withdrew his defence against a separate action started by Mrs. Tuttle. Mrs. Tuttle's Canadian friend was named in court as Stuart Forbell.

Mrs. Tuttle, who appeared in court on crutches as a result of a Canadian skiing accident, was awarded one-half income from a $100,000 trust fund set aside for Tuttle by his mother and counsel fees of $1,500.

Tuttle testified during his annullment suit that he found a letter his wife had written "to her lover in Canada."

He quoted his wife's maid, Pauline, as saying she used to hang out the apartment window and watch for Mr. Tuttle while Mrs. Tuttle would telephone to Canada "to find out about a guide who was lost and if he'd been found."

He also charged his wife neglected to tell him before their marriage about her Broadway career which included her marriage to Santos Guimares, friend of the slain Dot King, model and Follies girl found slain in 1923.

Learning a Trade

DETROIT, Dec. 1—(CP).—Jack Perney, 32, decided he wanted to learn a trade and took the hard way of learning. He threw a brick through a plate glass window and asked the store owner to call police. Perney told police he wanted to be sent to an institution where he could learn a trade, as he was tired of being broke and unemployed. Perney got his wish.

Wigle, Croll Campaign Develops Into Battle Of Personalities

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 1—(CP).—Windsor's mayoralty campaign, bitterest in years, has resolved itself largely into a battle between the personalities of two men. Side issues, but nevertheless slarge ones, are a five-cent trolley fare and Windsor's emancipation from financial control by the provincial government.

The personalities are:

Mayor E. S. Wigle, 79-year-old titular head of one of border's oldest families, honorary lay chancellor of the Anglican diocese of Huron, who has more vigor and zest for battle, physical and oral ,than most men at 50.

David Croll, only 37, Russian Jewish immigrant lad who financed a law education with a newsstand, was Windsor's mayor at 30, a provincial minister a few years later, and, now finds himself criticized by the premier whose minister he was.

Also in the contest, but believed unlikely to poll a large vote, is Roy Haight, 38, formerly an auditor with a firm that audited the books of the municipal corporation. His campaign is a criticism of the municipal administration.

Voting is next Monday. Big rallies are scheduled by Wigle and Croll for the weekend. Already both have met interruptions that appeared more than spontaneous. Feeling in the city runs high. Those most conscious of municipal politics are smacking their lips in anticipation of the high times to come.

Some Highlights.

Wigle of Croll: He's the biggest Communist in Ontario, but he has $100,000."

Croll of Wigle: "He's the front man for the big interests in Ontario."

Premier Hepburn of Croll (in a letter published as an advertisement): "He is not deserving the support of the voters which he seeks."

Windsor sees on the platform with Mayor Wigle, a high Tory, Liberals named by a Liberal government to the commission that operates the Sandwich, Windsor and Amherstburg Railway Company. The railway has a 10-cent fare. Mr. Croll says five cents is plenty. Mayor Wigle says the fares can be reduced only at the taxpayers' expense.

Mayor Wigle springs from United Empire Loyalist stock, from a family noted for longevity. His father, Solomon, was the Essex member in Ontario's first parliament. The Mayor attended University of Toronto. There he captained the first Varsity team to beat McGill at rugby. He was Intcerollegiate heavyweight boxing champion.

"I could lick 'em all," says Mayor Wigle expressing a wish the contest might be fought in the ring.

In 1905, when he was 46, Wigle became Mayor of Windsor. He served five years, a record, and retired though offered an acclamation for a sixth term.

Led Battalion Overseas.

During the Great War, Col. Wigle raised a battalion and took it overseas. He is still a prominent figure at military displays and veterans' re-unions. An ardent Imperialist, he expresses his views frankly and without reserve.

Mr. Croll dealt with Mr. Wigle's frankness in declaring he (Croll) would restore home rule to Windsor and take financial control of her affairs away from Toronto.

Mayor Wigle isn't in a hurry for this "home rule."

"When he's always used to giving orders, he is starting to take orders pretty late in life," says Mr. Croll of Mr. Wigle.

After serving two terms as Mayor, Croll plunged into Provincial politics as a Liberal. In Premier Hepburn's Cabinet he became Minister of Welfare, Labor and Municipal Affairs. He piloted through the Legislature the Bill that made into one municipality Windsor, East Windsor, Sandwich, and Walkerville.

Croll was born in Moscow and came to Wndsor in 1906, two years after his father. He shined shoes. He sold papers. He established a sidewalk newsstand that became a gold mine and financed his law education. When only 30 he was swept into the Mayoralty by a record majority as a Labor candidate.

The Windsor member was regarded as a right bower of the Premier until came the General Motorss trike at Oshawa in April, 1937. Mr. Croll construed the attitude of Premier Hepburn as favoring the corporation. He resigned determined, he wrote the Premier, to "march with the workers instead of riding with General Motors."

In the Provincial general election of 1937, Mr. Croll was re-elected as a Liberal candidate. But he isn't a minister now, and has lots of time for municipal affairs.

Colony Stand Of Italy Is Demanded

Paris Request Comes As Daladier Fights New Strikes

PARIS, Dec. 2—(AP).—The dual danger of more strikes with increasing bitterness among labor at home and what was feared to be an Italian campaign for colonies in Africa confronted the government of Premier Daladier today.

The new strikes were in protest against the discharge of workmen who led the one-day general walkout Wednesday which the premier crushed before it could have marked effect.

The general confederation of labor and the Socialist party charged 1,500,000 workers were discharged, suspended or locked out of factories while an informant who knew government sources put the figure at "not more than 70,000."

The retaliatory strike calls for today included a summons to 11,000 metal and textile workers at St. Nazaire and to 12,000 textile employees at Le Havre. There were smaller walkouts elsewhere. Mobile guards and gendarmes were on hand to maintain order.

The cries "Tunisia" from Fascist deputies in the Italian parliament during a speech by the foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, Wednesday provoked the international situation and led foreign minister Bonnet last night to request "explanations" of Italian intentions toward Tunisia, Djibouti and Corsica.

The Italian press continued the matter and French official quarters believed it marked the beginning of a German and Italian campaign to compensate Italy in the Mediterranean for support when Germany annexed Austria and part of Czechoslovakia.

An Embarrassment

Inasmuch as France and Great Britain agreed to the partition of Czechoslovakia on the theory the Sudeten Germans had the "right to dispose of themselves" in selecting a government, French commentators acknowledged that Italy could embarrass France by demanding

Great Britain Out To Match Sea Supremacy With Vast Commercial Air Fleet

LONDON, Dec. 2 (AP)—Great Britain is preparing for a giant effort to give British commerce supremacy in the air comparable to its position on the sea.

Announcement of plans to merge Britain's two largest commercial air lines was followed by last night with a declaration by Captain Harold Balfour, Under-Secretary for Air, that Sir Kingsley Wood, Secretary for Air, was aiming at "world supremacy for British aviation."

Britain already is operating the world's longest commercial air route — 13,000 miles from Southampton to Australia.

Some time ago she announced early inauguration of trans-Atlantic service and later disclosed plans for a globe-circling line by extending the Australian route through New Zealand to Vancouver. From there Canadian planes would connect with a British terminal in eastern Canada.

The British chamber of commerce is urging Sir Kingsley to start a proposed British service to South America.

The government has put Sir John Reith in charge of Imperial Airways to revamp the entire organization as he did for the British Broadcasting Corporation.

The air minister told the House of Commons last month Imperial Airways and British Airways would be merged to form the "most satisfactory instrument for the development of British overseas civil aviation."

No Canadian Bomber Production Likely Till Nearly Spring

NEW YORK, Dec. 2—(CP). — Arrangement sare being completed at a steady pace for construction in Canada of bombing planes for the Royal Air Force in Great Britain, Paul F. Sise of Montreal said last night as he arrived on the Queen Mary from London.

the several Canadian firms who will tric, Ltd., of Montreal, is head of Canadian Associated Airways, the co-operative company of manufacturers in the Dominion who will make warplanes for the British Government.

For six weeks, Sise has been in London conferring with officials of the Air Ministry, the Handley Page Aircraft Company and executives of

Sise announced the appointment of Lewis C. Ord, a Canadian now serving as consultant on production to the British Air Ministry, as general manager of Canadian Associated Airways.

Ord, a native of Ontario and in his late 50's, was assistant superintendent of the Angus (Montreal) shops of the Canadian Pacific Railway before he went to England to serve with the air ministry.

Sise said he did not expect Ord would be able to come to Canada until about February 1, and he believed it would be close to spring before production on the planes began.

"The first order is purely educational," Sise said. He denied the accuracy of any published reports of

Ontario Offers 40 p.c. Relief

TORONTO, Dec. 2.—(CP).— The Ontario government will pay 40 per cent of 1939 relief costs if the Dominion government will do the same, Hon. Eric Cross, Provincial Minister of Welfare and Municipal Affairs, said to-day. Such grants by the two government would lift some of the load from the municipalities, he said.

After Jan. 1, however, the minister said, the province will not continue to pay a greater share of relief expenses than the Dominion. During the past year, he said, the Provincial government had been paying about 45 per cent., the Dominion about 25 per cent. and the municipalities approximately 30 per cent.

Britain Busy Storing Gold In Canada For War Emergency

London, Dec. 2 (CP Cable)

THE British Government today was reported strengthening its North American gold reserves by shipping large quantities of the metal for storage in the vaults of the Bank of Canada.

The step was said to have been taken to provide for the purchase of war materials in Canada and the United States in the event of a European war, when shipment of gold across the Atlantic would be dangerous.

An arrangement also has been made whereby gold hoarders owning metal in this country can leave it here but have it earmarked to their credit in South African banks, which will then store in their own vaults the metal credited to the hoarders.

3 Holdups Made In 5 Hours

TORONTO, Dec. 2 (CP)—Three hold-ups took place in Toronto last night between six o'clock and midnight. In one a male bandit was accompanied by a woman.

Scheduled for appearance in police court today on a charge of armed robbery was William O'Donoghue, 37, Toronto, arrested a few hours after a man and a woman, both described as intoxicated, held up a Yonge street cigar store and fled with $15. Held as a material witness in the same case was Eddielin Gassmer, 27, Ottawa woman.

Alvin Brandwold, auto salesman, was alone in the office of a used car lot, when a bandit demanded his money. The robber displayed no gun but held his hand menacingly in his pocket. Brandwold grappled with the man and bears marks of the battle. A kick disabled the salesman and the thug escaped.

A few hours later two men walked into a small store downtown, held up the proprietress, Annie Hofflazer, and escaped with $23.

"Keep quiet, this is a hold-up," one of the bandits told Mrs. Hofflazer as he covered her with a gun. The other man rifled the cash drawer.

No Further Appeal Over Clifford Case

TORONTO, Dec. 2 (CP).—Attorney-General Gordon Conant announced today that the Crown would not appeal against the action of Judge James Parker, who quashed the conviction of Clifford Case, former Conservative member of the Ontario Legislature for North York, on a charge of being drunk in charge of a car. The conviction was made by Magistrate Keith, who sentenced Case to seven days.

The conviction was upset on the ground that Case was ill and that his condition was the result of medical treatment.

"From careful consideration of the facts and the law, it appears that the Crown has no further right to appeal in this case," Mr. Conant said. "While I still think the judgment is wrong, the case will have to rest where it stands under the present state of the law."

Jury Foreman Makes Reply County Clerk

County Council Told One Side Of Story G. D. Carlisle Claims

"The county council only heard one side of the story," remarked G. D. Carlisle, foreman of the grand jury at the recent assizes, to the Examiner Thursday night, in reference to complaints aired before the county body this week as to the cost to the county of the grand jury's inspection of public buildings.

"The county clerk and treasurer has only to look at her cheques to find out that she was mistaken in what she told the council," Mr. Carlisle continued. "She said that we were there for four days. As a matter of fact we were through in a little over two days. On the first afternoon we heard the evidence in the criminal cases, we finished our inspection of the public institutions on the following day and I worked late at night preparing our report, it was presented on the third day and we were dismissed. Incidentally we were congratulated upon the speed with which we had discharged our duties and upon the thoroughness of our report."

Inspections Never Mentioned

"We were all new to grand jury duty and nothing was said to us about previous inspections this year. Our directions from the Assize judge was to inspect the buildings and we did so. So far as orders from the county clerk were concerned I am unable to find out how that official has any authority over grand juries. Be that as it may, however, I cannot recall anything being said to us about other inspections this year."

Three Cars Half A Day

"As to the cars we used," Mr. Carlisle said, "it is true that we did have three automobiles but that was only for half a day and I do not see how it could have been avoided. In the morning of the day upon which we did our inspecting, one of the jurors was excused because of an emergency that had arisen and we managed to pack everybody into two taxis. After luncheon the absent juror came back and there we were with thirteen jurors, a constable and two drivers and to jam that crowd into two cars would have required a shoe horn."

"We had no desire to load any expense upon the county. We were simply there because the state had called upon us to do a public job and we did it to the best of our ability and as cheaply and expeditiously as possible."

Ontario Shakes Liquor Worry

TORONTO, Dec. 2—(CP).—Control of liquor traffic on Manitoulin Island in Georgian Bay will be abandoned by the Ontario government Attorney - General Gordon Conant announced today.

He said enforcement would be left in the hands of Dominion authorities as courts had ruled the Ontario Liquor Control Act was inoperative on the island which comes under the Canada Temperance Act.

As a result all restrictions except on the sale of liquor will be lifted on Manitoulin. The Canada Temperance Act forbids the sale of liquor but imposes no other prohibitions such as are contained in the Liquor Control Act of Ontario. With the withdrawal of the provincial enforcement agencies, there will be nothing to prevent importation of liquor providing it is not sold on the island.

There will be nothing to prevent drinking in a public place—hotel dining room or at the roadside.

"There is not even anything in the Canada Temperance Act to prevent giving liquor to a minor," Premier Mitchell Hepburn said in discussing the matter.

Mr Conant xplained the Ontario government took issue with a recent decision of a district judge who held the Canada Temperance Act was in force in Manitoulin rather than the Ontario Control Act.

Descision to abandon provincial enforcement arose from the successful appeal of a woman on the island from a conviction on a charge of keeping liquor for sale.

"We take issue with the decision," Mr. Conant said. "We definitely are of the opinion that the L.C.A. is in force but with such a decision we are unable to get a conviction under our Act.

Workingman, Family To Christmas With The Windsors

London, Dec. 2 (AP)

THE LONDON STAR said today that the Duke and Duchess of Windsor had arranged to entertain the family of a London workingman on Christmas day at their chateau at Cap d'Antibes on the French Riviera.

The workingman has accepted the invitation for himself, his wife, son and daughter, the newspaper said. His name is being kept secret. The idea, the Star said, came from the Duke, "who is anxious to spend the holiday in the company of one of the ordinary people of his country."

"The Duchess," it said, "immediately suggested the children because she wanted a children's party and Christmas tree." The newspaper described the family as "staggered" by the invitation but said it accepted immediately. The workingman was described as an ardent trade unionist who never has been outside England.

David Fife Given Well-Merited Place Of Honor

TORONTO, Dec. 2 (CP) — The famous hard-kerneled Fife wheat, produced by David Fife in the 19th century, is only a sideline today on the original Fife farm in Otonabee Township, Peterborough County.

"About the only wheat we grow is for feed," Edwin Fife, 62, grandson of the original owner, said on a Toronto visit. "You'd soon farm yourself into the poor house if you tried to grow wheat as a cash crop at 55 cents a bushel."

David Fife came over from Scotland early in the 19th century and carved out a homestead in the wilds of eastern Ontario. There, in 1823, he produced a strain of wheat which practically revolutionized Canadian grain production. Edwin now farms the 200 acres of land.

He came to Toronto for the premiere of a motion picture film, produced by the Canadian Wheat Board, in which his grandfather was given well merited honor. Edwin had been induced to appear in the pictorial record but he was unimpressed by his screen debut.

"I didn't look like a movie star," he said. "But I did get a big kick out of seeing the old farm on the screen."

The film will be shown in England to acquaint British buyers with conditions which have made top-grade Canadian wheat. Development of the famed Fife strain is told in the picture.

Edwin said his grandfather picked up a handful of wheat that had spilled on a Glasgow, Scotland, dock, and brought it to Canada.

Polish Sacking Raids Stir Ukrainians

CHUST, Czechoslovakia, Dec. 2—(CP-Havas).—Reports that numerous Ukrainians have been wounded and much property destroyed in the past two weeks through systematic repressive Polish measures in eastern Galicia caused indignation today in this capital of the Carpathian Ukraine, autonomous province of Czechoslovakia.

Polish military authorities were said to have directed groups of frontier guards in what was described as "preventive action for pacification."

Bands of mounted guards numbering from 100 to 120 sped from village to village sacking Ukrainian meeting places and headquarters of Ukrainian cooperatives, even in villages where no incident has occurred for weeks, according to the reports here.

(A dispatch from Berlin early this week said there was talk in Germany of making the Carpathian Ukraine the nucleus of a Ukrainian state, to include one large Ukrainian minority in eastern Poland. This state, under German protection, would be adjacent to the rich Ukrainian province of Soviet Russia.)

The Ukrainian hospita lat Lwow was said to be crowded with persons wounded in these raids.

Italy Is Ready To March Upon France

So Rome Press Says Denying King Cool To Fascists

ROME, Dec. 2.—(AP).—Virginio Gayda, Fascist editor who often reflects Premier Mussolini's own views warned France to-day that Italy "is ready to march — even against France—if it is necessary."

Gayda's declaration in the newspaper Giornale D'Italia, accentuated the strain of Italian-French relations since Wednesday when Italian deputies demonstrated, in the prdesence of Il Duce, for recognition of Italian interests in Tunis, France's North African protectorate.

Gayda made the assertion in denying alleged French insinuations of coolness between the Italian Royal house and the Fascist regime last September. Mussolini then cast Italy's lot with Germany when Europe seemed to be on the verge of war.

Italy, Gayda declared, is united "solidly behind its government and is ready for everything to-day, ready to march—even against France—if it is necessary."

Concessions in Spain?

LONDON, Dec. 2 (CP-Havas).—The campaign in Italy for satisfaction of Rome's "natural aspirations" regarding French-controlled Tunisia is designed to get "concessions elsewhere—that is, Spain," the Manchester Guardian's diplomatic correspondent said today.

The speech by Count Galeazzo Ciano in the Italian chamber of deputies Wednesday, accompanied by shouts of "Tunisia! Tunisia!" "is not regarded as a very propitious preliminary to Mr. Chamberlain's trip to Rome," the correspondent added. Prime Minister Chamberlain plans to visit Rome in January.

Count Ciano's speech, said the Guardian's correspondent, "would seem to be part of Italy's anti-French campaign, a campaign that derived considerable momentum from the 'Munich settlement.'

"That 'settlement' seems to have convinced Mussolini and his associates that they, too, must achieve 'victory' and one not limited to securing recognition of the Italian empire.

"And yet Ciano's speech would seem to reveal a certain weakness, for why, if Italy is really strong, must she be made to appear even stronger? Durig the recent crisis there was good reason to believe that Italy would, in the event of general conflict, support Germany but she made no preparations for supporting Germany in full force, or anything like it.

Blocked by King

"And when Ciano says that there was 'secret mobilization' in Italy he is saying what is untrue. Mussolini and Ciano did, indeed, want Italy to mobilize but mobilization was prevented by King Victor Emmanuel and by the Italian public.

"In north Italy, above all, there was a strong popular movement against mobilization and against participation in a European war. Of this movement both Mussolini and Ciano were fully aware through re-

Family Traffic Jinx Puts Mother In Cot Beside Dying Son

DETROIT, Dec. 2—(CP).—A traffic jinx that is certain, doctors say, to take the life of her eight-year-old son and which has placed her husband in a Canadian jail for manslaughter in the traffic death of two children today had caught up with Mrs. Bassett Snider, 33.

Sleepless for the last four days because of her almost constant vigil at the bedside of her son, Danny, Mrs. Snider dozed at wheel of her car as she sped to hospital in answer to an emergency call of "please hurry, Danny may die at any moment." Her car crashed into an auto.

Dazed by head injuries and frantic from worry, Mrs. Snider continued on until she crashed into two parked cars.

ren in Glencoe, 30 miles southwest of where she was given a bed alongside that of her dying son, presented her with a ticket for reckless driving.

Danny was run over by a truck two years ago. Since then he has been in and out of hospitals. A victim of internal injuries, his death is imminent, according to attending physicians.

Mrs. Snider's husband, a structural engineer, was convicted of manslaughter in the death of two child-

Police who took her to hospital, London, Ont., last May 10.

Craig Watterworth, 10, and his sister, Johanna, 12, were killed by Snider's car as they roller skated down the main street in Glencoe.

Even Jew Cemetery Iron Fences Go For Nazi Arms

Berlin, Dec. 2 (AP)

THE remaining Jewish publication in Germany, Jeudisches Nachrichtenblatt, carried an appeal today that iron fences enclosing Jewish burial plots be removed "as a great project for beautifying Jewish graves is under way."

Jews knew the notice, by the community executive council, was compulsory for it continued "nasmuch as the German Reich's supply of scrap iron must be increased we want voluntarily to make this material available."

Indian Madman Slays Woman Slugs 5 Others

VANCOUVER, Dec. 2 (CP)—Police pressed a city-wide search today for a young Indian, apparently crazed by liquor, after a middle-aged Indian woman had been beaten to death and five other persons injured.

Marie Hawthorne was beaten fatally about the head and face yesterday in the east-end cabin of Dan Hujwan. Hujwan was beaten into insensibility and did not regain consciousness until later. He stumbled to an adjoining cabin and reported the attack.

Police said the Indian woman's 16-year-old daughter, Dorothy Sam, with whom she lived in a main street cabin, and Mrs. E. Kleen were attacked and beaten about the head and face.

Mrs. Roy Shepherd and her daughter, Betty, were attacked in Buffalo Park, some two miles away, and beaten by a man carrying a two-by-four piece of lumber.

According to police information, the Hawthorne woman left her main street cabin with a young Indian about 3 p.m. and went to Hujwan's cabin, a half-mile distant.

Staggers For Aid.

There she and Hujwan were attacked. When Hujwan recovered he staggered to Edgar Skinley's adjacent cabin and told him to "come and look at this woman." Skinley then reported to police.

In the meantime police said, the woman's attacker returned to the main street cabin but was ordered away by A. C. Smith, caretaker. Smith said he left the premises for a short time and when he returned he found Dorothy Sam beaten about the head and face.

Police said a man answering the description of that given for the Hawthorne woman's attacker, was seen proceeding to the Grandview district farther east. The Shepherds, residents of Cloverdale in the Fraser Valley and visiting friends in Grandview, were walking across Buffalo Park when attacked by a man who jumped from the shadow of a bandstand and struck them with a two-by-four, then fled.

Regina Crash Laid To Slip Of Judgment

Mail Plane Inqulry Finds Pilot Was Fooled By Fog

OTTAWA, Dec. 2—(CP)—Fog and a fatal error of judgment on the part of pilot David Imrie were responsible for the crash of a Trans-Canada Airlines mail plane at Regina Nov. 18 with death to Imrie and his co-pilot, Jack Herald, an official board of inquiry report to Transport Minister Howe made public today, said.

With no evidence of mechanical failure, the board headed by Squadron Leader A. L. Ferrier, chief aeronautical engineer of the department, expressed the opinion a ground fog might have deprived Pilot Imrie of a horizon to gauge his height, with the result he possibly depressed the nose of the machine to gain speed and hit the ground.

Flew Low After Takeoff.

After taking off from Regina airport at 1.03 a.m. in continuation of a scheduled airmail flight from Winnipeg to Vancouver, the plane, according to the board's findings: "Rose on a flight path with a very gentle slope, crossed the airport boundary at a height estimated to be not more than 15 feet, continued at a very low elevation for about three-quarters of a mile in a westerly direction and then collided with the ground, making distinctive marks with both airscrews and both pilot (air speed indicator) tubes.

"There were no marks made by any other portion of the aircraft. The aircraft finally struck the ground, left wing first, in an almost vertical dive, about half a mile farther on in a west-southwest direction, and burst into flames and was totallly destroyed."

The condition of the wreckage, said the board, "was such that no reliable information could be deduced by examination of the instruments or controls. Both occupants were dead when removed from the wreckage."

The crash was the first tragedy in 2,000,000 miles flown by T.C.A. planes, and a quantity of airmail was destroyed in the fire that followed the crash. A coroner's inquest on the deaths resulted in a verdict of accidental death.

Officer Carved By Knife Tosser

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 2—(CP). — Provincial Constable W. A. Markle of Glencoe was wounded last night when Joseph Letourneau, 45, Mosa Township, drew two home-made 14-inch blades and, the officer said, tried to defy arrest.

Letourneau offered in court today to show County Magistrate C. W. Hawkshaw his brand new operation scar. The magistrate declined the offer; instead, sent the prisoner to the Ontario Hospital for 60 days' observation.

While disarming Letourneau, the constable received a gash over one knuckle from one of the home-made knives. The cut was not serious enough to require medical attention.

After complaints were received that Letourneau was terrorizing residents of his neighborhood with examples of his knife-throwing skill, Constable Markle went to arrest him.

The knives were pieces of old car springs, ground to a razor-edge. Besides the knives, the constable took from Letourneau a rope and large shears.

Letourneau gave an original description of himself for court statistics. He said he was single and glad of it ,and his occupation was a little bit of everything.

In remanding him to the hospital, the magistrate asked him if he had not been ill. Letourneau announced he had a new scar for an oppendicitis operation, and asked the

Court Loser Bombards Judges With Tomatoes Bemoans Aim As He's Led To Jail

LONDON, Dec. 2 (AP)—A disappointed litigant stood up today in the court of appeals and bombarded two bewigged lord justices with tomatoes.

He missed but the justices, Sir Charles Clauson and Sir Rayner Goddard, immediately gave him six weeks in prison for contempt of court.

Earlier in the morning the litigant, Frank Harrison, had been refused an appeal for a new trial in a minor county court action in which he was involved. He departed muttering. After a while he returned, his coat bulging.

As the lord justices arose for luncheon, Harrison stood up in the back of the courtroom and shouted: "I want justice!"

Then he began pulling tomatoes from under his coat and opened fire.

"Send for the tipstaff," thundered Lord Justice Clauson and the black-gowned bailiff, who carried a metal-tipped rod, strode forward and arrested Harrison.

"You're not worth your blasted salt," Harrison shouted, adding as he was being led away, "it's a pity I'm not a better shot."

Captive 30 Hours Girl 18, Is Set Free

OXON HILL, Md., Dec. 2.—(CP).—Police search for three men in a black truck was intensified to-day after 18-year-old Mary Brown, sobbing hysterically, stumbled into her home last night with a story of being blindfolded and held captive for 30 hours.

The girl, her clothing torn and her hair dishevelled, collapsed and was reported able to give her family little coherent information.

Robert Manning, a family friend and former Washington detective, quoted Mary as saying three men had held her prisoner all night long. "They had knocked her out and thrown her on a mattress." She said she had not been attacked.

"She said she was blindfolded all the time they held her, but she knew one of the men had a mustache."

Manning added that the girl, seized while coming home from school Wednesday with her sister, expressed belief she had not been taken more than five miles away.

An automobile—not the truck in which she was abducted— brought her to a field within a half mile of the Brown farm home about 10 o'clock last night. There she was let out.

She ran up a lane to the house, where Manning was keeping watch while members of the family rested after an anxious night and day.

She fell in my arms and I carried her into the dining room and put a coat over her. She looked terrible.

He called a doctor, who confirmed the girl's statement that she had not been assaulted.

William Brown, father of the girl, said she was abducted by men who mistakenly thought he could pay a ransom.

When his daughter convinced the men he was unable to pay any ransom, he said, they released her.

Brown said in a statement to the press the men burned all the girl's clothes and she returned home wearing a slip.

Auto Fire Victims Sent To Hamilton

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 2 (CP)—Bodies of William Leuchter, 26, and Michael Mikoda, 22, who burned to death when their automobile became a roaring torch on the Detroit-Chicago highway near here, will be taken to their homes at Hamilton, Ont., today.

Charles Shapiro, Hamilton undertaker, and Miss Julia Sigut, cousin of Mikoda, identified the bodies yesterday, while customs officials of the United States and Canada, and United States internal revenue officers opened investigations into circumstances surrounding the accident Wednesday night in which the pair were killed.

The car, which piled into the back of a truck-trailer, was loaded with alcohol, the authorities said. Scores of persons who gathered at the scene, powerless to aid the men in the car, were endangered as cans of alcohol exploded.

Friend Saves Miner Overcome In Fire

SUDBURY, Ont., Dec. 2—(CP).—Arthur Cahill, Frood miner, was rescued from his blazing home early to-day after flames had forced him, his wife and their three children into sub-zero weather with only night clothes on.

Mrs. Cahill discovered the fire shortly after her husband had returned from work. The couple and their children left the building, and Cahill returned to get some clothes. He got one armload and returned for a second before he was overcome by smoke.

A neighbor, Charles O'Brien, then entered the house and stumbled over Cahill as he lay unconscious on the stairway to the second floor. He dragged him out, where he soon recovered.

Bus-Freight Toll Set At 23 As Another Dies

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 2 (AP).—With the death of a youth early today, the toll of the country's worst school bus-train disaster rose to 23 identified victims.

Sixteen youths, all occupants of the crowded bus that was hit 10 miles south of here yesterday by a speeding freight train roaring through an early-morning snowstorm, were injured.

Salt Lake General Hospital authorities said one badly mangled body remained unidentified. However, morgue attendants said it was possible the mangled form was part of one or several of the identified children.

Some of the dead were so badly mangled that parents were not allowed to see the bodies.

Screaming through a December sleet storm which had put it more than an hour behind schedule on a run from Denver, the "Flying Ute," fastest freight train on the Denver and Rio Grande Western line, ploughed into the loaded school bus near suburban Midvale, 10 miles south of Salt Lake City.

Takes Quarter-Mile To Stop.

Engineer E. L. Rehmer, warned of the impending collision only an instant before the crash, applied the brakes, but the heavy, 5-car train thundered its entire quarter-mile length further, showering bodies and wreckage, before grinding to a stop.

Rescue workers employed a dozen ambulances to hurry the injured to the hospital, then set about — in many cases with sacks and baskets—to gather up the shattered remnants of the dead.

All of the dead except the driver, 29-year-old Farrold Silcox of Riverton, and all of the injured were students at Jordan High School. Their ages ranged from 12 to 18.

Most of them were sons and daughters of farmers in the little Mormon communities of Riverton, South Kordan, Bluffdale and Crescent.

State and county authorities pressed investigations as to the cause of the tragedy. Survivors agreed Silcox observed the state law in bringing the bus to a complete stop before the crossing.

Marjorie Groves, 16, who escaped virtually unhurt, said snow covered the windows of the bus.

"No one saw the train coming at all," she said. Mr. Silcox had stopped the bus, and was just starting up again when it struck us."

12 Days Adrift Ship Afire 5 Crew Saved

NEW YORK, Dec. 2—(AP)—From far out on the Atlantic last night wireless crackled the dramtic story of the rescue of the crew of the schooner Allen F. Rose, afire with its stern held together by wire after drifting helplessly for 12 days off Newfoundland.

The rsecue was made by the American Scantic liner Mormacsun, which sighted the blazing schooner about 50 miles north of Cape Race this noon, sped to its side, and took aboard its captain and crew of four.

"11:05 a.m. EST sighted two masted schooner Allen F. Rose all afire off St. John's Newfoundland with only one jib set heading east and wallowing heavily in trough of rough sea. Proceeded at once to locality. Noon arrived alongside distressed schooner, found rudder missing, vessel afire in waterlogged condition. Captain J. Keeping of schooner requested immediate removal of crew.

"Manoeuvred about schooner and effected transfer of captain and four men all O.K. at 12:30 p.m. They had been drifting for 12 days keeping afloat by pumping. Captain said stern being held together by heavy wire passed under counter and would not have held together through gale we are now experiencing. Schooner bound for St. John's."

ports of their numerous secret agents.

"Had there been a general conflict, Italy would, no doubt, have intervened little by little on the side of Germany—perhaps by a revival of 'piracy' and the like. But there was nothing that resembled Italian mobilization—whether open or secret—in those days.

"With regard to Tunis it is believed here that the question has been emphasized by Ciano so that Italy may be better able to bargain for concessions elsewhere—that is, Spain. In spite of much propaganda and the activities of secret agents, Italy has been unable to create a situation favorable to herself in Tunis.

"The growth of the population has been going against her. In 1931 there were just over 50,000 Italians and an equal number of French in Tunis. In 1936 there were 94,000 Italians and 108,000 French. More and more Italians have been applying for French citizenship in Tunis—222 in 1936, 367 in 1937 and 706 up till now in the present year.

"Many Italians in Tunis have become Tunisian in outlook and have no wish to fight for Italy. Many Italians in Tunis are Jews and have naturally been made pro-French, or at least protunisian by Mussolini's anti-semitic legislation.

A Catch Coming

"The France-Italian agreement with regard to Tunis was renewed in 1935 but it has not yet been ratified by Italy. It is believed that she will demand "concessions" in return for her consent to ratify the agreement.

"There is strong tendency among Italian political leaders to regard France as weak and to believe that 'concessions' can be extorted if Italy makes herself appear strong and puts forward ever-increasing demands.

"Italy is being constantly encouraged in this tendency by the Germans. This is the reason why Italians are emphasizing their 'claims' not only in Tunis but also in regard to Nice, Corsica and Savoy.

"They will, no doubt, be willing to forego 'claims' of this kind in return for 'concessions' that will lead to a defeat of the Spanish government and will establish permanent Italo-German strategic bases in Spain."

Geo. Brooks' Success Pleases W. J. Moore

Returning yesterday from the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' convention at Belleville this week, W. J. Moore, dairy instructor in the Peterboro district paid a compliment to George Brooks of Trent River factory who was the winner of the Echlin Memorial Cup for making the highest scoring cheese of all the factories in the Association. This trophy was presented to Mr. Brooks at the banquet Tuesday night by T. A. Thompson, M. P. for Lennox.

G. E. Lackner of Toronto, the new director of dairying for Ontario, told the convention that cheese factories would be licensed next year, "and improvements ordered by inspectors will have to be before a factory receives a license."

"We will cancel the license of any factory that accepts bad or previously rejected milk. We are putting this issue up to the cheesemaker".

Mr. Lackner said the department was going to place more responsibility for the acceptance of milk on the shoulders of the cheesemakers. "Get to work on your own plants and then go after the farmer and ask him to clean up".

Inner Row Of Trees Will Be Cut Down

The inner row of trees on Crescent street from Romaine to the Little Lake Cemetery is to be cut down, the Board of Works agreed last night in spite of the sentimental wrench at the loss of even one tree.

However, the Board is working according to a plant of beautification of the lake front. Removing the inner row of trees will permit the widening of the street. Many loads of top soil are being drawn from the city's quarry to the Crescent street bank. New trees and shrubs are to be planted and Alderman Glover hinted that new electric light standards might be set up in a long row around the Crescent, suggesting ultimate improvement at that street that is not contemplated at present by citizens generally. These intimations are bound to excite imagination.

Uprooting of the trees was practically decided during Mayor Macdonald's term, but the council has been reluctant about it. Now, they have made up their minds beyond any regret and the work has been ordered.

expressed at this morning's session of the County Council over the death of Mr. Udy.

Reeve Allan B. Mann, of Smith addressing the council said, "It was with deep regret I learned today of Mr. Udy's death. He was one of the most honest men I have ever known. He was most honorable and efficient in the administration of the township's affairs. Everyone who had dealings with him will recall the exactness and thoroughness with which he tackled all reports and township business. I would move that this council express to Mrs. Udy our regrets at his passing.

Warden McDonald said, "I had the highest regard of Mr. Udy. No official of any township has as much work to do as the clerk and treasurer and Mr. Udy exemplified efficiency in this work. I am very sorry to hear of his death."

Reeve W. A. Anderson of Otonabee seconded Reeve Mann's motion and Miss Batten was instructed to convey to Mrs. Udy the council's expression of sympathy. In part Reeve Anderson remarked, "I knew the late Mr. Udy intimately. He had a way of doing his work properly and yet retained the friendship of everyone in the township. His passing is a distinct loss to the community.

Exact Figures A secret.

Previous reports in London and Montreal have set the number of planes ordered at "slightly less than 100" and the price at $10,000,000. Sise said the air ministry considers it "not in the public interest" to divulge precise figures.

He said he does not anticipate any difficulty in meeting the order of the air ministry. A deadline for delivery has been set but this also must be kept secret.

In London, Sise organized a small operating staff which will act as liaison with the Handley Page Company, the air ministry and the Canadian manufacturers. They will forward blueprints and general data required for the production of parts and assembly of the planes.

Sise confirmed that the machine to be built will be the Hampden type of Handley Page bomber, a twin-engined, mid-wing monoplane classed as a high performance medium bomber.

Also in London conferring with Sise on the plans for production were executives of National Steel Car, Ltd., Ottawa Car Company, Canadian Car and Foundry, Canadian Vickers, Ltd., Fleet Aircraft and the Canadian Fairchild Company.

An assembly plant will be built at St. Hubert, near the Montreal airport, and other plant construction will be necessary to fill the order.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Dec. 2 (C.P.). — Featured by heavy buying of wheat by outside houses, Winnipeg grain market enjoyed one of the most lively sessions in recent months today. More than 1,000,000 bushels of wheat were bought by southern and eastern interests and prices closed ¾ to ¼ higher, December 60½, May 62½ to ⅝, and July 63¾a.

The fine buying burst followed a decidedly dull opening which saw values skid large fractions. The closing two hours were active.

Export business worked overnight was estimated at 300,000 bushels and lifted the week's output to about 2,500,000 bushels.

Ford Holds Allowing Jews In U.S. On Quota Would Prove Asset

DETROIT, Dec. 1—(AP).—Henry Ford, who has been accused by some critics of being anti-semitic, believes the admission under immigration quotas of Jews seeking a haven from Nazi persecution would give "a new impetus" to business in the United States.

The automobile manufacturer, decorated by the German government on his 75th birthday last July 30, made the assertion in a statement last night after conferring in his Dearborn office with Rabbi Leo Franklin, of Temple Bethel, Detroit.

Referring to the Grand Cross of the Order of the German Eagle which Chancellor Hitler conferred on him, Ford said:

"My acceptance of a medal from the German people does not, as some people seem to think, involve any sympathy on my part with Nazilism. Those who have known me for many years realize that anything that breeds hate is repulsive to me."

Ford, said "It is my opinion that the German people, as a whole, are not in sympathy with their rulers in their anti-Jewish policies, which is the work of a few war-makers at the top."

"I believe that the United States cannot fail at this time to maintain its traditional role as a haven for the oppressed," Ford said. "I am convinced not only that this country could absorb many of the victims who must find a refuge outside of their native lands, but that as many of them as could be admitted under our selective quota system would constitute a real asset to our country.

New Impetus to Business

"Because of their special adaptability in the fields of production, distribution and agriculture, they would offer to the business of this country a new impetus at a time like this, when it is badly needed.

"I am confident that the time is near when there will be so many jobs available in this country that the entrance of a few thousand Jews, or other immigrants, will be negligible.

"I believe that the return-to-the-land movement is one of the ultimate solutions of our economic problems, and in this movement the Jews of the old world can play a significant part. I am wholly sympathetic with the movement to give the oppressed Jew an opportunity to rebuild his life in this country and I, myself, will do everything possible toward that end."

The founder of the Ford Motor Company's vast industrial empire said "hundreds of Jewish men now employed in our plants show marked ability and loyalty and, if the turnover among them is sometimes comparatively high, it is indicative of their ambition to improve themselves."

Fritz Haller, Detroit German consul, in presenting the medal to Ford last summer, said it was a token of Hitler's admiration. Ford's brief response was: "Thank you very much."

In 1927 a $1,000,000 libel suit was filed against Ford for an alleged anti-Jewish campaign in his Dearborn independent. The case was settled out of court and Ford disposed of the weekly newspaper. At that time he issued a statement paying tribute to the Jewish race.

On Thursday afternoon of last week the Women's Auxiliary of St. Mark's Church met in the Sunday school rooms and quilted two quilts. Preceding the work a pot-luck dinner was held. There was a splendid attendance.

Quite a number from St. Mark's Sunday school attended the Hastings Deanery Sunday School Association convention held in Madoc on Tuesday evening of this week.

There has been more than unusual activity around the depot lately. This week Mr. G. B. Airhart loaded two cars of lumber, Bell and Barlow unloaded one car-load of wheat and J. Davidson loaded livestock.

C. Thompson To Head Madoc Cheese Group

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Dec. 2.—At the annual meeting of the patrons of the Madoc Cheese and Butter Factory, Mr. John Thompson, son of the late Charles Thompson, was unanimously elected president for the coming year, with Alex Johnston re-engaged as cheesemaker.

The meeting was presided over by Mr. Fred Sager, and Mr. Owen McEvoy, cheese inspector, was present, addressing the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Corcoran escaped with a shaking up when their car in which they were returning from visiting in Ottawa, left the road at a point on No. 7 highway, near Silver Lake.

Mrs. Corcoran was driving at the time, and it is thought that something went wrong with the steering gear. The car was quite badly damaged.

Appearing before Magistrate Lloyd in local police court on Thursday afternoon, J. Blakley of Madoc, was sentenced to ten days with a fine of $24.50 and costs, and an additional twenty days, if fine is not paid, for being in charge of an automobile in the streets of the village of Tweed, while under the influence of liquor.

Trent River Frozen At Hastings Dam

HASTINGS, Dec. 2. — The Trent River froze over within one hundred feet of the dam here on Wednesday evening, and remained frozen on Thursday for the first freeze-up of the season. Ice on the river was not nearly thick enough to support a person, but it would serve to indicate that winter is just around the corner.

Frank Hall, tobacco grower near Simcoe, promised five young men here early in the fall that if his tobacco crop brought him good prices on the market, he would forward each a bonus for their assistance in helping him harvest his crop. Prices must have been good, because Wednesday's mail brought $5.00 to each of the boys. The group were: Kitchener Smith, Vernon Phillips, Paul Coughlan, Elmer Faux and Gus Faux. The latter two obtained jobs in the tobacco factory at Delhi, Ontario, shortly after completion of the harvest.

MR. JOHN W. JOHNSTON

Convincing proof of the splendid results that are to be had by using a short treatment of Syntona is found in the many excellent reports received from men and women who have used this medicine. Scores of former sufferers from stomach disorders, gas and indigestion, weak kidneys, getting up nights, nervousness and rheumatic pains are amazed at the way Syntona goes to the root of their troubles and soon has them feeling like different persons. Here, for example, is the splendid experience of Mr. John W. Johnston, 159 Fennell Avenue, Hamilton:

"For many years I suffered with a stomach ailment that caused misery every time I ate. Gas and stomach pains troubled me constantly. I took many treatments with little results. Often dizzy spells came over me and more recently I developed a pain in my back that made me feel miserable and weak.

"I have only taken a short treatment of Syntona, but already it has done more for me than anything else I ever used. The pains have gone out of my back, I don't get dizzy spells any more, and I got great relief from stomach trouble. Food doesn't give me the distress now that it used to."

Get yourself a treament of Syntona to-day at Elliott's Drug Store, Peterborough. The chances are that you too will say it is the best medicine you ever had the good fortune to use.

Italian Consul Forcing U.S. Citizens Into Fascism, Martin Claims

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2—(AP). — Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers' Union, told Congressional investigators today that an Italian vice-consul, Giacomo Ungarelli, had attempted to persuade United States citizens of Italian ancestry in Detroit to support the "Fascist Government."

Testifying before a House of Representatives committee investigating un-American activities, the union executive said:

"This meant that American citizens were being asked by the Italian government to be traitorous to their country and carry on actively in support of Fascist Italy.

"When these requests met with refusal, threats of physical violence were made. When this did not succeed, Ungarelli set into motion an economic boycott against these persons."

Martin added that merchants who obtained supplies from Italy were told they would be cut off from their sources if they did not accede to Ungarelli's demands.

The witness said the vice-consul had come to Detroit in 1934 from Brazil, having been brought there "because of his effective methods in forcing Italians living in Brazil to become willing and pliable agents of the Italian Fascist Government."

Official Recalled.

Martin said protests against Ungarelli, made to the State Department, resulted in Ungarelli's recall.

The U.A.W. leader told the committee there undoubtedly "has been a definite revival of Fascist activities within the last few months, including interference with the election campaign in Wayne County." Detroit is in that county.

Martin quoted two Italians running for office on the Republican ticket as saying:

"When nationalities inferior to ours, like the Polish, Irish and Jewish, have absolute control of the political situation in Detroit, some degenerate, ignorant Italian sons, for the price of treachery, are using the right of speech to sell, like Judas Iscariot, the dignity and honor of our race.

"We, the avengers of our rights and our history, give warning so that you may not be deceived by those miserably-souled worms."

Martin asserted it was a "common report" that Judge Paul V. Gadola of Flint, Mich., "has been seen many times at Fascist meetings." The Labor leader added that it was "reliably reported" in Flint that the judge participated in meetings called to raise money to help the Italian war against Ethiopia.

Gadola was a witness before the committee several weeks ago. His testimony, critical of the handling of a Flint sitdown strike by Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan, prompted a rebuke from President Roosevelt. The President accused the committee of allowing itself to be used in an attempt to influence an election.

Murphy subsequently was defeated for re-election.

Competitive Selling Of Milk Eliminated In New Zealand

The British housewife "isn't having" any dictation by the government as to the vendors from whom she buys milk, according to the news cables, but in that attitude she is years behind her sisters in Australia and New Zealand, H. B. Cowan told the Examiner today in a comment on the proposed legislation in the old country and the public's reaction to it.

Elimination of competitive selling of milk from door to door was put into effect in Wellington, N. Z., sixteen years ago when the city took over the selling of milk as a public service in the same manner as the distribution of water and light.

The zone system of distribution has also been in operation from three to four years in Melbourne, Australia, and in Auckland, New Zealand, Mr. Cowan said.

One Customer to Street

"In Melbourne the Milk Control Board made a survey of milk distribution to determine exactly the extent of duplication or over-lapping. They found instances of men delivering on 157 of the city's streets, and in 93 cases they had only one customer to a street. They also found as many as eleven customers living side by side and receiving milk from eleven different distributors.

Zones were blocked out in North Auckland and each served by one milkman with a resulting saving which enabled the Board to reduce the cost to the consumer one cent a quart less than in the other parts of the city carrying on the system of every man for himself. The latest suggestion by the Board proposes an increase in their authority which they say will permit another cut of a cent a quart to the consumer, and at the same time enable them to pay the farmer producing the milk 40 cents more a hundred pounds.

Mileage Reduced

Mr. Cowan said the New Zealand government appointed a Royal Commission to investigate milk distribution. The Commission reported that a possible saving to 240,000 consumer by the elimination of the unnecessary cost of duplication in delivery should supersede the claims of dairies and producer-distributors. In Melbourne dairies that were closed by the new system were indemnified by the government.

The economies of "rationalized" distribution have won the New Zealand and Australian housewives, Mr. Cowan said, but English women are apparently strongly opposed to any invasion of the system to which they have long been accustomed. Mr. Cown said there is a growing interest in the New Zealand plan of distribution. His recent address in Cincinnati dealt entirely with this question, and the convention of dairy men followed his story intently, many of the members subsequently pressing him for further details.

Not Due To Selfishness

It does not take a great deal at times to cause a bit of a stir. S. S. Breckon, principal of the Norwood High School, made an address at the commencement exercises of the school, and he was urging parents to give their children the advantage of a high school education, and his view was that it was a selfish attitude on the part of parents not to send their children to secure secondary education. He was also of the belief that there was no excuse for parents not "giving their children a break" in the matter of such training as the school had to offer.

When County Council was in session here Warden McDonald took exception to the statements, explaining there were parents in the county who could not afford to send their children to high school, as there were many farmers who did not have the necessary income to make the course possible. In some cases it would mean transportation each day and in others it might mean paying board in the school community if the pupil lived some distance away.

Possibly the school principal in his desire to plead the cause of a better education did overstate the case. There would not be many cases in the county or in the city either where the selfishness of parents would be the cause of a child not receiving all possible education. Human nature does not work that way in many cases, as we are certain parents as a rule are ready to make sacrifices in order that children may have opportunity. If there is one weak point in the thing it is that too often the children for whom the sacrifice is being made fail to give evidence of recognizing it.

And Now To Kingston

Albert J. Hubbell went into the neighboring city of Oshawa a few months ago and passed himself off as Dr. J. J. Hubbell of Timmins, representing that he was preparing to operate a clinic in that community. He was also in need of a competent nurse to take charge.

He came back there a short time ago in charge of police who found him 3,000 miles away and across the border. His next move will be to Kingston where he will remain for five years. When he appeared in court all the bluff and front had oozed from the man and his only request was that he might be allowed to learn a trade of some sort when in Kingston.

How he managed to induce a nurse who was apparently a well-trained, normal and sensible girl to accompany him has not been explained, nor will it be as Hubbell entered a plea of guilty.

The whole case is an example of the way in which we trust people in this country. We are not a suspicious folk, and what took place in Oshawa could probably have taken place elsewhere. When he approached a doctor in Oshawa and passed himself off as a fellow practitioner he had little trouble arranging to have a cheque made good. When he interviewed the nurse she apparently had no reason to believe he was otherwise than genuine. And yet the man was a clear swindle and an evil individual. Now that it is all over and Hubbell is placed where he belongs it is easy enough to say that the people at Oshawa were easily taken in, but we wonder if the same thing could not have taken place right here in Peterborough or elsewhere.

On His 22nd Birthday

Perhaps you grow weary at times seeing reference in these columns about the age of the young men who are being taken in by police and eventually sentenced to our penal institutions. It is no more pleasant to write such material than it is to read it.

If one were to ask the average adult today what he was doing on his 22nd birthday he might not be able to answer at once, but in a general way he would know where he was at that time and what he was doing. Few would claim they were receiving much in the way of wages; most of them would tell you they were just in the process of getting under way; they would have been completing their trade or learning some business.

There was a young fellow from Chatham in court at London. He had been giving police a good enough chase, and they finally caught up with him after he drove a stolen car through a wall of a hotel. Then they found that he was also in possession of a revolver. To keep the car going he had stolen gasoline.

In ordinary court routine the young man would have been sentenced the same day because he had entered a plea of guilty but the Crown asked that sentence be left over a day or so as that particular occasion was his 22nd birthday.

Perhaps you see so much of this in papers that it has come to be routine reading and it does not cause you much concern. But if your own son was due to be sentenced on his 22nd birthday the thing would look different. Just at the time when a young fellow should be getting started, when he would have found the work he was going to follow. Sentenced on his 22nd birthday! Perhaps the Crown was right in asking that it be laid over for a day or so.

He Has Left The City

Rocco Perri is reported to have left Hamilton, but whether he went far away is uncertain as he was seen in Toronto a short time after his departure.

He has been in Hamilton for a good many years, during which time his wife was murdered one night when gunmen were evidently certain they were going to shoot Perri himself. Since then part of his home has been blown up by a blast of dynamite, but he had left the place a short time previously to go to a store. The other evening he went to start his car and found a bomb had been placed so timed that pressing the starting apparatus would cause the explosion. The car was blown to smithereens and two men taken to the hospital. But Perri was virtually uninjured.

There were years during the operation of the O.T.A. when Rocco Perri was named "King of the Bootleggers," and we believe he picked that name out and gave it to himself, probably nothing more or less than a form of braggadocio which made its own peculiar appeal to him.

We have no way of knowing what the people of Hamilton think about this gentleman, but bombings and dynamite are foreign to this country and probably Hamilton is weary of a succession of such events. The police have never been able to tie the crimes to any person. At best a citizen who bore the name "King of the Bootleggers" cannot be graded among the most desirable.

Quality In Cheese

The Central Cheese makers' Association in convention at Belleville heard a plain statement from C. E. Lackner, the director of dairying for Ontario, that quality was going to be attained in the production of cheese in this district and every other section.

It will not be possible to open a new factory without permission of the director and all factories will have to secure licenses. If it is found a district is now sufficiently served by existing cheese factories another will not be allowed to commence operations.

Of even greater importance will be the insistence on positive cleanliness and excellence of output. The department has on hand a good deal of information, and some of it is not pleasant to read. It was plainly stated at the Belleville meeting that there are avilable records showing "factories where flies, nails, glass and other impurities had been found, and also cases where cheese has been eaten by mice." There was no mincing of words and the official said there was only one word to describe the sending out of such cheese, and that was "plain fraud."

If there is one thing our dairy farms need it is an outlet for their milk, and that milk must be good; it must be clean, and no chances can be taken with it. If it does not come up to such standard then the cheesemaker must refuse it. We must make not merely good cheese—but the best cheese. And when we do that we can sell it without trouble. There are foreign markets where our cheddar cheese is in such demand that special markers are used to draw attention to the fact that certain stores have it for sale. That is what a well-earned reputation will do for the cheese business. We can sell quality cheese in quantities, and we can sell it where we cannot get rid of our butter. That is why the cheese factory is the big chance for the dairy farmer.

The Women Did It

How do people respond to what might well be termed sensible legislation? Here is a case in point: W. S. Morrison, Minister of Agriculture in the British Government, introduced a milk bill, which provided among other things for what he terms "rationalization" in 10 areas. As an economy move the number of milkmen delivering in a certain area would be reduced to avoid overlapping. Instead of half a dozen companies hiring men and horses and keeping up rigs there would be a monopoly granted to one company in a certain area, and with the money saved there would be a higher price paid to farmers for their milk.

Often enough in our own country we have heard people talking about the same thing. They can see three or four or more milk wagons on their own street, and they have remarked that it would be more sensible and less expensive to have one wagon doing the entire street.

Well there were a number of agencies quite taken with the new idea in London. Some of the preachers took occasion to refer to it and say the thing seemed right and sensible. The newspapers devoted a number of their columns to it and declared it was a dandy idea, but their readers started to chip in with letters saying the thing was haywire and crazy and ridiculous.

But where did the sticking point come? Just here—the housewife in England is a staunch believer in her liberties as a British subject. Was she going to have some meddling official from the Government come along and tell her what milkman who should call at her home? Not much!

What's more, in a free country who was going to tell a man that he should not come along and start a milk route if he was minded to do so? The forefathers of these people had fought that kind of stuff four generations ago and no Minister of Agriculture was going to take milk liberty away from a Briton.

So there you have it. The thing is all tied up in a knot at the moment—probably three or four knots. The housewives have done it because they like to pick their own milkman and the men have joined issue because they believe a man should be allowed to start business to make a living when and where he sees a chance.

NOTE AND COMMENT

COUSIN EZRA

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Cousin Ezra's in a jam, he is a badly worried man, he don't know what to do; he's full of worry and of fright, he told me most of it last night, his working days are through.

¶ He's been at one place eighteen years, no time his pay's been in arrears, nor did they use him rough; but I know Ezra's often said, he had no chance to get ahead, nor did they pay enough.

¶ And Ezra had a notion too, no man could handle what he'd do, he's said that oft before; if he would quit why then he'd bet, they'd have to scamper out and get, two men and may be more.

¶ He knew that business wasn't good, and things weren't going like they should, but he kept up his grief; the firm would fail if he should quit, affairs would get broke down and split, they'd all be on relief.

¶ He wasn't getting near his share, and they weren't using Ezra square, he'd tell the boss enough; so Ezra went and shed his woe, he just hauled off and let it go, I guess he talked quite rough.

¶ The boss just listened Ezra said, and now and then he'd shake his head, he frowned a little too; if Ezra's got the worst of it, and felt that he should up and quit—that's what he ought to do.

Great Family Loses Its Grip

LONDON—Baron Alfons de Rothschild, member of the once-powerful Austrian branch of the financial family, is today living in England, an exile from his home and a possible applicant for British citizenship. Like every other alien, he has to report himself and his residential address to the aliens registration office at famous Bow street in London.

And that is a measure of the decline in power of the Rothschild family, which in the 19th century was a symbol of fabulous wealth and political importance.

The Rothschild fortunes were founded by Mayer Rothschild, who lived in the ghetto of Frankfort and died in 1812. He had five sons. Anselm stayed in Frankfort and carried on the family banking business there. Nathan settled in Great Britain, Solomon in Vienna, Charles in Naples and James in Paris.

Thus there were now five Rothschild banking houses acting independently in the five countries, but together when a big deal was necessary. The family became the bankers of kings and nations. They floated huge national loans. They were all ennobled by the proud Hapsburg emperor, becoming barons of Austria. They helped finance and build great railway systems in France and Austria.

It was the English house which made a big fortune by getting first news of Napoleon's defeat at Waterloo in 1815. The English Rothschilds went from triumph to triumph. The second one of this branch, Baron Lionel Nathan Rothschild, was four times elected member of the House of Commons from London before he was allowed to take his seat, the disabilities imposed upon Jews being abolished in 1858. He was succeeded by his son, who became the first Rothschild peer of the British realm.

Disraeli, himself of Jewish blood, when premier in 1874 pulled one of his most dazzling coups—the purchase of shares which gave Great Britain control of the Suez Canal. Parliament was not in session, so the money could not be gotten from the nation's treasury. His friends, the Rothschilds, advanced the $20,000,000 necessary, taking a chance on its being repaid.

In France, too, the Rothschilds had stunning successes, surviving triumphantly all changes in the form of government. James, who established the French house, became the great friend of King Louis Philippe.

Down to the time of Leon Blum's premiership, Rothschilds were regents of the all powerful Bank of France. They ranked among the leaders in the 200 families who are supposed to rule France. The present generation still has vast interests in the French railways.

The Austrian house has fallen on evil days. Before the grab of Austria by the Nazis, they had sustained big financial losses. The house was composed of three brothers, Barons Louis, Eugene and Alfons. Eugene was the first Austrian host of the Duke of Windsor, entertaining him at Enzesfeld Castle. Both Eugene and Alfons were out of Austria when the Nazis took control. Baron Louis Rothschild is a Nazi prisoner, the rumor being that the Nazis are holding him for a gigantic ransom. In the meantime, they have grabbed all the Rothschild castles and estates.

Julius Streicher, famous as the premier Jew-baiter of Germany, sneeringly remarked: "The era and dynasty of the House of Rothschild, as well as that of the Hapsburg emperors, is over and done with."

Not all the Rothschilds have been interested in finance. Rich by inheritance, some of them turned to other things. The late Lord Lionel Rothschild was interested in entomology and bequeated to the British Museum the greatest private collection in the world. The successor to the title, Lord Victor, is connected with a Cambridge University experimental laboratory. In France Baron Henri de Rothschild is a well-known physician, founder of a free dispensary for the treatment of children's diseases.

LAUGHS IN COURT.

(London Sunday Dispatch)

THESE ARE SOME of the reasons why they laughed in the courts yesterday:

Solicitor (Tottenham): "I suggest you have given your wife nothing."

Husband: "I have given my wife my confidence. That's all any woman wants."

"I know his wife did not retaliate, otherwise I would have heard a chair being shifted.

"She always throws a chair."

Husband: "I have given my wife the benefit of the doubt so many times that she's begun to think I haven't a mind of my own."

Another husband: "My wife is very careless with the housekeeping money. I give her money for beer, and she spends it on bread."

Solicitor: "What sort of car was the prisoner driving?"

Witness: "It was a typical prisoner's car."

Motorist: "Whenever I open the sunshine roof when my wife is in the car, it always rains."

Solicitor: "Which way does this door open, inwards or outwards?"

"You just pick it up and put it on one side."

Witness (at Willesden): "While we argued, she had a relative standing in the kitchen ready to throw water over me."

IF UNION GOVERNMENT

(Chatham News)

Neither political party in Canada is in favor of unification of the railways. It would be interesting to know what their attitude would be if they were together in a Union government with both parties equally responsible politically for whatever action were taken.

• Japan Knows What She's After

A BRIEF SUMMARY of what Japan expects to get as a result of its recent conquests of China, together with its older acquisition of Manchukuo and its still older colony, Korea, would include the following outstanding points:

Iron. Japan wants to produce 23,000,000 tons of pig iron by the conclusion of its Five-Year Plan in 1941. Its present imports of iron ore are largely from the United States and Malaya. Both these sources might be closed in the event of war or the success of a campaign for economic sanctions against Japan. So Japan is counting on the Mozan iron field in North Korea, on the Anshan and newly - discovered Kuangchangling mines in Manchukuo, on the Lungyen deposits, northwest of Peking, and on the recently-captured mines around Tayeh, some 70 miles down the Yangtze River from Hankow. The Tayeh iron fields, which occupy an area of some 220 square miles, were producing between four and five hundred thousand tons of the ore before the outbreak of the war.

Coal. More than half of China's abundant coal reserves (estimated at over 200,000,000,000 tons) are located in Shansi Province, which is nominally under Japanese occupation.

Cotton. Hitherto about nine tenths of Japan's raw cotton has been bought in the United States and in British India. Japan's nationalist economists look forward to the day when North China will produce so much cotton that this dependence on foreign sources will be greatly reduced, if it is not altogether eliminated. Here again politics and economics are closely intertwined. The guerrilla movement in Hopei, Shansi, and Shantung Provinces must be crushed before Japan can cajole or coerce the peasants into planting much cotton, since the guerrillas are doing everything to discourage the cultivation of this crop.

Oil. This is the most dubious of China's natural resources. There are rumors of large undeveloped oil deposits in Shensi, but these are only rumors and the Japanese troops have not yet entered Shensi, which is west of Shansi.

Japan's optimistic reckoning of the economic spoils of conquest leaves out of account, to be sure, a point of considerable importance: the lack of any visible source of free capital with which to develop the resources which have been brought under its control. Its allies, Germany and Italy, can give it little help in this field, although large-scale barter agreements between Germany supplying machinery in exchange for Chinese minerals and raw materials, may develop in the future.

While lack of capital is, of course, a serious handicap, one should not underrate the possibilities of the combination of Japanese organizing capacity with Chinese cheap labor. If Chinese irregular resistance can be stamped out, a great economic empire, far exceeding Korea and Manchukuo may grow up in the area which is now frequently called Japan-in-China. Even now Japan is by no means as helpless against foreign boycotts and blockades as some enthusiastic sanctionists would believe.

• Now We Know the Trouble

(From the Canadian Liberal Monthly)

NO MATTER how industriously a government tackles its duties there are always a certain number of people throughout the country who are not totally satisfied. And these people—sometimes singly and sometimes in groups—sometimes in writing and sometimes verbally—register their kicks. Slightly more than 99 per cent of these kicks find their way eventually to the national office of the political party in power.

Following an extensive survey, we are publishing herewith a list of the 20 main—or most often repeated—complaints. They are:

There is too much patronage in government administration.

There is too little patronage and government supporters are invariably discriminated against.

Too many favors are granted to the West.

The just demands of the West are completely ignored.

The country is being ruined by low tariffs.

High tariffs are ruining the country.

The unemployed are being pampered by the government.

The government is heartlessly indifferent to the plight of the unemployed.

The government should get out of the wheat business.

More government intervention in the wheat business is essential if the country is to survive.

More money should be spent on national defence.

Far too much money is being spent on national defence.

Taxes should be reduced to balance the budget.

Government services should be enlarged through increased taxation.

The country has too many railway services.

Additional railway services are needed desperately.

Trade agreements are the bunk.

Trade agreements are swell.

• The Bad Habit of Swearing.

THE GROWTH of the habit of using bad language on the streets has been pointed out time and again, says the Chatham News. It is true that one is apt to hear more swearing on the street today than might have been heard some years ago.

Swearing like smoking, is a habit, and the one is no more necessary in daily life than the other. But smoking has some sort of excuse available, while swearing has none. The man who swears loudest gives evidence in an unconscious and objectionable enough way of a recognition that the Higher Power is held in general veneration. Otherwise there would be nothing remarkable or unusual in language based on disrespect for the Divinity.

In swearing proclivities men fall into a number of classes. There are those who swear occasionally and those who swear continually. The largest class is composed of those who swear only when they hit their thumb with a hammer or in cases of such accidents. Yet even this swearing at mishaps is a habit which will grow in a subtle manner unless a strict watch is kept.

So widely has the habit of profanity grown among some people that apparently they cannot express their feelings as faithfully as they wish without swearing. Nor can other blasphemers understand their language without the emphasis of curses and oaths. Yet such expressions and words are needless additions to the vocabulary of any man, and their use is simply the vile growth carelessly permitted to attach itself to casual conversations. To eradicate this growth before it has become too large should be the aim of every self-respecting man who realizes the influence of his example upon the young.

WHAT THEY SAY OF US.

(Hamilton Spectator)

FAIRLY TYPICAL of the sort of advertising Canada gets in the United States is this comment of a noted news service: "President Roosevelt's call for a sweeping program of 'continental defence' finds United States' first neighbor, Canada, probably the most lightly defended country of her importance in the world. For the security of her eastern seaboard the Dominion looks naturally to the protection of the British North Atlantic fleet and for the security of the Pacific she depends very frankly on the presence of the friendly American navy. Canada today, with only a tiny air force and navy, could only begin to defend herself after she was actually invaded." The trouble is, it's true.

5,000 FLYERS.

(Timmins Advance)

MANY were greatly impressed with the headings in the newspapers last week to the effect that Great Britain intended to purchase 6,000 new flying machines to add to the Empire's air fleet. The very number —6,000—was startling in itself. The Advance last week missed a chance to astonish the world by headlining the fact that on the previous Sunday 5,000 individual flyers had landed at the new Porquis Junction airport. Such a statement would have been absolutely correct. It might be added that these 5,000 individual flyers were geese on their annual flight south. They found the accommodation excellent for landing at the new airport at Porquis Junction.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

LET US CHOOSE to us judgment: let us know among ourselves what is good....Therefore hearken unto me, ye men of understanding: far be it from God, that he should do wickedness; and from the Almighty, that he should commit iniquity....

He withdraweth not his eyes from the righteous: but with kings are they on the throne; yea, he doth establish them for ever, and they are exalted. And if they be found in fetters, and be holden in cords of affliction; then he sheweth them their work, and their transgressions that they have exceeded. He openeth also their ear to discipline, and commandeth that they return from iniquity....Behold, God exalteth by his power: who teacheth like him? ....Remember that thou magnify his work, which men behold.—Job xxxiv, 4, 10; xxxvi, 7-10, 22, 24.

THE WEST SOFTENS.

(Windsor Star)

ALAS AND ALACK, the once virile West is going sissy. Out on the plains where men were men they have had to establish a date bureau. The University of Saskatchewan, no less, has set up a bureau through which handsome young men will be able to make dates with glamorous young women.

Imagine the hardy men and women of yesterday and what they would think of such goings on. Those were the days when men didn't need any third agency to help them date their women. No boy friend ever had to ask a date bureau to get him a girl friend.

How sad it is to think of a weakening West! A date bureau! Pie!

PETER, a 10-year-old Irish terrier, has been going daily for eight years to the G.W.R. station at Acton to bring back a bundle of evening papers to its master, Mr. F. A. Gibbons, of Horn Lane, Acton. The dog meets the train, carefully sorts out the parcel, and then goes with it in its mouth to where a policeman stops the traffic for the dog to cross the road, and it continues on its way to the shop, where it receives a bowl of milk.

Land Of Lynch Justice, Kidnappings False Prophets, Strip Dancers Says Nazi Press In Flaying U.S.

BERLIN, Dec. 2—(AP). — The newspaper Fraenkische Tageszeitung, official Nazi organ of Jew-baiter Julius Streicher's district, yesterday attacked the United States as a "land of lynch justice, kidnapping, false prophets and strip dancers."

"While America mixes in the most violent manner in the inner affairs of Germany and laments over the Jews without helping them, it forgets completely to tend to its own affairs," it said. "They are dirty enough and we all have reason enough to remind them."

The newspaper said "A small selection from the immeasurable swamp" would suffice for one day and then described the marriage of a 12-year-old Kentucky girl to a 24-year-old man.

"Year after year there are similar cases in all parts of the country," it said.

"In 'God's country,' which turns a somersault over Germany's Jewish legislation, there were between 1899 and 1935 more than 100 cases annually of lynch justice against negroes."

Kidnapping was described as "an American specialty" going back as far as the kidnapping of Charlie Ross in 1874.

"The most terrible crime of this sort which shook the entire world was the murder of the Lindbergh baby," it said.

Rev. Charles Coughlin was mentioned in the section devoted to "the land of a thousand sects and false prophets" although he has been lauded in the Nazi press during the last few days. Other mention was given to Father Divine as "the Negro god of harlem," and Dr. Francis Townsend as "the idol of the aged." Aimee Semple McPherson and her "religious circus" also received attention.

The paper said "at least 200 theatres in New York from afternoon till late at night to sold-out houses play smut the high point of which is the gradual undressing of more or less beautiful dancers."

Slasher Adds 14th Victim In Halifax

LONDON, Dec. 2—(AP).—Police, seeking to quell a rising hysteria caused by the epidemic of reported razor slashings in various parts of England, warned to-day that it was a criminal offence to report imaginary attacks.

The warning came after a 14-year-old school girl admitted her story of a razor attack in a Manchester suburb was a hoax and confessed her injury was accidental.

She was arrested, on a charge of causing public mischief, a few hours after she had told her story.

Meanwhile, an additional slashing at Halifax brought that town's total reported attacks to 14 since the razor blade maniac started his reign of terror there nine days ago.

Police had one clue which they hoped might lead to the slasher's capture. It was the cuff of an overcoat which one of the Halifax victims tore from him in a struggle.

No Gas Tax Cut Likely McQuesten States

TORONTO, Dec. 2—(CP).—Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Ontario Minister of Highways, told the 40th annual meeting of the Ontario Motor Truck Owners Association last night that he could not promise reduction of fees and gasoline taxes.

"We are building more and better roads and we are going to continue the development of our highway system," he said. "But the roads we are building must be paid for, so I cannot promise more roads and less taxes at the same time."

Mr. McQuesten urged courtesy, dependability and finer appearance of their organizations. He said courtesy is especially necessary for truck drivers "as the very size of a truck antagonizes the average motorist."

"Commercial drivers are already, as a class, the most competent on the road, and if they can be made the most law-abiding and courteous their example would teach others," he added.

2 Men Abduct Girl 18 Sister 15 Escapes

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2—(AP)—Police and residents of nearby Maryland conducted an intensive search today for 18-year-old Mary Brown, reported by her sister to have been abducted by two roughly dressed men.

The sister, Lucy, 15, said Mary was seized yesterday and thrown into the rear of a small delivery truck on a lonely road near their home at suburban Oxon Hill, Md.

Lucy said she broke away from the men, leaped into underbrush by the roadside, crawled under a fence and ran screaming across a snow-covered field to her home. She sobbed her story over the telephone to police. Her mother, Mrs. William Brown, was absent.

Catarrhal Deafness And Head Noises

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh, or if phlegm drops in your throat and has caused catarrh of the stomach or bowels, you will be glad to know that these distressing symptoms may be entirely overcome in many instances by the following treatment which you can easily prepare in your own home at little cost. Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. An improvement is sometimes noted after the first day's treatment. Breathing should become easy, while the distressing head noises, headaches, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., should gradually disappear under the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell, taste, defective hearing, and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms which suggest the presence of catarrh and which may often be overcome by this efficacious treatment. It is said that nearly ninety per cent. of all ear troubles are caused by catarrh and there must, therefore, be many people whose hearing may be restored by this simple, harmless, home treatment — (Advt.)

Today the Royal Canadian Air Force is equipping itself with more than two dozen of the latest version of this famous light plane . . . "Tiger Moth Trainer." The Canadian planes are manufactured at the De Havilland Aircraft of Canada, whose factory at Downsview near Toronto will shortly participate in the British rearmament program.

Belgium Assured Congo Is Safe

BRUSSELS, Dec. 2 — (AP).—Premier Paul Spaak announced today that Belgium had received formal assurances from Germany, Great Britain and France respecting the status of the Belgian Congo, a colony in equatorial Africa.

In a speech to the colonial commissions of the chamber and senate as Defence Minister Oswald Pirow of South Africa arrived for political talks, the premier thus quieted the public, worried over reports that Belgium would probably lose if the larger powers made a colonial deal with Chancellor Hitler.

It was reliably learned Mr. Pirow's visit was connected with negotiations for airplane service between South Africa and Belgian Congo and discussions on defence matters. Mr. Pirow has had conferences previously with Portuguese, British, German and Italian statesmen.

The subject of colonies was not ruled out entirely from the talks here, but was said to be undesirable because the Belgian standpoint that she does not intend to give up any of her African possession to Hitler has been made plain officially.

Mr. Pirow plans to leave tomorrow for the Netherlands.

MEN AND BATTERIES

THE BEST FRIEND that a motorist can have, from the standpoint of satisfactory operation of an automobile, is a dealer who can be depended upon when automotive service or merchandise is needed. Experienced car-owners know they cannot afford to pick service stations casually.

Selecting the right dealer is not a difficult matter. Find the man who is making a success of his business . . . he is almost certain to be dependable. His concern for his own future prompts him to offer you the kind of service and merchandise that will make you a permanent customer. There is no surer indication of an automotive dealer's interest in your satisfaction than the brand of battery he handles . . . for, unlike other kinds of merchandise, the value of a storage battery is something you cannot see. And the dealer who does not take advantage of that fact but offers you a battery of unquestionable merit, justifies your complete confidence.

You are in good hands at service stations and garages displaying the Exide sign. It is a safe guide to follow in buying automotive merchandise and service generally.

There is an Exide Battery designed to suit every car. Exide Hycap Batteries have extra high capacity for radio, heater, defroster, etc., with ample reserve for starting in any weather.

LOCAL CURLERS PREPARE FOR 63rd YEAR OF CLUB ACTIVITY

Knights Of Besom And Stane Turning Back The Years In Pride Of Accomplishment

The Peterborough Curling Club is preparing to start its 63rd year of activity, with the annual fall meeting being held in the club rooms next Monday night at eight o'clock. Hopes are held for the completion of the personnel of 36 rinks to compete on the Charlotte street ice lanes this coming winter. Work has commenced on the sheets of ice already.

This veteran curling club was founded in 1876. The grand old game of the besom and stane in this city was played on various sites, one time on the creek in the field where the lacrosse arena now stands on George street. Previous to its present site the Peterborough Curling Club rink was on property where the Quaker Oats Company now stands. It was then moved to Charlotte street. The place burned down New Year's Day in 1908, but the present fine rink was erected the same year by ambitious club members.

Many stones have slid down the lengths of ice in this town since the 1908 structure went up. Hundreds and hundreds of local, district and distant knights of the broom have competed there, and strange were the tales they told when the play was o'er! Many members have long since passed on, but some of the old-timers still wend their way down George street and out Charlotte to the curling club door when the frost is on the pumpkin and vistas of stones on the ice are conjured up again.

No Tankard.

Though much honor and many trophies have come to this curling club, the Ontario Tankard has never been won by a Peterborough rink. And it was not from lack of trying, either. The last competing clubs in this event—defeated in the provincial final—were in 1892 and in 1917. Two members of that 1917 finalist squad remain, W. M. Lang and H. F. Foote. This club has also been in the finals for the Governor-General's competition in 1899 and in 1909.

It was the last competing club in the Burden Trophy in 1925, and was much more fortunate in District Cup competitions. Peterborough took district honors and Ontario championships in 1908, 1910, 1911 and 1921. And Peterborough junior curlers won championships of Ontario in 1929, 1930 and 1932. The points competition for Ontario has been won by several local players, including Sam Ray, A. R. Moore, J. E. A. Fitzgerald, F. C. Weber and H. C. Giroux.

Back 30 Years.

Jumping back 30 years, for instance—but just for a moment—were such prominent old-time members as W. G. Morrow, H. F. Foote and R. P. Best. Mr. Morrow played the game in the days when the rink was where the Quaker Oats now stands. These three have been continuous members for that period. And the winning skips for Peterborough in the 1908 District Cup were C. E. Frost and H. F. Foote. In 1910, the skips were J. E. A. Fitzgerald and H. F. Foote. The next winter they were W. M. Lang and T. B. Yeats. And in 1921, victorious local skips were Ray Best and J. W. McDermid.

It is with pride that Peterborough curlers point to their long record, and it is with confidence that they look forward to another fine season in the game which they firmly believe is the finest in the world. It is a healthy, enjoyable, competitive and social sport—and one which is drawing ever larger numbers to it, including younger members. The club veterans rightly state that no matter what a man's financial position is, or his religion or politics or whatnot—so long as he is a curler, in the word of Robert Burns, "a man's a man for a' that."

MUSSING UP THE MAPLES

Last night at Duffus Academy Chief Gimblett, who has a reputation for knowing his way around a bowling alley, demonstrated to the 5-pin experts of the town just what his idea was in the art of pin-spilling. When the chips were counted in the City League it was found that the foxy Fire Chief had 803 of them, just enough to beat out C.G.E. Bob Clyde's 801 and 53 others with 600 or better score, nine of whom were in the 700 class During the evening Duffus Recreation team combined for the best total, 3524, and George Walton of Pattenick's broke out in his last game with a spare and eight strikes to count a 373 single Gray Copping's 380 and Fred Martin's 379 withstood the shock.

The early C.G.E. league saw another old master. Joe Marsden hit a 341 single to count 771 and Joe DeNoble 307 to also total 771. Art Heal knocked off 757; Bert Brindle 728; W. Westram 662 (325); R. Mason 661 (304); W. Ridley 643; J. Brady 630; J. Copping 630; W. Brown 608; C. A. Low 604; T. McPhate 603; H. Winterbottom 603 and W. Harris 600.

Following Clyde's 801 in the late C.G.E. gang Frank Doris counted 707; F. Wood 699; R. Sanderson 692; R. Dyer 666; E. Johnson 654; H. Taylor 650; A. Fields 644; H. Darling 641; A. Mattuci 632; F. Earle 634; G. Niles 637; L. Breadman 618 and T. Miller 530 and G. Walton 419 for 2 games each.

Weston's and Canada Bread teams took things easy and Miss Gertrude Lemming led the Telephone girls group with 394 for 2 games.

Five Straight

For the fifth consecutive year the official U.S. cross-country running championship went to Dan Lash, ABOVE, former middle distance ace with Indiana University and now a policeman in his home state. It was only in the last 15 yards of the 6¼ mile race through snow and mud that Lash overcame Victor Dyrgall to take first place by 8-10 second.

Ace Goal-Getter Hunt Takes Eyes Of Scouts

LONDON, Dec. 2—(CP Cable).—When Sheffield Wednesday play Plymouth Argyle in a second division English football league match Saturday the eyes of a select coterie of spectators will be fixed on one of the 22 players on view.

Dazzled by the marksmanship of Douglas Hunt, the Wednesday's centre-forward who leaped into fame by scoring nine goals in two matches, managers and scouts of several clubs seeking to strengthen their teams, will attend the match with businesslike intentions.

Hunt, formerly on Tottenham Hotspurs' roster, is in his second season with the famous Yorkshire club. Last year he scored only six goals but three against Luton Town a week ago brought his total for the current campaign to 15. The previous week he created a new scoring record for the Wednesday by netting six goals in the team's 7-0 victory over Norwich City.

Driving for the championship of the first division, Derby County faces stiff opposition in a home match with Liverpool. The County has a three-point advantage over Everton who anticipate little difficulty in taking the measure of Chelsea, now near the bottom of the standing.

In an effort to get out of the major league danger zone Stoke City's directors went deep into their money bags to effect the transfer of Pat Gallacher from Sunderland. The clever inside-left, with the Roker Park squad since 1927, was released for a fee of £5,000 ($23,600).

Up in Scotland soccer fans are ready for the most attractive list of fixtures since the campaign opened. Apart from Rangers who have a good margin at the top of the major league, positions of contenders for the championship may be subjected to some revision when results are known.

Rangers are at home to Queen of the South, erstwhile leaders who won 3-2 in the corresponding match at Ibrox Park last year. Celtic, runnerup with 24 points, four behind Rangers, will find Hibernians of Edinburgh a much improved side with a strong forward line.

Hearts and Kilmarnock clash on the former's ground in the Scottish capital.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

SINCE the Canadian Press insists that we send our vote in on the 1938 All-Eastern football team, choosing from the three All-Group selections already made—and we didn't think much of the All-O.R.F.U. squad—we pick this gang: Flying wing, Morris of Argos; halves, Westman of McGill, West of Argos and Stirling of Sarnia; quarter, Stukus of Argos; snap, Willis of Western; insides, Herman of Ottawa and Fleming of Nats; middles, Wadsworth of Ottawa and Burns of Nats; outsides, Holden of Varsity and Burton of Nats. Of course, it's slightly absurd, since we didn't see a single Big Four or Intercollegiate contest this year! Nothing but senior O.R.F.U. scraps—but then this business of grid experting is a rather silly gesture at best. For instance, we expect Argos to trounce Sarnia on Saturday, but wouldn't bet a bent dime on it.

• • • • • • •

GRID EXPERTS have a lot of fun and while away the long autumn days when little else but rugby is moving in sports, and the players, fans and readers seem to enjoy it. But too often the so-called experts hazard a guess on a game when they've never seen either team in action. All they know, like the late Will Rogers, is what they read in the papers. We had two chuckles on the subject this past fall. One was the sudden change in the experts' predictions after the startling upset win of our Orfuns over Sarnia. The next Saturday, not a single scribe would creep out on the limb to say: "Beaches to wallop Orfuns." A Toronto gee wrote: "Beaches will er-ah beat the Orfuns!" The other grin came about over Ralph Adams' stunt in a Winnipeg paper. He had predicted a soft win for one team and, when the other won handily, his usual column next day was a blank but for these words: "Gone out to lunch—all day!"

• • • • • • •

BILL WALSHE of Kingston is hinting at a bolstered Queen's team for next autumn. Seems to think Coach Ted Reeve is now on the prowl for several students who happen to be ace footballers, too. Guys like Murray Griffin of the Rough Riders, Mike Meikle of Cobourg's Galloping Ghosts, Sammy Sward of th Bam-Bam-Balmies, Mike Loucks of Peterborough Orfuns, and Tony Golab of Sarnia Imps. These huskies might look odd in a student's gown but would certainly bulge the Tri-Color sweaters. It may be just wishful thinking on the part of Bill and Ted, but who knows? After all, a collitch education at reduced rates is something.

THOSE WHO LIKE SWIM MEETS just set aside next Wednesday p.m. and ankle up the avenue to the Y.M.C.A. A joint meet will be held at 8.15, with Y.W.C.A. mermaids and Y.M. mere men competing in a number of splash events. Girls' senior city championships and life-saving medal competition, various races and an exhibition of the really nifty water work of the Silver Finettes. The aqua athletes always intrigue us when the outdoor ponds harden up, as they just go calmly ahead with their favorite sport—but, of course, indoors.

SPEAKING OF WATER, the Messrs. Hartley and Sheehy expect to start flooding at the Brock St. rink the first of next week. With Ben English the official ice-maker. Dance floor is being taken out now and various repairs being made around the arena, but it'll take several more days ere the floor will be ready to get a sprinkling. If we recall rightly, it is generally about the middle of December before ice is available here indoors for the puckists to start workouts. What we need badly in this town is an artificial ice rink—and it would be nice to get one before 1966 or so, don't you think?

WELL, one O.H.A. grouping in this neighborhood has been lined up. Bill Jackson and Herb Hendrie returning from the junior meeting last eve in Port Hope with news of the eight-team setup. It'll have Lindsay, Port Hope, Whitby, Cobourg, Oshawa, Bowmanville, the local Colts and our Monarchs. A sort of interlocking "B" and "C" schedule, with all games definitely counting as wins and losses. The "B" teams are Whitby, Oshawa and our Colts, and the top two of these—regardless of where they finish the schedule—playoff for the right to enter the "B" playdowns. The teams of the "C" gang finishing second and third, no matter where in the standing, playoff, with the winner meeting the first-place squad for the right to go into "C" playdowns. Bowmanville has no ice and plays home games away, taking that gate.

WHILE A TENTATIVE SCHEDULE was drawn up, it will likely see some changes in it when the Petes' schedule is announced—since the junior gents calmly copped about the pick of the nights without waiting for the older squad to have a say. The junior schedule opens here Dec. 27th—just three and a half weeks off—with Whitby meeting Monarchs. And the Rubbertown lads play our Monarchs here on Jan. 2nd. Home teams supply the referees, but it might have been better to have the visiting club bring the guesser along. So that's the O.H.A. junior dope up this way for the moment; more on it later. Sounds like a good group with lots of hockey for the fans.

WITH THE DATE for the annual meeting set for next Monday eve, the Peterboro' Curling Club season is about ready to commence. And it'll be the 63rd continuous season, the old club being organized 'way back in 1876 — in the days when women wore petticoats and "Mother Machree" was but a school girl! They used to toss the stanes down an open sheet of ice on property where the Quaker Oats now stands. Lots of trophies have passed in and out of the doors of the present Charlotte St. rink since it was rebuilt, after a fire, in 1908. Still active curlers since that year are W. G. Morrow, that grand veteran H. F. Foote, and the noted stylist R. P. Best. Down the years, the knights of the besom and stane have made the welkin ring with fine shots and unexcelled alibis! May they continue long. Ambitious plans are afoot for another big season with 36 rinks expected to be lined up.

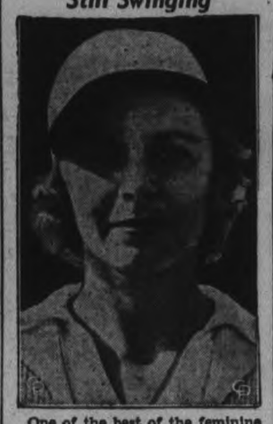
Still Swinging



One of the best of the feminine racquet-swingers, Alice Marble, (ABOVE) will try to achieve the same eminence in the realm of song-swinging when she moves into a New York night spot in the role of singer with an orchestra. The winner of most of the women's tennis honors has also received radio and screen offers.

Mickey Walker Fought Greb Twice One Night

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Ever hear the real story of the two fights Mickey Walker had with Harry Greb one night?

A few of us were punching the bag in Mike Jacobs' back room the other day when Mickey himself dropped in looking for a pair of Oakleys to a fight.

Mickey is now fat and verging on forty and looks no more like the trim fighting machine who tackled everybody from welters to heavyweights than Joe Brown looks like Clark Gable.

Somebody mentioned his fight with Greb in the polo grounds—one of the most vicious battles ever staged anywhere — and somebody else recalled that everybody thought Mickey would never be able to fight again after the terrible beating he took that night.

"Yeah," Mickey laughed. "I guess I didn't have more than a hundred fights after that—and some of them were nice soft touches with big fellows like Sharkey and Schmeling.

As a matter of fact, Greb and I staged another fight that same night but we didn't get paid for that second one. By the way, I'll bet none of you fellows knew that Harry and I were in a bad way as early as the second round that night.

Slug Fest

'If you recall he nailed me with a right on the whiskers in that round and I went down with one hand touching the floor. I was in a bad way but I came up swinging from the floor and I caught him right on the button and if the bell doesn't save him, I win the fight right then and there.

"You know, if Jack Kearns had been in my corner I believe I'd have won that fight because he knew how to rate me along. But the boxing commission had barred him and he was down in a tavern getting the fight over the radio and at the end of the 12th round he bet $10,000 on me.

"Anyhow, we come along to the 13th and I'm all set for a big finish. Remember what a going over I gave him in that one? Well, in the next round he starts a right hand and I see it coming. The glove looks as big as a balloon and I bury my chin behind my shoulder like this to block it. But somehow that punch slips right by the shoulder and catches me on the button and I don't know a thing for the rest of the fight."

Mickey chuckled: "What a fighter that Greb was! He was tougher than a dozen heavyweights. And, say, did you fellows know that was the biggest money shot he ever got? 'Sfact. He got $40,000 for handing me a beating."

"Well," Mickey sighed. "I was pretty tough myself in those days. So about an hour later I'm down in a tavern with a gal friend. My left eye is closed tight as a drum and I don't see Greb when he comes in with two gals. He don't see me either, because his right eye is shut.

"Anyhow somebody tells me he's there, so I go over to his table and he insists I sit down with him and hoist a few beers. Well, we sit there drinking and talking about everything but the fight and pretty soon my gal friend and his two gal friends get sore and walk out on us.

"After a while they put the lights out on us to get rid of us so we arm-and-arm-it down the street to a night club where we both know a couple of chorines. Just as we get to the door I mention the fight for the first time. I said: 'You know, Harry, you Dutch so and so, if you don't thumb me in the eye all night, I win that fight.'

He says: 'Why you Irish this and that. They call you the Toy Bulldog. Say, you're just a poodle to me.' And he starts to pull off his coat. I wait till he gets it half off and then I let him have it—right on the jaw. I knock him up against a taxicab and he come back swinging with both hands and there we are putting on a pip of a battle and getting no dough for it. Well, we're slugging away when Pat Casey, a big Irish cop, who knew us both, comes along, grabs me and boots me into one taxicab and grabs Harry and boots him into another cab and sends us both home.

"Sore at Harry I should say not. We were the best of pals till the day he died."

Somebody asked Mickey what he thought Harry would have done to our present crop of middleweights. "Middleweights? Say, what would he have done to most of our heavyweights!" And Mickey walked out laughing.

Local Teams Get Grouping

Two local teams are entered in the Central Ontario junior O.H.A. grouping, an eight-team league. It is a junior "B" and junior "C" interlocking setup with all games counting in the standing. Teams in are Oshawa, Whitby and Peterborough Colts of a "B" calibre; and Lindsay, Port Hope, Cobourg, Bowmanville and Peterborough Monarchs of a "C" rating. The grouping was agreed upon at a hockey meeting last night in Port Hope, with Coach Bill Jackson and Manager Herb Hendrie representing Peterborough.

It was agreed that the top two teams of a "B" strength at the end of the schedule, regardless of where they finished in the standing, should playoff for the right to enter Ontario junior "B" playdowns. And the top three "C" teams, no matter where they finish the schedule, will be in a playoff—the second and third meeting with the winner then playing the first-place team for the right to go into "C" playdowns. Thus, if the top two "B" teams should finish, say, third and fifth in the eight team standing, these "B" teams would still playoff for that rating.

Open Dec. 27

While a tentative schedule was drawn up, it was not officially passed until the Petes' senior "B" schedule is made known. However, the local junior schedule will open in Peterborough on Dec. 27 with the Bowmanville squad playing the Colts. And Bowmanville will meet the Monarchs here on Jan. 2nd. Each home team will supply the referee, in order to cut down on expenses. Bowmanville will be here for their home games with Peterborough teams, since they have no rink. The Bowmanville squad will take the first gate in each case as their home one, and will make arrangements with their rivals on travelling expenses. Other matters were discussed by the harmonious gathering before the session adjourned.

Giant-Red Skin Game On Sunday To Decide Ace Passer Sam Baugh Or Ed Danowski

By Drew Middleton
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 2—(AP)—There is great excitiment on the 42nd street campus these days for "them jints" are going to tangle with George Preston Marshall's Washington Red Skins Sunday at the Polo Grounds for the Eastern championship of the National Professional Football League.

The game also will decide who is the best forward passer in the world. Samuel Adrian Baugh, the Redskin aerialist, and Ed Danowski, the old Fordham Blue who pitches for the Giants, are fighting for the league passing title.

Danowski leads the league with an average of .548 and 68 completions for 819 yards. Baugh is a bit behind His average is .508 with 59 completions for 812 yards.

The prospect of these two hurling footballs all over the field will attract one of the biggest crowds of the pro season if the weather is right. There were 58,000 in the stands when the clubs met for the Eastern title a year ago and the Giants' officials say there will be even more on hand Sunday.

Last year Baugh and Cliff Battles passed and ran the Giants right out of the Polo Grounds. The Redskins then went on to lift the National title. This year the Giants swear they will settle the account. They lead the Redskins by half a game in the Eastern division and they have been hot for a month. They whipped Green Bay Packers and tied Brooklyn Dodgers and think they are coming while the Redskins are going.

Baby Trout Said To Be Toughest

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(AP).—Compared to a well-conditioned baby trout, the average football player only thinks he is tough, and a prize fighter should be ashamed to take money for merely being banged in the teeth.

Juvenile trout, pound for pound, can absorb more punishment than Henry Armstrong, and the authority for this statement is Bob Edge, just returned from an expedition into the Gaspe peninsula of Quebec.

He brought back several reels of parlor-size movies to prove what he says. Shortly, he is going to tour the United States with his outdoor exhibit.

"Up there," he reported to-day, "they are stocking scores of mountain-locked lakes with baby trout, dropping them out of airplanes. What I mean, they toss these little fellows overboard from 1,500 feet and they hit the water swimming.

"There's always been a belief that baby trout were delicate, that you had to handle them just so. That's a lot of poppycock. Why, they dropped some of them 1,500 feet and they missed the water and landed on solid rock. They picked them up and threw them in the water and away they went."

Are Major Leagues Setting New Style In Managers By Steering Clear Of Many Of Former Players?

By Central Press Canadian

The appointment of Fred Haney, formerly of Toledo, as pilot of the St. Louis Browns completed the list of managerial vacancies and left a distinguished gathering of headliners out in the cold. Mickey Cochrane, Frank Frisch, Gabby Street, Burleigh Grimes, Babe Ruth, Jimmy Wilson, Charley Grimm—all of them are out of baseball.

Not before in memory was the broom used to sweep so many outstanding baseball personalities and leaders out of the majors. Nor were these veteran campaigners replaced by men of long standing. The tendency was to lesser figures and to economy. Removal of big names saved the clubs well over $25,000.

Destination a Mystery.

What the eventual destination of Wilson and Cochrane and Frisch will be is a mystery. Possibly, like Rogers Hornsby before him, they will turn up as minor league managers. But this will not be easy. They are, or have been, high salaried men. For several years they were rated big league managers of the first water. That 1938 happened to be a bad season for them should not have been conclusive evidence that they suddenly lost their touch, that they no longer knew how to run a big league club from the bench.

Wilson, Cochrane or Frisch never managed a minor league team. They became major pilots when they were in their playing prime, in the days when active leaders were the rage. To slip back down the trail will be a hardship. Hornsby did it. Maybe they will, too.

Jimmy Wilson Burleigh Grimes

Whither are they bound? Will they go down to the minors and work their managerial way back?

What about Grimes and Ruth, manager and coach of the Dodgers? Here were two men who had their eyes fixed on the open Brownie post. They had filed applications, and for Ruth this was the ultimate in condescension. It was almost like saying he would be willing to be a minor league manager. But nothing came of it. No big league club is ready to gamble on Ruth until he gambles with himself in the minors.

The shunting of Grimes nevertheless makes him acceptable to the Brooklyn organization, and the belief still holds that as soon as Larry MacPhail closes negotiations with the Montreal Royals Burleigh will be named to lead the International leaguers.

Grimm, too, isn't far removed from the majors. Ousted by the Cubs last summer, Charley accepted a Chicago radio contract to cover the local baseball games, which pays about as well as his former job did. At the end of the baseball season the contract was extended three more years, though Grimm can tear it up if he wants to return to the organized pastime.

Came Up the Hard Way

Note that three of the new managerial selections came up the hard way after four, five and ten years of minor league leadership. They are Haney, Ray Blades, and Doc Prothro.

Haney was a third baseman in his playing days. He was with the Detroit Tigers and later with the Cardinals. He gained a reputation more for his speed on the bases than for diamond acumen. His last four years he spent managing Toledo, where he succeeded Casey Stengel.

Haney's experience with Detroit has made him suitable to the American league, which expressed itself as desirous of seeing a member or former member of its own circuit at the Browns' helm rather than one who had spent most of his time in the National league.

This was in the nature of a slap at men like Frisch, Wilson and Grimes, each of whom would have accepted the position at a salary befitting his place in the game.

Young Goaler Claude Bourque Hands The Boston Team First Blanking Of N.H.L. Season

By Jack Calder
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Lock the doors on the National Hockey League race. Every team is in, the fighting from now on promises to be terrific and no result can be counted an upset after what has happened.

A couple of weeks ago they were wondering if, after seven straight defeats, Montreal Canadiens ever would win a game. Last night at Montreal, the Frenchmen flew to a 2-0 victory over Boston Bruins, who had been beaten only once before all season. In their last three starts, Canadiens have picked up five points.

And Detroit Red Wings, apparently mired in sixth place until last night, rose up in Chicago to administer a 4-1 whipping to the Black Hawks, co-holders of first place with Boston and New York Americans. The eyes of fans everywhere were figuratively on Tiny Thompson, whom Detroit bought from Boston to end its goal-tending troubles, and the cucumber-cool veteran inspired the Wings in their second straight victory over the Hawks.

Amidst the surprises, the winners climbed nearer the general dogfight at the top. Detroit reached a spot just five points behind the first place teams and four behind the two second-place teams, Toronto and New York Rangers. The last-place Canadiens are only a point back of Detroit.

Thompson Chief Hero

Thompson supplied the main heroics, but there were others. Claude Bourque, Canadiens' recruit goalie from amateur ranks, scored the first shutout of his professional career with a brilliant display against one of hockey's most powerful attacking machines. Toe Blake scored once for the Habitants and aided in the other goal, while Paul Haynes drew assists on both.

Marty Barry, supposed to be feeling the heavy hand of time, grabbed enough goals to defeat Chicago, both unassisted, and young Eddie Wares got the Wings' other two.

A crowd of 6,000 believed Canadiens at last were nearing the form expected of them before the season's start. Stew Evans, a disappointment like some of the other stars the club got from Montreal Maroons, took a new lease on life to stand out as an attacking defenceman. Don Wilson, brought up from the minors, clicked between two fast wingmen, George Mantha and Rod Lorrain.

Calling All Coaches

According to information received the delightful young miss ABOVE, is an integral part of the football team at North Wilksboro high school in North Carolina. Jane Allen is her name, she's sweet 16, and not only does she get away long boots as she is seen doing here, but she passes, runs and tackles...or so they tell us. She also goes in for boxing and baseball. Page Babe Didrickson!

Calisthenics By Karakas Keeps Clint's Close One Out

Overcoaching Tip Handed By Smythe

TORONTO, Dec. 2—(CP).—Overcoaching has ruined hundreds of hockey players, Conny Smythe, manager of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey league, told the 27th annual meeting of the Toronto Hockey league last night. He also said that too much emphasis was placed on the coaching of individual players.

"Don't try to change any lad's style of play," he said. "If he's a natural left winger, don't for any reason try to make him into a right winger. If a boy shows a tendency to shine on the defence, leave him there and do everything you can to enhance his playing as a defenceman."

"The National League has an opening for any player of the Toronto league. Natural right wingers and defence players are very much in demand. You can bring all you can get your hands on around to see me any time, and I'll be tickled to death to get them."

Trail Beats Ottawa

OTTAWA, Dec. 2 (C.P.). — In the course of an exhibition tour that will take them to Europe, Trail Smoke Eaters stopped off here last night and scored a 7-4 victory over Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Senior Hockey League. Wrestler Balked At Fixing Court Hears Inside Story

DUBLIN, Dec. 2.—(CP)—Dublin sports fans, who for years have been flocking to the professional wrestling wars, are still talking about startling allegations of "faked" bouts, made by William N. Willis, Australian promoter, in his action for damages against The Irish Press.

The action was instituted in High Court after the newspapers had published a retraction and apology for printing an interview given by Willis in which he branded so-called "all-in" wrestling as a "racket" and alleged results of bouts were "fixed."

Following publication of the interview, Paddy Casey and Padro Peltonen, wrestlers who performed on a card staged in Dublin by Willis, took action against the newspaper. They denied having come to a prearranged agreement and maintained the article inferred their conduct had been dishonorable and unprofessional. The action was settled out of court after the interview had been unreservedly withdrawn.

Willis, the promoter, charging the retraction reflected his own credibility and honor, brought action against The Irish Pres. In court he reiterated his allegation that "all-in" wrestling as conducted in Ireland was a "racket" and that in common with other bouts of its kind, the Casey-Peltonen match was pre-arranged.

After a hearing lasting three days, the jury brought in a verdict for the newspaper with costs.

Promoter's Evidence

Under cross-examination Willis declared he had promoted more than 200 wrestling matches in the country and that the outcome of most of them had been decided before the contestants had entered the ring.

Fifteen minutes before the Casey-Peltonen match was due to start, Willis said he had entered Peltonen's dressing room to tell him Casey must win. It was part of a plan for a championship "build-up" for Casey.

Peltonen, however, wasn't having any of it. A hurried huddle followed after which Casey was told: "Peltonen will not lie down to you, but he has agreed the contest is to end in the third fall. He must get the first fall and he has agreed he will reluctantly give you the second fall. He is to win in the third fall, but when you get him down in the second fall, hold him until he gives in." It had been necessary to "double-cross" Peltonen when he declined to carry out instructions, Willis said.

In reply to a question by counsel for defendants, Willis declared: "Ninenty per cent of the people who came to see the bouts knew that the whole thing was an exhibition of very excellent skill. They did not take it seriously and knew they were not real contests."

Bob Norman, a professional wrestler known as "Tiger," testified he had heard describe how he had arranged the contest in question and had "double-crossed" Peltonen.

"Were you surprised to hear that?" he was asked.

"I would be surprised at nothing in this racket," he replied. "But I don't blame the promoters alone, I'm in this racket up to the neck."

In his charge to the jury, Mr. Justice O'Byrne said: "I cannot help feeling we have been dealing with a world of unreality—a small and circumscribed world, that according to evidence, has a code and language of its own, a language that smacked very considerably of that employed by American gangsters as we read of it in the press."

Taking Punishment On the Bench

While the gridiron warriors take a lot of punishment in a physical way out on the field...especially at this time of year when the surface has all the elastic qualities of cement ...the coaches, as they will be the first to attest, take just about as much, only in a mental way. Here's a revealing study of Lew Hayman, coach of Toronto Argonauts, for the second successive year champions of the east's Big Four and shooting for their second Canadian crown, as he watches his charges on the field of action. Helping him suffer is his versatile quarterback, Bill Stukus, one of the three brothers in the Toronto champions' line-up.

Winnipeg Coach Likes The Rouge

WINNIPEG, Dec. 2 -(CP)- Reg Threlfall, who will lead his Winnipeg Blue Bombers into the National Football Final against Sarnia imperials or Toronto Argos, Dec. 10, was tickled to hear today the North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference had voted to give the Canadian Rugby Rouge a whirl.

"Say, that's swell," he said. That's my old conference you know. I think they'll like the rouge."

Threlfall came to Winnipeg this year from South Dakota university, member of the North Central Conference.

"The rouge speeds up the game and makes it more spectacular." Reg continued. "There's nothing better than to watch a ball carrier try to elude four or five tacklers in the end zone.

"Canada's rouge eliminates a lot of tie games too and gives a club that makes plenty of first downs an opportunity to capitalize from midfield if they've got a kicker who can hoof 'em into the end zone."

Threlfall will leave for Toronto tonight to watch Sarnia and Argos, in the Eastern final Saturday. He will be accompanied by manager Joe Ryan and players Wayne Sheley and Martin Gainor.

Bears Lace Hornets For 4-Point Lead

HERSHEY, Pa., Dec. 2 (C.P.).—Hershey Bears are cutting quite a wide swath for a team playing its first season in the International-American Hockey League.

Sparked by the great goaltending of Slim Alfie Moore the Bears have been at the top of their section from the first of the year. To-day, after a 3-2 victory over Pittsburgh Hornets, they hold a four-point margin over the second place Syracuse Stars and have a game in hand.

Mackie put Bears into the lead with a first period goal, but Geisbrecht evened the count in the same period. Bears won the game with two goals in the third as Hornets only counted once.

Hayman And Massucci Both Masks As To Victory Predictions, Masterminding Strain Terrific

By Sydney Gruson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Dec. 2.—(CP)—The gloomiest members of that gloomy clan—the football coaches—will have themselves a bit of a masterminding duel when the Eastern Canada football champion is decided here tomorrow. They may also settle a question of who become sadder looking during a game.

No matter how bright the prospect Sarnia's Art Massucci and Lew Hayman of Toronto Argonauts have the faculty of looking unhappy. Perhaps they know only too well that in the business of coaching the top man may be wolf meat tomorrow.

That may be the reason, too, why neither Hayman nor Massucci ever have come out in public with a pre-game prediction in their favor. One of Hayman's boldest predictions was before the Argo-Ottawa series for the Interprovincial Union championship. Then he went off the deep end with:

"Both games should draw terrific crowds."

All Massucci said for public print after Imperials won two exhibition games this fall against Big Four opposition was:

"We made enough mistakes in those two games to lose 15 others."

Both Rather Quiet

So it's not surprising on this eve of the section final to find Hayman and Massucci mum about their chances. Hayman wouldn't make a prediction and Massucci said: "We'll be in there trying all the way."

One thing is sure about both teams. They'll have as high class masterminding from the United States college graduates as can be obtained in the East. Hayman and Massucci, respectively graduates of Syracuse University and University of Detroit, each have won two national titles.

Massucci has a score to settle with Hayman. Imperials were on the receiving end both times Argos went on to the championship, in 1933 and 1937.

SURREY'S NEW CAPTAIN

LONDON—(CP).—Surrey county cricket club will have a new captain next season, E. R. T. Holmes, who has skipped the team since 1934, having resigned owing to pressure of business.

Big Job Ahead

Playing at one of the key positions when Toronto Argonauts and Sarnia Imperials meet for the eastern Canada rugby title, will be Ralph Burr, ABOVE, veteran Sarnia snapback. Burr, who looked after the snapping duties during the early part of the season, later gave way to Henry Living, but with the latter declared ineligible for C.R.U. play, will be at his old position for the big game. Living had won acclaim as one of the best snaps in the east and with Burr not in the best of shape, speculation has been rife as to the strength of the O.R.F.U. champs at the centre of the line.

Cattle Climb 15, Lambs 50 On Week's Sales

TORONTO, Dec. 2.—(CP).—Prices were strong to 15 cents higher on cattle on Toronto livestock market this week, the Dominion Livestock Branch reported. Calves also were stronger while hogs held unchanged. Lambs gained 50 cents with sheep holding steady.

The liberal run of cattle included only 500 westerns. Opening trade was active with prices 15 cents or so higher on weighty steers and fed calves and firm on other killers. Heavy truck deliveries slowed up the market towards the close, although there were only a few lots of plain cattle unsold.

Weighty steers of common to good quality sold at $5 to $6.50 and a few choice heavies sold from $6.65 to $7 cwt. Good butcher steers and heifers sold at $5.65 with small lots at $6. Common butchers sold downward to $4 cwt.

Butcher cows ranged from $2.75 to $4 with canners and cutters mostly $2.25 to $2.50, a few $2.60. Butcher bulls sold at $4 to $4.50 with bolognas from $3.50 to $3.85. Choice fed calves sold at $8.50 to $9.25, mediums downward to $6 cwt.

Stockers were strong at $4.50 to $5.50 for the majority with stock calves and feeders up to $6 cwt. Good forward springers sold at $75 to $80 each.

Feeders Go To U.S.

Several loads of stockers and weighty feeders were shipped to United States along with a few cars of bulls.

The calf market was strong with spots 50 cents higher on medium to good grades. Choice vealers sold at $10 to $10.50, with some up to $11. Heavy Westerns brought $5 to $7 cwt. Grassers were mostly at $4.50 with a few $4.75.

Hogs opened a shade easier but recovered on Tuesday to $8.40 to $8.50 off trucks for bacons. The close was at $8.40 with buyers talking lower prices for the week-end. Sows sold at $6 to $6.25. Light feeding pigs brought $3.50 to $5 each and some 80-pound chunks sold at $8 to $9.

Lambs advanced 25 cents Monday and another 25 cents Wednesday, closing at $8.50 to $8.75 for good ewes and wethers delivered by rail and at $8.50 by trucks. Bucks and heavies sold at the usual $1 cwt discount. Culls were $6 to $7 cwt. Sheep were $2 to $4.50 cwt. with some good yearlings at $6 cwt.

Children's Coughs Quickly Relieved

It is hard to keep the children from taking cold; they will run out of doors not properly clad; have on too much clothing and get overheated and cool off too suddenly; they get their feet wet; kick off the bed clothes at night. The mother cannot watch them all the time, so what is she going to do?

Mothers should never neglect the child's cough or cold, but on its inception should procure a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It is so pleasant to the taste the youngsters take it without any fuss.

Trustees Balk At Leasing Street To Church–And The Fun Starts

ORTON, ONT., Dec. 2 -(CP)- Sunday worshippers here cast dour glances at the wire gate through which they pass on their way to Orton's United Church of square cut stone.

Villagers, farmers, the village trustees, the township council and officials of the church have gradually been drawn into a controversy, the greatest in the history of the hamlet, 12 miles east of Fergus. The gate and fence are latest evidence of the dispute. It concerns a strip of land, about 50 feet wide and 100 yards long, which runs from the county road between the church and the parsonage to the 57-acre farm which Percy Byam of Toronto bought last April.

Orton residents became so used to using the land as a roadway they named it "Wesley St." after the Methodist pioneer, and it has come to be familiarly known as "Church St." Mr. Byam claims it is the only feasible entrance to his farm and the villagers say it is the only way they have of getting to their place of worship.

Mr. Byam contends that "Church St."was originally part of the John Murphy farm, which he bought, and consequently, private property. In spite of this, the village paid to have it gravelled, and built a sidewalk on it, and had a street lamp erected.

When a woman whose property adjoined "Church St." beside the parsonage had several maple trees, standing on the street, cut down, Mr. Byam entered suit at Division Court in Orangeville and won with costs.

Some of the Fun

"Then" says Mr. Byam, "I decided there must be a showdown, because people were using the property as a public place. The Ladies' Aid held two picnics there, and on one occasion had a platform built in front of the church so that I couldn't get my team past.

"So I managed to get the three village truetees to call a meeting. I offered to lease them the right-of-way through the property for a dollar a year; rights to the sidewalk for the same price, and rights to the street lamp, again at the same rental, providing they assumed maintenance and liability in each case. They refused all these offers.

"I offered, as an alternative, to sell them the strip at a nominal price, but they again refused." Mr. Byam continued. "Then I had the sidewalk torn up and erected the fence and gate to keep out trespassers. There is no lock on the gate and the public continue to use the entrance."

Various members of the church and officials of the village have proposed to him that he should turn over "Church St." to the municipality, to be converted into a public park, Mr. Byam said.

"This," he contends, "would take away my only guaranteed access to the farm, and I can't consider it.

the same right for Italians living in Tunisia.

There was some discussion of postponing the visit of foreign minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop of Germany, who was expected on Monday to sign the newly concluded German-French friendship agreement.

Sir Kingsley Wood, British air minister, on a visit to Paris to discuss military aviation was expected also to talk wth Premier Daladier about the Italian-African situation.

The Tunisian protectorate long has been a stumbling block in the French-Italian relations. It was recalled that General Maurice Gamelin chief of the national defence staff, made an Armistice Day inspection of Tunisia fortifications at the Italian Libya border although by custom he should have reviewed the army parade in Paris.

Just a year ago Daladier, defence minister but not then premier, told parliament that Tunisia was endangered by Italy.

The premier's discharge of the leaders and many of their followers after the general strike angered labor, which had hoped for a gesture of "appeasement."

"The savage fury of the vengeance and revenge seemed to have carried away part of the French industrialists," said Leon Blum, former Socialist premier, in his newspaper, Le Populaire. "It would find its example and excuse in the governmental repression."

Lower Pay in New Contracts

The St. Nazaire workers who issued a strike call for today said they all were discharged and forced to sign new contracts at lower wages after the Wednesday walk-out.

There were numerous scuffles between police and workmen in smaller walk-outs throughout the country. Soldiers and police repelled workmen trying to enter a tube factory at Sous-Lesbois. Signal wires were cut, delaying trains at Oundolsheim, in Alsace.

Shoe workers stormed a factory at Romans from which they had been locked out, and wrecked machinery.

Daladier, determined to maintain order and keep industry going, was expected to ask a vote of confidence when parliament convenes next Thursday, to request a renewal of dictatorial decree powers which labor fought, to push through the 1939 budget and then to ask an adjournment.

MORE ABOUT—
David Fife

The wheat grew well and the following spring a sturdy crop waved over the small farm. Before it could be harvested, however an ox ate it with the exception of three heads of grain.

The pioneer Fife took the heads, crossed them with native grains, and eventually developed the strain that bears his name. His son, Sylvester, carried on Fife wheat production and in 1907 passed the management of the property over to the third generation, Edwin.

"I'm getting ready to hand the farm to my son," Edwin said. "He's in charge of it now while I'm in Toronto, and it won't be long before he'll be able to take the whole burden off my shoulders. He's 21."

J. J. Duffus, Liberal member of parliament for Peterborough West, who also attended the premiere, said a movement was gathering strength in eastern Ontario to have the Fife farm recognized as a memorial to the contribution made by David Fife. He said Fife wheat had been a major factor in carrying Canada's reputation to all parts of the world.

W. I. Session.

"Peace and International Relationships" was the subject taken for the November meeting of the Women's Institute in Madoc by Mr. George White. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. William Parks, with the president, Mrs. Lindsay McCarey in the chair. The roll call was answered by "What can I do to promote peace," and well responded to.

It was arranged that the December meeting will be held in Community Hall and a capable decorating committee of Mesdames A. Dymond, M. Smith, L. McCarey and W. Hulin, was appointed.

After a very able and instructive address Mrs. White answered a number of questions from the question box.

15 Fishermen Saved As Ship Hits Reef

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Dec. 2 (AP) —Angry seas made a grave of Santa Barbara Island today for the $40,000 Purse Seiner Dante L'Alighieri, from which 15 San Pedro fishermen narrowly escaped with their lives.

Trapped in a pea-soup fog, the 78-foot craft struck a reef and sank early yesterday. Six crewmen, plunged into the turbulent surf, were rescued by the tuna clipper Esperria, while nine other struggled to a precarious perch on jagged rocks.

Shivering and weak, they clung through the day to their refuge while United States coast guardsmen of the cutter Aurora, unable to reach them in a dory in the heavy seas, sent a land party by way of the leeside of the island to rig up a breeches buoy.

When news of the last man to be hauled from the rocks was relayed to the coast guard base here, San Pedro's "Little Italy" wept with happiness.

MUNICIPAL ELECTORS WILL BE ASKED TO VOTE ON MARKET SITE

Vote Be Taken At Election On New Year's

A by-law proposing purchase of property for a new market site not to exceed $30,000 will be submitted to the municipal electors on January 2 by a decision of the Finance committee of the council Thursday night.

As a referendum it does not commit the council of next year or any succeeding year to acquiring land. The purpose of taking this vote is to sound the opinion of property owners and tenants on a question the council has been considering for a number of years.

The council is more concerned about obtaining a spacious central parking area for automobiles, but the Municipal Act does not authorize the expenditure of money for that purpose. However, property may be bought by the municipality for a market, and as the two problems could be approached by the one investment, the by-law will simply call for the ayes and nays on a market project.

The area considered as most desirable is the broad block on the south side of Charlotte street extending through to King street and bounded also by Louis street and the Jackson Park creek. Discussions of this question in committee have been reported from time to time, and the council is unanimously agreed on the desirability of the Charlotte street lots and also on the growing necessity of an adequate and central parking space. They also feel that the land values are likely to increase, and the city is missing a sound opportunity of providing for the future if the property is not bought at once.

Secondary Position.

In the light of that problem the market idea takes a secondary position, and some of the members of the council have expressed misgivings about the wisdom of asking the people for their opinion when the proposal cannot be sharply defined.

The resolution to have the by-law prepared for presentation on election day was moved by Alderman Gordon and seconded by Alderman Stocker. As chairman of the committee, Alderman Cotton presided.

"If the vote was favorable," Alderman Gordon said, "the council might apply to the Legislature for a bill to expropriate the property on Charlotte street."

Mayor Hamilton said he was in favor of the project, but he was doubtful about it passing. "I'm afraid it won't pass because it may not be definite enough and the people may not thoroughly understand it."

"The council for ten or twelve years has been talking about the need of central parking space," Alderman Cotton commented, "and we have tried to get a suitable place, but we have not succeeded. Peterborough has no central parking area, and I don't think the people will turn it down."

No Definite Plan.

Little reference was made to the market phase of the proposal. Alderman Dutton said the council had no definite plan to submit to the electors, but he was convinced the city was missing a great opportunity if the Charlotte street property was not acquired. Alderman Glover said there was no demand for setting up a modern market with refrigeration facilities that would create a great deal of competition for the retail business already established by men paying substantial taxes. Alderman Gordon only briefly mentioned the importance of the Peterborough market as the trading centre of an extensive and growing district, and said that when the cold weather came the number of producers attending it declined greatly, and the city was thereby losing a great deal of business because there was no protection for those who came to sell their goods.

Alderman Wilson estimated that a plain market building would cost at least $60,000 and Alderman McCannan reported that option that had been given on two of the Charlotte street properties were for $18,000. He believed that the entire area might be bought for $25,000. Alderman Glover remarked that there was no intention to undertake any large capital expenditure at the present time. The city was gradually reducing its debenture debt, and no one desired to ad dany more to it.

The committee's discussion was largely a summation of various points that had been brought out this year and last, with special emphasis on the need of a large central parking area for automobiles and the advantage of buying the Charlotte street properties for that purpose.

CORRECTION.

Reports of a "dark horse" float by Reg Turner in to-night's Santa Claus parade brought protests and laments from the quarters of his Water street hangout — says Reg—"It isn't a dark horse, it's a pony, a mare at that, and it's not dark, it's black and white. And from what my drivers are cooking up it seems it's going to have a permanent wave of some sort."

CONTEST IN MURRAY

Municipal nominations in Brighton township resulted in Percy Gooding, deputy-reeve, being promoted to the reeveship succeeding Warden Frank George, who has retired, and in Murray township Reeve Herman Morrow is being opposed by C. V. Crosby, and Deputy-Reeve W. A. Smith by J. A. Hart. The Murray voters go to the polls on Monday.

GENEROUS WITH LIGHTS

Probably the Badminton players at the market know that the Saturday morning lighting of the hall is necessarily charged on their bill. One dark Saturday morning Alderman McCannon told the market clerk to turn on the lights for the farmers and their public. Ald. Bradburn approved his action, but he was wondering who paid that part of the lighting bill. Presumably it is being charged on the Badminton Club's light bill.

SYMPATHY FOR ASSOCIATE.

Sympathy for Alderman Juby in his illness and regret that he was absent from the council were expressed by the Finance committee Thursday night. Flowers will be sent to his home as a reminder that his associates of the council are with him in spirit. Alderman Juby has been ordered by his physicians to rest for a while.

NEW YEAR'S EVE DANCES.

Replying to an enquiry in the council's board room Thursday night Mayor Hamilton said the city by-law required all public dances to end at midnight on Saturdays. For that reason there will be no extended dances New Year's Eve in public halls. The new year begins on Sunday, and for that reason the usual festivities will have to be abbreviated.

THEY WERE GULLED.

The weather played a mean trick on the gulls off McDonald's Point this morning. The river was frozen almost from shore to shore opposite the end of Townsend street, and the gulls were resting on the ice where usually they float around on the water. Either they didn't know winter had taken things in hand or they were hoping the sun and the current would provide open water for them in their habitat.

Improvement of Albertus street north from Gilmour stret, suggested by Alderman Stocker last night, was left by the Board of Works to its chairman, Alderman Wilson, to be discussed with Reeve Milby of North Monaghan, in the hope that the township will co-operate because it is part of the western boundary of the city.

WORK FOR POLICE

The arrival of Santa Claus tonight means a lot of fun for the community generally and it also means a considerable amount of work for the police department. All members of both day and night staffs will be on traffic and escort duty tonight and the department will have the assistance of Provincial Traffic Officers Lloyd A. McClure and Gordon E. Broughton.

MOOTED AS CANDIDATE

The name of Wallace Shearer, popular members of County Council and Reeve of Harvey township is being mooted quietly among members of the council in session this week, as a likely candidate for the office of Warden of the county for 1939. Shearer has won the admiration of his colleagues for the persistent manner in which he strives for legislation that will benefit Harvey township and for his fairness on all questions relating to other parts of the county.

Garbage Rate To Be Cut Tenth Of Mill

The garbage disposal department of the city's property committee will show a surplus of approximately $2,000 on its operations this year, increasing its accumulated funds to $10,000, and as a further bit of brightness the garbage collection tax rate will be reduced one-tenth of a mill from .8 to .7, Alderman McCannan reported Thursday night.

The tax appropriation for the department this year was $17,309.30 of which the expenditure will amount to $15,330.19, the surplus being $1,979.11. Ald. McCannan advised that the surplus be left intact against approaching need of a new incinerator. The garbage collection rate for 1939 will be reduced one-tenth of a mill by reason of the fact that extra contractual costs incurred during the first quarter of this year would be avoided. The chairman said he was informed that the assessment on which the garbage collection tax would be levied for 1939 would show an increase of $126,000, accounted for by the new buildings and houses erected this year.

A rate of .7 mills on assessment of $21,387,623 would provide $14,971.33 which Alderman McCannan said was only $400 less than the amount expended by the department this year. He said the incinerator had been put in fair condition by the outlay of $700 for repairs, an expense that might not arise again during the next twelve months.

"The chairman deserves a lot of credit for the way he has handled his job this year," Mayor Hamilton commented, and Alderman Stocker added "Especially for a first year man."

Galway Camp To Cut One Million Feet

With William Earnshaw, Jr., of Apsley in charge of their camp in Galway township, the Peterborough Lumber Company is beginning operations that will produce one million feet of lumber this season. The winter's work will give employment to forty-five men in the bush. The logs will then be hauled to Hugh Given's sawmill in Harvey township where from twenty to twenty-five men will be engaged for four or five months. During the summer the lumber will be hauled by truck to the company's yards in Peterborough, completing the work that has been under way for nearly two weeks. It was learned this morning that the only openings still remaining are a few for experienced wood cutters.

Their Dream Man

Santa Claus is going to step right out of the story book pages on his pre-Christmas visit to the children of Peterborough this evening at 7.30 o'clock. Motorists are requested not to park their cars on the east side of George Street from Charlotte Street to Murray Street. This is the children's night. It shouldn't be necessary to appeal to their elders in the community give the little folks front place along the sidewalks to see not only Santa Claus in person but also the Shoe the Old Lady Lived In Punch and Judy, the clowns and all the other comics. And just as a reminder the route of the parade is along Charlotte to Water, Hunter, Aylmer, Charlotte again to George, then north to Murray Street and Victoria Park. Cars will not be allowed to park on the streets bordering Victoria Park.

Youth Being Held For Stealing Car

"This is a most pathetic case, your worship," said W. R. Philp in police court this morning after Ernest Travies, 20, who gave his home as Peterborough but with no fixed address, had pleaded guilty to stealing an automobile from Thomas Hughes of North Monaghan.

"This boy has had no home since the first of the year. He is unable to obtain relief and he has been keeping himself alive by gathering rubbish and junk and selling it," Mr. Philp, who appeared on behalf of Travies, explained to the court.

"Unfortunately, however, under the statute, I cannot do anything for him," said Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., "There is no suspended sentence possible and the minimum penalty is a year's imprisonment. My hands are tied."

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry was out of the city and the crown was represented by E. F. Borbridge.

Magistrate Langley suggested a remand until the crown attorney could be present.

"It is possible that he may be willing to make representations to the Attorney-General that will permit of some other disposition of this case," he said.

Accordingly the accused was remanded until Thursday of next week.

Travies was arrested this morning on Sherbrooke Place by Constable Archie Menzies after George Martin, North Monaghan wrecker, who had bought the allegedly stolen car from the accused for $15 became suspicious in regard to the bona fides of the transaction and notified the city police and Provincial Constable David Silvester. Half an hour later Travies was under arrest and within the hour he had been arraigned before Magistrate Langley.

Anonymous Letter Is Thrown Into Basket

An anonymous letter to the Property committee of the council was consigned to the waste paper basket unread last night, on a motion by Alderman Stocker, seconded by Alderman Stocker.

"In my opinion this council does not need to take any notice of a communication from any person who has not the courage to sign it," Alderman Dutton said. "Personally I don't think anonymous letters are worthy of notice."

Alderman McCannon had the letter on his file before him and said it referred to the management of the public rest room.

No-Whistling Clause Of Anti-Noise Bylaw Is Discussed By Finance Committee

As a preliminary to reconsideration of the no-whistling clause of the anti-noise by-law, the Finance committee of the council Thursday night took the course of inviting the divisional superintendents of the C.N.R. and C.P.R. to meet all the members of the Board of Works for the purpose of discussing what was the most advisable action to take.

Alderman Dutton introduced the question by saying he had voted for the by-law, but as the result of serious accidents he felt strongly that the clause restricting the sounding of train whistles should be revised.

Elimination of that clause was proposed in a resolution by Alderman Dutton, seconded by Alderman Glover, and the whistling question was given another going over. It was Mayor Hamilton who recommended calling in the railway officials for their opinions and help. Alderman Gordon maintained that there was nothing in the by-law prohibiting railway engineers and firemen from blowing their whistles in emergencies or imminent danger.

"They don't know there is an emergency until they are right on top of it," Alderman Glover said. Alderman McCannan suggested that traffic be required to stop at all railway crossings in the city, but it was thought the Board of Transport would not sanction that measure.

County Council Cuts Payments Norwood School

County council in committee on school costs refused to pay anything further to the Norwood High School this year except the $500 which they owe figuring a per capita cost per pupil as against the amount paid by Norwood village.

Reeve Thompson of Norwood outlined to the members that the county had never been charged more than the actual cost required of it for county pupils. Bills in the possession of the county treasurer would bear out this statement, he said. "If county pupils were absent from school this amount was deducted." Referring to the statements made by S. S. Breckon, principal of the school at commencement exercises held recently, Reeve Thompson said the 26 cents a day represented the actual education costs, and did not include maintenance of the school.

Reeve Thompson explained further that any surplus which had been accumulated by the school board had been obtained entirely from local taxation and not from the county revenue. "I would like a motion instructing the chairman of the education committee, Reeve Anderson, to meet with members of the school board and straighten out this tangle. I feel that the question of how this surplus was acquired is affecting the members in their attitude on making no further payments." The motion was made by Reeve Thompson and seconded by Reeve Milby.

"We do not know actually how much the village has paid this year. Their appropriation is supposed to have been $3,000 and yet they are said to have refused payment of any more than $1,000. We have no estimates to work from and therefore I think we should pay only on a per capita basis until the end of the year when the annual statement is available.

"If at that time the council of 1939 find we are short on payments they have the power to make up any deficit," said Reeve Anderson. He was supported in this opinion by Reeve Roy Brown and the Warden.

Roads Too Narrow

In committee on roads and bridges under the chairmanship of Deputy-reeve Melville Johnston of North Monaghan the council indulged in a long discussion on the fact that many county roads in the county were not the required width of 66 feet. It was the feeling of all members that every road now classed as a county road and less than 66 feet wide should be returned to the township unless the township provides the land needed to make the road the standard width. A motion introduced by Reeves Milby and Gifford that no road allowance is provided was endorsed and becomes effective on January 1st of next year.

Reeve Coughlin of Douro urged that the council assume as a county road that stretch from Douro church north to the Warsaw road. This road at the present time is in a good state of repair and is the route over which the mail is carried. It was done on motion of Reeves Anderson and Gifford. Reeve Coughlin also sought to have the section from Welch's corners east to the boundary of Dummer township assumed by the county and this portion of road will be included in the by-law.

Reeve Gifford in a motion asked that the Council take steps to enter into an agreement with the township of Emily for snowplowing the boundary road between Peterborough and Victoria. Reeve Leahy seconded the motion and it carried.

Reeve Milby of North Monaghan supported the approval of a project covering the contruction of an overhead bridge over the C.N.R. tracks on Sixth Line, one mile north of Keene village The money has already been voted in parliament for a portion of the cost and the county's share will be 15 per cent, an estimated amount of $1,500. Department of Transport and Canadian National Railways share in the cost. Building of this bridge would eliminate the most dangerous level crossing in the county. Harry Reid, deputy-reeve of Otonabee seconded the motion and Reeve Grifiths of Belmont was the lone opposing voter.

LOW FIRE LOSS.

"Touch wood, we have still a month to go," said Mayor Hamilton on Thursday night when E. A. Outram, deputy city clerk, reported on behalf of Alderman Juby that Peterborough was on the way to another low record in fire losses.

"We had the lowest fire loss in Canada last year," Mr. Outram said, "and Alderman Juby believes Chief Gimblett's Department is going to make another low record for this year. He has had in mind that a deputation might call on the Fire Underwriters' Association again in January and ask for further reduction of our insurance rate."—T.

Greater Interest In Animal Disease

The automobile has resulted in veterinaries taking a greater interest in treatment of disease among all branches of the animal kingdom, according to Veterinarian Harold Worton of this city, who spoke to lunching Kiwanians at the Empress Hotel today.

When the horse was the only means of transportation, it naturally received virtually all the farmer's care, was the most prized animal in the stable, he said. But now that the horse had gone back as an asset to the farmers, attention is being turned to other animals, which have climbed in working importance.

Health of animals is important because of the communicable diseases they spread to humans, he said, mentioning tuberculosis, undulent fever, smallpox and others. Pasteurization of milk he agreed to, but urged that it was not a cure-all, that rigid examinations of farms should still be made He cited advances in surgery as the most important in veterinary science, said that now most operations that are possible to be performed on humans, may be performed on small animals. Practically any abdominal operation may be performed on a cat or dog, he said, but were more difficult when performed on larger animals.

He urged a continued application of science and surgery on animals because, "Man owes much to the animals he has subjected to his will, and should care for them." The speaker was introduced by Kiwanian Bill Ovens, and Kiwanian Archie Gates moved a vote of thanks.

George Howson Recalls Pioneer Days

Member of a pioneer Peterborough County family and one of Peterborough's oldest residents, George H. Howson, 137 London Street, is quietly celebrating to-day his ninetieth birthday.

Mr. Howson is a son of the late William Howson of Otonabee. His grandfather, John Howson, on leaving his home in Yorkshire, England, about 1816, settled first in Virginia, but preferring to live under the British flag, soon came north to join his brother George, one of the first settlers in the Township of Otonabee, and one of its early Justices of the Peace. It is interesting to note that the land on which John Howson settled over a hundred years ago is still in possession of a member of the family, Arthur McIntyre. Another interesting fact is that an uncle of Mr. Howson, Col. Edwin Poole, was the first commanding officer of the 57th Regiment, and another relative, William Eastland, was a pioneer merchant in Peterborough, and one of the early wardens of St. John's Church.

As a youth Mr. Howson aided his father and brothers in the clearing of some four hundred acres near the shore of Rice Lake. Later he took up residence in Bobcaygeon, where he served the community as a member of the County Council, and for two years as Reeve.

Immigration Agent.

Over fifty years ago he came to Peterborough to live. First connected with the Confederation Life Assurance Company, he later was manager of the North American Life Company here. For many years he held the position of Inspector of Weights and Measures for the Dominion Government and was also immigration agent. During his term in the latter office immigration into Peterborough was at full tide, and Mr. Howson was a busy official receiving the new Canadians as they arrived here and finding places for them with the farmers of the surrounding district. Many a Britisher who has done well here will have kindly memories of Mr. Howson, contact with whom was probably their first experience in Peterborough.

Since his retirement, Mr. Howson has found gardening a delightful hobby. Always a lover of poetry and of historical fiction and a keen student of political affairs he has found much of profit to occupy his leisure hours.

Mrs. Howson, who was Jane Strangeway Laing, died four years ago. A family of three daughters and two sons are to-day helping their father celebrate the reaching of his ninetieth milestone. They are Miss Alexandria Howson of the staff of the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School, Ernest H. Howson, vice-president and managing director of the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company, Limited, and Dr. Arthur G. Howson in Peterborough, Mrs. Frank Simpson of Detroit, and Mrs. Wilfrid Hackett of Toronto.

BY OREN ARNOLD

Read This First:

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, creates a furor on the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, when she erects a sign in front of her cottage announcing "COUNSEL IN ROMANCE". Her plan is to help guide 100 student "members" in their social and love affairs for a small fee. Bob Towne, campus football hero, much attracted by Sara Sue, is the first to enroll. This enrages Peaches Pomeroy, a senior who regarded herself as "Bob's girl" the previous year. Worthington Gurley, unprepossessing freshman, provides another problem when it is evident he is interested in Sara Sue. The climax in her Cottage Plan occurs when sedate Dr. Thornton Holgate, new member of the faculty, begs Sara Sue to help him . . . then confides his love for Peaches Pomeroy. She does, and gives him his first lessons in "how to become more human". Then T. J. Sanders, a sports goods saleman, appears on the scene and seeks out Sara Sue to help him locate a pretty girl he had seen in the stands at a local football game. The girl, of course, is Sara Sue herself. Bob finds Sanders' dog at Sara Sue's and begins to suspect he has a new rival.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER 15

PRACTICE scrimmage was under way, rather violently.

The varsity team snapped out of its huddle. "HIKE!" yelled the quarterback. Sundry motions, confusing to outsiders, took place in the Rice backfield. When the second team could fathom the play, Bob Towne, all-star end, had grabbed a pass down near the sidelines and was racing towards the goal. Only the safety man downed him. But he had netted 32 yards.

"It was all right," coach Jimmie Britt nodded, "but the defensive end missed his bet. He should have blocked Towne out, could have easily, because Towne was slow on the getaway. That's just luck for the varsity, not skill. Bob, my friend, you stood there in a daze for two seconds when you ought to have been speeding."

Bob didn't grin. He knew it was true. He was puffing a little, and feeling ashamed.

"You also missed a signal a while ago, cold," Coach Britt went on. "Come on and sit down with me a bit, Bob. Something's on your mind."

They huddled under a couple of heavy gray-and-blue blankets, while the scrimmage went on with a substitute end.

"See what I mean?" Britt pointed. "There's the same play. It depends on speed. It is built around you. You are an exceptionally fast man. It depends entirely on your getting a five or 10-yard start on the opposition. The pass clicks into your hand just before their safety man closes, and while their other defensive backs and ends are trailing you. They will have been delayed by the fake line thrust, and left behind by your speed. But you lingered there, staring."

"Yes, sir, said Bob, like a little boy.

"Anything wrong?"

"No, sir. Just dopey, I guess."

"Plenty of sleep last night?"

"Well, I went to bed early," said Bob.

"Yes. I saw you in, myself. Studies all right?"

"Yes, sir. They're easy for me. But—well, I'll tell you, coach. I think I lost a thousand dollars last night, and it did upset me some. I never had a thousand dollars in sight before, so I didn't sleep too much. But I'll be all right tomorrow. I promise I will I don't blame you for riding me."

No more was said about it. Coach didn't understand fully, but he didn't probe. He knew that Bob along with some of the other Rice players, was hoping to get the Columbian Sporting goods award of $1,000, as offered through T. J. Sanders. But he did not question Bob as to why he felt the chance now lost.

Mr. T. J. Sanders was not out for practice that day, normally he hung around the Rice stadium every afternoon, partly because it was business to do so, partly because he was a football enthusiast first and always. The Rice championship had delighted him; he wanted to see the boys win another, or go down fighting hard. But today he had other matters on his mind.

He had planned to wait a long time before "dropping by" casually to take Sara Sue to the Gulfport kennels, as agreed. He discovered that 24 hours can be an extremely long time. He dropped by the very next afternoon.

Moreover, he was sartorially prime. Sometimes he dressed a little slouchily, for informality's sake and because he liked to handle a few passes and kicks himself, just playing around with the grid boys. Today, though, he was creased and spotless, snappy and shining. He rang Sara Sue's door bell.

"Just happened to remember that you asked me to show you the kennels where Nightmare was born," he said, beaming at her. "I have a free hour, and if you happened to have—"

Nightmare was bounding and barking his greeting to his old master. Both stooped to pet him, stooped so simultaneously, in fact, that their heads butted.

The laughter and apologies were gay. They broke the social ice admirably. Sara Sue went to get a wrap. Nightmare rode on the back seat, barking occasionally for sheer joy. Mr. T. J. Sanders himself felt like barking.

T. J. talked a great deal. His enthusiasm usually was manifest through his tongue—which may be why he was Columbia's ace salesman—and he had ample inspiration in Sara Sue. Moreover, he was clever with his conversation. He knew a lot of things, and he spiced his talk with plenty of jokes and quips and merriment. Sara Sue had a perfectly delightful time.

—The kennels were outlying, and after the dutiful visit there, T. J. cut back across some of the flat suburban country and zoomed out to Sugarland. There he bought Sara Sue a frosted limeade, himself a root beer. When he started back towards Houston's South Main boulevard, he gave thought to the future.

"There's a new exhibit in the art museum," he told her then. "Quite an important one."

He hadn't seen it. In fact, he didn't know nor care a hang about art. But for no apparent reason he associated this lovely girl with artistic things. The fact is, he was still a little awed by Mrs. Sara Sue Davis. He didn't want to make any false moves. So he said nothing about an evening at the Sylvan beach dance barn, nor the northside Pinecrest night club. He mentioned, rather, the art museum.

"I haven't seen it," said Sara Sue. Which was just ducky for T. J.

"Say, I'd like to take you there!" he said, and meant it. "I—I enjoy good pictures." (He hadn't been to a museum in years.) "One of the papers said this was a really extraordinary exhibition. Say, suppose I drop by tomorrow night, and we have dinner somewhere and then go look at the paintings?"

"All right," agreed Sara Sue.

They passed a corner on which a building was under construction. A sign said it was a community church. And that set Mr. T. J. Sanders off on a new conversational tangent.

He had some theories about churches. He felt, he said, that they were a source of power. He was pretty sure that the general public had too long neglected them. A young man and a young woman really can talk at some length about religion, if they care to. It is so easy to have profound ideas there.

T. J. worked in several references to a Dr. Ferguson, who was minister of that beautiful Presbyterian church across the street from the art museum. The church there, in fact, contributes much to the beauty of the city at that point, which was only a mile north of the Rice campus. Art and the church; they are closely linked, T. J. thought. Sara Sue agreed. Dr. Ferguson was a fearless, brilliant man. Would Sara Sue, by the way, like to hear Dr. Ferguson some time? Of course. Well, let's see. T. J. would just "drop by" next Sunday morning at 10:30 and they'd go hear Dr. Ferguson. Sara Sue could see no possible harm in that; one ought to go to church oftener, anyway.

They talked quite a great deal more about this and that, T. J. driving slowly, until they caught a distance glimpse of the campanile on the Rice engineering building. It is a landmark for south Houston, anyway. It turned the thoughts back to Rice, and inevitably back to football.

T. J. knew a lot about football. He loved it, and so did Sara Sue. They found much in common to discuss. Especially did they analyze last Saturday's game, and speculate on the one for next Saturday, also scheduled for Rice stadium. They had forgotten all about the church discussion.

T. J. managed to argue with her here. He knew the opposition team also, he said, and he adroitly worked in a little praise for them. Sara Sue took the bait and argued back. She had positive ideas about what the Rice players could and probably would do to the enemy, because of thus and so. She laughed and argued rather vehemently, T. J. frequently having to back down.

He told her she had a keen, analytical mind. He told her she was more observant than most girls, by far. He mentioned that she was broader in her interests than most girls, too many of whom appeared to be centred on clothes alone, and she said she believed in being broad. He kept on arguing football, gently, and when they passed the Rice stadium and field house and caught a glimpse of the Owls in scrimmage, he said he feared Rice might have to suffer defeat next Saturday. She flared at that.

"Maybe so, maybe so," he grinned. "Tell you what—I'll just drop by next Saturday and we'll go together and analyze the teams themselves, and see which of our theories proves best."

"All right, mister, and then you'll see that Rice has more spirit, as well as more strength—" Sara Sue poured it on him. She talked heartily, and Mr. T. J. Sanders listened, beaming.

Still beaming, he deposited her and Nightmare back at her cottage. He went away rather happily. He was a salesman. His day hadn't been half bad, ta-tum, tum tum, he told himself. He had three dates with Sara Sue!

DOROTHY DIX

Why Women Put Up With All The Rotten Treatment That Husbands Can Inflict On Them Is One Of Life's Unsolved Mysteries

ONE of our interesting subjects of speculation is why our friends and acquaintances married the ones they did. When we meet the Joneses we exclaim "Why on earth do you suppose he married her?" And when Mrs. Blank presents us to Mr. Blank we marvel, and ask: "What do you suppose she ever saw in him that made her pick him out for a husband?"

And if we can find no answer to the question of why people married as they did, we confront an even greater challenge to our curiosity in why husbands and wives stay together in marriages that are hells on earth from which they could so easily escape via Reno. This is particularly the case as regards women who are devastated by their unhappy marriages, yet who, in the great majority of cases, do nothing about it except to talk about it.

All of us know women who are married to drunkards, or philanderers, or lazy loafers, or grouches, who weep upon our breasts and tell us how their Johns are dragging them down into the gutter with them or how their Percivals are breaking their hearts with their goings-on with blonde hussies. Or how their Toms spend their time loafing in taprooms when there isn't a crust of bread in the house and the children's feet are on the ground. Or how their Nicholases are so ill-tempered that even the cat takes to the cellar when he hears them come in the front door.

But after you have 'poor-Maryed' or 'poor-dear-Sallyed' one of these victims of a brutal husband, did you ever try to get her to pack up her troubles in her old kit bag and leave him? You would be surprised. But it can't be done. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred she clings to her bunch of woes and refuses to be separated from him. Whether this is from a sense of duty, or lack of intestinal fortitude, or because she gets a morbid pleasure out of having a grievance, is what keeps us guessing.

Of course, there are many reasons why women stick to unhappy marriages. There is pride, for instance. It cuts a wife to the quick to have to admit that she married a weakling or a derelict whom other people look down upon with scorn. That is why so many drunkards' wives always speak of their husbands' sprees as John's "nervous attacks." That is why so many wives who support good-for-nothing husbands year after year always diagnose their husbands' shiftlessness and laziness as "Tom's poor heart." They explain their own taking in boarders or pounding a typewriter or standing behind a counter as a mad desire for an exciting life that they could not resist.

Other women stick to an unhappy marriage because they are good sports and they won't welch on their bargains. They went into marriage of their own free will and accord, they reason. Their husbands are their own choice. If they were so credulous and so lacking in worldly wisdom and judgment as to invest their all in a proposition without investigating its real worth, why, then, it is up to them to pay the price without whining.

Other women endure husbands who tear their hearts to pieces with jealousy and insult them with their infidelities because they are more mother than wife. They can always bring themselves to look upon their husbands as bad little boys who don't mean to be as naughty as they are. Also, they are filled with the mother's incurable optimism that makes them believe that Johnny or Tommy means it when he says he will never stray again. So they weep and kiss and forgive and go on repeating the process until Johnny or Tommy is too old and rheumatic to sidestep any more.

Still other women cling to bad husbands because they are their meal ticket. They have no way by which they can make a living themselves and they cannily conclude that a hungry heart is not so bad to endure as a hungry stomach; that a disagreeable husband is no harder to stand than a disagreeable boss and that they can bear a good deal of personal unpleasantness from a husband who is a good provider.

The chief reason, however that women endure unhappy marriages is because of their children. They know that their children's well-being depends upon their being brought up in the security of a home and having both a father and mother to rear them. So they offer themselves up as a sacrifice to the youngsters they have brought into the world.

Some women are faithful as a dog to the men who beat them and starve them and revile them because they love them still. That is a mystery past all solving.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, December 3.

The aspects of the moon on this day are somewhat conflicting, promising, on the one hand,, benefits, lucrative change, increase in finance and expanding opportunities on the other, quarrels, tumult, disturbance and probable violence. All this might be precipitated through reckless acts, fiery speech, over-aggressive or enthusiastic activities. With proper restraint and moderation there should be surprising benefits in new projects, through speculation or important change.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of conflicting adventures, with fine promise for new opportunities, progress, bold projects or important financial deals. But these should not be jeopardized by recklessness, haste, excitement, quarrels or impetuosity. Calm and well-planned details should prove definitely constructive and worthwhile, Speculation is encouraged.

A child born on this day may be progressive, enterprising, and courageous, having excellent chances for success. But it may have the handicap of a rash, tempestuous and over-aggressive temperament to undermine its success.

By MAX TRELL

It was early in the morning. The children still were asleep. But Knarf and Hanid, who looked a good deal like the children but were only shadows, were already awake.

They could see outside into the garden where the trees were standing without leaves, for the cold wind had blown them off.

All at once they heard a loud chirping on the window-sill: "Wake up! . . . wake up in these! I'm hungry! I want my breakfast!"

The shadows sprang to their feet and looked at the window-sill. It

They heard a loud chirping.

"Ah—good morning! Have you got my breakfast ready?" the sparrow chirped when he saw them.

"We're not supposed to get your breakfast for you," Knarf said.

"You'd better get your on breakfast," Hanid added.

He's Cold, Too.

That only made the sparrow chirp more loudly than before.

"It's so cold here," the sparrow explained, "that all the grasshoppers and flies have disappeared — and all the seeds in all the flowers have been blown away. I can't get my own breakfast any more. There isn't any to be found. So I'd like the children to give me some."

"Oh! Now we understand," said Hanid.

"But why don't you fly away where it's nice and warm? All the other birds have flown away," Knarf said.

The sparrow sighed. "Yes—they've all flown south all right—all the robins and meadow-larks and thrushes and swallows. But we sparrows are different. We stay up here where it's cold. And that reminds me—I'M HUNGRY!"

"Sh-h, yoh'll wake up the children," the shadows cautioned.

But the sparrow didn't care.

All at once the children opened their eyes. "There! Now you're going to catch it!" Hanid said to the sparrow.

But do you know what the children said? "O-oh! It's our friend the sparrow. He's come for his breakfast." Then they got a handful of crumbs and spread it on the window-sill. Aren't you glad?

Looking Back
On This Date

Three lieutenant-governors of Manitoba have taken the oath of office on a December 2—the first Hon. Alexander Morris, in 1872; the second, Hon. J. E. Cauchon, in 1877, and the third, Hon. J. C. Aikins, in 1882. Three widely different types of men, but each performed his duties capably in difficult times in the then young province.

Mr. Morris, born at Perth, Upper Canada, had a long public career before he went west in 1872 to be the first chief justice of Manitoba, an office he held for only a few weeks. His task was no easy one in a community still riven by the Riel troubles of 1869-70, but he showed much diplomacy and was a conciliator and a useful agent of the dominion government.

His successor, Hon. J. E. Cauchon, was a journalist before he became a politician and in his life played many parts, changing his party allegiance as circumstances required. In 1844 he was elected to the Canadian Assembly for Montmagny, was a member of two Tory ministries before Confederation and was appointed a senator in 1867 in order that he might become the first Speaker of the Senate. Then, when the Liberals came into office over the Pacific scandal, he changed his cloth and joined the Mackenzie ministry as president of the council, and in that capacity was a cause of trouble to several of his colleagues. So unpopular was he with the Quebec rouges that Mr. Laurier refused to join the cabinet until Cauchon was removed. In Manitoba he undid much of the good accomplished by Mr. Morris, but since the Liberals were driven out of office less than a year after his appointment to the governorship he worked in harmony with Sir John Macdonald and took his orders just as if he had never joined the Liberals at all.

Hon. J. C. Aikins, the third governor, was a native of Peel county and as "safe" a man as Cauchon was not. He was a member of both the assembly and the legislative council of Canada before Confederation and then a senator, in which capacity he was also twice secretary of state under Sir John. His period at Winnipeg was one of much development, marred by the second Riel rebellion, but cheered by the loyal response of the Winnipeg militia to the call of duty. Mr. Aikins was a leader of the Methodist Church and father of Sir James A. M. Aikins, who was both premier and lieutenant-governor of Manitoba. The Aikins family had af ine record in both church and public life.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK —By R. J. Scott

St. Paul's Choir Presents Scottish Concert

Those dour souls the Scots were boasting last night—about their oatmeal (that Dr. Johnston said was a grain fed in Scotland to men, in England to horses), their poets, their songsters, their famous men in many fields, even their thriftiness.

The boasting took place at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, and the bagpipes vied with the voices of Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, Rev. Canon J. D. Paterson, Jock Smith, and many another to give the place the true atmosphere of "the Auld Kirk." The Sunday School Room was filled with the Scottish and other good folk.

It was all in celebration of St. Andrew's Night—a night late, to be true, but it was a fine show "for a' that." It was filled with Scottish lassies who were like a breath of heather, it had the skirling of the pipes by Jack Smith, it had tales of the Old Land by two of Scotland's sons, Dr. Barr and Canon Paterson.

The ladies of the choir, who sponsored the entertainment, were dressed in plaid skirts—the plaids of every clan whose name has come down through the glorious bloody history of old Scotland. The evening reached its highest peak for Scots people when Piper Jack Smith led the choir to the stage to the sound of the pipes, his Cameron kilts swirling, the feather in his glengarry quivering.

Old Songs Sung.

They were the old songs sung by Scotsmen the world over that were heard last night. There was "Scots Wha Hae," there was "The Scottish Blue Bells," there was "Roamin' in the Gloamin'," and there was many a tear on broad, pleasant faces at that last one, and at "My Ain Folk" and "Comin' Thro' the Rye."

The program opened with Orma Lacheur and Horace Hope singing "The Auld Hoose," and then Miss Isabel Duthie sang "Within a Mile o' Edinburgh Toon," "The Scottish Blue Bells" was sung by Master Bob Hendry, and then the choir and Jack Smith sang "The Hundred Pipers," which tells how Bonnie Prince Charlie marched across the border and into Carlyle nearly two hundred years ago and preceded by a band of pipers 100 strong. Mrs. George Coleman, Jr., and Miss Marion Armstrong took solo parts in "Caller Herrin'," in which the chorus was sung by the full ladies' choir. Bob Hendry, Sr., sang "Roamin' in the Gloamin'" along with the entire audience, and "She's the Lass for Me."

Off To Start 139-Year Sentence

Smiling, grimacing and scowling by turns, Robert Irwin, "The Mad Sculptor," is shown beside a detective as he began the journey to Sing Sing prison to begin his prison sentence of 139 years, designed to keep him away from society for the rest of his life. Irwin, found guilty of the Easter Sunday slaying of Frank Byrnes, Veronica Gedeon and Mrs. Gedeon, was sentenced by Judge James Wallace in New York, despite the sculptor's many shouted interruptions during the pronouncement of the sentence.

Lindsay Bakers Cut Bread Prices Under Outside Competition

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Dec. 2.—Competition from Toronto and Peterborough bakers have forced local bakers to reduce the price of their product, it was announced Thursday. Of course the reduction was hailed with pleasure by housewives, who have been waiting for bakers to put the price of bread on a more equitable basis with the price of wheat and flour.

Took Nearly Million Bonus To Keep Norma Shearer In Movies

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(AP). — A bonus of nearly $1,000,000 kept Norma Shearer in the movies after the death of her husband in 1936, an attorney for Loew's, Incorporated, indicated as he concluded his opening statement to-day in a $30,000,000 accounting suit against the Corporation.

When Irving Thalberg died, said the lawyer, former Justice Joseph Proskauer, $350,000 already had been spent on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer spectacle, "Marie Antoinette," in which Miss Shearer was the star.

Her contract permitted her to retire upon the death of her husband. To prevent such action and to sustain the morale of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, of which Loew's is the holding company, Proskauer said, it was agreed that Thalberg's estate should receive four per cent. of the company's net profits until Dec. 31, 1938.

Bernard Epstein and seven other stockholders, who brought suit against Loew's, charged that between 1927 and 1938 more than $19,000,000 or 20 per cent. of net profits were paid to Thalberg, Louis B. Mayer and J. Robert Rubin on contracts of which stockholders and directors were not informed.

Proskauer began his statement yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Louis Valente, sitting without a jury. The plaintiffs' statement was concluded during the day.

Roseneath Institute Branch Hears District President

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Dec. 2.—Mrs. W. A. Hoskin of Grafton, district president of Women's Institutes of West Northumberland, was the guest speaker of the regular meeting of the local branch on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Hoskin spoke on several departments of the work. She outlined the work of the girls' club and the success attained in the different projects; offered advice regarding the spending of money and said "spend your money at home first." The functions of standing committees were outlined also. Follow your hand-book for proper procedure, develop leadership in your branch and allow plenty of time for fostering a community spirit, co-operate with your officers, hear, say and do at every meeting, and stand up, speak up and sit down quick, were points brought out and enlarged on by the speaker. Other brief items from a very constructive address, included several do's and dont's, do allow for elasticity in program planning, do keep politics out of religion, religion out of politics, and always keep pace in the foreground. Do not allow lectures to take the place of demonstrations, an ounce of demonstration is worth a pound of lecture. Mrs. Hoskin in conclusion gave a talk on "Mothers and Their Children," the key theme in which was that the vital interests of home life centres and revolves around mothers. The meeting was held in the town hall, with Mrs. E. Thackeray as hostess and Mrs. B. Thackeray, president, presiding.

During a brief business session it was decided to hold a dance in January and the following were named a committee to arrange details: Mrs. S. Waller, Mrs. S. Sherwin, Mrs. Edgar Braithwaite and Mrs. A. Halstead, with the executive also. The secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Frank Brown, read an itemized statement of the euchre party and the sale of tickets on a hope chest, showing a profit of $37.73.

Miss Mary Braithwaite and Mrs. Leslie Sherwin had charge of a short program, Mrs. L. Turner read a poem, "Christmas Cheer," Mrs. A. Nill sang "Star of the East," with Mrs. C. W. Varcoe playing accompaniment, and singing in the duet chorus, Mrs. L. Tucker recited "Little Old Town," Mrs. S. Thackeray played "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and Mrs. C. Sandercock read "A Recipe for Christmas Pudding."

Mrs. S. Waller moved a vote of thanks to the guest speaker and Miss Mary Braithwaite moved a vote of thanks to the hostess. Following the singing of the National Anthem the Christmas gift exchange among the members was conducted by Vice-President Mrs. J. W. Pacey and refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mrs. Edgar Braithwaite and Mrs. C. Sandercock volunteered to arrange a program for the January meeting. The roll call was a 'White Gift.' These gifts will be forwarded to the Children's Shelter at Port Hope.

10,000 Pages Of Evidence Facing Dominion-Provincial Experts

OTTAWA, Dec. 2—(CP).—The royal commission on Dominion-provincial relations today prepared to settle down to the most difficult part of its vital task—drafting a report which might lead to more complete national unity and a sounder system of public finance in Canada.

The commission yesterday completed its long and pains-taking collection of data on which it would base a report. Its public sittings concluded when the Manitoba government wound up its supplementary sittings.

The task now will be to finish a review of the 10,000-odd pages of evidence taken during the 85 days of sittings, to absorb the best of a score of studies done by some of the country's leading economic, legal and statistical experts, draft a skeleton report and then go to work on the actual writing.

Ready Middle of Session

It is expected the report will be ready about the middle of the parliamentary session which opens Jan. 12, and may consist of a summary of the factual evidence received by the commission and some recommendations based on that evidence.

A conference of Dominion and provincial governments will be called to thresh out some points of dissatisfaction in inter-governmental relations, probably basing discussions on the factual matter assembled by the commission. If specific recommendations are made by the commission, they will only be acted upon after the Dominion-Provincial conference has discussed them.

The commission was appointed in August, 1937, as a fact-finding and advisory body to conduct a "re-examination of the economic and financial basis of confederation and of the distribution of legislative powers in the light of the economic and social developments of the last 70 years."

It started taking evidence publicly at Winnipeg Nov. 29, 1937, and ended here yesterday, a year and two days later.

ENDS 30-YEAR-OLD DISPUTE

A claim made at Sheffield, England, by 1,500 workers more than 30 years ago that they were entitled to higher wages because their labor required unusual skill, has just been granted, the dispute having gone on all the time without a strike.

Judge S. Smoke Exonerates Reeve Griffith

Cases of that nature are generally not reported, and for that reason nothing was published in The Examiner about the action which was brought against Mr. Griffith. However, he has asked that he be given the benefit of the judgment and its publication, because of the gossip which associated his name with the case early last summer.

"I think it would be in order to relieve the minds of the more skeptical also in justice to myself and family to set before you the verdict of His Honor Judge Smoke in disposing of this case. The following are given as the reasons for his judgment: The only fact which has been proved to my satisfaction in this case is that —— ——, who is the applicant and is an unmarried woman, gave birth to a child on April 13, 1938. As to who is the father of the child the matter is still a mystery in so far as the Court is concerned.

The evidence of the father and mother in my opinion is so unsatisfactory that it should not be accepted, and I refuse to accept it. As to the evidence of the child, —— ——, who is the mother of this other child, it must be placed in the same category. The evidence of the respondent is, in my opinion, a very satisfactory explanation of his movements to the best of his ability, and I might say to a much larger extent than the ordinary individual would be able to account for.

Without going into the evidence and pointing out what I think is unsatisfactory in the evidence of Mr. and Mrs. —— ——, I feel I should give no effect to it whatsoever. As to the evidence of H——, I am not sure. He may be telling the truth; he may not. In my opinion there is no evidence on which I would be justified in making a finding against the respondent in this case as to his being the father of the child.

I might go further and say that in my opinion it is a case in which an effort has been made to attach blame to an innocent person, and that it is unfortunate an innocent person should be faced with such a charge as this. In fact, the evidence of Mr. and Mrs. —— —— amounts to nothing less than perjury. The application will accordingly be dismissed. I am sorry that the circumstances are such that I am unable to order payment of costs to the respondent."

Bible Class Has Annual Banquet

The twenty-sixth annual meeting and banquet of the Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's Church was held Thursday evening in the Parish Hall, and was followed by the election of officers for the coming year.

Crimson poinsettias and small, gaily decorated Christmas trees lent an atmosphere of Christmas cheer to the banquet tables. Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson was chairman, and proposed a toast to "The King." In proposing a toast to the Church and the Sunday School, Rev. R. T. F. Brain spoke of the church as the means which God has of making sure that the words of Christians will be inspired, and urged that God be remembered as the centre of the universe around which must be patterned the lives of His followers if they would be enlightened, illuminated, and redeemed. In responding to this toast, Canon Robertson defined the church as an "organized Christianity throughout the world," and deplored the apathy and indifference assumed by those who call themselves Christians. "There are times when we can be optimistic about the future of the church," he said, "and other times when we find ourselves whistling in the dark to keep our courage up." A fine tribute to the splendid work carried on by the Sunday School Superintendent, Mr. Arthur Bacon, was paid by Canon Robertson, and in replying, Mr. Bacon included in his remarks a brief and intergsting regime of Sunday School work, and urged that parents co-operate in getting the children out to classes.

A toast to the guests was proposed by Mrs. H. Howell, vice-president, and responded to by Captain E. Massey-Cooke, and a toast to the Women's Friendly Bible Class, made by Mrs. Deyman, a formar president of the class, was replied to by Mrs. H. Dainton, president. An interesting feature, also, was the presentation of a gift to the class organist, Mrs. Wm. Wight.

Plan To Raise Health Standard

Sweden is starting a program designed to raise the standard of health. An institute of public health is to be established at once, according to an announcement in Stockholm, to prepare and promote measures to preserve or advance the state of the public health. It will comprise general hygene, occupational hygiene and food hygiene and control.

In each of these research work will be pursued. In addition, the institute will provide a general education in social hygiene and social medicines and will organize and distribute health propaganda. It will also instruct medical students in the Caroline Institute in hygiene.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Successful Cooking of Meat Is An Art Not A Science

By MARY MOORE

I met him. He did not have a rotund tummy either, he was lean and tall; he was broiling steaks in a charcoal broiler, and his face was rosy from the heat. He spoke perfect English, too, and for a meat chef all those characteristics should traditionally be treason. But on the same occasion as my visit to his kitchen I had roast beef, basted with loving care by him, for my dinner and in my 35 years it is the best I can remember.

One of our readers wants a meat time table. Sounds simple doesn't it? What meat? Cooked how? I asked my self as I laid the letter down. I brought two or three meat cooking time tables from my files, and the good ones cover many pages, just as the good results from my chef's stove were the experience of many years.

The successful cooking of meat is an art, it is not an exact science. reason for this unconditional statement being the various foods, methods and temperatures on which cattle are raised, the lack of interest in hanging the dressed meat, yeah verily, I asked a butcher how long his particular company were in the habit of hanging their beef and he said (this is gospel truth) "Oh just long enough for the blood to run out."

I wish to make one more general statement. After that facts and figures only (and please clip them out now for your files for I seldom get so statistical). There are two things that most meat cooks do not give a preliminary searing when roasting them. These are turkey and fresh pork. I have known cooks who say chicken is best roasted in an open pan with no high temperature at first—but these are not in the majority.

Temperatures For Cooking Beef

Roast Beef—All roast beef needs searing at at least 500 deg. Fahr. or higher, to sear surface and keep juices in meat. Sear for 15 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. Medium done requires 30 minutes to the lb. for a rolled roast, 25 minutes to the lb. for standing rib. Rare beef requires 5 minutes less to the pound.

Pan or oven-broiled steak—Pan should be preheated—broiler should be preheated—the same principle of searing applying to steak as to roasts. Sear steak on both sides for one minute, then turn two or three times during the next 10 minutes of cooking. One-inch steak requires at least 10 minutes, when it will be pink in the centre. For medium done steak broil it 12 or 13 minutes. Spread with butter and sprinkle with salt and pepper after it is cooked.

Boiled Beef—Sear this by pouring boiling hot water in which it is to be cocked, over it. Then give it 20 minutes to the lb. at least. Any of the shank or shin or leg parts of beef require 3 hours simmering to make them tender.

Temperatures For Cooking Veal

Roast Veal—The leg (sometimes called cushion) and loin are ususally used, but a stuffed shoulder of veal is a great favorite for its comparatively low cost, requires preliminary searing at 500 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, 350 degrees for remainder.

Braised Cutlet of Veal—Frying-pan (or Dutch oven) should be preheated with a little fat or butter, cutlet seared on both sides for about five minutes, or until it is slightly golden, removed from pan, flour added and stirred to blend with fat, water (boiling or vegetable liquid) stirred in until thick, cutlet returned to pan, covered, heat reduced and cooked from 30 to 45 minutes according to thickness.

Broiled or Pan-boiled Veal Chops—Sear in hot pan or broiler, for about 5 minutes, then reduce heat for another 5 or 8 minutes according to thickness.

Boiled Veal—A 2-lb. piece from neck, shoulder or breast, requires 2 hours boiling, as in Irish stew or caserole of veal and vegetables. Veal from shank requires nearer to 3 hours.

Temperatures For Cooking Lamb

Roast Lamb—Crown roast of lamb requires 1¼ hours at 500 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, 300 deg. Fahr. for remainder of time. Leg of lamb in uncovered roasted 500 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, 350 deg. Fahr. in covered roaster for remaining time, about 1¾ to 2 hours in all. Lamb should never be rare. Shoulder of lamb same as leg.

Pan or Oven Broiled Chops—Sear in hot pan or broiler for 3 minutes, then reduce heat to medium and broil until done throughout. Lamb chops should never be rare.

Broiled Lamb—Lamb in stew from shintop, or breast or shoulder requires about 2½ hours to make tender. Either on top of stove or in baked dishes.

Temperatures for Cooking Mutton

Temperatures for Cooking Pork

Roast Pork—Many food experts seriously recommend using a meat thermometer for roasting pork. It must be thoroughly done. The thermometer is forced into the middle of the roast and left in until it registers 185 deg. Fahr. which is the temperature of the meat at the centre of the cut—and necessary to kill all bacteria that are sometimes present in pork. Place meat in oven of 325 deg. Fahr. or until meat is well done. Allow about 25 to 30 minutes per pound, increasing time 2 to 5 minutes per lb. if started in cold oven.

Pan or Oven Broiled Pork Chops—Sear at high temperature, then reduce heat and cook until well done.

Baked Pork Tenderloin — Wipe tenderloin and split lengthwise, stuff, roll up and tie and place in uncovered pan. Roast at high temperature for 15 minutes, then reduce heat for 25 minutes. Slow cooking dries out tenderloin as it has so little fat on it.

Boiled Pork—From shoulder or shank requires from 2½ to 3 hours depending on thickness of piece to become tender. Cook at simmering point.

Baked Ham—Boil a 10 or 12 lb. ham 3½ hours. Trim off rind, cover with sugar and crumb and mustard coating and bake 1 hour longer.

Method for roasting turkey, duck, goose and chicken will be given before Christmas.

C.W.A. Tea Is Well Attended

The homemade cooking table was convened by Mrs. T. Sabin and Mrs. R. G. Cottrell; homemade candy, Mrs. A. E. Dryland and Mrs. F. W. Burnham; fancy work, Mrs. J. Kemp, Miss Muriel Wallace, and Miss E. Detcher; sale of Christmas cake, Mrs. W. Hughes and Mrs. C. H. Cheverill. Mrs. Joe Detcher acted as treasurer.

St. Andrew's Day Marked in Hastings

HASTINGS, Dec. 2. — "One of the most successful events ever held by St. Andrew's Presbyterian Ladies' Aid" was the comment of many regarding the fowl dinner and Scottish program on St. Andrew's Day, Wednesday, in the basement of the church.

The spirit of the day was very much in evidence from the appearance of the room, made attractive with the draped plaids on either side of the Cross of St. Andrew; Scottish airs played through the evening, and by the young ladies wearing costumes.

The three long tables were very attractive with floral decorations, and the army of workers were kept busy serving over two hundred guests. H. Anderson piped in the haggis, and Harold Fife, also in Scottish costume, carried this favorite dish in a silver casserole and placed it before the Rev. D. K. Perrie, who, after asking Grace, passed it to each guest.

Reading by Miss Betty Campbell; piano solo by Mrs. D. K. Perrie; community singing led by the choir; reading by Mrs. O. Phillips; address by Rev. D. K. Perrie, "The Day, and a' Who Honor It"; solo by H. Anderson; piano solo, Mrs. D. K. Perrie; community singing; reading by Mrs. O. Phillips.

Tea Reflects Yuletide Spirit

Reflecting the happy spirit of Yuletide, the Murray Street Parsonage at 491 Water street was en fete Thursday afternoon for the Christmas Tea and sale of Home Cooking and Novelties which was held under the auspices of the Murray Street Women's Association.

Evergreen wreaths with enormous cellophane bows of red and blue, together with the festive decorations that brightened the bazaar tables, added to the holiday feeling which the guests felt as they entered and were welcomed by the hostess, Mrs. Sutcliffe, and the president, Mrs. B. Jackson. Assistant hostesses were Miss Nell Stenton, Mrs. L. H. Ingram, and Mrs. R. G. Gavine.

Sprays and boughs of cedar entwined with scarlet bells and silver pine cones; Yuletide tapers pointing up from delightful nests of red or green crepe paper; narrow ribbons strung with silver cones for decking candles; an interesting and beautiful display of knitted things; purses, nosegays of bright felt flowers, and dozens of quaint and charming suggestions for the puzzled Christmas shopper, were to be found at the novelty table.

Candy was sold in bags, boxes, and bundles of white, topped with amusing and tiny Santa Claus men, lollipops or flowers. Lapel ornaments made of bright bits of felt, fragrant sachets, dainty handkerchiefs, etc., were sold at one decorated table, and a brisk business was transacted at the home-cooking table, where delicious home-made baking tempted many eager buyers.

Stately scarlet tapers and short white ones lighted the tea table, which was centred with a miniature Christmas tree fashioned of blue cellophane sticks tipped with silver, and encircled with sprays of evergreen. The silver tea urns at each end of the table were presided over by Mrs. A. W. Wray, Mrs. W. G. Shiner, Mrs. S. J. Graham, and Mrs. Roy White. Tea assistants were Mrs. C. A. Salmonsen, Mrs. Clayton Ruth, Mrs. W. H. Lucas, Mrs. Pittsmith and Mrs. Hood. Mrs. Gordon Matthews and Mrs. Carl Brown were tea room conveners, guests were directed to the tea room by Mrs. Ray Scott, and tea making was under the direction of Mrs. H. R. Scott and Mrs. G. W. Fitzgerald.

Conveners for the home-made cooking table were Mrs. Thos. Irwin, Mrs. B. J. Lemmon and Mrs. Howard Frise. Candy table, Mrs. Balentin, Mrs. Rightmeyer. Christmas novelties and fancy work, Mrs. R. F. Budden and Mrs. C. D. Westbrooke, conveners, assisted by Mrs. W. L. Hardwickes and Mrs. J. Cruikshank. A table of small fancy articles was in charge of a number of C.G.I.T. girls. Mrs. D. V. Canning was treasurer for the occasion.

St. Peter's Bazaar Being Held In The Lyceum

St. Alphonses Lyceum, Simcoe street, presented a gay picture last evening as the St. Peter's Parish Bazaar got underway, and will continue until Saturday night.

The stage was piled high with blankets and other valuable merchandise which went to lucky ticket holders on each spin of the wheel of fortune, while others enjoyed themselves at other games. All booths were well patronized and the women in charge of the different sections report the returns were gratifying.

Hot supper, cafeteria style was served starting at five o'clock under the joint convenership of Mrs. E. H. White and Mrs. M. S. Donoghue with the following assisting: Mesdames J. E. Crowley, J. E. Sullivan, M. Gray, S. Houlihan. Several girls also assisted in serving supper.

Novelty Booth

A novelty booth made a pretty picture decorated in yellow, green and gold. It was in charge of Mrs. E. F. Eggleton, who was assisted by the Misses Agnes Birdgenau, Corrinne Killoran, and Patricia Eggleton. Among the odd assortment of knick knacks on display was a tiny ox cart made in Quebec and which wis filled with gourds. Potted plants, bridge prizes, hand lotions, infant's garments and preserved ginger were also featured. The main prize at this booth was a coffee set of china, coated with copper and polished to give a high gloss.

The candy booth was manned by members of the Sodality with Miss Bud McCoy, president of the Sodality as convener. Those who helped in this booth included the Misses Lilian Cavanagh, Florence O'Toole, Margaret Grisdale and Helen Ross.

The fish pond was the gathering place for the children attending the bazaar and Miss Annie Simons, convener was kept busy filling the bag. Mrs. Thomas Lane, Mrs. Alex DeMaio, Eileen Collins, Betty Brady and Marcelle Conlin assisted.

Several men kept the games in progress and assisted at the wheel of fortune which was in charge of Rev. P. J. Kelly, LL.D. Those included Leo McCabe, Stanley Houlihan, Fred Coulson, Harold Whaley, Charles Armstrong and J. Allen.

An apron booth just inside the door to the right displayed an assortment of aprons that attracted many visitors. Mrs. Carrie Brady was convener, while Mrs. T. J. Kelly and Mrs. Charles McCoy were also in this booth.

Supper will be served Friday and Saturday evenings starting at five o'clock and the bazaar will continue until late Saturday evening. Mrs. E. Deannard is general convener, for the entire program.

IN MEMORIAM

LONG.—In loving memory of Mr. Robert Long, who passed away two years ago to-day, December 2, 1936.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps you near.
—Sadly missed by his Wife.

HARRIS.—In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Evelyn Isobel Harris, who passed away two years ago to-day, December 2.
Two little hands are resting,
A loving heart is still,
A little daughter we loved is Waiting for us just over the hill.
The memory of her dear wee ways
Will linger with us all our days.
Sweetest flower, too sweet to stay,
God took her home to show us the way.
Forget her; no we never will,
For in our hearts she liveth still.
—Sadly missed by Mother, Father, Sisters and Brother Bill.

Men's Club Formed In Apsley Church

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, Dec. 2.—A men's club has been organized under the auspices of the St. George's Anglican church here. Chesel McColl has been elected president and Frank Tanner is secretary-treasurer. Their meetings will be held once a week in the Parish hall. The opening meeting was held on Thursday evening and was in the form of a social evening. The men serving the lunch.

The Junior Girls' W.A. has been meeting regularly in the Parish hall every Saturday afternoon. The girls have been very busy sewing. On December 17 a tea is planned. Mrs. Stanley Windsor is leader. This class was started last year and has proved a great success.

Improvements have been made on St. George's church. A new porch has been built for the entrance to the basement. The furnace repaired and a beautiful large cupboard made for the use of the choir. A part of the basement has also been partitioned off. Some very needed improvements are being made this week to the Parish hall. The large room at the back of the hall is being equipped for a kitchen. A new floor is being laid.

Mrs. Frank Tanner of Chandos spent the day on Tuesday with her daughter, Mrs. Henry Skelcher.

An afternoon tea was held on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. N. Wilson under the auspices of the Apsley United church Women's Association.

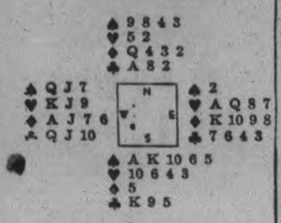
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

CONSIDER YOUR TASK

YOUR PLAN OF play depends partly upon the height of the contract. What would be the sole possible chance to make a three spade contract may be utterly wrong when you are playing for only two spades. Then you may be able to sacrifice a trick on a safety play which makes the success of the contract a sure thing or very nearly one.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South bid 1-Spade on this deal, West passed and North bid 2-Spades, which ended the bidding.

West led the club Q, which declarer won. He then cashed two rounds of trumps. Next came a heart lead. West won and then cashed his spade Q. As a result, South lost three heart tricks, a diamond, a club and a trump.

Declarer should have attempted to set up hearts before drawing trumps. Had he played that way, he would have lost only two hearts and a trick in each of the other suits.

Had he been playing for a 3-Spade contract his procedure was correct, as finding the trumps divided was the only possible chance to make his contract. As the cards lay, he would have gone down two, however.

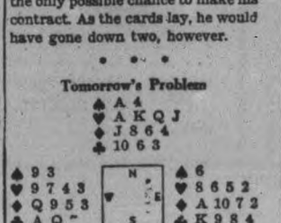
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

What is the correct defense against South's contract of 4-Spades?

Jews Forbidden To Appear Berlin Main Streets Or Any Public Buildings

Only Exceptions Under New Police Law Are Certain Restricted Areas; Even German Subjects Are Included

BERLIN, Dec. 3 (AP). — Berlin's Chief of Police today banned Jews henceforth from appearing in the capital's principal streets, public buildings, national memorials, theatres, and other public places.

The decree provided that Jews who are German subjects or without nationality may neither walk nor ride within these areas—with the sole exception of Jews living in regions marked out by the new regulations effective December 6.

Jews resident in the areas must obtain police permits to enter or leave the districts.

Following are forbidden areas: All theatres, movie houses and museums: The Sportspalast, Deutschland Hall, Olympic Stadium, all other institutions on the Reich's sports field and all other sports arenas of the capital; public and private bathing establishments.

Career Drinker Faces Murder

CHILLICOTHE, O., Dec. 3 (A.P.). —Robert Bready, 29, who boasted he had "made a career of drinking," will be charged with murder to-day in the confessed slaying of his Prohibitionist father, Dr. Russell Bready 62, near the minister's parsonage in the quiet village of nearby Bainbridge.

Prosecutor Leslie Reid said Bready had signed a written confession that he shot the Methodist Episcopal pastor during a scuffle as his father took him on a "sobering up" walk yesterday.

Bready said Reid admitted drinking considerable apple wine prior to his father's return home from a fraternal meeting. Reid denied that he had intentionally fired the fatal revolver bullet into the pastor's head.

"Why did your dad take you out walking? Were you tearing up the house?" Prosecutor Reid asked.

"Yes; pretty wild," was the reply.

Bready said he recalled "being in the big yard between the house and the church. I am morally certain that we scuffled and the upshot is dad was shot."

Bready said in answer to a question, he was not certain whether he scuffled with his father over a bottle or the gun.

Asked why he had the pistol, Bready, who said he had served 20 days with the Abraham Lincoln Brigade fighting for Loyalist forces in Spain, replied he "felt a little nervous about possible retaliation from the Communists" because of magazine articles he had written. "Communists have been known to take measures against people, and I had a little fear from Communists."

Icy Roads Blamed For Car Collisions

Icy roads were responsible for a number of accidents this morning, one of them, involving three automobiles. This triple crash occurred near the intersection of George and Park Hill Road when a car driven north on George street by Dr. J. M. McCulloch skidded on the slippery street into the path of the south bound automobile owned by H. Sunson, taxi proprietor, and driven by W. A. Barker. In pulling away after the impact Dr. McCulloch's car backed into a parked machine owned by Braund's grocery damaging it slightly. Dr. McCulloch's car came out of the accident in the worst condition, suffering damage to its lights, grill, bumper and fenders.

Norman Bowles of Cavan was driving into town this morning when his car slipped off the icy road on Highway 28 six miles out. No one was hurt.

Normandie Crew 50 Others Go On Strike

LE HAVRE, France, Dec. 3 (A.P.). —Crews of 50 ships, headed by the personnel of the liner Normandie, to-day defied government attempts to break their general strike by requisitioning all ships in port.

Crew members, estimated to number more than 5,000 proclaimed their determination to prevent the Normandie from starting for New York at 2 p.m. (9 a.m. EST).

Mobile guards were rushed to Le Havre to cope with any strike disorders.

The general strike of all ship workers was called in protest against the Ministry of Merchant Marine's order requisitioning all vessels in port in an attempt to bring strikers back to work as government employees.

The requisition order was issued after the Ship Stewards' Union planned a strike upon reports the government had decided to arrest union delegates.

French Line officials, naval authorities and representatives of the Ministry of Merchant Marine conferred on possible measures to enable the Normandie to sail on time. They considered replacing strikers with navy seamen and waiters and Stewards from nearby hotels.

The next French liner scheduled to sail for New York after the Normandie is the Paris on December 7.

On the Normandie's passenger list were Anthony Eden, former British Foreign Secretary, and Mrs. Eden. Mr. Eden is bound for New York, where he is to address the National Manufacturers' Association.

Hint Britain May Protest To Rome

LONDON, Dec. 3 (C.P.-Havas).—Great Britain may make representations at Rome against the Italian campaign for annexation of French territory, it was understood in informed circles here to-day.

The representations, it was said, would indicate the resentment produced here by the attacks against a nation so closely linked to Great Britain, coming as they did soon after the putting into effect of the Anglo-Italian Pact.

Cotton Cargo Burns In Boston Freighter

BOSTON, Dec. 3 (A.P.). — Half-frozen firemen continued to pour water to-day into still-smouldering holds of the Moore & McCormack Line's coastwise freighter Southlure, long hours after fire swept 1,000 bales of cotton in her cargo.

Fire Chief Samuel Pope estimated damage to the listing, paint-blistered ship would total "at least $150,000."

For a time firemen feared the fire might reach 15,000 gallons of crude oil beneath the cotton and cause an explosion. Tugboats pulled nearby vessels into the stream and a police boat was ordered away. Streams of dozens of throbbing pumpers confined the flames to Holds 3, 4 and 5. Two firemen and a longshoreman were overcome by dense black smoke.

Toys To Repair For Many Needy Children Are Wanted By Peterborough Firemen

DO YOU KNOW that without meaning to, you may rob some child in the city of happiness this winter.

It is not a pleasant thought, and yet many people in Peterborough might be guilty unless they extend a little co-operation.

All of the discarded and broken toys in the attic, cellar, shed or garage can be repaired and sent out again to poor families at Christmas. Hundreds of small children who perhaps will not enjoy the delicacies that mark the Christmas dinner will hug the toys in their tiny hands and revel in the joy that comes from Santa remembering them.

Your part in this job is easy. All that is necessary is to collect these toys and telephone the Fire Department. They will send a car around for them and transform the toys into bright new playthings in the cellar workshop at the fire hall.

On Christmas Eve the toys will be distributed and you will have done your part in bringing happiness to some small child.

The response for toys has been generous but many more are needed before the firemen will have sufficient to go around.

Now that you have read this article, just set the paper down, leave the supper dishes sit for awhile and see how many toys you can find. The telephone number at the Fire Hall is 24-no fire.

Welcoming Santa

Hurricane Rips Victoria, B.C. Mainland

VICTORIA, Dec. 3—(CP).—A gale that reached hurricane force blew up out of the Pacific yesterday and lashed fiercely at Victoria and the lower British Columbia mainland, damaging shipping and property and disrupting communications.

Wharf buildings and shipping at the Ogden Point piers, situated at the mouth of Victoria's sheltered inner harbor, caught the main force of the gale which blew at 66 miles an hour, with gusts reaching hurricane force.

The Greek freighter Evaragos, loading lumber, broke her mooring lines and swung cross-wise between a grain elevator and barge landing, crushing and sinking three lumber-laden barges.

Three men were injured in the hours-long struggle to make fast the vessel.

Damage estimated at $5,000 was done to the dredge King Edward when her derrick and pontoons for carrying the pipeline were swept away. The entire skylight was torn off the Ogden Point grain elevator and blown into the sea. The elevator's roof was damaged and windows were smashed. Windows elsewhere in the city and suburbs were shattered at the height of the gale.

Trees were uprooted and flying limbs tore down light and power lines, plunging the city in darkness and interrupting street car and telegraph service. Metal roofing measuring 100 by 50 feet was torn off the public market buildings, rolled back like paper.

The mainland around Vancouver reported similar damage.

3 Assassins Shot Trying Escape

BUCHAREST, Dec. 3. — (AP) — Three men who had confessed the attempted assassination of the rector of Cluj University were shot dead by guards today in a Cluj street.

Police reported the three, whose attack on Flory Goanga, Nov. 28 was the climax of a wave of Iron Guard terrorism, had tried to escape as they were being taken from court to prison.

Their deaths followed by three days the mass slaying of Corneliu Codreanu, leader of the fascist, anti-semitic Iron Guard, and 13 of his sub-leaders, also reported to have attempted escape while being transferred from prison.

The three shot dead today, all 24 to 26 years old, were Nikolai Fagadaru, Bicu Annani, and Petru Andrei. The youths admitted they were members of the Iron Guard taking orders from Codreanu.

The streets of Cluj were deserted as the trio were taken to court for an early morning hearing preliminary to trial. Officers reported laconically to Bucharest that "on the way back to prison the three youths made a break for freedom whereupon they were shot dead."

Authorities said the three youths confessed shooting the rector and killing the detective who tried to protect him.

Authorities charged Fagadaru conducted a "terrorist school" in which students learned bomb throwing, marksmanship and methods of political agitation.

While in custody the three were said to have boasted of bombing outrages executed and planned.

Blonds Have Best Legs Says Movie Masseur Leading Directly With His Chin

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 3 (AP)—Blonds have the best looking legs and when he says that Masseur Lewis Hippe is leading with his chin.

It was suggested to Masseur Hippe, who is more or less responsible for the shapes of the feminine players on the Warner movie lot, that perhaps blonds have the best looking pins.

"Definitely," said Hippe. Then he began to name them.

"There's Marlene Dietrich, he said, and Joan Blondell, Alice Faye, Bette Davis, Priscilla Lane, Miriam Hopkins, Carole Lombard, Joan Bennett, Madeleine Carroll, Marie Wilson and Ginger Rogers.

And how about Betty Grable and Alice White and Jean Arthur and Jane Wyman and June Lang and Virginia Bruce....?

"They're all okay any day for leg art," said Masseur Hippe, with a note of authority. Red-heads run blonds a close second in shapeliness, Hippe said.

"Perhaps blonds just seem to have the best legs," said Hippe, hedging a little from his original stand, "because the average newcomer goes blond as soon as she gets her first role.

France May Recall Envoy From Rome In Protest

Premier Takes Serious View Of Demands By Italians For French Territory

PARIS, Dec. 3 (AP).—Possibility France might call home her Rome Ambassador for a 'vacation' unless Fascist demands for French territory cease was put forward today by quarters close to the foreign ministry.

The report came as Premier Edouard Daladier inaugurated a series of national defence conferences with his Navy, Air, and Finance Ministers to discuss expansion and acceleration of French war-plane construction.

At the same time the Premier acted to curb any repression of workers who took part in last Wednesday's unsuccessful general strike.

It was reported on high authority that Andre Francois-Poncet, the French Envoy to Italy, asked Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano yesterday for "explanations" by Monday night of Italian demands for French territory.

He protested to Ciano against demonstrations in the Italian Chamber of Deputies and in the Fascist-controlled press demanding French Tunis, Corsica and Djibouti.

With a serious view taken of the Italian campaign, Daladier appealed to employers' organizations to temper action against workers in the interest of national reconciliation and union.

"Don't forget," said the Conservative newspaper L'Orde, "today's workers are tomorrow's soldiers."

New Welfare Plan Mooted

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—(CP).—A comprehensive, long-range plan for a system of social protection in Canada was proposed in a statement issued to-day by the Canadian Welfare Council, representative of social agencies throughout the Dominion.

Under the plan the Dominion would assume the total government cost of contributory insurances. The provinces, relieved of the large portion of present costs which these would represent, would become the central authorities in the financing of relief and assistance to other than the insurance needy.

Each province would assume the major share of the costs of problems which occur over broad areas, such as non-insurance idleness, old age, widowhood and child dependency. The local authorities would be left with the costs of residual relief.

Pending the inauguration of nation-wide social insurance systems and re organization of social services throughout the country, the council recognizes the necessity of the present grants-in-aid made by the Dominion government to the provinces to assist in meeting the cost of relief.

Claim Cardinal Mistaken On C.C.F. Aims

MONTREAL, Dec. 3.—(CP).—National Chairman M. J. Caldwell of the Cooperative Commonwealth Federation and the party itself were on record to-day as attributing to a "complete misunderstanding" disapproval voiced of the C. C. F. program by Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve of Quebec, in a speech here Tuesday before the Montreal Junior Board of Trade.

Mr. Coldwell, Member of Parliament for Rosetown-Biggar, said in an address last night he believed the Cardinal had misinterpreted the "aims, purposes and philosophy" of the party in likening its economic program to that of the Communists. Reiterating the chairman's views, an official C.C.F. statement was issued at the meeting, marking opening of new headquarters for the movement's local French-speaking adherents.

The "misunderstanding," Mr. Coldwell said, was reminiscent of a similar error in 1878 when Monsignor Bourget, Archbishop of Montreal, condemned the Quebec Liberal party. "The Archbishop misunderstood the political Liberalism of his day, as much as Cardinal Villeneuve misunderstands the C.C.F. 60 years later," he said.

No Explanation

Mr. Coldwell said the C.C.F. did not propose the suppression or quasi-suppression of private property, but sought to prevent private exploitation of property "which ought to be used in the public interest."

The C.C.F.—"Most democratic of all political parties"—would not suppress political liberty, while the cardinal's charge the party was "materialistic" Mr. Coldwell saw as a reversal of the usual accusation it was "too idealistic."

The party believed that in spite of all democracy's defects, it was still the best form of government and the speaker found "disturbing" Cardinal Villeneuve's "implied approval" of Italian Fascism.

"Mussolini's rise was marked by bloodshed and by murder," he said, "and his recent slaughter of primitive Ethiopians surely merited the condemnation of humanitarians of every creed and color."

Paulette Goddard To Portrait O'Hara

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (A.P.).—The World-Telegram says the long quest for an actress to portray the role of Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind" has ended with the selection of Paulette Goddard, wife of Charlie Chaplin.

The newspaper says David Sleznick, head of Selznick International Pictures, Inc., who made the final choice, will have the cameras turning early next year.

Clark Gable will play Rhett Butler in Margaret Mitchell's famous best-seller of the United States Civil War period.

Liners For Turkey?

MONTREAL, Dec. 3. — (CP).—Canadian National Steamships are "looking toward confirmation" of sale of the passenger liners Prince Henry and Prince David to Turkish interests, General Manager R. B. Teakle said last night.

The 7,000-ton liners, built in 1930, for service on the Pacific coast, have been on the market for some time. The Prince Henry has been operated under charter to the Clarke Steamship Line as the North Star for the last two years.

County Council Opposes Jewish Immigration Want Laws Tightened

Definite Expressions Of Opposition Made By Peterborough County Reeves While Debating The Refugee Question

Peterborough County Council in open session today heartily endorsed a resolution introduced by Reeve James Milby of North Monaghan, seeking more restrictions on the immigration of peasants from Central and Southern Europe.

Reeve Milby, the only ex-service man on the Council, urged his colleagues to take a serious view of the growth of Communism in the world today and its incipient growth in the North American continent. Its growth, he said, was encouraged by allowing immigrants from Southern Europe inside our borders.

One Dissenting Voice

When the motion was put Reeve Tanner was the only dissenter. Reeve Gifford promptly pointed out that Reeve Tanner was not an agriculturist.

The resolution read as follows:

Whereas economic conditions in Canada have been in a very unsettled state for a period of years resulting in the throwing out of employment of thousands of mechanics and laboring men.

And whereas the continuance of low prices for farm products has created a very difficult problem for the farmer in the face of increased taxation.

Therefore be it resolved that the Government of Canada be requested to refrain from any wide open immigration policy until such time as world economic conditions would warrant such action and that at all times immigration into Canada should be restricted to the citizens of the United States, France, Great Britain, Ireland and the inhabitants of Northern Europe.

And that in all cases steps be taken to prevent the immigration of persons having Communistic, fascist or Nazi affiliations so that our democratic institutions may be properly safeguarded.

Warden E. N. McDonald advised the members on Friday that the Council would be within its rights to discuss the question officially and advise the Government of any decision. This statement evoked very definite expressions of opposition from Reeve Milby of North Monaghan, a Scot, and Reeve James Gifford of Ennismore, an Irishman by descent.

Tighten Immigration Laws.

"The vital question today is not whether Canada should accept a quota of Jews from Germany; it is that we should tighten up immigration laws so that all Europeans seeking homes in Canada who profess Fascism, Communism or Nazism should be barred," Reeve Milby said. "Canada is mistress of her own house. No person can force refugee on us. The immigration laws today are obsolete and permit an undesirable type of immigrant from Southern Europe to enter Canada. Eventually we will have a recurrence of the strife and bloodshed that exists in Europe today unless measures are taken to control the influx of these peoples. The only solution is quotas. These peasants who seek on Canadian soil have a lower standard of living than Canadians. They work hours that would make the Canadian farmer shudder, although we all know farmers in this country work hard enough. They undersell Canadians on city markets, and eventually the Canadian is forced out of the picture and goes bankrupt or on relief."

Farmers Should Protest.

Reeve Gifford said that during the past few months sixteen families of Czechs had been settled on farms in this country. "We are suffering from over-production at the present time. I am amazed that farmers have not taken steps to protect their industry by objecting to the immigration of European peasants. They have a lower standard than ours, can produce cheaper and represents unfair competition. A short time ago members of the medical profession in convention passed a resolution op-

Trade Revival Seen Good Until Spring

LONDON, Dec. 3—(CP-Havas).—Canada's immediate economic prospects are "fair," but the more distant trade future of the Dominion threatens to be "less attractive," The Economist, prominent Liberal weekly, declared in the issue just out.

In an article entitled "Canada in Recession and Revival," the magazine predicted good business in coming months for newsprint, nickel, automobiles, munitions, wheat and railroads.

Danger signals, however, were seen in Canadian dependence on fluctuating foreign demand for various basic commodities, in high overhead costs, and in the possibility of another depression creating local and national political crises.

"The immediate outlook is governed by several favorable signs," the article said. "Inasmuch as the American revival promises to be vigorous until at least the spring of 1939, we can expect a continued revival in newsprint, nickel and other Canadian exports to the United States.

"Lower prices and considerable changes in style probably will create a strong demand for 1939 automobile models. The intensification of the world armaments race will increase the foreign demand for base metals. And, specifically, Canadian industry is expecting a steady increase in munition orders from Great Britain.

Profits To Be Limited

"It will be some time, however, before Canadian production of munitions becomes at all substantial; and profits from new contracts are likely to be strictly limited as a result of the present federal judicial injury into the contract for production of Bren machine guns.

Think King May Open Relations Parley

OTTAWA, Dec. 3 (C.P.). — The possibility appeared to-day the King might open the Dominion-Provincial Relations Conference to be held late next spring.

With the report of the Royal Commission Dominion-Provincial Relations likely to be tabled in the House of Commons before prorogation or adjournment for Their Majesties' Canadian tour, it was considered within the realm of possibility that the King might officiate at the start of that momentous conference.

While discussion of he report will not begin until the Dominion and Provincial Governments have had ample time to consider it, the conference might convene briefly to be opened by the King. It would received the report and then adjourn for two months to study its recommendations.

Kept Dodging

GODERICH, Ont., Dec. 3—(CP). —Wild life is unusually plentiful hereabouts this year. One motorist reported having to stop his automobile quickly to avoid striking a deer. A short time later he had to stop again to let a red fox cross the road.

Nazi "Bigwigs" Go Collecting Winter Relief Despite Boast Of No Unemployment

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—(AP).—The flower of the Nazi party's leadership to-day became a corps of volunteer coin rattlers on behalf of Germany's winter relief fund.

This is "the day of national solidarity" on which every German, rich or poor, is expected to make a sizeable contribution for Germany's needy, said still to exist aplenty despite the elimination of unemployment.

It will be the nation's first "Jewfree day" for, between noon and 1 p.m. when government and party leaders patrol the streets with their collection boxes, all non-Aryans must remain within their homes.

The order was founded on the Nazi viewpoint that Jews are not a part of the German state and, therefore, are not entitled to participate in the "solidarity" movement.

The coin collectors included cabinet members headed by Field Marshal Hermann Goering and Propaganda Minister Paul Goebbels, diplomats led by Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, party pillars such as Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, editor of Chancellor Hitler's Munich newspaper, and top ladies of the land such as Emmy Goering and Magda Goebbels.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, usually proves one of the best collectors on the day of national solidarity. He canvasses Berlin's leading bankers in advance and makes sure their big contributions drop into his coin box.

With the weather clear and warm, there was little doubt this year's collection—with Austria and Sudetenland included—would far exceed last year's total of nearly 8,000,000 marks (about $3,200,000).

Cadi Proposes Ending All Direct Relief

OSHAWA, Ont., Dec. 3.—(CP).—Magistrate Robert Forsythe, Toronto, president of the Ontario Property Owners' Association, told the Oshawa Property Owners' Association last night that "all direct relief should be abolished; it is undermining the morals of the people of Canada."

He termed public relief subsidized idleness" and contended it was causing a big increase in crime. He said that unless relief was abolished, crime would continue to increase.

"I am willing to admit the country owes every man a living but I deny most strongly that it owed a living to those who are able to work but will not do so," he said.

Teachers Fill Lonely Posts

EDINBURGH, Dec. 3 (CP).—Two women in the Hebrides have the loneliest teaching posts in Britain. Miss Dolly Smith has recently taken up a post at Ardveg in Lewis, 18 miles across trackless moors from the nearest road and five miles by sea from the nearest village. Her pupils are a shepherd's family. On the island of Heisker, Miss M. B. MacDonald of Lochmaddy, teaches five pupils, all MacDonalds.

Heisker is often cut off from the rest of the Hebrides for months by storms and radio-telephone from Monarch lighthouse is the only means of communication.

Martin Says Reds Out To Run Labor

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—(AP). — The House of Representatives committee on American activities heard testimony yesterday that Communists are actively seeking control of every part of the United Labor movement.

However, the witness, Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers, added that the number of Communists so engaged has been "over-emphasized."

He also took occasion to criticize the House committee as a "political tool in the hands of reactionary" interests. He had appeared before the committee only reluctantly, after being subpoenaed.

Communists, like Nazis and Fascists, try to place their men in key positions in labor unions, he said.

"They are active in the American Federation of Labor as well as any other labor organization," he asserted.

"Are they active in the C.I.O.?" representative Starnes (Democrat-Alabama) asked.

"They are," replied Martin, whose union is affiliated with the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

He said he had told John L. Lewis, C.I.O. president, that some C.I.O. leaders were "nothing but stooges for the Communist party." Those men, he added, have been "removed."

Waiting For Gum

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 3—(AP).—Down went the lever on the little red box on the street corner. Six fire engines roared up. No fire. Perched on a toy wagon and holding their hands up toward the alarm box were Don Syfestad, three and Peggy Berg, two.

"What are you kids up to?" demanded an angry fire chief.

"Waitin' for our chewin' dum," replied the surprised youngsters.

A Handy Fire

ST. PAUL, Dec. 3—(AP).—The front end of a St. Paul fire department hook-and-ladder truck arrived at the scene of an alarm before the rear end was out of the fire station. The record "run" was made to a warehouse across the street. A leak in the sprinkler system caused the alarm.

REVELSTOKE, B.C. — (CP). — Suggestion by Frank Allwood, president of the Revelstoke Board of Trade, the King and Queen be invited to dedicate the Big Bend highway when they visit Canada next year is gaining popular approval here. It is likely an invitation will be extended their majesties.

Robust Health For Young People

What a common sight it is to see a young person whose bloodless face and feeble frame are evidence of poor circulation and weakness where bounding health and rosy cheeks should reign.

Young people in such a condition are generally of an anæmic nature and require a preparation containing iron to help improve the blood content.

Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills meet this requirement, as they contain three concentrated forms of iron of an easily assimilated nature together with other valuable ingredients indicated for building up the system strengthening the nerves, and adding to your physical attraction.

New Havelock Trustee, Mrs. Price Takes Her Place On Board

HAVELOCK, Dec. 3.—The Havelock Public School Board met on Thursday evening in the school for their regular December meeting with Chairman Bernard Smith presiding and Trustees Mrs. Brisbin, Mrs. Nobes and George Iles present. Mrs. C. Price, appointed at the previous meeting to fill a vacancy on the Board, presented her declaration of office and took her seat as trustee.

Principal W. Duncan reported that the highest attendance last month was 199, with an average of 178.2. Prizes for the public school field day winners amounted to $8.45, leaving a balance from the original grant of $10 by the Board.

The caretaker reported that the grates had arrived for the furnace.

Concerning the purchase of a British Empire and Canadian Encyclopedia and World Book, the Board decided to leave this matter over for another year, on motion of Trustees Brisbin and Price.

The members of the Board accepted an invitation from the Home and School Association to attend their next meeting, to be held on Tuesday evening, December 6, when a piano which the association have purchased will be formally presented to the school.

The secretary was instructed on motion of Trustees Nobes and Brisbin to report the matter of an injury to one of the school pupils, to the Employers' Insurance Company, and to act in the future on information from the principals.

The secretary was also instructed to inform insurance companies of the improvement in the school's classification, due to the new standard roofing, and to recognize this by a reduction in their rates.

The November accounts were passed and ordered paid on motion of Trustees Brisbin and Nobes.

The meeting was adjourned to meet again on the first Wednesday in January.

Shack Dweller 68 Feared Drowned

STINSON, Ont., Dec. 3—(CP).—Provincial police said to-day they believed that Ernest Eggert, 68-year-old shack dweller, had drowned while attempting to cros sthe Wahnapitae River with a hand sled. A faint set of footprints and the trail of a sled leading off treacherous ice into open waters of the river supports the belief. Stinson is about seven miles east of Sudbury.

Last seen Saturday, Eggert, who lives on the north shore of the river three miles east of Stinson power dam, was reported missing yesterday. An attempt by Constable Len Evans, Sudbury, and Trapper Jack LeBlanc to reach Eggert's cabin was blocked by unsafe ice. A further attempt will be made to-day.

LeBlanc saw a sled floating in the river Tuesday. Next day he went to a government sand pit near Stinson and told a man named Jervais of the incident. Jervais said he had loaned a sled to Eggert the previous Saturday and had watched the river dweller start his trudge up the river on the ice.

LeBlanc retraced his steps, picked up the faint trail and followed it until it disappeared into open water. He found Eggert's cabin deserted. LeBlanc then travelled to Sudbury and informed police.

McGill Beauty Queen Vote Ties Hitler, Il Duce And Garbo

Montreal, Dec. 3 (CP).

THERE will be no beauty queen crowned at McGill University's junior prom tonight.

Students laughed the idea off the campus.

A prom committee started a mock contest by way of publicity, and the opinion spread it was supposed to be the real thing. But everything was straightened up when the ballot boxes were opened last night.

Official figures were not available, but Hitler and Mussolini vied with Greta Garbo and Mae West for first place. One faculty voted unanimously for a male campus celebrity, and quite a few professors received honorable mention.

Quinlan had only arrived at the house the previous afternoon and getting up in the night, opened the wrong door and toppled down a flight of stairs. Despite his ripe old age the injured man stood the shock of the accident remarkably well and had a lucky escape from more serious injuries.

Johnstown, Pa., Dec. 3 (AP)

BUTCHERS here were "beefing" today about venison. One butcher estimated 10,000 Johnstown families were supplied with venison because of the open season on antlerless deer. He said his trade had fallen off 75 per cent. Game wardens said Johnstown residents had killed approximately 1,000 deer during the first five days of the season.

456,250 Ding-Dong Out Of Town Bell At Paris In 10 Years Is Claim Of Girl Ringer

PARIS, Ont., Dec. 3—(CP).—Pretty Olive Robb is in a class by herself when it comes to ringing bells.

For the past 10 years, since she was 13, Miss Robb has been ringing the town bell of this centre near Brantford five times a day. Mayor Allan Scott says she is probably Canada's only female bell-ringer.

Olive considers her work an art and, she admitted yesterday, she never lets her beaux interfere with her bell. She sees to that. If she does miss once or twice a year her brother Bill takes over.

"There's a rhythm to it and you must catch that rhythm to ring the bell properly," she explained. "I'll bet anyone who has not rung a bell before cannot ring it right the first half-dozen times. He'll get a ding where he should have a dong."

Olive is paid $120 a year for her work and besides helps her father run his hotel and service station. She estimates she has rung the bell for about 456,250 dings and dongs since she started.

Millbrook Fair Board Honors Director Of Nearly 60 Years

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 3.—A pleasant surprise was prepared for Thomas Donaldson, oldest member of the Millbrook Agricultural Society, on Thursday evening, when over thirty of the directors and directresses motored to his hospitable farm homestead, on the corner of the country road and Provincial Highway number 28, to spend a social evening, and to show their appreciation of his fine services.

The first part of the evening was spent in playing cards, Mr. Donaldson, who will be eighty-nine next May, and who is in excellent health and in practically full possession of all his faculties, enjoying the euchre as much as anyone.

An Ex-President

About eleven o'clock ex-Warden Percy Stinson took the chair, and in the course of his address mentioned the fact that Mr. Donaldson has been for nearly sixty years connected with the Millbrook Agricultural Society, active in its interests, at one time capably filling the president's chair, his presence at the directors' meetings always appreciated, and his advice followed.

The senior member of the society, next to the guest of honor, Mr. George Fair, and a past president, then presented Mr. Donaldson with the Agriculture Service Diploma. Mr. I. W. Larmer, the president, explaining that the diploma is provided by the Association of Fall Fairs is from the Agricultural Department at Toronto, and is awarded to the member who has rendered the most outstanding service, not only to the local Agricultural Society, but also to the community at large.

The recipient was greatly taken by surprise with the presentation, this being the initial time that such a diploma has been presented in connection with the Millbrook organization, and made suitable reply, after which all sang "For he's a jolly good fellow."

Lunch Served

The ladies assisted Miss Evelyn Donaldson with the service of a dainty lunch, and later the several carloads of guests left for home. Annually for the past two or three years the Millbrook Agricultural Society has made this 'pilgrimage' to the Donaldson home to do honor to the senior member of the directors' board, the special object in view this year adding much to the enjoyment of the evening.

Canadian Legion Notes

As the Legion carnival has been fixed for Monday, December 19, the regular monthly meeting that was due on that date has been put forward to Wednesday, December 14. There will be a short business session, after which the draw for the Christmas poultry will take place. There will be turkeys, geese and chickens put up and an entertainment will be provided. The affair will be open to any ex-service man of the district.

All members who have carnival tickets for sale are asked to report on the sale of tickets and put in the stubs and cash they have received to date. That gloomy look on the faces around the fire hall these days is the result of last Tuesday's clash between the P.F.D. No. 14 and Legion No. 10, when the Legion rooster came away with his crest held high and a loud crow of victory. Two weeks ago No. 14 came to the Legion and trimmed No. 12, but as the latter are only young cockerels with their pin feathers still intact that result was not unexpected.

Will the contenders in the billiard tournament meet together at the hall on Monday night at 8 p.m.

The tickets for the carnival and draw are going very fast and indications are that it will be a very successful event and all the members should make it a point to attend and see what kind of affair the Legion can put up when they really try.

The Legion has been successful in all its endeavors the last few months and it owes a deep debt of gratitude not only to the ex-service men but also to the citizens generally.

5 Nations' Experts Study Refugees

LONDON, Dec. 3—(AP). — Five statesmen, representing Great Britain, the United States, France, the Netherlands and Brazil, to-day tackled the gigantic problem of finding sanctuary for an estimated 5,000,000 European refugees, seeking new homes.

Informed sources said the group would seek to arrange modification of Germany's "flight tax" rule which strips Jews of almost all they own as they leave Germany, thus tending to make them public charges on the countries allowing them to enter.

With that barrier removed, the statesmen, who form the "inner committee" of the intergovernmental board formed at Evian-les-Bains, France, last summer, expected better reaction from South American and British Empire countries to the committee's efforts.

The chairman of the committee, Earl Winterton, and the permanent executive director, George Rublee, of the United States, submitted reports on the work they have done since the committee was formed.

Meanwhile, the first 200 German Jewish children reached English shores this morning when the steamer Prague docked at Harwich. The children were from Berlin and Hamburg.

Some children from a Berlin orphanage were among the group. Their orphanage was burned during the Nazi outburst following the assassination of Ernest Vom Rath, secretary of the German Legation in Paris.

A Taxi Pup

ELGIN, Ill., Dec. 3—(AP).—Pug, an English bulldog, has a taxicab ride almost daily, given by his owner's friends who find pug wandering far from his home. But Pug's master, Dr. Knute Hanson, said this was not only extremely annoying, but expensive. "He's only pretending anyway," Hanson said. "He knows the way home but doesn't want to walk. He's daffy about riding in taxicabs."

ANOTHER NUISANCE.

Storekeepers have on several occasions discovered that clerks have accepted slugs from pin games as cash during the course of the day's business and to-day the slugs were named by another man as a further nuisance. It was learned that many people perhaps without intent to defraud had been slipping the slugs into pay telephones believing they had used five cent pieces.

Biblical Thoughts For the Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James

THE GOSPEL OF ST. JOHN

IN THE BEGINNING was the WORD, and the WORD was with GOD, and the WORD was GOD.—St. John 1:1.

The Epistles were written for the first generation of Christians who were nourished by the oral teaching of men who had either known the Christ in the days of His flesh, or had been taught by the Apostles. Moreover, the Apostolic Church was expecting the near and immediate coming of the Lord, as we know from the first Epistle to the Thessalonians. The Gospels were written for the second generation of Christians, who desired to read and know something of the personality of the Lord Jesus. About 90 A.D. the desire arose for a Gospel which would make its appeal to all men, to be an universal, Catholic Gospel. The task fell upon St. John the Divine, the son of Zebedee. The primitive church called him "The leaner on the Breast."

This Gospel is in such simple language that the child could read it. Multitudes of plain, everyday people have read and re-read the fourteenth of St. John. Their hearts have been warmed, their drab, hard lives have been brightened by the words: "In my Father's house are many mansions . I go to prepare a place for you. I will come again and receive you (my little sheep) unto myself; that where I am there ye may be also."

On the other hand, this Gospel is so deep and sublime that the greatest scholars of the ages feel that they can only touch the fringe of its meaning. Bishop Westcott, one of the greatest scholars of the nineteenth century, brought his wide, mature scholarship and deep spiritual insight to the study of this book and has left treasures for many generations of students. Yet he reminds us that the only true commentator will be some eastern Christian scholar, with the inheritance of generations of mystic insight, which will enable him to interpret rightly this Gospel for western people.

It was the modernistic Gospel for the close of the first century when the Church was making its appeal to the thoughtful Greek and Roman, trained in the philosophy of Plato ,or had studied at Alexandria, the intellectual centre for both Jew and Gentile. Greek philosophy was to be the school master for Christianity in the western world as the law was for the Jew. Note the opening words: "In the beginning was the Word." These fourteen verses contain depths of thoughts for every generation of thinkers.

It is the most sacramental Gospel. It contains teaching for those who have the eyes to see. The water turned into wine symbolizes that the Lord Jesus came to change our human nature into the Divine—that through His indwelling Word the mysterious change may take place.

This Gospel gives the seven names Our Lord applies to Himself: "The Good Shepherd"; "The Door"; "The Bread Of Life"; "The Vine"; "The Light Of the World"; "The Way, the Truth and the Life"; "The Resurrection and the Life." As you meditate upon these simple words you get a vision of the personality of the Lord.

In the day of sorrow you may read the story of the raising of Lazarus. Your heart may be stirred as your eyes fall upon the words: "The Teacher is come and calleth for thee." Te, "the Ma nor sorrows and acquainted with grief," is drawing near to reveal something you could not otherwise learn. "Come unto Me," he whispers. Like Mary you fall at His feet and He comforts you even as a mother comforteth her son. Then with deeper insight you will read the words: "When the morning was come Jesus stood on the shore" to welcome your beloved and yourself when your work is done.

"TAKE this book and eat it. And I did eat it and it was in my mouth as honey for sweetness."
—Rev. Edward R. James.

A National Message

A Lost Document Found—2.

The question is: "Where is the bill of your mother's divorcement, whom I have put away?"

Let us search for this legal document, the finding of which is far more vital to the peace and welfare of the world to-day than is the Treaty of Versailles, the Locarno Pact, or any other modern instrument.

The first question which arises, preparatory to the search is: "Who are the parties to the 'bill of divorcement'?"

We shall proceed in our inquiry from the general to the particular.

Who are usually the parties to a legal bill of divorcement?

Secondly, the unfaithful wife.

Thirdly, the unfortunate children.

The above question is in the form of a dialogue between the husband and father, and the daughter of Him and the divorced wife and mother.

Who are these parties?

He who speaks in the first person, "I," is Jehovah, the Husband of Israel. "Thy maker is thine husband."

The person to whom he speaks in the second person—"You" and "Your" — is Israel-in-the-Isles: A nation which is the daughter of the "mother" nation, Israel-in-Palestine.

The divorced wife, whom He speaks of as "your mother," is Israel-in-Palestine; the ten-tribed nation.

Here we have the parties to the Bill of Divorcement: 1, Jehovah, the God, King, Husband of Israel; 2, the daughter, Israel in the Isles; 3, the mother, Israel in her divorced and cast-off position.

Cathedral Musings

In the realm of knowledge it has been said that we are as little children on the sea-shore, gathering up a few grains of sand of the countless myriads around us. In the realm of truth, much the same thing obtains. Some people worship this, some that, according to the fragment of truth which they apprehend. The great danger is that too often we assume that a few grains of knowledge, the partial aspect of truth which we perceive, is all-knowledge, all-truth. In our Bible, as in all the bibles of the world, we see a progressive revelation of the idea of God, culminating in the teachings of Jesus. Hence the earlier parts are chiefly valuable in that they are preparatory to the better understanding of His doctrine. To say that the earliner conception of God is as true for us as it was true for the Israelites in their day, is as true as the picture of the All Father that Jesus gave us, is an assumption without basis. An assumption, moreover, that has done much to rob his message of force. Every great teacher has suffered most from his commentators and the Master is no exception, for the tendency is to place undue emphasis upon them and neglect the fountain head. For it cannot be gainsaid that the mixture of paganism, Judaism and Christianity which we loosely term our religion, while at points it contacts the teachings of Jesus, yet in much is diametrically opposed to truth and simplicity of His message. We are too narrow. We fail to see the whole because we are obsessed with the parts. It is not to be imagined that the revelation of God has been confined to one little section of humanity alone, among the teeming millions of earth, for He has spoken to all people, at all times. It is not to be imagined ether that the fold of the Christian church is the only one, for "other sheep have I, but not of this fold." Hence, we should walk in humility and be slow to condemn or judge others because their beliefs are other than ours. Rather should we seek to help them find the truth that is the basis of their faith, so that in turn, they may see the truth that is the basis of ours. And beyond that, we should seek to live up to and apprehend more fully that measure of truth which we possess. If we do not, then it is inevitable that we will lose that portion which we think we have. It is our assumption that we possess all-truth which breeds intolerance and hatred, to say nothing of spiritual pride. Jesus did not condemn others of matters of pure belief, but He did condemn those smug self-satisfied people who boasted of their righteousness and sure that they, themselves, were acceptable to God, were devoid of all sympathy and love and who had a callous disregard of others, that, even as in His time, characterises much of our present-day relationships. Of all His disciples, it is well to remember that His favourite was he who said, "Little children, love one another."

The Golden Text

Psalm 51:6—"Behold, thou desirest truth in the inward parts."

The Human Side of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

In the worst of the madness and chaos of the World War, the Red Cross functioned. And in its smoking aftermath this world order of pity and healing fought disease, and clothed, fed and house wretched and despairing multitudes in Central Europe and the Near East. It has been and is an arcanum of civilization, a repository of whatever is humane and chivalrous in the heart of a war-torn world.

Could it function again, if there were another world war? Consider what is happening in Czechoslovakia whose distress is not even a curtain raiser to the horror of a large-scale war. In the Zatec region, hundreds of Jewish people, including women and children are starving in ditches in the fields, desperate from cold and hunger. Ample food and clothing is rushed to the area by the British but it cannot reach them. And now, twenty years after we won the war to end war and to make the world safe for democracy, ponder this line of cold type under a Praha dateline:

No War

There has been no war there; no blasted countryside, no cruel devastation. The men, women, and children dying in the ditches are the victims of merely peacetime hatred and stupidity. If this is peace, the peace of Munich, what cruel exactions of war could surpass it in its long hail down the old back road to utter barbarism?

One can get this into no sequence of reason or sanity, no matter how much he thinks about it. Here in Canada we know kindly and intelligent Czechs and Germans who would be as humane as any of us in assuaging misery or lifting the fallen. There are long centuries of Christian culture behind the authorities who gave orders to withhold food and water from these desperate people. Can we believe that civilization does move forward through the centuries, that there is a life pattern of order and progress?

Our mind is a new instrument which we got only yesterday and its governance of our emotions which we brought with us from the primaeval deeps of life gives, as yet only feeble guidance. Criminologists now asses much crime against emotional rather than mental disturbance. In periods of great emotional stress, such as Europe has suffered in the last 25 years, history records innumerable deeds of cold, stupid, sadistic brutality committed by rational, and, in their personal relations, kindly men who were good husbands and fathers and neighbors. Cyclonic mass emotion plus congenial stupidit, wrecked more civilization than all the hurricanes, floods and all other elemental disasters put together.

Canada Should Think.

This country is in a better spot to do some bedrock thinking about what's the matter with the world, than is any other nation. What is perhaps more important, it is free and footloose to do some Grade A thinking about its own status and its own outlook. Free, amateur, offhand thinking is pretty much out of season pretty nearly everywhere else in the world. The universities have been strangled. In the authoritarian countries free press, free assemblage, free speech and suffrage are sunk without trace. In those in the twilight zone of resurgent feudalism, censorship already is snuffing out the light.

We still have light—plenty of it. We are one of the few countries in the world in which the people may read and understand the history-making events of their day. A handful of Canadian correspondents in Europe are doing a job of keen, honest, faithful reporting which will long shine in the annals of their craft. Nothing like it is happening anywhere else, and it is to a degree unprecedented here.

Play kibitizer on a ferry boat or train, as I have done occasionally, and you will agree that we are beginning to think. It is our free press which is giving us this salutary skull-massage. If we must reach for the old squirrel gun, just to be in the mood and mode of the day, let it be to defend our free press. It is bringing through in Canada an intelligent rearmament. We are beginning to think.

Heart Searching Questions Asked

Rev. E. W. Young will endeavor to deal with some questions asked by The Edmonton Presbytery of the United Church of Canada in his address in St. Andrew's Church next Sunday night.

These questions and many others like them are bound in a document which has gone out to ministers throughout the Dominion, and a copy of which has been sent to every member of the Peterborough Presbytery, and will be discussed at its next meeting. The paper is entitled, "The Day of Evangelism," and its chief merit is not its solutions, but its questions. They go right to the roots of Christianity and should make every member of the church thoughtful and earnest. They are disturbing questions, but the church should not avoid them on that account.

Here are a few of them:

Are we winning men to God in the sense that they become dynamic Christian forces?

What is the reason for the great loss of young people in the teen age?

Are our Sunday schools effective agencies of evangelism?

Are Christian parents evangelical in their homes? Do they covet for their children a vital Christian experience?

To what extent are we bringing the good news of God to the unemployed criminal and delinquent classes?

Do the preachers expect decision for Christ at the regular services of the church?

ABERHART IS IN TORONTO.

TORONTO. — Premier Aberhart of Alberta, in Toronto after talking in Ottawa with Dominion Government officials on a plan of debt-refunding, said to-day he was in the city to "see about a number of business matters."

The Premier said he expected to return to Edmonton about "the middle of next week."

THE SIN OF LYING

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Dec. 4 is Exodus 20:16; 2 Kings 5:20-27; Proverbs 6: 16-19; Matthew 15: 19, 20; John 8: 42-47; Ephesians 4:25; Revelation 22: 14, 15, the Golden Text being Psalm 5: 6, "Behold, thou desirest truth in the inward parts.")

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

THE NINTH commandment, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor," is the basis of to-day's lesson.

You must not tell lies about your neighbor, which means those with whom you come in contact. That is what the commandment means.

The lesson gives some interesting stories about men and women of olden times who told lies, and were fearfully punished for them.

For instance, it tells about Gehazi, servant of the prophet Elisha. Naaman was a great and rich man in those days, but he had a dreadful disease called leprosy for which there was no cure. He went to the king of Israel and asked him to cure him, but the king said in astonishment: "Am I God, to kill and to make alive, that this man doth send unto me to recover a man of leprosy?" And he sent him to Elisha.

Elisha worked a miracle and cured Naaman. Naaman wanted to heap money and riches of all sorts upon Elisha, but he refused all rewards. His servant, Gehazi, however, thought it a great pity that some one did not profit by this rich man's generosity, so secretly he ran after Naaman and told him his master had sent him to collect the reward. Then Naaman, not suspecting, insisted that Gehazi take as much again as he had asked. But when Gehazi went back to Elisha he knew at once what his servant had done, and asked him where he had been. Gehazi said he had not been anywhere, whereupon Elisha made him a leper for his sins.

Then there is the story of Ananias and his wife, Sapphira. Ananias sold a piece of land, and instead of turning the money over to the Apostle Peter, as he was supposed to do, he kept part of it. His wife knew of the deal, too. Now when Ananias gave Peter the money Peter asked him why he was keeping some of it back. "Thou has lied not unto men, but unto God," he said.

And Ananias, hearing these words fell down and died. Later his wife came to Peter, not knowing what had happened to her husband, and she repeated the lie, and she too died.

Of course, not all liars meet such prompt and severe punishment. Many go on lying and living, year after year. But they are as surely punished as if they were made lepers or died at once fo rtheir sins. At last no one believes anthing they say, and even when they want very much to be believed they are not. "He (or she) is such a liar, you can't believe a word he says," people say.

And besides, such a one is always tripping himself up. It is said that that a person must be very smart indeed to be a successful liar, for he must remember always what he has said, most often back his first lie up with another and still another, until he himself hardly knows what is the truth. Truly is it said that "honesty is the best policy."

There are, of course, such things as so-called "white lies." It makes an interesting discussion to argue for and against the use of these lies. Should they ever be told? The only possible excuse for telling them is when the truth might hurt someone.

Did you ever play the game where all sit in a circle, and one whispers some sentence to his next neighbor? The neighbor whispers it to one next to him, and so on around the circle The last person to have it told him repeats what he has heard, and it is astounding to see how constant repetition has distorted a simple sentence or fact. Without meaning to do more than repeat what is told one, the sentence is so changed that at the end it does not mean at all what it did in the beginning.

So gossip about an acquaintance grows into dangerous lies which may hurt him all his life. If you must take about people, be a "golden gossip," and tell only good things about them. Then it won't matter if they are exaggerated.

Looking Back On This Date

One hundred years ago this evening, on Dec. 3, 1838, the last attack upon Upper Canada by the Canadian political refugees and their United States filibuster allies was begun. The plan to raid Windsor had been long in preparation. All through the autumn recruits had been procured from the anti-British elements of the western States to join the Canadian "Patriot" refugees in one desperate attempt to dislodge "British tyranny" from its foothold in Canada. These joined the so-called Hunter's Lodges and came from Ohio, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Illinois and Rochester, N. Y., those from the latter being mostly former residents in Canada while the others were just filibusters eager to twist the tail of the British lion.

The expedition had its central rendezvous at Swan River, near the mouth of the Detroit. General Henry Handy, who had failed in the St. Clair raids, had been replaced as commander by L. V. Bierce, a lawyer of Akron, Ohio. In all, over 360 men gathered and were equipped for a winter campaign with clothing and, some of them only, with guns.

When plans were completed a march was made upon Detroit to board a steamboat which was to carry them across the river, but the boat failed to appear, so they went back to their camp. When they returned the next night, Bierce said he was ready, but the boat was not, whereupon there were protestations and evidence of cowardice among some. Bierce contented himself with bombastic addresses and proclamations. Angered at such tactics two companies left the camp, and somebody among them sent word across the river to warn the British of the planned raid, but the warning was not taken seriously.

Finally Bierce got up his courage and on the evening of Dec. 3 the men marched through Detroit without interference and captured the steamer Champlain as she lay in the harbour. Locking the crew in their quarters the pirates (for that was all they were then) manned the vessel and passed the word to other patriots at hotels and boarding houses. At 2 a.m. the Champlain crossed the river amid floating ice and landed 135 men at the Pelitte farm, about three miles above Windsor. Ordering the crew to move her out into the river, Bierce said to his followers:

"We have no back doors, boys. We must conquer or die"

And so began the historic raid on Windsor, the story of which will be told on Monday.

CLEANING HAZARD

The Sin of Lying — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buschbaum

Scripture—Exodus 20:16; II Kings 5:20-27; Proverbs 6:16-19; Matthew 15:19, 20; John 8:42-47; Ephesians 4:25; Revelations 22:14, 15.

Jesus said: "Wherefore, putting away lying, speak every man truth with his neighbor; for we are members one of another."

The prophet Elisha refused reward for curing Naaman's leprosy. His servant, Gehazi, secretly followed Naaman and asked for money and clothes.

When Elisha found out what Gehazi had done he was angry, and punished him for his deception by inflicting him with leprosy.

Anannias sold property and lied about the price he received. The lie caused his death.

Our Bylaw Is Wrong

The Examiner has previously stated its objections to the existing bylaw which forbids the blowing of a locomotive whistle inside the city limits and the ringing of a train bell until within 75 feet of a crossing. It is not suggested that there should be unlimited blowing of whistles, but rather that provision should be made by amending the bylaw to give the driver of a locomotive liberty to use the whistle when he feels it should be used as a warning. To pass a bylaw saying he shall not blow his whistle even if danger exists means that the city has taken over the responsibility for what may happen if no warning is given, and that is the very thing the city should avoid.

Unfortunately our city is badly cut up with railway lines. They cross it from east to west and from north to south, and that is significant of the existence of the time when cities and towns were so anxious for more railway facilities that it was possible for the roads to build according to their own desires and without much regard for the future development of the community or the elimination of level crossings.

A study of the level crossings in Peterborough city limits shows we have 57 of them.

Starting with the Lakefield line of the C.N.R. at it enters the city from the north there are level crossings at: Water Street, Hilliard and George, Argyle Street, Barnardo Avenue, Park Hill Road, Antrim, Edinburgh, Dublin, London, McDonnel, and Murray, and about that point the Lakefield line joins with the one from Lindsay to Port Hope.

The C.N.R. line to the Auburn Mills has crossings at Park Hill Road, Douro, Hunter and Robinson Streets.

We have wig-wags at some half-dozen of the most frequently used crossings, but otherwise we have no protection, and yet as a city we are saying that a locomotive engineer, even if he sees danger and realizes a warning should be given, must not sound his whistle inside the city limits. This paper does not advocate allowing all manner of whistling, but submits rather that the onus for safe driving of a locomotive over so many open crossings should be placed on the railway company and not voluntarily accepted as at present by the municipality.

He Urges "Blasting"

The Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial Relations is hearing more evidence at Ottawa and that is what caused the appearance of Prof. Jacob Viner of the University of Chicago. He was discussing the case of the Canadian West as a wheat country and was of the opinion that unless Canada "blasts a place for Western wheat in world markets" there is not much future for the West. That area, denied greater markets, would not be able to support the existing population on a Canadian standard of living.

The situation has been developing slowly but surely. In the last eight or ten years the world demand for wheat has decreased from 760,000,000 bushels to about 540,000,000 bushels. Prof. Viner holds that subsidies such as a set price for wheat is an alternative, but it is not a solution, and he contends this country has not the resources to keep on paying such subsidy. We are paying a subsidy on wheat, we are subsidizing a railway, we are subsidizing the production of coal and so on. We are not a wealthy people and we carry enormous federal, provincial and municipal debts apart from personal obligations and mortgages.

The suggestion of "blasting" our way into wider markets is one which we do not care for. The markets on which we operated by the blasting process would be in possession of people who would know exactly what we were trying to do and they might well be inclined to try something of the same sort in their dealings with us. Trade agreements must be mutually beneficial and satisfactory if they are going to be permanently of any use for us.

We believe the removal of the fear of war is a greater factor in solving the wheat problem than in any other way. Personal negotiations such as Premier Chamberlain proposes to conduct may be the means of causing European nations to see the folly of their present course of dread and continued additions to armament. It is plainly known it would pay Germany, France and Italy to buy large quantities of wheat from Canada rather than try to produce their own. We can grow better wheat and do it at less cost.

Meantime and until some such sensible feeling is abroad in Europe we can afford to think seriously before carrying out any plans for putting large additional population on the wheat growing areas. We are growing more grain now than we can profitably sell.

Should Tenants Vote?

A vote is to be taken at the coming municipal election in Peterborough to determine if the electorate desires its council to have authority to spend $30,000 for a suitable market site. It is stated that both property owners and tenants will be eligible to vote on such a question. It does not commit the 1939 council or any other council to immediately proceed with the completion of the transaction. For the moment it is an expression of opinion.

Apart from the main question there is apt to be some discussion on having tenants vote on a bylaw which may ultimately mean the expenditure of money. It is an old question which has been much discussed in communities where the problem has arisen. The claim is made that a tenant, although being the person who through his payment of rental makes the payment of taxes possible, is not actually the responsible party when it comes to making a capital outlay. It is the property itself, and not the tenant living in it against which the obligation rests. The tenant may be here now and in six months he may be elsewhere.

The tenant does not actually possess a property stake in the community. He is a useful individual particularly if he pays his rent promptly and in full, but when he votes on something which is the equivalent of a money bylaw he is expressing an opinion on something which the property owners should decide. There is a nice point involved which might well enough be discussed and considered before the vote is taken.

They Trusted Strangers

Chatham police have been looking for two men who sold advertising space to merchants. The plan was to get out some sort of a scheme in which merchants could advertise their wares. The space was sold and what's more it seems to have been paid for, but after that the gentleman who had bought the space waited in vain for the advertising sheet to appear. Then the police were notified and shortly after two arrests were made.

Strange how merchants will fall for a scheme of that kind. In Chatham there is a good daily newspaper. The News of that city lives up to all the traditions of a good daily paper, and the people there invite it to come to their homes each day by paying for it. That shows well enough they want it and are waiting to read it. If the merchants place their business there they know they are not taking any chances.

But they were ready to trust their publicity to two strangers about whom they evidently knew little or nothing at all. They would not appreciate having salesmen going from door to door taking business which should go to the stores, but they considered it all right for salesmen to call on them for advertising which in the ordinary course of events should have gone to the newspaper. Of course we hope the Chatham merchants can get their money back, but coupled with that is the added hope that if they have to take a loss they learn the lesson that their home newspaper is to be trusted to give them full value for their money.

A Farmer's Life

Police have been busy in Western Ontario points trying to find raiders who have been stealing turkeys. From a dozen to eighteen well-finished birds have been taken at several places, and although there are markings on them police have not been able to find a trace. The marks are tatooed on the birds and could easily be seen.

One farmer from that same section was talking with an Examiner representative about two weeks ago, and he had 78 turkeys which he was getting in shape for the Christmas market, and he said he would be glad enough when they were off the premises and he had secured his money.

Why? His own story was just this:

"I can't afford to take any chances with those birds now because every one around here who is in this business knows his turkeys are not safe. One is apt to go out any morning and find the flock has been raided. I feed them in part of the stable under the barn late afternoon and then house them there for the night. I have fixed up a cot with plenty of covers out there and the hired man and I take turns sleeping there and the dog is also right on the job at the same spot. The fellows who go out raiding for chickens and turkeys now are at it in a big way and they work with trucks and all necessary equipment, and they know how to do it without creating much noise. I admit it is not a pleasant way to live, working all day and then trying to keep watch at night to see that your stuff is not stolen but there's no other way I know of. I can trust my neighbors with anything I have but we do not know where the raiders come from, although we suspect most of them are from the cities and they seem to know where they can go and sell branded turkeys without fear of detection."

Nice way to live, isn't is? The farmer has to take almost every known risk in existence now with weather and markets, and on top of that a number of them find they also have to deal with the hazard of raiding parties.

Irene Got The Cheque

Irene Brown of Aleda, Ill., is 14 years old, but she made and looked after an entry at the Chicago Livestock Exposition. Irene was not dabbling with any of the lesser classes. Not for a minute, but she exhibited a full-grown Aberdeen-Angus steer which weighed 1,130 pounds. The Angus breed is not highly developed in our district, but the steer, "Mercer" by name, was good enough to come out tops at Chicago.

At the sale concluding the exposition, this steer brought a price of $3.35 per pound, or a total of $3,785.50, which was the highest price since 1929. Irene may spend a little of her earnings but most of it is going to be put away until the young lady is ready to go to college.

But there is more to the story than that, and so strange it is not easy to believe. Irene Brown, aged 14, explains that "Mercer," the Aberdeen-Angus steer, was purchased in January for $60. It may be there was a more experienced mind than Irene's attending to that purchase and also to the finishing of the animal. Yet when the selling took place Irene got the cheque and it was more than sixty times as great as the initial purchase price of "Mercer," the Aberdeen-Angus steer.

Not a Good Plan

The Ontario Government has washed its hands of enforcing the Liquor Control Act in Manitoulin Island in Georgian Bay. A recent court decision was to the effect that the Canada Temperance Act was in force in Manitoulin rather than the Liquor Control Act of Ontario. A woman had been convicted of keeping liquor for sale but made a successful appeal on the ground that the L.C.A. was not in force. Such enforcement of law as is to be made in Manitoulin Island will now be in the hands of Dominion officers.

All of which in the last analysis seems rather strange and none too good because it lacks uniformity. It sets up one standard for Manitoulin and another for the section of Algoma adjacent to it. A person can now do things in Manitoulin which would not be permitted under the Liquor Control Act of the province. At best it looks like a mighty poor arrangement.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Going to Florida to play hockey seems about in the same category as travelling to the Arctic to join a baseball league.

Toronto city council has been trying to find out how many police the city needs. Why don't they ask the crooks for their opinion?

Our police commission gave approval to the Santa Claus parade. As though any three men, though clothed with authority, could keep that fine old gentleman from entering!

New hockey stick of tubular steel is being made which weighs only nine ounces. The drawback is that it is necessary to hit a man nine or ten times with such a weapon to make sure he is out.

The C.N.R. applied unsuccessfully for the right to abandon a line from Simcoe to Port Rowan, the operation of which means a loss of $10,000 a year to the company. A little consecutive thinking on that point shows the people who are getting service there are not paying what it costs, and therefore people all over the country who get no service at all from the line will have to make up the deficit.

CRITIC

¶ John Critic often stops to talk, and mostly all he does is knock, he dropped in just last night; his church had bothered him a lot, for things aren't going like what they ought, and nothing there is right.

¶ The preacher's not so very good, he don't expound like how he should, he wanders as he talks; he doesn't seem to have much tact, and when he bumps into a fact, 'tis then he goes and balks.

¶ John says he runs around a lot, and never burrows deep in thought, he claims he's not profound; John says he'd sit there for an hour, if he was hearing words of power, and truth full-orbed and sound.

¶ Nor does he like the hymns they sing, can't follow them worth anything, he's glad when they are though; don't know just where they get the tune, can't get a better one too soon, John Critic hopes they do.

¶ The folks aren't very friendly there, there seems to be a stifled air, and they don't go and call; unless he felt he ought to go, John Critic told me plainly so, he'd never go at all.

¶ I never asked him what he'd done, to make his church a better one, what he put on the plate; he seemed to think he'd done his part, by making criticism start—and singing hymns of hate.

HIS INSPIRATION.

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

OTTAWA JOURNAL yields admiration to Col. George Drew for malediction in the grand manner during argument in the Bren gun enquiry, and is especially impressed by "that magnificent peroration" in which the contract was described as "conceived in sin, born in iniquity and cloaked in fraud." The fact is that the passage is but a variation upon a verse in the 51st Psalm: "Behold, I was shapen in iniquity; and in sin did my mother conceive me."

SUGGESTION

• A Good Time Was Had By All

(South African News Letter)

A TRIBAL FIGHT at a Zulu betrothal party, in which six men were killed, has resulted in 47 participants being sentenced to six months' hard labor for fighting.

The natives belonged to two families—the Mcunus and the Dhlaminis—which were enemies as the result of a clash some years ago.

The first day of the betrothal passed off quietly with the usual cooking and eating of an ox. According to tribal custom the head was left, until the second day, to be skinned, cooked and eaten only by the closest friends and relatives.

A headman, fearing trouble, ordered the Dhlaminis to sleep in their main kraal away from their rivals, but early in the morning the blowing of horns and whistles warned him that trouble was afoot. He saw a Dhlamini impi of armed men approach a Mcunu kraal and sit waiting. Meanwhile a Mcunu impi had appeared from behind a hill. After watching each other all day, the rival factions clashed in a maize field, and in a few minutes six men were killed and a number injured.

According to the evidence given in court, women egged the men on.

• How St. Thomas Cut Interest

ST. THOMAS a few years ago paid out in bank interest on loans something over $17,000 during the year. It was, of course, explains St. Thomas Times-Journal, during the years when tax collections were bad and the city, before it knew it, had a heavy adverse bank balance.

Luckily, the civic authorities realized the danger of permitting this sort of thing to continue and they began tackling the problem systematically. A determined drive to secure payment of tax arrears and collection of a higher percentage of current taxes bore fruit and the big bank indebtedness began to dwindle. At the end of last year it had fallen to $183,000, as against, $375,000 on December, 1933. Then the happy thought struck someone. (Premier Hepburn is said to have suggested it to Mayor Duckworth) of issuing short-term debentures for $100,000, and this, with the consent of the Provincial authorities, was done, the bonds being floated for two and four years at a net of less than two per cent and the proceeds set off against the bank account on which four and one-half per cent interest was being paid, a clear gain of over two and a half per cent.

Another sensible bit of financing was done when the $51,000 proceeds of debentures for the proposed nurses' home, sold earlier than necessary because of the present tendency of all interest rates to increase, was turned into the bank and set off against the loan account. That $51,000 was secured for three per cent and it replaces the bank loans drawing four and one-half per cent interest. The total saving in bank interest of these two transactions alone amounts to approximately $2,600 over a twelve-month period.

Still another method of attacking the bank interest problem has been evolved by St. Thomas. The $68,000 that the city had left over from the proceeds of the sale of the city gas works, after provision had been made to care for outstanding gas works debentures, has been employed as "working capital" for the city's current account. This makes it unnecessary for the city to borrow from the bank at times during the year when tax payments are not sufficient to meet expenditures. Incidentally, it may be said that the city cannot use this $68,000 for any purpose it desires, but instead of letting it lie in the bank drawing the ordinary rate of interest it is put to work to avoid the city's having to borrow at the four and one-half per cent rate.

A statement issued at the city hall points out that at the end of the present year there will be no loan account in the bank—not a dollar on which four and one-half per cent is being paid, a happy contrast to the conditions of those few short years ago.

JAPAN'S YOUTH GOING.

(The Argonaut)

VISITORS returning from the war zones in China assert that the China "incident" may cost Japan more than she can bear both in the way of money, materials and also—and much more important—in man power. It is evident, say these visitors, that Japan is using up the flower of its youth in the drive to conquer China, and that today it is seldom one sees in Japan any males between the ages of 18 and 25—they are all in military service, unless incapacitated. These Chinese leaders, on the contrary, are said to be using only the coolies as cannon fodder; the flower of China's trained youth is still in reserve and is being used to train the coolie hordes in the art of modern defense. Chiang Kai-shek asserts that when peace is finally attained (and he insists it will be on China's terms) China will still be strong in young man power while Japan will be a nation of cripples and old men. Without agreeing with Chiang Kai-shek in this opinion, it is easy to see that war's ravages must take deadly toll on the youth of Japan, as it is this class of soldier on whom has centered the intense technical training of the past few years.

THE WHOLE CHEESE!

(Detroit Free Press)

AT THE END of 1937 there were 2,184,000,000 people in the world, according to a League of Nations estimate.

And more than 2,000,000,000 of them lived outside the United States.

This fact, although interesting and important, will probably not make a dent in those Americans who are constantly talking and writing as if their opinions were "world opinions."

The greater part of the world's population is in Asia. China claims 450,000,000 people and India 350,000,000, while Japan and its possessions account for another 100,000,000. A considerable portion of the Soviet Union's 178,000,000 inhabitants also live in Asia.

The population of Europe, according to the League of Nations, amounts to 397,000,000, that of the United States to 130,000,000 and that of South America to 90,000,000.

The English-speaking peoples of the earth probably number less than 200,000,000, with the United States providing about 65 per cent of them.

What a thought-arresting fact!

THE COUNTRY PARSON.

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

THE TRUTH is that many of our country ministers, remembering how much is expected of them and also remembering what most of them have invested in the education required of them, are rather shabbily treated in the way of salary.

A great many of them undoubtedly could command a much larger income in some other calling, and if they looked upon their work only from the dollar-and-cents standpoint, they would not remain in it any longer than it would take them to land another and a better-paid job.

That they do remain is proof of their loyalty and devotion to the task to which they have consecrated themselves, and whatever talents they may possess, as it is also proof of their willingness to make personal sacrifices for the advancement of the Kingdom.

HAM AND EGGS.

(Calgary Herald)

THE RECENT CAMPAIGN in California in favor of the State paying out thirty dollars each Thursday to every citizen over fifty years old, was vigorous and extravagant, but when it ended there was a half million dollar fund unexpended. So potent was the lure of thirty dollars every week without any service in return that the nickels and dimes and even larger amounts from the gullible poured into the promoters' hands like a flood. The latter received far more than they could spend in a limited period on advertising, rallies, picnics and what not even though they allowed themselves generous remuneration for their service.

ONE KEEN amateur cameraman has been busy recently. I refer to Mr. Lloyd George, who has supervised the color-filming of the autumn foliage in his gardens at Churt. As many of the shrubs and trees were planted originally with an eye to their color value, he should get an effective picture.

Mr. Lloyd George has an impressive library of his own films, many of them in color. Holidays in Jamaica and the South of France have provided him with some of his subjects. Last spring he made a film of his orchards in blossom.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

AND Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people....

And when he had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power against unclean spirits to cast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness and all manner of disease... These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not....Behold, I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves: be therefore wise as serpents, and harmless as doves. But beware of men: for they will deliver you up to the councils, and they will scourge you in their synagogues; and ye shall be brought before governors and kings for my sake, for a testimony against them and the Gentiles....And ye shall be hated of all men for my sake: but he that endureth to the end shall be saved.—Matt. ix, 35; x, 5, 16-20, 22.

To The Editor

NOT TRANSIENT

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Would you please allow me a small space in your news column to fully explain an issue printed in your paper of the 30th day of Nov., 1938, in regards to the late William Hill. May I state that I see by the press that Mr. Wm. Griffith, reeve of Belmont, states that he contends that the Wm. Hill mentioned was a transient farmer, but I fully believe Mr. Griffith knows a lot better, as the Wm. Hill mentioned has lived in Belmont for the past 14 months, and has worked at several farmers' places which I can give account for.

May I state that the said late Wm. Hill was not a resident of the village of Havelock, but was a resident of the municipality of Belmont. Also I regret to take this attitude towards Mr. Griffith in order to show the public that Mr. Griffith did know the mentioned Wm. Hill personally.

SPEAKING OF EXPERIENCE

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

A magazine article advises against over-exercise. It was Chauncey Depew who said he got his exercise by "acting as pall-bearer for my friends who exercise."

Thousands Line City's Streets As Santa Claus Is Welcomed By Peterboro's Youth

"Boys and girls of Peterborough! I thank you very much for your reception tonight. I have the biggest stock of toys I have ever had for Christmas; better than ever. I know you will all hang up your stockings on Christmas Eve when I'll be back with you again."

With this glowing promise of things to come, Santa Claus, in his second annual pre-Yule visit under the auspices of the Peterborough Business Men's Association, gave to the hundreds of children who followed him in procession, like the spellbound youth of Hamelin crowding after the Pied Piper, his personal assurance at Victoria Park last night that their Christmas hopes are to be fulfilled.

Then, with a last friendly wave of his fur-gloved hand, he departed up the hill with a train of his attendants in the procession, and as mysteriously as he came, he was presently gone.

And another Santa Claus parade in Peterborough was dispersed, leaving only a happy memory of the merry old visitor who reigns for a time in the heart of youth, and casts upon everyone of us, perhaps with a little heart ache, the bright reflection of that realm of childhood from which we have been exiled forever.

The parade was a fine success in every particular except that chill east wind that breezed about the crowded streets. And its warmest approval was to be heard from the lips of children little more than babes, and to be seen in the ecstatic waving of their arms in salute to Santa Claus as he passed through the long lanes of people greeting his little friends with a beaming smile and all the polar raiment of the story books. You knew that the little girl in the dark red coat trimmed with white and a hood of the same materials, sitting atop an automobile on the west side of George street, north of Simcoe street, waving to the personification of the Santa Claus she hears about these days and evenings, was transported by his reality; or the little flaxen haired girl in blue talking raptly to her mother about him after he had passed by; and the little boy in a red snow suit in his father's arms, these were typical little subjects of old St. Nick, their loyalty deepened by the sight of him in their midst with his sleigh and reindeers.

And there was nostalgic beauty in the final scene at the Park, as the Santa Claus deer seemed to float up the steep Murray street hill to the Court House altitude, with the floodlit colors of red and white brightly accentuated against the dark backdrop of the night. It was a charming climax of illusion, momentarily softening the chill in the air.

It is impossible to distill the magic of such a Santa Claus parade and its fancies into cold words. To the children it is breath-taking and to their adults it is pure delight touched with a note of sadness. Sufficient for the Business Men's Association and their efforts of the last month or more, and for the parents of the hundreds of children in addition to the legion of older boys and girls, was the fact that the parade was a grand success in its music and color and comic effects.

The Order of the Parade

The composition of the procession was largely as follows: It was led by Ed Leonard in a jester clown costume, followed by Chief Gimblett in his red automobile and a Fire Department truck displaying toys that are being made at the firehall. The Lindsay Boys' Band was next, generous with their music and making a fine impression; a comedy policeman and prisoner and several other costumed characters.

The first float was Reg Turner's representation of an igloo, gleaming white with several girls in the picture and a youngster in a white fur parka and coat and what seemed to be coal dust on her face, something of a hybrid, conveying both ideas of "we keep you cool in summer and warm in winter" the slogan of the Sanitary Ice Supply. Next was a burlesque fire department of the days of the hand pump. Its chief rode in one of the old cabs that was once considered a smart turnout in the horse and buggy era.

The children were keenly interested in the Punch and Judy float from the Canadian General Electric Company. The Peterborough Ski Club were next, marching in uniforms. More fun for the little folks was provided by Canada Packers float, Mickey and Minnie Mouse and the Three Little Pigs. These were smart conceptions admirably presented.

The Bugle Band of the Prince of Wales Rangers did their part at almost full strength. Animals walking like men, a lion, dogs, cats, rabbit and so on, filled in a section of the parade. Then there was the additional float, a snow slope with the figure of a youth on a toboggan followed by Earl Moncrief's five ponies, one of them ridden by a boy, another hitched to a light four wheeled gig and the others led individually by boys.

Dick Raine's elaborate float, a winter scene, was especially attractive, and by contrast was Ross Hood's Ford of 1905 driven by two clowns and followed by one of the latest model off the assembly line, driven by Albert Juby with Chas. Saunders accompanying him.

Then came the Scott Coal and Lumber Company's float that might have been labelled "Ferdinand and the Bull" from the Disney film, but was actually a toreador scene, with two men in the role of a bull that took a lot of beating or mauling along the route. Next in line was the Prince of Wales Rangers' band who deserve special mention for their fine job as the main makers of music. Then a group of sailors in costume and finally the Santa Claus float, a beatiful layout, of which the substantial structure was contributed by the Peterborough Lumber Company. And on the Santa Claus float were two groups of girls who tossed out wrapped candies.

Dick Lush was the marshall of the parade, asisted by members of the Business Men's Association. The flood lights on the floats was a highly effective improvement provided by Johnson "chore boys," gasoline generators of electricity made in Peterborough at the factory of Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company.

Some of those who took part in the parade were Irene Hogan as Bunnie Rabbit, Thora Stalter as the bear, Marion Carroll, M. Dean and Audrey Keen as ladies, and Elsie Read as old lady.

Some of the men who assisted were: J. B. Elrick, Harry Emerson, Harry Dugan, Gord. Armstrong, S. Smith, Anthony Schiarizza, Joe Primeau, Jerry Hewie, Jack Marchen, Charlie Drummond, Fred Kiff, F. J. White, D. Grant, A. Levallee, L. Robinson, Bob Morton, Ed. MacGregor, Gord. Thompson, Arthur Brown, Tom Roberts, Gordon James, J. Beattie, Lawrence Johnson, Roland Rennie, A. Storey, R. Ducker, S. Kenwood, Jack Robinson, Harold Hoar, Jim Weyer, George Moncrief, Bob Storey, D. Mortimer, P. MacDonald, B. McEwen, Jim Foley, John Victor, Rube Brady.

At victoria Park, J. W. Watson, president of the Peterborough Business Men's Association, thanked the citizens for their co-operation in making the parade a big success. His appreciation was also extended to everyone who assisted in welcoming Santa Claus.

Toronto Pondering Draper Action

TORONTO, Dec. 3—(CP).—Mayor Ralph Day said today he will recommend to a meeting of the city's police commissioners this afternoon that an independent survey of the Toronto police force be undertaken. The meeting is being held to discuss the resignation of Police Chief D. C. Draper.

The Mayor and his colleagues on the Police Commission were silent as to whether the resignation would be accepted, or if the Chief would be asked to reconsider.

Meanwhile, all commissioners are understood to be in favor of the survey which would ascertain whether the 200-man addition to the police force, as recommended by Chief Draper, is necessary.

ROMANCE INC.

BY OREN ARNOLD

Read This First:

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, creates a furore on the campus of Rice Institude, in Texas, when she erects a sign in front of her cottage announcing "COUNSEL IN ROMANCE". Her plan is to help guide 100 student "members" in their social and love affairs for a small fee. Bob Towne, campus football hero, much attracted by Sara Sue, is the first to enroll. This enrages Peaches Pomeroy, a senior who regarded herself as "Bob's girl" the previous year. Worthington Gurley, unprepossessing freshman, provides another problem when it is evident he is interested in Sara Sue. The climax in her Cottage Plan occurs when sedate Dr. Thornton Holgate, new member of the faculty, begs Sara Sue to help him . . . then confides his love for Peaches Pomeroy. She does, and gives him his first lessons in "how to become more human". Then T. J. Sanders, a sports goods salesman, appears on the scene and seeks out Sara Sue to help him locate a pretty girl he had seen in the stands at a local football game. The girl, of course, is Sara Sue herself. Bob finds Sander's dog at Sara Sue's and begins to suspect he has a new rival. Sanders, much taken by Sara Sue, takes her to visit some dog kennels because she likes dogs, then makes other dates with her.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER 16

"MY GRACIOUS!"

Sara Sue Davis exclaimed it to herself. It was a note of exasperation. She wanted to kick herself, figuratively speaking; or even literally.

She sat alone in her office, just at bedtime. Before her was her note pad and her calendar. On the calendar she kept engagements, made little jottings which ordered the busy days and nights that had engulfed her of late. She sat barefooted, in her silken pyjamas and made wry faces at the calender. But that didn't seem to help.

It occurred to her that she had been a prize dupe.

Not that Mr. Sanders had done the slightest thing that could be criticized—no indeed. On the contrary, he had acted as the perfect escort, the charming gentleman. That was just the point—he was too charming. He had out-talked her. She simply had not realized that she had dates with him tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday until she sat down to make her calendar entries. That's when she said "my gracious" and wanted to kick herself.

"I wonder if I've got another man interested in me," she thought.

First had been Bob Towne, the campus hero. Then had come Worthington Gurley, the kid freshman. Each of them was nice. Each of them was obviously smitten. Sara Sue nursed no delusion about her good looks. She knew she was pretty. She took pride in that, and had spent many a long hour reminding herself never to act conceited about it. She knew she attracted men.

For four years, though, she had been in virtual retirement. She had lived with relatives for a while after her husband's death. And even after that she had permitted no men friends. She had tried to do charity work, and church work, and had taken some university correspondence courses, and had visited listance relatives, just floundering. But when she had opened her remarkable cottage beside the Rice campus, interest had flowed back to her, zest for living had returned and things were normal again. It had seemed natural for Bob Towne to take her out. It had even seemed natural for young Gurley to court her. And certainly this new T. J. Sanders had edged into her consciousness and companionship in a perfectly normal way. But goodness—!

Three dates! Never before had she granted any man that many. Not even her Larry, when they were first engaged. Oh, well!

Sara Sue rarely procrastinated, but decision on this she did put off until tomorrow. Sanders was nice enough. Harmless. She could handle him. She had business details to thresh out now.

For instance, Miss Lucille Wilkinson, Rice sophomore, had shown a serious interest in an impossible Houston boy. She came to Sara Sue for the advertised counsel in romance. Sara Sue had to be a mother confessor, although Lucille was but two years younger than she. She might even have to take a trip to visit Lucille's parents.

Then there was the Preston boy. A hearty, opened-faced lad from Henderson,Tex. The high school sweetheart he loved had gone to Texas U., and now his heart was breaking because she had found a new love in the other school. He just had to talk about it, just had to ask advice. And Sara Sue was paid to listen. It was Sara Sue's personal worry for a while. She liked Walter Preston. He was wholesome, clean. She wanted desperately to help him.

There were others, too, and they all required sympathy and tact. It was pleasant, interesting work, and it made Sara Sue feel more mature than she looked or acted. She was blessed with that knack of winning people's confidence easily; mainly because she showed character in her face, dependable character. Some faces are just pretty. Some are pretty and fine, and Sara Sue's was one of these. People trusted her.

Most pleasure of all, she had discovered, came from trying to remodel Dr. Thornton Holgate, the mathematics instructor. He was her best pupil, however incongruous that situation really was. She wanted very much to help him make good, and he was intelligent enough to be apt at learning. She noted on her calendar that she had an engagement with Dr. Holgate at 10 tomorrow morning. He could sandwich an hour's conference between classes, at a time of day when few if any of the students would be free to visit the Davis cottage. Her tutorship of him was still in strict confidence.

"I wonder," thought Sara Sue, tapping pretty teeth with her pencil, "if I could get Sanders to pal around some with Holgate. Thorny might absorb some social presence from him."

She made a note of that. If suave Mr. Sanders was going to outsmart her into three dates, then, doggone him, she would put him to use! She would make T. J. be friends with Thornton, or refuse to go with T. J.

That got her mind back to Sanders.

He was handsome enough, she realized. Come to think of it, he had been meticulously dressed this afternoon. Certainly more so than the day before. He was of pretty good build. Apparently he made money. He seemed to be interested in worthwhile things; such as art, and religion, and football. He had light gray eyes. And a quick, easy smile. He wasn't as blustery as Bob Towne, nor as intent and eager as young Gurley, but he was nice enough.

She reached for a box of chocolates—Bob had sent them—and put a cream in her mouth. Then she locked her fingers behind her curly red hair, put her right foot in her chair and sat on it in extreme comfort. A girl is about the only human being who can sit on one foot and be extremely comfortable, but Sara Sue gave no thought to that. She was analyzing her man.

Three men. One, the freshman, she discounted; he would be a well little brother for somebody. But not a sweetheart. That is, not a sweetheart for her. That reminds me, she thought. She leaned over to make a note; she would introduce Worthington to that sweet little thing who had come to Rice from Baton Rouge, a dark-eyed little girl who ought to make a good match for him, if he was so intent on being in love. Sara Sue smiled.

"I ought to be excited," She murmured. "I must be getting old."

She yawned, and ate some more candy. She ought to go to bed but she was enjoying an hour alone, thinking. Men. She had been extremely popular in high school. Larry Davis had taken her by storm. But that seemed like a casual dream now, receding in memory. And yet, neither Bob Towne nor T. J. Sanders had actually stirred her. She really ought to be thrilled at Bob's attention, she knew. Plenty of other girls would be. Some of the Rice co-eds would give their birthrights for a date with Bob, or even a dance with the handsome college hero. Sara sighed.

She went to bed and kept on thinking.

"Phooey!" she complained, and turned on the light.

She rummaged around and found a couple of magazines. One of them was nothing but photographs which seemed to be straining mightly to appear important. The other was The Rice Owl, the college comic. It had some clever spots, and some shady ones; she threw it in the waste basket. A few things in life Sara Sue Davis despised whole-heartedly; one of them was smutty jokes.

She browsed through the afternoon paper then, reading the headlines and the movie ads. One picture actor, she noted, wore horn-rimmed glasses. Just like Dr. Thornton Holgate!

She must have rested there half and hour, thinking about Dr. Thornton Holgate. When she turned off the light, she was still thinking about him.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

Knarf and Hanid, the shadow-children with the turned-about names, followed their master and mistress out into the street in front of the house. It was a pleasant afternoon.

But Knarf looked unhappy as he followed slowly behind the little boy he belonged to.

"What's the matter with you?" Hanid asked him. "You ought to look happy. The children are going to play all afternoon."

"It's no fun for us if they play," Knarf answered her. "It's just work for us."

"Why do you say that?"

Not Fun For Him.

"Well, just suppose they decide to play a game of tag. What do we do? We get dragged all over the sidewalk, this way and that. I don't call that fun."

"What's the matter with you?"

But Hanid smiled and said: "It really isn't as bad as that. We're shadows and we're used to doing things like that. Besides, if it makes the children happy, it ought to make us happy, too."

Knarf shook his head. "It doesn't make me happy one bit. I wish I weren't a shadow. I wish children didn't have to have shadows. I wish —I wish—"

But at this instant Hanid suddenly cried: "Knarf, just lok!"

But this time the two children and their shadows had gone around to the back of the house to the little shed where lots of the playthings were kept. Then the little boy—Knarf's master—had gone inside the shed and come out again the next moment with—what do you suppose A little wagon!

Play With Wagon.

"Do you see?" Hanid cried joyfully. "The children are going to play with their wagon this afternoon."

Knarf began to smile. "You mean —we won't have to run behind them as we usually do?"

"No. This afternoon we'll ride! Oh, I'm so happy!"

And Hanid was right. For the children pulled the little wagon after them. And sitting in the wagon, as proud as can be, were Knarf and Hanid, the two shadows.

It wasn't any trouble at all for the children to pull them.

But how the shadows did enjoy themselves that afternoon!

Isn't it curious how just one little thing can make you happy even when you are sure you're going to be sad?

Too Much Dazzle

DISNEY, Okla., Dec. 3—(AP).—Disney, Grand River dam boom town, plans a big New Year's eve celebration—and already has the cash. A literal peck of money was collected for presentation to the prettiest girl at Disney's first anniversary party. Came the girls—every one preened and primped her prettiest. All the men looked—once, twice, and thrice—and refused even to attempt to pick a winner. The peck of money, they voted, will pay for the New Year's party.

Mail Fraud Nips Financier's Wooing Of Movie Star Loretta Young

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—(AP). — A dapper young international financier's projected wooing of movie star Loretta Young was balked to-day by a mail fraud charge Federal officials served on him as he left the liner Queen Mary.

The prisoner, booked as William Buckner, 31, of New York, was accused of defrauding Philippine railroad bondholders of $100,000 by whirlwind intercontinental operations that included a chorus-girl lobbying party in Washington.

Airline employees were just picking up Buckner's baggage from the pier last night for a flight to Hollywood when William Maloney, United States Attorney, and several aides closed in on him.

Rifling through Buckner's luggage, Maloney grabbed a brief case and exclaimed: "This is what we want!"

Buckner was questioned along with a man booked as William Gillespie, 42, of Brooklyn, taken into custody earlier.

All a Mistake.

Buckner said the accusation was a mistake. He was allowed to telephone Miss Young in Hollywood to tell her he had been delayed.

Although Buckner said he was Miss Young's fiancee, the movie actress was quoted as saying he was just a casual acquaintance.

The arrests resulted from an investigation started last January by the Securities and Exchange Commission when defaulted bonds of the Philippine Railways Company suddenly jumped from $11 to $31 in the wake of a rumor they would be redeemed at 100 par. They plopped back to $14 in two days when the Philippine Government denied the report.

A complaint filed by Postal Inspector Charles Clarahan said Buckner organized a Bondholders' Protective Committee last year, got himself elected chairman, and, according to Maloney, got contributions from the bondholders on the promise that he would persuade the Philippine Government to redeem the bonds at $50.

Maloney said Buckner, figuring a "beauty lobby" in Washington would be a good way to put through the redemption, brought five girls from New York by plane to a hotel party there in August, 1937. Then, the complaint said, Buckner got $5,000 from two lawyers to finance a trip to Manila, whence there came presently a cable: "Deal closed for 65 per cent." which caused the bond price gyrations.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, December 4

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a decidedly interesting one, with promise of much activity after a period of depressed and static conditions These stirring affairs are concerned with writings, contracts or possible legal documents. A bereavement, loss or some other grief or difficulty also figures conspicuously Despite the confusion and distress, distinct benefits are assured.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves deep in an interesting and eventful year. Despite confusion, disturbance, bereavement and sorrow, decided benefits may result in a re-establishment of the financial status after a peroid of stagnation and crystallization. Legal matters, probably insurance bequests or other documentary affairs, are important, but be careful in such transactions as there are signs of treachery or intrigue.

A child born on this day may be versatile, intellectual and brilliant, as well as determined and steadfast. It may also be shrewd, crafty and self-seeking.

For Monday, December 5

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is of major importance, with matters of a new, sudden and revolutionary occurrence causing a complete change in the plans. Romance, adventure, social or domestic denouements may assume spectacular force and bring sensational publicity. But change is definite, with elders and friendship playing major roles in such activities. Be careful with younger folk.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of spectacular adventures, with sudden and surprising events precipitated with whirlwind force. This unpredictable state of affairs may be concerned with travel, invention, adventure, romance, or social or athletic experiences. Friendship and elderly co-operation play a conspicuous role, but be wise with the younger element, who may prove troublesome.

A child born on this day may be original and independent, nervous, high-tensioned and adventurous. Its unique talents may win a conspicuous place in the public attention. Its romantic life probably won't be commonplace.

McGill Laboratory Is Equipped To Study Brain Disorders

MONTREAL, Dec. 3—(CP)—Electrical "brain waves" that point the way to the sources of certain types of epilepsy will be studied at a new laboratory to be opened here next week in McGill University's Neurological Institute.

Described as the only complete laboratory of its kind in the world, it will contain equipment for research and diagnosis in brain disorders through the new electro-encephalographic process, which jots down the brain's electrical impulses on a chart like an ordinary graph.

By studying the ups and downs of the graphs, physicians will be able to detect the regions of the brain which give rise to certain cases of epileptic attacks. The diagnosis will be preliminary to surgical treatment in those cases than can be operated upon.

Dr. H. H. Jasper, laboratory head, explained the electrical impulses are amplified many times before being put through a recorder that traces them out on the graph.

"The brain always gives off electrical waves," he said. "We have learned to recognize what the normal brain pattern is and when there is any deviation we can usually find its source."

Also to be undertaken is research to control the effect of drugs on the human brain.

The addition to the institute was built with a $50,000 grant of the Rockefeller Foundation and with funds supplied by McGill.

Mrs. W. E. Ball Holds Post-Nuptial Reception

MILLBROOK, Dec. 3.—Mrs. W. Edmund Ball held her post-nuptial reception at her home, King street centre, on Thursday, from three to six in the afternoon, and from seven to nine at night, her niece, Mrs. A. C. Darling of Toronto, at whose home the recent marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Ball took place, receiving with her. Reeve W. E. Ball was also at home with his bride and Mrs. Darling in the evening, when a number of the men took advantage of the opportunity to call with their wives, and extend good wishes.

Miss Ruth Thorndyke answered the door in the afternoon, and Miss B. M. Turner, B.A., invited the guests into the tea room.

Pouring tea were the bride's cousin, Miss Henrietta Needler, and Miss Rose Macnamara, the table being lovely with lace cloth in deep cream tint, service entirely of silver, and two stories of the handsome wedding cake on the central reflector, at the four corners of which tall pink candles were burning in silver holders. Pink and white carnations, in crystal and silver holders carried out the color scheme in both the living and dining rooms. Serving the guests were Mrs. H. A. Kerr and Miss M. L. Collins.

In the evening the bride's sisters-in-law, Mrs. Harry Ball and Mrs. Herbert Ball poured tea. Miss Thelma Ball, the daughter of the home, invited the guests into the tea room, the other assistants being Misses Muriel and Mary Ball.

We Noticed

....It's good this season to match your muff (and large, generously shaped muffs are particularly smart) with the fur collar on your cloth coat. One youthful coat of antique green wool which we noticed in one of the shops is gently shaped to the figure in the back with cleverly placed darts and tied in front with half belts. The large turned-over collar and large rug muff are of soft sheared beaver. A new trick this season is to wear the muff pushed up on one arm like a huge cuff.

....That the new furs make one look bulky as an Eskimo. Even the flattest pelt is padded to a pneumatic plumpness, and limbs, emerging from such a smother, have that fragile look the mode demands.

C.G.I.T. Girls Have Successful Rally

One of the most successful Girls' Rallies in this district was held in Knox United Church this week. About 150 girls with their respective leaders sat down to supper after a very strenuous hour of games in the large gymnasium of the church. Every denomination in the city was represented as well as a representation from Cavan, and an entire C.G.I.T Group from the Indian Reserve at Curve Lake, under the leadership of Mrs. Wellington Irons. It was a great delight to the entire gathering to have these girls with them, and to hear them conversing with one another in their own native Ojibway. These girls had to hire taxis to bring them the total distance of forty-four miles.

Rev. C. C. Boyter, pastor of Park Street Baptist Church, and Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt of Knox United Church spoke briefly on the value of such groups, not only to the girls, but also to the whole church.

The guest speaker of the evening was Miss Rachel Young, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society. Miss Young held the gathering spellbound with the story of her work among boys and girls just like themselves, but without the privileges that most of them enjoyed. She urged them to take more interest in these young unfortunate children, and invite them to join their groups and to make them feel they were a part of the same human race. Mrs. L. J. Pettit, president of the Girls' Work Board, brought a greeting to the girls, and also introduced the speaker.

The sing-song was lead by Miss Eleanor Stacey. Entire arrangements for this very successful rally were under the capable management of Mrs. Huffman, superintendent of teen-age girls' groups in Knox church. Miss Marilyn Munroe, president of the girls' council, was in the chair, and Miss Zoe Stazer acted as secretary.

DOROTHY DIX

There Is No Satisfactory Substitute For a Home And Children, But Sometimes Freedom Is Preferable To Being Married To The Wrong Type Of Husband.

DEAR MISS DIX—Do you know of any good substitute for a husband and children and a home in a normal woman's life? I am 38 years of age and cannot become resigned to being an old maid. Although I am a business woman, there is always with me the feeling of loneliness and the emptiness of life.—THIRTY-EIGHT.

ANSWER:

There is no satisfactory substitute for love of a husband and children. Women are created to be wives and mothers. Every woman longs for her own man, a child in her arms, and her own house. It is the cosmic urge.

No one will deny that the happiest fate that can befall a woman is to have a good husband who is kind, tender, loving, and who makes a comfortable support for his family. And if to him is added cherubic youngsters with naturally curly hair—who never get dirty, or have the colic, or have to be spanked—and a beautiful home, why, her cup of bliss does indeed overflow.

This is the picture of marriage that every woman visualizes for herself and it is what makes all women so crazy to marry. Every woman is sure she is going to get the ideal husband and have the wonder kiddies, a nice home, plenty of money and nothing to worry about. Why, I often have girls tell me that they are going to get married because they are tired of working!

Of course, there are a few women who do draw the prize in the matrimonial lottery and get all of which they have dreamed, but such daughters of Lady Luck are as scarce as hens' teeth. So before you convince yourself that marriage is a panacea for loneliness and heart-hunger and the emptiness of life, look about you and see what the girls you know who have married have got out of it.

You complain of loneliness. How many husbands do you know who are companionable with their wives? Does Tom spend his evenings at home with Sally and the kids, or does he put on his hat and go off to the poolroom as soon as he has had his dinner? Do Sam and Molly have jolly talks together, or do they sit up in a silence so thick you could cut it with a knife? Does Bob try to amuse Betty by relating all the interesting things he has seen and done during the day, or does he bury himself in his newspaper and only grunt when she tries to talk to him?

Mighty few men are companions to their wives, and, when they aren't, the unmarried girl has this advantage—he can go out to the movies or a club with another girl, whereas the married woman has to stay at home and watch the baby sleep.

As for work, the average wife has to labor in her own home far harder than she ever did in the store or shop in which she was employed before marriage. There is no eight-hour day, no holidays, or Sundays off for her. And there is no pay day, either. She works for her board and clothes, and they are nothing to brag about.

Of course, children are the consolation prize in marriage. But if they can bring you joy they can also bring you sorrow. No other agony on earth equals that of the mother who sees her children sicken and suffer and die perhaps for the lack of the medical attention she cannot give them, or sees them hungry and cold because she has not the money with which to buy them food and clothing.

Perhaps it is, but a negative comfort I offer you when I tell you that it is better not to be married at all than it is to be unhappily married; that the old maid's lot has plenty of compensations in it if she will only look for them.

DEAR MISS DIX—I notice that the girls who write to you saying they are not popular with men always say they do not have dates because they are not petters. I am a college man and go about a good deal, and I am sure that I voice not only my opinion but also of a very large share of the young men of today when I say that we are not looking for girls who can empty a liquor glass without blinking an eye, or who are cigarette smokers, or who are neckers. Still less do we want girls of loose morals. It is not the girl who allows herself to be kissed by every fellow she meets that we admire. It is the girl who can handle men and tactfully prevent them from petting her who is most popular. And she is the kind of girl we thing we would like to marry some day. Maybe the other type of girl does have more dates, but if she knew what her boy friends thought of her she wouldn't think them worth the price.—FRATERNITY MAN.

ANSWER:

You are telling them, son. Your words will have more weight with these foolish girls, who value their modesty and refinement so little that they are willing to sell them out for an ice cream cone or a trip to the movies than mine will because you are a man and you know what other men think.

I have never myself put much faith in the alibi that girls offer for their lack of popularity when they say that the reason they don't have dates is because they will not submit to being mauled and pawed by every Tom, Dick and Harry who comes along. I think it is because they lack charm rather than that they have too strict morals. They do not know how to be companionable; how to make themselves interesting conversationalists. Maybe they don't know how to dance, or to play games, or to take part in any outdoor sports. Maybe they don't know how to put a boy at his ease and get him started to talking about himself. Maybe they just haven't the come-hither look in their eyes.

But it isn't because they are not ready to throw their caps over the windmill for any lad who comes along. Not all men prefer loose ladies. Deep down in the heart of every decent man is a reverence and a respect for the girl who has her code and sticks to it and who keeps her skirts clean.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I think that the best way a wife can hold her husband is by mothering him. For what, after all, is a man but a grown-up baby? — ONE WHO KNOWS.

ANSWER:

Provided she does not overdo the mothering. There is nothing that men resent in their wives so much as bossiness, and there is no quicker way of losing a husband than by treating him as if he were a feeble-minded infant.

Shirley Pettit Bride of To-day

Tall white aisle standards bearing ferns and tied with white cellophane bows decked Murray Street Baptist Church at two-thirty o'clock this afternoon (Saturday) for the wedding of Miss Shirley Blanche Pettit, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Pettit of 27 Benson Avenue, who became the bride of Mr. John Richard Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Anderson of Stratford.

The front of the church was banked with green and white lillies and showers of silver bells. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe officiated at the ceremony. Mr. Arthur Collison was organist, and played the Lohengrin Wedding March for the procession and Mendelssohn's Wedding March for the recession. Miss Isabel Weddell was soloist, and sang "O Perfect Love." Her gown was of shot taffeta in mauve and gold, with small matching hat and corsage of Talisman roses.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin, cut on princess lines, with short train embroidered with seed pearls. The high neck and long slender sleeves of the gown were finished with white chiffon frilling. A halo of seed pearls and orange blossoms held in place her long veil of ivory tulle, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lily of the valley centred with pink orchids.

Miss Elizabeth Cowan of Brantford, cousin of the bride, was her attendant, wearing a graceful gown of white velvet with tiny ostrich plume hat, white satin sandals, and carrying a nosegay of red roses and lilly of the valley. The groomsman was Mr. Wilfred Gregory of Stratford, and the ushers were Mr. Elliott Carruth and Mr. Brock Monteith of Stratford.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Pettit wore a gown of red vintage crepe with jacket and short train, matching hat and slippers, dusty pink accessories, and a corsage of dusty pink orchids. Mrs. Anderson, mother of the groom, was gowned in wine velvet with black turban hat, black accessories, and a corsage of white gardenias.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, and later Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left for a wedding trip, the bride travelling in a black seal coat over a frock of turquoise blue wool. She wore a small black velour hat, and black accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will live at 81 Norman street, Stratford, Ontario.

Fashions

A smart tailored type dress with slim front gored skirt that ends in an animated plait, to add graceful swing. The shoulders are beautifully fitted in a flat yoke that carries down the front in a panel effect. Mother will probably like her dress buttoned up to a collared vee neck, while daughter will undoubtedly choose the version that zips up to the little girl collar. Long or short sleeves, to suit your own taste, please! Either version in a mossy or crinkly rayon crepe in black or new rich plum, dark green or wine shade, will see you through everything you do. For school, office or college, one of the attractive colorful noisy wool plaids is completely devastating with either self material collar or velveteen. It's so simple to sew and the price so low, it will keep your budget going smoothly.

Style No. 2132 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material.

Mrs. P. Bateman Is Hostess To Springbrook W.I.

BONARLAW, Dec. 3.—The regular meeting of the Springbrook Women's Institute was held on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Percy Bateman with an attendance of twenty-three members and eight visitors present. Mrs. J. F. Baker presided. The roll call, an old superstition, was well answered.

The sum of three dollars was contributed to the Red Cross for the fire sufferers in the Rainy River district. The Institute decided to collect the grant this year as in past. It was decided to pack the Christmas baskets and also have the Christmas gift exchange.

Mrs. A. V. Brown took charge of the meeting in the absence of Mrs. Fitzgerald, who is spending the winter in California. The motto, "The world loves me two tents, content and discontent," was given by Mrs. George Bailey. The topic on historical research was taken by Mrs. George Thompson. She gave the early history of Springbrook branch and also had an old photograph and one of the old books with the records of the meetings twenty years ago.

Mrs. J. F. Baker gave a splendid talk on the course in buymanship and explained the several samples of silk which she had on exhibition. Mrs. Dave Wellman gave a short reading on the Women's Institute. Mrs. Allen McComb gave a very complete report of the Belleville area convention.

A very dainty lunch was served by the hostess at the close and a social half hour spent.

Springbrook W.I.

We are just a bunch of women,
And this is what we do,
We meet one afternoon each month
Our friendship to renew.

We sing, we pray, we call the roll
Our business session's after.
Then comes our little program
Which often causes laughter.

The most of us are jolly girls
And some are not so funny,
Some of us are very poor
And some have lots of money

But it doesn't matter which we are,
Or what our calling is,
We do our part the best we can,
Our meetings we can't miss.

We are just one great big family
And no two look alike,
But I'll tell you when it's meeting time
It's to the meeting place we hike.

We do a lot of good each year
Our funds are often low,
But we never get discouraged
As merrily we go.

We are just the Women's Institute
We have no banner grand,
But in the eyes of all the world
A precious place we stand.

In nineteen hundred we organized
Our members they were few,
But nearly every meeting
We had members that were new.

We drift along throughout the years
We do the best we can,
Our motto is to do our best
To Help our fellow man.

These verses were composed by Mrs. Dave Wellman and were written for the branch.

William Andrews, 69, apologized to a London judge for having 31 children.

Shipments Are Lighter

FREDERICTON.—Shipment of Christmas trees from New Brunswick this season has been lighter than in recent years, apparently due to depletion of those most accessible. Much of the trade formerly enjoyed in this province has gone to Nova Scotia and Gaspe Peninsula.

Shy From Mussels

PORTLAND, Me.—Early Indians are blamed by the Bureau of Fisheries for the failure of modern Americans to eat mussels as freely as clams. The Indians, for some reason, avoided mussels while they devoured clams and oysters, and the practice has continued through the centuries.

Smith Couple To Mark 60th Wedding

The sixtieth anniversary of their wedding on Sunday, December 4, will be quietly celebrated on Monday by Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Milburn of Smith.

The principals of that happy event on an early December day back in 1878 are both in good health. Mr. Milburn continues to do some work about his farm, and he can still say that he has never missed a harvest for a period almost longer than he can definitely remember. He is 83 years old, and a native of Smith township, as is his wife, who was Sarah Mann, 84, daughter of James Mann. Their marriage took place at the home of the bride's father, the first homestead of the family now occupied by Reeve Allan B. Mann.

Mr. Milburn's ancestors lived in the lake country of Cumberland, England, and his wife's family came from Delaware into Canada. Thomas T. Milburn has a large number of warm friends in the city and country who will be unanimous in their wish to congratulate him and Mrs. Milburn on the wedding anniversary and to wish them continuing years together. The members of their family are Miss Margaret at home; Mrs. Ross Harrison of Smith; Mrs. Henry Stubbs of Sarnia, and Elmer at home. There was one other son, Noble Milburn, who enlisted with the 93rd (Peterborough County) Battalion, and was killed at Ypres.

Mr. and Mrs. Milburn have eleven grandchildren. They are members of Lakefield United Church, of which Mr. Milburn is a deacon.

The wedding of sixty years ago was solemnized by the Rev. T. Ratcliffe. It united two of the pioneer families of Smith township. The Milburns and Manns have now been continuously resident of the township for 118 years. Mr. Milburn's grandfather came to this county in 1818, and the Manns arrived about a year later. They were United Empire Loyalists, who turned their backs on Dalaware for the right to retain their British citizenship and loyalty.

The first Milburn home was built on the Chemong Road, where his brother's wife still resides at the age of ninety. Mr. T. T. Milburn's home is on the seventh concession of Smith, the centre line, where he and his wife went to live after their wedding at the home of her parents.

CHAUFFEUR TOO STOUT

When Dick Raine started to look for a driver for the truck carrying his float in the Christmas parade last night he found that the man must be "made to measure." The float was constructed so that a portion of it covered the cab and when the regular driver attempted to climb he found he was far too stout. Faced with this unusual problem Dick skirmished around until he found a man thin enough to squeeze into the truck and fortunately was successful.—McG.

FALSE ALARM

A member of the local police force is opposed to loud speakers in jewellery stores, particularly when the amplifier broadcasts the ticking of a clock and magnifies the sound. The constable was walking down George street a few nights ago when his attention was attracted to a hammering sound. The noise appeared to come from the interior of a jewellery store. The officer on the alert was convinced a safe cracker was pouding on the safe in the darkness at the rear of the store, and muffling the sound with cloth. He signalled another officer without leaving the store and both started to investigate. The newcomer immediately detected a loud speaker above the door which was found to be hooked up with a grandfather's chime clock to broadcast the chimes every quarter hour. The hammering sound was the ticking of the clock, amplified by the loud speaker.

A FORGETFUL REPORTER

Following the sessions of the county council Friday two reporters left the room and proceeded to put on their overcoats and hats. One of the two slipped into his rubbers, but the other discovered his were missing. His colleague immediately started a search for the footwear but after fifteen minutes of fruitless work, the two left, one without rubbers. When the more fortunate reporter arrived home, he slipped off the rubbers in the hall but was amazed to find a pair already there. It suddenly dawned on him that he had left his own footwear at home, taken those belonging to the other reporter and then spent a quarter of an hour helping his friend look for them; while he wore them himself.—McG.

Faith Is Subject Supper Club Talk

At the weekly meeting of the Friday Night Supper Club, Russell T. Kelley, founder and president of the Russell T. Kelly advertising agency in Hamilton, was the guest speaker. Introduced by H. L. Garner, who commented on the fact that Mr. Kelley was also on the Council of the Y.M.C.A. and is president of the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association.

Mr. Kelley's interesting and informative topic was "Faith," naming several important phases of the word. Having faith in God is essential and also must have faith in oneself, and in the other fellow "Go out of your way to do something for him," he said.

Having faith in one's job is also important, knowing and realizing that the job has a place in the world. Then have faith in the country in which you live, he said.

On behalf of the club Arnold Nottall moved Mr. Kelley a vote of thanks.

Preceding the speaker Stuart Cauley rendered two piano numbers, "Flapperette" and "While a Cigaret Was Burning." Jack Sullivan gave a three minute talk on Sir John A. McDonald. The meeting closed with the reading of the Creed.

Tory Candidate Outlines Party Platform

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 3. — More than 400 attended a dance in Norwood Town Hall on Friday night under the auspices of the Hastings-Peterborough riding of the Conservative Association for the purpose of introducing George S. White, Conservative candidate for the riding to the constituency of Norwood. The gathering, composed mostly of young men and women, was one of a series of dances throughout the riding which the association are staging to meet the young people in the interests of Mr. White.

Jack Grant's Aces Orchestra occupied the stage and furnished music for the event. A supper of sandwiches and coffee was served the many guests about midnight in the basement. Among those present were: R. A. Dean of Norwood, president of the Hastings-Peterborough Conservative Association, and chairman of the evening; Gordon K. Fraser, president for Peterborough County, and Mrs. Fraser; James R. Baskin, president for Norwood; Earl Ivy, Dummer Township president; Mrs. R. E. Birdsall, president of the Asphodel Ladies' Association; K. F. Kempt, Norwood, president for East Peterborough; and the candidate, George S. White and Mrs. White.

About eleven o'clock three officials of the organization took the platform and gave their speeches over the loud speaker system.

Aided Foreign Countries.

Gordon K. Fraser, first speaker, told the gathering that the present Government had done nothing for Canada, but had benefitted other foreign countries. "We must work and work hard to win the next election—and we are going to win," he said.

T. P. Lancaster of Havelock said he was glad the party had recognized the young people and added he was delighted to see the organization catering to them. "I am heart and soul behind our candidate, and I am confident he will win," he said.

"I wish to mention a few matters that I am much interested in," Mr. White began. "They are the national defence of Canada, the control and suppression of Communism, Fascism etc., the problems affecting the youth of to-day, the amendment of the British North America Act, and everything that will tend to unite our Dominion, the welfare of the returned soldier, and in particular all the things which interest and affect the farmer.

The Village of Norwood is the centre of a very fine farming community, and it is my intention to pay special attention to agricultural problems. While I am a country lawyer, I have for years been doing business and dealing with farmers in such matters as township affairs, rural school matters, cheese factories rural Hydro, matters relating to drainage, timber limits, matters of taxation, farm mortgages, interest, prices paid farmer and consumer, and Crown lands. These are all matters which concern and affect the young people of this riding. From working with and doing business in regard to these matters, I feel I have a fair knowledge of the many problems that affect the farmer of to-day.

Attend to Rural Problems.

"I do not believe in making wild promises as to what I will accomplish for you, but I do promise you that after the next Federal election when I go to Ottawa as representative of this riding, I will bring before the House and speak on problems that affect the farmer of to-day and suggest certain remedies and that I will bring before the various committees dealing with agriculture these problems of the farmer.

As a returned soldier, I have always taken a great interest in the welfare of the returned man, and every veteran, no matter what his politics may be, will always receive every consideration from me, that I can give.

"I cannot condemn too strongly the vicious system of political patronage as practised to-day in the County of Hastings by the Hepburn Government. I said vicious, for that is the only word that can describe it. I contend that it should make no difference what church or lodge a man attended or what his political beliefs may be. In the matter of employment, every man should have an equal chance. I can not nor will not adopt or approve of any system of patronage such as is carried on to-day by the Hepburn Government. These men who need work so badly, have wives and families to support— and no matter what candidate they vote for they must have work. How can we ever expect to build up in a strong united country in Canada when the Government itself sets one party against the other?

"While the Liberal Party has not yet selected their candidate, I presume Rork Ferguson will be chosen. No matter who the candidate may be, as far as I am concerned he will receive every courtesy from me. There will be no personalities on my part. The campaign I intend to run will be clean and above board in every respect, and I am sure the Liberal condidate will conduct his campaign in the same manner," he concluded.

Coboconk Moonshiner Fined $100, Caught With 30 Gallons Of Mash

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Dec. 3.—J. Weaver of Coboconk faced Magistrate Gee in police court Friday and was fined $100 and costs for the illegal manufacturing of liquor. The accused was arrested last August by Corporal T. J. Wood, R.C.M.P., when he was found in possession of 30 gallons of mash. His wife was ill at the time of his arrest and Weaver was allowed a few days grace. He left the limits, however, and last Saturday he was arrested in Kenora and brought to Lindsay. "The moonshine game is being worked to death, both in Bexley and Coboconk remarked the magistrate in passing sentence.

A transient, who said he hailed from St. Catharines, was given suspended sentence with the warning to leave town. He was charged with being drunk, and Chief Lawler stated that he was soliciting alms on the street. The accused stated that he was on his way to Ottawa to spend Christmas with his brother. "Don't stop at any beer parlors on your way through Peterborough or you may meet me in that city," remarked the Magistrate.

Charging that its was "a gross miscarriage of justice and nothing less that this matter should be flimflammed around," C. G. Frost, in police court protested vehemently against a further adjournment of S. E. Gale, who is charged with falsifying the books of the Canada Lime Company, of Coboconk. V. J. McElderry, K.C., of Peterborough acting for the Crown requested an adjournment on the grounds that Toronto accountants were preparing a financial statement of the Canada Lime Co., and had not completed their work. Mr. Frost asked for a dismissal of the case, charging that his client was placed in a very embarassing position by these adjournments. "We have already challenged them three times to prove my client's guilt, and they are still not ready," stated Mr. Frost. An adjournment was granted until December 12.

Havelock Students Hold Theatre Party

HAVELOCK, Dec. 3. — Close to eighty students of Havelock High Schol participated in a "theatre party" last evening to the Hollywood Theatre in Campbellford. The party was transported there in about twenty cars, kindly donated by parents and friends of the student body. The students met at the school at 6.30 and arrived in Campbellford in time for the first showing of "Stablemates," a picture starring Mickey Roney and Wallace Beery.

Returning after the show they assembled in the Council Chamber, where hot-dogs, doughnuts, and coffee, prepared by several of the students' mothers, awaited the travellers. Votes of thanks were extended to Principal Goheen, Miss Beulah Leng, president of the Literary Society, Mrs. George Rigby, and those who donated cars for the occasion.

Community singing with accompaniment at the piano by Miss Verna Isaacs and a general social time was much enjoyed.

WILL ADDRESS CLASSES

A. R. Kennedy, editor of The Examiner's carrier boys bring his guitar to this office with instructions to sell it for six dollars. There is a good deal of pathos in that decision of his, a great deal of sacrifice, a very great deal of courage on the part of that youngster whom Grey Owl told, "Take courage, my son, be strong."

And some reporters in this office still have faith enough left in human nature to believe that someone will call to buy the lad's guitar, still have faith taht the purchaser will see that the youngster gets the instrument back again with the six dollars.

WEATHER A BIT LATE.

If the weather at 11.30 o'clock had arrived at 7.30 Friday evening, the crowds of citizens would have found the waiting for the Santa Claus parade decidedly more comfortable. Clouds spread over the sky moderating the east wind and taking the edge off it.

QUEEN MARY'S TEAM.

In the list of schools competing in next week's spelling match under the auspices of the Kiwanis Club, the name of the Queen Mary School was omitted. However, Principal Steer's school will be represented in the contest with a strong team and hopes to be up near the top when the winners are decided.

A YOUNG TRANSIENT.

Among the transients who were sheltered at the Police Station on Friday night was a small youth who said he was 16, but scarcely looked it. He gave his address as Toronto, and when the police inquired what he was doing on the road at his age he said he was looking for a job and had found it impossible to obtain one in the Queen City.

TO SHOW PICTURE HERE

The motion picture, "The Kinsmen," produced by the Canadian Wheat Board in which David Fife, the Otonabee farmer who produced Fife Wheat is given a place of well-merited honor, will be shown in Peterborough. The picture is being brought here on Tuesday next and will be shown that evening in the St. Paul's church Sunday school.

TO DICUSS THE JEWS

"The Future of the Jew" will be the subject of Rev. Mr. Easton's sermon in Trinity United church on Sunday evening. The world is shocked as it confronts the recurrence of the old problem of anti-Semitism in a new and terrible form. Historically there are causes and trends that need to be understood in order to arrive at the solution of the present, critical and imminent problem and of the long range problem of the persecution of minority groups which has always accompanied movements toward paganism, apostasy and dictatorship.

BENCH WARRANT ISSUED.

A bench warrant was issued by Magistrate E. A. Gee in Police Court this morning when William Nixon of Toronto failed to appear on a charge of defrauding the Hotel Champlain of a board bill of $12.15. Nixon was up earlier in the week and agreed at that time to make restitution of the amount owed and it had practically been decided that sentence would be suspended this morning. However, he failed to appear when his name was called, and a telephone call to the hotel revealed the fact that the bill had not been paid. Whereupon the police applied for a warrant for his arrest.

Boy Is Willing To Sell Guitar To Buy Presents

This is the story of a lonely little boy who wants to buy Christmas presents for his family so badly that he is willing to sell his most prized and one of his few possessions in order to raise the necessary funds.

The boy is Gerald Johnson, young Indian lad from Burleigh Falls, who has been in hospital now for nearly two years, whose leg was amputated at Nicholls Hospital this year. Christmas is going to be a lonely time for this brave youngster in his hospital cot, but he's not concerned about that; he is wondering how he may provide cheer for his brothers and sisters and parents.

He has decided just what he would like to purchase for each one of them and he has reckoned the cost most carefully. It all comes to six dollars. He has turned over in his mind every conceivable way in which he might, by a stretch of the imagination, raise the money. But Christmas is drawing near and he is reduced to practical thoughts and he knows the only way he can really obtain the money he wants is to sell a possession he prizes most highly, one that helps him pass many a dull hospital hour.

Wants Six Dollars.

And so he had one of the Examiner's carrier boys bring his guitar to this office with instructions to sell it for six dollars. There is a good deal of pathos in that decision of his, a great deal of sacrifice, a very great deal of courage on the part of that youngster whom Grey Owl told, "Take courage, my son, be strong."

And some reporters in this office still have faith enough left in human nature to believe that someone will call to buy the lad's guitar, still have faith taht the purchaser will see that the youngster gets the instrument back again with the six dollars.

Sneak Thief Makes Hurried Departure

Doubtless thinking that the police would be tied up with the Santa Claus parade and that the occupants of the house were out, a sneak thief tried to break into the home of Robert C. Simmons, 173 Lock street, shortly after 9 o'clock Friday night by climbing up the post of a side porch and forcing an upstairs window.

Unfortunately for the success of the marauder's plans, although Mr. Simmons himself was out at the time, his wife and his son Robert were at home and had retired early, leaving the house in darkness, and the result was that when the thief started to work on the window, the noise aroused the son and he called out, frightening of fthe invader.

The police were telephoned for and Inspector Reid and Constable John Naples investigated without finding any sign of the porch climber.

Entries Complete For Spelling Bee

How far would you get in a spelling contest? When some youngster falters and goes down to defeat on a word like "rheumatism" or "foliaceous' or some other folderol, would you be left in the race if you had been in his or her place?

That is the question Kiwanians would like answerd. The best way to determine the question, they naively say, is to go to the spelling bee for school children at the Collegiate auditorium next Friday and Saturday, when champions of this district will be selected.

Entries from every school in the county have been selected, the latest to come in being from Queen Mary school. Gwyneth Reed (her own name one on which many a contestant would go down to defeat), Walter Giles, and Muriel Greatrix, will represent the school.

Here are some of the words that Kiwanians say may be included in the contest. Young contestants should know these ones for some of them will in all probability be used: acknowledgment, satisfactorily, originally, compliance, separate, mortgage, definitely, municipality, ratepayer, contemplating, ammunition, irrigate, governing, barrister, sprinkling, cheque, rheumatism, representative, faculty, apartments, satisfaction, believing, controversy, incidentally, correspondent, apologized, transferred, disappointed, subscribers, criticism, specification, anniversary, boundary.

Drivers Forced To Leave Cars Travel On Foot

When dawn broke this morning and traffic began to creep through city streets again today, glare ice greeted motorists for the first time this year. Of traction there was virtually none, and many a driver left his car parked by the roadside and continued on foot.

On foot it was no better, though chances of becoming dangerously injured was less than in a motor car. All morning long pedestrians were walking warily, although downtown streets were better, had been sanded thoroughly.

The board of works trucks were out sharp at six o'clock this morning sanding dangerous intersections and as many of the streets as possible. By the time office workers came downtown conditions had been vastly improved.

Only persons to object to the sanding were the city's school children, free from school for the weekend and anxious to try out their skates. The youngsters in East City were sledding on Armour Road hill and skating on the pavement.

On Armour Road alone seven cars were left abandoned by nervous drivers; employees of the Western Clock company left their cars parked at the foot of the Hunter street hill; county councillors walked up the steep hill to the court house.

Cars In Ditch

COBOURG, Ont., Dec. 3.—(CP)—Icy highways, which imperilled traffic in this area this morning from midnight on, resulted in many trucks and cars parking in town and on side roads for the night.

Even cars were unable to make Rosebury hill west of Port Hope and over a score of trucks were parked at Welcome corners near Port Hope awaiting the arrival of highway sand trucks.

Sleet was responsible for the icy pavements.

DIT CLAPPER RESENTING THOMPSON DEAL, SOUGHT RELEASE

Hastings Star Asked To Join Detroit Outfit

(Detroit Times)

A near-rebellion on the Boston Bruins Hockey Club following the sale of Goalie Tiny Thompson to the Red Wings almost resulted in Dit Clapper, brilliant Boston defenseman, following his teammate to Detroit to join the Wings, it was learned today.

Clapper wanted to come to Detroit and Manager Jack Adams of the Red Wings would have been more than glad to have him bolster the Detroit defense. But Manager Art Ross of the Bruins balked at letting him go.

Fans Resent Deal

Boston fans are still seething about the deal which took away the most popular athlete hockey has ever developed in their town, but Clapper was one of the most furious and vociferous the moment the deal was announced, according to the Boston Post.

The star who has been a roommate of Thompson's almost since the time the two joined the club 11 years ago blasted the deal and roared:

"They can trade me, too. First they took Marty Barry and now it's Tiny. I don't want to stay here while my best friends are with the Red Wings."

Ross, like any hockey or ball manager, has the whip hand however. Not many players get themselves traded according to their own wish. It's play or else.

So Ross called Clapper in and had a long forceful conversation with the 31-year-old playmaker from Newmarket, Ont.

Finally Cools Off

The big defenseman was cooled off when he emerged from Ross' office.

"I guess I put the Bruins in a tough spot, so we'd better forget it," he said. "Besides," he added, "Ross said he wouldn't trade me anyhow."

"I'll deal for Clapper anytime the Boston club wants to open negotiations," said Manager Adams before he headed for Chicago with his Wings late yesterday. "But I'm not going to embarrass any one by suggesting a Clapper deal right now. We're happy to get Thompson."

Clapper's Boston teammates apparently were equally surprised to hear of Thompson's sale but refused to make any public comment.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Wel, Mac, the local end of the sporting whirl aint been what you call lively this week, about the only doings being the binge what the city fathers give the lacrosse team—and well they earned it, say we—and the departure from our midst of some more of our hockey players, Mister Jim Ellis and Mister Mick Magee which has hooked onto for themselves berths in the Grape Fruit League and will play their hockey in Flordia this winter. And if they is any place more than another where I would rather play hockey that is the land of sunshine and summer breezes and cheap fruit and flowers and I believe fairly well supplied with bathing girls too. Just what kind of a league the outfit is likely to prove we aint got no means of knowing but anyway the main thing is that when the lads aint playing hockey they oughta be able to knock off a pretty fair time, 1 way and another. Our hats is off to Mister Magee and Mister Ellis. They seem to have copped the logical location for hockey de luxe.

Our gifts to the Baltimore Orioles, Mister Calladine and Mister Vitarelli, is doing right well by themselves and by Mister Pick Hines which selected them for his Orioles. Mister Vitarelli has been steaming along on all 8 like a real champ and at the last figgering was leading the whole loop in scoring points with 3 goals and 8 assists while Mister Calladine who has always been dangerous when he got into where the goalie could see the white of his eyes has been potting the old disc with the same aplomb—there's a two bit word, customers—that he showed around this district. The boys is in pretty fast company but they been giving notice they belong right where they is, and home fans will all be pulling for them.

This being wrote Fri. so the big Eastern rugby final is still on the lap of the goods or something of the kind. I am calling Argos to take the Imps for the simple reason I think they got the plays and the speed to offset anything that Sarnia can produce through the educated toe of Mister Bummer Stirling. This bird Hayman always seems to have a play up his sleeve to be used when the Oarsmen is in a tough spot and so far anyway the Argos has been able to cash in on them Sunday plays. I think they will do so again and cop themselves the Eastern title. Next week—? Well I can't make up my mind but so far I aint seen no reason to drop the Argos out the window, even against the famous Bombers.

Nice For Detroit

In the pro hockey loop this has been rather a big week and perhaps the biggest feature was the sale of Mister Tiny Thompson of the Boston Bruins of Detroit. The Bruins will look almost as funny without Mister Thompson as they would without Mister Eddie Shore but they aint no doubt that the move has strengthened the Red Wings, in a spot where they needed help. Getting him may mean the difference between landing in the playoffs or outside on their ear. Thursday nite the loop race tightened up a lot, what with the eDtroits crackin' down on the world champion Chicago Black Hawks to a 4 to 1 tune and the Canadiens handing Boston their first shutout of the year. From now they aint any of the outfits in the pushover class and the form betters may get quite a ride trying to pick the winners.

Well I guess I'll call it a nite and what a nite what with a Sandy Claws parade and everything.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

SPORTS -DAY BY DAY-

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

IT was just eight years ago now that this writer wended his way home after a five-year sojourn in other centres and asked for a job writing on this paper. Took a lot of persuasion to get a chance as news reporter on space rates, but we eventually got in. After working for a mere pittance a few weeks, we drifted toward sports—always a hobby with us—and did better So much so that we got on regular and, in the course of time, got to knocking off a daily column. This pillar de piffle has been committed on the poor public every day the paper published since that time—barring the annual vacation—as we have fortunately never had to muff a day due to illness or late hours. But much water has swished over the London St. dam since that time. It is a comparatively short space of time, but times do change. And we think of the changes as one year melts into another.

WHEN WE STARTED on this sheet, for instance, there weren't just seven N.H.L. clubs operating, with only two from Canada. There were 10 clubs in two sections. The Canuck division had Maroons, Canadiens, Toronto, Ottawa and Amerks; with the U.S. section having Boston, Rangers, Chicago, Detroit andPittsburgh. Phil Scott and Primo Carnera were big shots in the ring then, and Tilden and Lacoste the best of the tennis stars. Bailey, Clancy and Morenz were tops in the N.H.L., and our Bert McLeod was starring in pro puck company in the States. John J. McGraw was the biggest figure in baseball, next to Babe Ruth, and Mickey Coshrane was catching for the A's. All sports were suffering from the big depression which had so many out of work and broke—and many thought times would never improve.

Hitler Was Gentle Then

APART FROM SPORTS, we recall that the C.G.E. plant here planned a much larger building, and that citizens argued hotly whether or not the aldermen should take a salary for attending meetings. Local artists, like Mrs. McKee Bingham, Mrs. Agnes Logan, Stan Northrop and Rick Roberts, were heard over Station CKGW. Very little was heard of Adolph Hitler or Mussolini in Europe where Five Powers agreed to limit their navies and keep the peace of the world! Lindbergh, a great U.S. hero, celebrated his 28th birthday flying. All Addis Ababa meant was just some silly baby talk and no one knew Haile Selassie lived. There was no housing shortage in Peterborough, and no taverns—though plenty of speakeasies.

WE HAD IN HOCKEY a good City League, plenty of minor loops, a strong district E.P.L. and three O.H.A. teams. There were two junior squads then. Some of the St. John's juniors were Miller, White, Howe, Cuthbertson, Hewett, Burke, Weir, Magee, Dunkerley, Dallin, Calladine and Gardner. And some of the Peterborough juniors were Foley, Tuck, Meagher, Jones, Palmer, Austin, Wood, Epps, McCulloch. The intermediate lineup included Lackey, LeBarr, Gillespie, Maudsley, Dundas, Creighton, Cripps, Hatton and Legon. How many of 'em are still playing hockey in this town—and how many have hung their skates up in the attic long since? And some have died. We had no senior baseball, no lacrosse and no girls' softball. Boxing was about dead and the new pro grappling game was unknown here. Ah, yes, how time doeth flicker! All in eight years, mind you, too.

Biggest Little League

ANNUAL MEETING of the Church Hockey League is a week from Monday, or Dec. 12th, and the various churches should be bestirring themselves over this week-end to get squads lined up. The 16 teams in last year dished up 72 contest at All Saints, Quaker and Brock St. rinks. The retiring officers are anxious to see last year's church representatives back again, and also such churches as St. Luke's, St. Andrew's, Park St., St. James and St. George's. For over a decade, Peterborough has had the largest Church Puck Loop per capita of any city in the province — and 'tis hoped to maintain that record this coming chilly season. Two voting delegates are permitted at the meeting the 12th from each city church.

YE TENTATIE SCHEDULE for the local junior O.H.A. squads—but some of the dates may be changed when the Petes have their schedule meeting—is a single one and this is how our Colts and Monarchs are listed to play: Dec. 27—Colts at Oshawa, Whitby at Monarchs; Dec. 30—Bowmanville at Colts, Monarchs at Cobourg; Jan. 2—Bowmanville at Monarchs; Jan. 3—Colts at Port Hope; Jan 6—Colts at Lindsay, Oshawa at Monarchs; Jan. 10—Lindsay at Colts, Monarchs at Port Hope; Jan. 13—Monarchs at Colts; Jan. 16—Oshawa at Colts, Monarchs at Whitby; Jan. 18—Monarchs at Oshawa, Cobourg at Colts; Jan. 20—Lindsay at Monarchs, Colts at Whitby; Jan. 23—Monarchs at Bowmanville here, Colts at Cobourg; Jan. 25—Colts at Monarchs; Jan. 27—Monarchs at Lindsay, Whitby at Colts; Jan. 30—Cobourg at Monarchs; Feb. 1—Port Hope at Colts; Feb. 3—Bowmanville at Colts; Feb. 6—Port Hope at Monarchs.

Redmen, Flyers An' Us

AT AN O.H.A. executive meeting in Toronto last p.m., groupings were drawn up. We note the Petes are back in a three-team senior "B" setup with Belleville Redmen and Trenton Fliers — while Queen's, R.M.C. and Kingston Garrisons are listed together. Why couldn't those six teams have been grouped together, or with an interlocking schedule? We fear the Petes games will be overshadowed in fan interest this winter by the fine junior grouping. In an intermediate "B" setup, Lakefield is lined up with Lindsay, Caygeon, Oakwood and eBaverton—so we won't look for a Lakefield entry in any City Loop, nor can we bank on Buster Whitton locally. It's a good break for Lakefield, though, and we're glad to see Lindsay back. According to the O.H.A. junior announcement, only three of the eight teams in our group are "C" squads, the Monarchs, Lindsay and Bowmanville. How come?

HITHER AND YAWN: From Ump Colling of Belleville we receive a clipped cartoon showing a sheepish arbiter surrounded by angry players, and under it these words: "I'll bet you boys think I'm terrible"....The man is positively psychic!—but we're glad to learn he's retained his sense of humor, even if his eyesight is failing....Annual fall curling meeting is at eight Monday eve in the club rooms....We hear Honey Tompkins has returned to this town after a brief visit in London; he'll likely lineup with the Petes....Brock St. arena cannot accommodate either a Junior or a Senior City Puck Circuit this winter, we're told....If the Blood and Thunder Loop operates, it'll have to be outdoors or out of town....O.H.A. referees' meeting is next Wednesday aft at three in the Royal York Hotel....Red Burnett of the Star picks Sarnia today because he sayst the Imps were the only team to win consistently for him this fall; did they trim Orfuns here? ....Baltimore Sun columnist boosts highly the coaching of Pick Hines; we may run it again....Havelock has a junior "C" team in with Belleville, Trenton, Picton and Napanee....Young Walt Gerow is playing hockey up north....And so back to the grind, back to hockey, back to the Brock, back to back!

By George Grace
(Central Press Canadian Sports Writer.)

TORONTO, Dec. 3.—Chief topic of conversation and debate in Maple Leaf hockey circles, both official and fanatical, since the middle of last season has been right wing. Mostly the conversation was of a "what will we do about it?" nature. But no more, Gus Marker, ex-Maroon, ex-Detroiter, has cleared away those worries nicely and once more the Stanley Cup is back as the subject.

For a decade right wing and Charlie Conacher were synonymous here, until last spring, when the Big Bomber retired suddenly from the game on the doctor's advice. Loud were the laments over the Leafian plight with no Conacher to ring up the goals from the right boards. Then a couple of fellows named Buzz Boll and Gordon Drillon began functioning in high-class sytle and fears subsided.

Came the start of the 1938-39 season and things looked rosy, at least as far as right wing were concerned. Then in quick order out went Drillon and out went Boll, the former with a broken thumb, sustained in a game with the Black Hawks, and the latter with torn ligaments in his leg. Two right-wingers force dto the sidelines within a week left a nice problem in the hands of majordomo Conny Smythe. All he had to do was pick up two more major league calibre in short order!

And He Was a "Left-Over!"

Meanwhile down in Montreal, where the Maroons had gone off with a loud bang, one of the left-overs was practising daily at the Forum waiting for some one to make a bid for him. . . one of the players apparently deemed not good enough for Canadiens or Black Hawks who had grabbed off most of the rest of what had once been the "big red team." Gus Marker was the party in question and while Smythe had had his eye on him he had figured he was not exactly in dire need.... until Boll and Drillon were added to the casualty list. Then Gus was speedily added to the Maple Leaf roster, and the rest is rapidly becoming history, because Gus happens to be what might easily be called the sensation of the team this year.

The three regular Leaf lines at the start of the season were made up of Pep Kelly, Nick Metz, and Murph Chamberlain on one, one that's still intact, incidentally; Busher Jackson, Buzz Boll and Bill Thoms on another; and Gord Drillon, Bob Davidson and Syl Apps the other. As a replacement for Drillon Smythe purchased Normie Mann from the Rangers and he filled in acceptably while the league's scoring champion was out, but with Drillon back, hard-working Normie moved down to the Leaf's Syracuse farm.

GUS MARKER
He and the Maple Leafs Have the Last Laugh

Marker, the man of the moment, was secured to take the place of Boll . . . . and how he's taken it! Present plans call for Boll to be the extra forward on the team when he returns to action . . . that's what kind of a replacement Mr. Marker turned out to be! From the start he clicked the way every manager hopes a new player will click, fitting in with the smooth-working Busher and Bill Thoms to form one of the most effective forward units in the league. His two companions on the line are essentially one way players, scoring threats. Gus is no corner lot player when he gets near the other team's goal, but more than that, he's a great back checker the best the Leafs have had since Frank Finnegan. He's been a two-way threat in every game the Toronto squad has played this year and with Turk Broda, the bounding netminder, has been credited with some of the larger portions of the success attained by the team thus far in the schedule.

Prairie Product

Born at Wetaskiwin, Alberta, 31 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Marker christened Gus, August Solberg Marker, and like most Canadian youngsters he took to the frozen ponds and rivers at any early age. Oddly enough he never played junior hockey something non-existent in his section of the west. He played in senior ranks until 1928 when he turned pro with Tulsa in the American association, later moving to Detroit Olympics in the International, and from there to Jack Adams' Red Wings. The 1933-34 season was his first in the N.H.L. and it was during the playoffs that he caught the eye of Tommy Gorman, then guiding Chicago Black Hawks to the Stanley Cup. When Gorman moved to the Maroons he secured Marker from the Motor City team in exchange for Wally Kilrea.

With the Montrealers Gus proved to be a steady dependable, but not especially brilliant, at least as far as the headlines were concerned, forward. Last year he held down the right wing berth on what was called the "Green Line," centred by Bob Gracie, with Herbie Cain on the left side. When Maroons blew up the latter two were immediately grabbed by Canadiens, and Marker was left wondering what his hockey fate would be. There's nobody happier than he over the way things turned out and Cecil Hart has probably gone through more than one teeth-gnashing session when he thinks of his two-thirds of the "Green Line." While Marker turns in one great performance after another for the Leafs, Herbie Cain toils in capable, but not outstanding form for the Frenchmen, while Gracie has already departed, sold to the Black Hawks. Strange sometimes are the spinnings of the hockey wheel.

Guelph Indians May Stir Howl

TORONTO, Dec. 3.—(CP).—Representatives of the Big Seven group of the Junior "A" division of the Ontario Hockey Association will meet here to-day to consider a decision by the O.H.A. executive allowing Guelph Indians to enter the group. There may be an official protest.

Permission was granted by the executive last night at a closed meeting in which Association groupings were arranged. The meeting did not adjourn until early to-day.

By the ruling the group becomes an eight team affair and will be divided into two sections with the clubs to play an interlocking schedule. The first three teams in each division will enter the playoffs.

One group contains Guelph, Toronto St. Michael's College, University of Toronto and Toronto Marlboroughs; the other, Oshawa, Toronto Native Sons, Toronto Lions and Toronto Young Rangers. It is the only Junior "A" group in the O.H.A.

The Indians, only Junior "A" team in Western Ontario, will play travelling expenses of other clubs to Guelph, but must pay its own expenses to Toronto. Guelph is the only club in the circuit without artificial ice. Regulations call for playoff games to be played on artificial ice.

Best-of-Five Series

First-place teams in each division will play off in a best-of-five series. Second and third-place teams will met in a best-of-three series. Finals will be best-of-five. In each case, teams with the better points record, or, in case of a tie in points, with the best goal average will have the choice fo extra games, if necessary.

The Big Seven delegation which attended the executive meeting consisted of Ed Wildey, group chairman and representative of Young Rangers; Dunc Sinclair, speaking for Lions, Marlboroughs, Varsity and Oshawa, and George O'Brien, representing Native Sons.

It was learned the delegation said the only objection they had to having Guelph in the circuit was that games would have to be played at Guelph on natural ice.

They feared the schedule would be disrupted by mild weather and contended that Guelph should not object to playing home games at the Galt artificial ice arena.

"It's a shame the Big Seven group, which has enough burdens to carry, has to carry Guelph along on top of everything," Wildey said in an interview today. "I can't see why we should have to take over another group's troubles when the O.H.A. with plenty of money in the treasury, could have helped Guelph and other Western Ontario teams over the hurdle.

"The money is in the OH.A. treasury to help the game along, but it doesn't seeem as if the money is to be touched."

Canary Laid 14 Eggs Raised Four Broods During Past Summer

(Examiner Correspondence.)

Trent River, Dec. 3.

MRS. JOHN SEDGWICK of the "Sedgwick House" is a great lover of canaries. At the present time she has a canary hen bird, that laid 14 eggs during the past summer, and raised four different broods. This brown mother bird with a golden colored throat has turned out to be a wonderful singer and keeps up its song of many varied notes along with another golden colored canary (male) a roller singer, which is quite unusual.

Fleming, one of the lighter members of the pyramid team, was occupying the topmost position in a pyramid which they were practising when he lost his balance and fell to the floor. This is the second occasion he has broken his arm during the past year, the first resulting from a fall while pole-vaulting.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (A.P.).—Pals of Jimmy (Bow Tie) Bronson, one of the sweller guys in the fight business, are boosting him for new "roving" assignment on the State Boxing Commission....As one of 'em pointed out, the French Government waited 20 years before handing Joplin Jimmy the Medal of Honr recently for his boxing work with the Doughboys during the Great War—so why should folks around here wait any longer to give him a break ....The boys along Cauliflower Alley figure N.Y. Secretary of State Ed. Flynn could do a lot worse than give Jimmy the appointment.

The baseball trade pot's boiling around Cleveland again—with the Red Sox and White Sox the cooks who're watching it....Bobby (Jitterbug) Kellogg wound up with the greatest ball-carrying record in Tulane University's history this season....He averaged seven yards per crack at the line, ran pnnts back 138, completed seven of 20 passes for 117, and booted 9 extra points in 12 tries....And he's only a soph.

Are the Giants worried about .. gess Whitehead? The grapevine says they're making passes at the Pirates for Pep Young once more, and they certainly wouldn't be doing that if they were sure Second Baseman Whitey was coming back....Photographers working the Missouri-Kansas football game are still booting themselves for missing Paul Christman's 76-yard touchdown run with a punt....Seems they kept their cameras trained on Jim Starmer, Paul's halfback mate, because on two previous kick returns he'd taken the ball from Paul on a lateral.

Davey O'Brien and I. B. Fight promoters are all in a dither about Pittsburgh's Billy Conn....'Cause he's the first classy prospect who's all Irish since Tommy Loughran and Jack Delaney.

The New Britain (Conn.) High School team which goes to the Baton Rouge winter football game, had a squad of more than 100 this season—just nine deep and one for good measure, if you please. . . And the talk around there is the triple-theatre of the outfit, Dornfeldt, is planning on goin gto Dartmouth. . . 'Tis said Southern Methodist'll be a much tougher crew next year, when ball-carryin' Bob Maddox graduates from the Freshmen....Notre Dame is 17-10 over Southern California on the bookies' books hereabouts. . . Division Court In Campbellford

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 3. — In an action brought against Andrew Dugan, Warkworth, for the recovery of $135.00, the amount of a note held by John Currie of Seymour Township, Judge L. V. O'Connor dismissed the case against Dugan, who was alleged to have endorsed the note for his son-in-law, Cameron Jaynes. Testifying before the court Dugan said that although the signature may have closely resembled his own, it was not his. Judgment for $135 and costs, including counsel fees, was awarded Currie against Jaynes, who did not appear.

John O'Sullivan brought the case before His Honor after the Court of Revision had denied the former councillor any lowering of assessment. The reduction placed the assessment now at $2,500. Mr. O'Sullivan was also successful in his appeal on a house and lot situated on Queen street. GOODYEARS DEFEAT OSHAWA 3-0 FOR THIRD STRAIGHT WIN

Port Colborne Wallops Brantford 9-1

(By the Canadian Press.)

Toronto Goodyears ,a collection of stars who are clicking individually but not collectively, perched atop the Ontario Hockey Association Senior firmament to-day, but Port Colborne Sailors and Niagara Falls Brights clutched at their heels. Goodyears have six points, the Tars and Brights one less.

League champions last season, the Toronto team, playing at home, whitewashed the Oshawa G-Men 3-0 last night for their third straight win.

Meanwhile, the Tars were trouncing Brantford's luckless Red Birds 9-1 in Sailortown, and St. Catharines Chiefs earned their first victory of the season, in four starts, with a 3-1 win over Brights at the Falls. The loss dropped Brights to a second-place tie with Port Colborne.

Hank Goldup, a gangling youngster who played junior with Toronto Northern Vocational School last season, started Goodyears on the victory road in the second period. Peanuts O'Flaherty, a pal of Goldup, accounted for the other two goals, the first on a pass from Bobby Laurent and the second after 58 seconds of the third session with Johnny Inglis and Shorty Robinson assisting.

St. Kitts Going Well.

St. Catharines played their best game of the young season to beat the strong Niagara Falls club. Tied 1-1 at the end of the first period, Speedy Groh's lads added two more in the second for the victory margin.

Bobbie Pinder, Eddie Lister, and Sammy Phillips were the St. Kitts' scorers, with Chirp Brenchley netting for the Falls.

The revamped Sailors scuppered the Brants with their best performance of the season. The runaway win, however, served to show that Ted Beatty of Brantford is one of the best goalies in the six-team league. His sensational stops of goal-labelled shots earned him many plaudits.

Outstanding performer for Ports was Doug Runions. Moved from the wing to centre, Runions ran riot to rifle home four goals and gain an assist.

George Wade accounted for two others and single scores were made by Captain Vince Upper, Al Thompson and Lloyd Fitzgerald.

Jack Kelly scored the Brantford goal in the third period after Ports had scored six.

British Hockey Crowds Get "Tough"

LONDON, Dec. 3—(CP). — Beneath typical Albion trappings hockey is moving its rugged way to a major post on Britain's sport calendar.

While the game has remained pretty much in its raw Canadian state its followers have undergone radical development. The polite, handclapping smattering of spectators who a few years ago expressed shocked surprise at rough play have become the most jeering, cheering, partisan, knock-'em-down, drag-'em-out crowd of rooters this side of Montreal.

During a lull the other night at Harringay a raucous coster tenor from the two-bob seats in the rafters expressed the new spirit:—

"Coo, mites, tike off yer giters and given 'em 'ell!"

In fact the only thing left which make a Canadian realize he isn't home is the setting and the accent. The setting includes rinkside diners in evening clothes tucking away caviar between loud bravos and a processional which includes a ceremonial fanfare, supporters' club songs and toy-soldier-clad ice sweepers—all to the accompaniment of a jazz band attired in the rink's colors.

Their Aim Has Been Good So Far

When it comes to rattling the puck in the twine back of some goaltender these two N.H.L. stars have been doing all right so far this season. Tommy Anderson, LEFT, plays left wing for New York Americans on the line with Nels Stewart and Eddie Wiseman, and he's bagged six goals to tie Johnny Gottselig, of the Hawks, for league leadership. Toe Blake, RIGHT, another leftwinger, has put five pucks into the net to take over third place, his work being done on one of the many-changing lines of Cecil Hart's Canadiens.

Time is travelling along and the Christmas season is on us. Some of the games may have to be postponed, or why not play them in advance. You have next week's schedule before you and it is up to you to do what suits you best.

The fees to date have come in up to 60 per cent. and I am sure it can be made 100 per cent. before Christmas is here. Who wants to be last on the list. Most like to be first.

We have four definite entries in the president's cup to date. They are both of St. Luke's, St. George's and one from the fire hall. The entry fee is 25 cents per man payable on the first night of play. The sooner the entries are in the sooner we can make the draw and get some of the games played.

One thing must be made clear. Reference to the fees of the league. Some teams have not been built up to full strength. You are allowed to have either four or five men but you must pay $5.00 per team regardless of the number registered.

You will note that nine out of the eleven games reported here are doubtful wins which shows that some one must be weakening.

The Curtis Brick Yard gang is sure getting steam up while the Fire Hall Orphans don't seem to be able to make the grade. But I guess when they do recover from their slump they will make some of the big shots jump around.

Imperials Out To Avenge Beatings Taken From Argos In '33 and '37

TORONTO, December 3—(CP)—Sarnia Imperials, champions of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, get their chance to-day to settle an old-time feud with Toronto Argonauts. Imperials want revenge for beatings in 1933 and 1937, when Argos pushed them aside and went on to the Dominion football championship.

The teams were to meet in Varsity Stadium this afternoon for the eastern title and a place in the national final against Winnipeg Blue Bombers next Saturday. Argos were the pre-game favorites at seven-to-five.

Close to a sell-out crowd of 20,000 is expected to watch the section's finest football squads tussle on a firm gridiron that may be wet by half-time, if the Weatherman's forecast of rain is right. Wet or dry, it should be a great game.

With both teams possessed of speedy backs and fine passers, the game is made to order for an exhibition of razzle-dazzle. There has been no indication from the coaches whether they will order wide-open tactics and with such kickers as Bob Isbister and Hugh Stirling opposing each other, it might just as well be a straight kicking duel.

Both teams will be close to top strength. Henry (Hi) Living, ruled ineligible under the Canadian Rugby Union residence clause, and Jim Butler, suffering from a leg injury, will be the only regular Imperials out of action. Argos, the National and Interprovincial Union champions, will be without Johnny Munro and Frank Stukus, both injured.

Hec Crighton will be the referee with Tatters Girard of Windsor umpire, and Bob Crosby, head linesman.

Remember When—

Mickey Walker the "Toy Bulldog" of the boxing ring, was knocked out for the first time in his career four years ago tonight. Against Paul Pirrone of Cleveland, Walker went down for the count in the 11th round of a scheduled 12-round bout at Philadelphia.

Tokyo is limiting the number of relief campaigns.

IN MEMORIAM

McCULLOUGH.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Hugh McCullough, who entered into rest December 3, 1935.
When evening shades are falling,
And we sit in quiet alone,
To our hearts there comes a longing:
If she only could come home.
—Ever remembered by her Sons and Daughters.

KROGH.—In loving memory of Leif E. Krogh, who entered into rest December 3, 1935.
Called to high and holy service,
In the presence of the King,
Till the dawning fair and glorious,
Of the bright eternal day.
When our Lord shall come, and sorrow
Shall forever pass away.
—Lovingly remembered by his wife, Muriel M. Krogh.

Streamlined Infantry Regiments Approved As U.S. Remodels Army

Happy Reunion

PONTIAC, Mich., Dec. 3—(CP).—Richard Kirk, 38, will see his 15-year-old daughter, Katherine, today for the first time. Kirk and his wife were estranged before Katherine's birth, but the daughter wrote him until five years ago.

She wrote police here this week asking for information about Kirk, saying she had been unabel to write to him because her grandparents, keeping her until recently, refused permission. The two arranged a meeting to take place to-night.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—(AP).—A new streamlined infantry regiment, smaller but far more mobile and harder hitting than either its Great War counterpart or the regiment of today, has received approval from the Unted Etates war department.

Moving by motor truck and armed with semi-automatic rifles, it is intended to become a major unit in the high speed army on wheels which is being developed.

While officials made public details of these plans today, War Secretary Woodring reported to President Roosevelt that national defence requirements may hasten construction of a third and possibly larger set of locks for the Panama Canal.

His report followed closely his recommendation to Mr. Roosevelt that the canal be made "impregnable".

Current surveys contemplate new facilities costing $150,000,000 or more, to be ready about 1960. Begun in 1936, the surveys were ordered by congress to meet expected increased demands from merchant craft and warships of larger size and from a greater flow of traffic.

Unit Cut from 3,742 to 2,411.

Officials who told of the new infantry plans said three of the new United States regiments will undergo field tests for a year in Texas as a part of a projected smaller infantry division.

At full war strength, the new unit has but 2,411 officers and men, contrasted with the Great War's 3,742 and the present 3,009.

Whereas the 1917-18 regiment was armed with 3,200 Springfield, single-shot rifles, and the existing regiment has 1,852 such weapons, the new organization will have 1,492 semi-automatic rifles, giving triple fire power. It also will have heavier and more numerous machine guns and auxiliary weapons.

Sees Press Duty Leading Way Back To Unity

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Dec. 3—(AP).—J. Roscoe Drummond, Boston editor, warned last night that the imperative need in the United States is a national reconciliation of interests and a co-operative settlement of differences, and that it is the function of a free press to lead the way.

Drummond, editor of The Christian Science Monitor, spoke at a banquet of Sigma Delta Chi, United States Journalistic Fraternity, during a celebration of the 35th anniversary of The Daily Orange, student daily at Syracuse University, of which he was editor in 1923-24.

"Can we newspapermen," Drummond asked, "escape the warning that the revolt against the editorial page will become truly a revolt against the press unless the press serves the independent reader with a news service which is accurate, balanced and complete, untainted by editorial opinion, untainted by reportorial opinion—a news service deeply and passionately devoted to the principle that news objectivity is a worthy, a sacred, and a primary function of the newspaper, vital to its own existence and vital to the existence of democratic processes.

"I think it is inevitable that those newspapers which fail—which shirk their trust in this matter—will be more severely penalized than they already have been, by losing the respect and support of vast groups of their readers; and worse, will invite the loss of a free press for all through the failure of some to use honestly and responsibly the freedom which is theirs."

American Volunteers Get Hot Farewell

Five Insurgent planes plunged 18 bombs on the railway outside the Spanish border town of Alp, shortly after the Americans had crossed into France. This was the largest exodus of American fighters since the Barcelona government decided to release all foreigners in its international brigades.

Government anti-aircraft batteries drove the raiders away. Casualties and damage were not determined immediately but none of the volunteers was hurt.

Only unwounded were included in the American group, which French authorities said numbered 332 soldiers. An additional group of about 300, which would include all wounded, is expected to reach here Dec. 8.

Wigle And Croll Hold Spotlight

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 3—(CP).—Windsor candidates for board of control and council objected today to the concentration of election interest on the fight between Mayor E. S. Wigle and David A. Croll for the chief magistrate's post in this border city.

"It is equally important that consideration be given to control board and council elections," declared controller Cyril Cooper in an election speech last night. "After all you have to elect only one mayor, but you have to place in office two controllers and five aldermen." His protest came as audiences ignored almost completely all meetings not addressed by either Croll or Wigle.

Roy C. Haight, third candidate for the mayoralty, complained too. "Wigle and Croll are having a fight of their own and they do not want anyone to butt in," Haight declared. "They both are doomed. They are confronted with a real working man and they do not know what to do about it."

Wigle told an election meeting last night Windsor lost $750,000 in a housing scheme started a decade ago, and the taxpayers could not get the money to undertake another housing scheme such as advocated by Croll.

Croll urged his listeners at a meeting to be sure and roll up a heavy majority for him in the election. "You know, figures like that carry a lesson to politicians here and elsewhere."

The election will be held Monday.

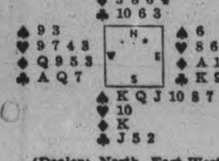
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

RESPECT THE REASON

THERE IS NO sustenance in blindly respecting rules of play which you have heard, no matter how sound those rules may be. The thing of paramount importance is the reason back of the rule. If you know that, you can then figure out when to lead from a king and do other perfectly sane things which may not seem to fit the literal wording of a so-called rule.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

One heart was North's opening bid on this deal. After 1-Spade by South, North went to 1-No Trump, South to 3-Spades and North to 4-Spades. West led the diamond 3, which East won with the A. East returned another diamond, thinking it could do no harm. Declarer ruffed and led two rounds of trumps. Then a heart was cashed and on the three remaining hearts, the losing clubs were tossed.

East had been told never to lead from a king and because he failed to do so in this instance he allowed South to make a contract to which he was not entitled. The diamond return was useless and dangerous because of the heart situation. When the diamond K dropped, it indicated a singleton, the hearts and trumps were solid, so that the only hope to defeat declarer was in the club suit.

134 Students Of P.C.I. Get Diplomas

High School days ended officially for 134 students of Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational school yesterday afternoon, when annual commencement exercises were held. With their hearts in their mouths, former pupils walked across the platform to the applause of a crowded auditorium and received diplomas and special prizes they had earned.

Highlight of the day, as every year, was the announcement of "head boy" and "head girl." Head boy this year was named by Dr. H. R. H. Kenner, principal, to be Don Diplock, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Diplock, 528 Hunter street west. In the announcement of the head girl was a poignancy that escaped none—she was Ruth Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Robinson, Gilmour street. Miss Robinson is a sister of the late Melville C. Robinson, who once won the title of head boy, and who was drowned about six years ago. It was in his memory that his parents founded the Melville C. Robinson Memorial Prize, which goes each year to the head boy along with the principal's prize.

Prize to the boy most valuable on the football team went to "Bill" Harle. Supplementing the entire program were selections by the school orchestra and the girls' glee club.

Main address of the day, to the graduating class, was delivered by W. J. Dunlop, B.A., director of university extension and publicity, University of Toronto, who was once principal of King Edward and Queen Alexandra schools in this city.

There are two classes of people in the world, the planners and the drifters, Mr. Dunlop told the audience. "I am most anxious to show you how to belong to the former." He urged upon students the necessity of hard work and continued application throughout their lives, labelled as false "a rumor abroad that hard work is not done any more."

On the contrary, he said, it is necessary to work just as hard in these days as ever before. "The world is not run by pull, but by push," he stold students. He urged upon them ambition and industry as keynotes of success.

Young people should make a choice of a life's object early in their school career, he said. "You must have an objective, and then your studies will fall in line with it." He told them they must never stop learning, that they should continue study after their school career had ended.

Urging upon them the folly of dropping subjects at school merely because they were not fond of them, he told of incidents in his experience in which young men and women have been barred from entering university because they had dropped Latin or French or Geometry studies at high school. "If you want to build yourself into a strong character, undertake something you don't like and carry it to successful completion," he told them.

To those who intended to go on to university, he had a good word of advice. "Never say there are not enough funds at home to send you. If you want to go badly enough, you will, as lots have done before you." He urged students to consider carefully what course they intended to take at university, told them of some of the mistakes pupils have made in the past. Few pupils know what possibilities each course offers, even what courses are possible at each university. He illustrated by mentioning physio-therapy and occupational therapy courses, "of which you have probably never heard," and said that no graduate of either course is out of work at the present time and that there is room for a good many more. "Getting in the wrong course or in the wrong occupation is the greatest problem to-day, he said. He claimed that too few parents give the matter any real study.

The valedictory address was prepared by Ronald Dick, and was read in his absence by Bill Davidson.

The meeting was under chairmanship of Dr. G. Raymore Scott, chairman of the board of education, and members of the staff presented graduation diplomas and certificates. D. G. H. Melton, chairman of the board's supervision committee, presented winners of Nicholls scholarships as follows: Form V, 1, Ronald Dick; 2, Pauline Rigg-Story. Form IV, 1, Jean Moore; 2, Alex Young. Form III, 1, William Henry; 2, Earle Routly. Form II, 1, Hugh Kenner; 2, Norma Timlin. Grade IX, a, b, c, d, 1, Norma Elcombe; 2, Christine Carlisle.

Eleanor Craig, Donald Duncan, and Barrie Jack were presented with the A. Wander Company trophies for supremacy in senior sports, by Chairman Dr. Scott, acting in place of Charles Shaw.

Vocational School, Household and Industrial Arts Department—James Sands.

R. F. Downey, B.A., presented the prize to the head girl on behalf of his wife and Dr. Kenner to the head boy, along with his own prize.

Winner of the upper school Latin prize, presented by Miss Helen R. McGregor, B.A., was Pauline Rigg-Story, while winners in French prose, presented by Miss Margaret White, B.A., were Pauline Rigg-Story in upper school, Jean Moore in middle school.

Graduation diplomas were presented to the following students:

Leniency For Strikers

The French press was unanimously behind the government in rejecting any territorial discussion with Italy and called for leniency toward the recent strikers.

Daladier conferred with General George Catroux, who commands the 19th Army Corps in Algeria, bordering Tunis on the North African coast. It would be from Algeria that most forces would move for defence of Tunis in the event of conflict.

The general belief was expressed in diplomatic quarters that Germany was backing the Italain campaign. These quarters said Germany agreed to support Premier Mussolini when Italy ceased backing Polish and Hungarian ambitions to obtain a common frontier by absorbing the Carpatho-Ukraine section of Czechoslovakia.

The French government was expected to ask Von Ribbentrop just how far the Reich is prepared to support its partner in the Rome-Berlin axis in the suddenly unleashed Fascist drive for expansion.

According to prevailing belief here, Germany has no direct expansionist interests in the central Mediterranean area, which Italy regards as its special preserve.

12,774 Cattle Been Tested In County Drive

Satisfactory progress was being made in the testing of cattle for tuberculosis in Peterborough county, Frank Paterson, Department of Agriculture representative, told members of the county council in session on Friday afternoon. He said the townships of Otonabee and North Monaghan had been completed. Cattle under the Act must be tested twice—sixty days apart. To date 770 herds have been tested comprising 12,774 head of cattle. In this number 447 reactors were found. $13,940 was paid to farmers in compensation. On the second test 47 herds were gone over. Nineteen additional reactors were found, mostly young cattle. An additional sum of $510 was paid to the farmers for the 19 cattle which were destroyed. There is only one man doing this work and that accounts for the fact the testing is not completed. A petition has been received from Reeve Clarke seeking to have the townships of Galways and Cavendish made a restricted area. It is expected this request will be gazetted soon and the work will probably be done next summer.

Must Clean Up Barns

He explained that no compensation is paid to farmers once reactors are found until the farm premises including the barns are thoroughly cleaned up. Another safeguard being made in the county, according to Mr. Paterson, all cattle being brought in a restricted area from a non-tested area, are all tested for T.B. before being allowed into the county. This, he said, showed up the regular work somewhat. So for approximately four cows out of every hundred were found to be infected with tuberculosis.

Soil Survey

Reviewing the progress being made on a soil survey in the county during the year Mr. Paterson said most of the outside work had been finished a month ago. It would have been completed now had not the tester, Mr. Hill, fallen and broken his shoulder. A complete soil map will be ready in the spring and will show the various types of soil all through the county. A type of soil which predominated in Otonabee township and in many other parts of the county has been named Otonabee loam. This soil is high in lime value and is a shallow deposit on top of the glacial layer. He voiced the opinion the soil testing would be of considerable value to the farmers.

Boys' Work

Mr. Paterson's report on boys' work including junior farmer judging revealed that a larger group than ever before took part at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. He described the various competitions in which they took part and related the success. "I believe we have reached the zenith of a cycle in junior farmer judging this year, and will have to start building again," he said. He explained that boys cannot take part in the competitions twice and he said it was unlikely a winning team could be produced for at least two years.

Keene Short Courses

He made brief reference to the short colrses now being held at Keene village and expressed delight at the interest being shown by the 32 boys and 27 girls attending. The courses last three months and there are four instructors.

"They young people are going to get a trading they could not get any other way. They are being taught agriculture, home economics and some of the cultural subjects including music appreciation. Marketing, economics and co-operation are being featured in the curriculum," said Mr. Paterson. Sociology is also being tought for the first time at this type of short course.

Suburban Committe Reports

Harry Gainey, chairman of the suburban roads committee reviewed the work done in the suburban area. He congratulated the council of North Monaghan for their wisdom in laying mulch surfaces on a few stretched of road and intimated that the splendid wear given by this type of surface would convince any skeptics of their value. He also extended the thanks of the Commission to Reeve Allan B. Mann of Smith township who on two occasions entertained the members.

Morley Smithson, veteran member of the commission, spoke briefly expresing regret that John McIntosh, the other member of the commission was unable to attend because of illness. Mr. Smithson told the council that the average gravel road required resurfacing after one year of heavy traffic wheras the mulch surface lasted many years, and even when worn down left a splendid base on which to work.

Reeve Milby of North Monaghan asked the commission members to consider the resurfacing of McKellar avenue in the future so that it would be possible for the bus service to extend west on McKellar and north on Park to Lansdowne.

Canada Manufactures War Airplanes

When Lt.-General R. F. A. Wenninger of the Imperial German Air Force, and Col. A. Calderara, Italian air attache, visited the Handley-Page factory at Cricklewood, England, last September, they got a very good look at the new Hampden bomber, shown ABOVE. In November, when it was announced in the British parliament that a large order for this type of plane was to be placed with a Canadian aircraft syndicate representing most of Canada's aviation factories, both Herr Hitler and Il Duce had a very good idea of the effectiveness of this modern-day bomber. While the Hampden is the Royal Air Force's newest and speediest twin-engined bomber, companion craft to the Bristol Blenheim which is now being constructed at Longueil, Quebec, it is pointed out by informed observers that delivery of the new Hampdens will not be possible from the Canadian factories until late in 1940. Thus the planes will be virtually three years old when they are placed in England's defence.

Collegiate Notes

THE HOOP SPORT

With football safely tucked away in the mothballs and the days getting longer and colder, this corner thought it might be a good idea to give you some idea of the chances of the three P.C.I. basketball squads in the coming season.

In the Senior Lakeshore group the Bowmanville Seniors look to be about tops. They had a fair squad last year and a lot of good junior players coming up. Remember how their junior quintet held our seniors in one game last year? However, the '39 edition of P.C.I. may give them quite a run. Lindsay with no junior squad to build from can hardly be considered and Oshawa are an unknown quantity.

In the junior boys we look for P.C.I. to be right up in there, having lots of potentially good material coming up. Bowmanville may be the choice, with Cobourg and Port Hope also strong contenders.

Cobourg senior girls, who were C.O.S.S.A. champs last year look like the logical choice but don't forget old P.C.V.S., who have lots of good junior talent coming up. All in all the Garnet and Grey should do all right. But one never knows, does one?

CHRISTMAS CARDS

The Yuletide Spirit has hit the old Alma Mater full force. Order forms for the Christmas cards that you chose a week or so ago were passed around the different forms by form representatives on Wednesday. Unfortunately, the number of cards ordered was far behind that of other years, being only 1090 as compared to 2500 in 1936 and 3,276 in '37. However, it was arranged to give students one more chance to order cards and the order forms will be sent through the school again. Mr. Henry explained from the platform of the assembly, on Thursday morning that the school could only get the cards at the present price (6 cents per card) if an order of 2,000 or better was sent to the company. Some of the students didn't like the color of garnet on the cards, it being a little light. However, the company have promised to give us a darker shade and the necessary number of orders should be obtained. Let's hope so.

HOCKEY

This year P.C.I. is again planning to enter a team in the Junior City League with the probable coach being Mr. Bill Jackson who did such a fine job last year. It is felt however that P.C.V.S. should enter a team in the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association, the old school seldom having had a squad in this league, sticking to football and basketball. Mr. Jackson believes that the team would do well, facing such teams as Bowmanville, Oshawa and other school sextets. Then at end of the season all the group winners meet at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto in a two day elimination series for the Ontario Secondary Schools championship. However when a team enters such a grouping, the players naturally need a lot of practice. Consequently plans for building an open air rink on the front campus are being looked into at present by the Students' Council. Such a rink would be a big step forward in outdoor school activity. Besides being used for hockey practices it might be the scene of form skating parties, school skating activity and even, very possibly inter-form hockey games after four. While this project might entail some expense it would save the school a lot in not having to rent other rinks in the city for hockey practices. All in all, the way we see it, it would be an A-1 idea. Help to promote school activity. Let's have a rink for P.C.I. students only. Let's hear what you think of the idea. Address all correspondence to this column, care Peterborough Examiner, Peterborough.

COMMENCEMENT

By the time you read these carefully transcribed lines, the 1938 commencement exercises will be history and you will read about it elsewhere in this paper. However this affair is noteworthy for one reason if no other. And that, is that it marks the first appearance of our Glee Club. The Glee Club, an all-girl organization, is under the direction of Miss Weddell and should play prominent part in the coming school activities. Also at Commencement, scholarships and prizes were presented along with the diplomas.

ECHOES

Lately, there has been a lot of talk around the home of the Garnet and Gray about the Echoes, due to appear before many weeks have come and gone. Calls have gone out for literary and artistic contributions and all in all it looks like plans are going right ahead for a bigger and better school year book than ever. This year marks the 25th annual publication of Echoes. Deadline for literary efforts is January 6th for upper school students and January 15 for those of forms 9 and 10. This difference is due to the fact that the lower school writes exams in December and the higher forms are not called upon until late in January.

MOSTA OF THE BESTA

It occurred to us that it might be of some interest to you, and you and you to see what kind of a rugby team P.C.I. could field if she had all her old time stars back, along with the best of the later teams. Well, here is a team, that we would consider an all-time, all-star, P.C.I. squad. You may not and probably do not agree with any or all of the selections, and if not, why not send your all-star team to us and if we get enough we could select the best team, in your opinion. Well here goes:

This team would have a great offensive and would be equally strong defensively. There is kicking, passing and running strength in the backfield and fine tackline ability in the front wall. This team, if it weren't a dream would take on any collegiate team in the province and probably beat them. However, send in your contributions.

KAYDETS

The officers who will direct the Cadets, come the spring, are working hard now and we should have a fine staff of officers when our cadet corps turns out for drill. Barrie Jack, in the Assembly hall Thursday morning, said that the turnouts so far had been satisfactory and that commissioned officers classes would start right way. P.C.I. has always had fine Cadet Corps and the acquisition of some blue uniforms last year was a big boost. Usually there are about 350 boys in uniform on inspection day and this year promises to be no exception.

A. M. ENTERTAINMENT

On Monday morning Mr. Henry presented an interesting reel of film showing the process of wheat all the way from the fields in Western Canada until it rolls out of the baker's oven as loaves of bread. Strangely enough, this film was entitled "Our Daily Bread." Mr. Henry all but brought the house down with the promise that one of these films will be shown some morning every week from now on. We had some more morning entertainment this week and there is no apparent reason why it shouldn't continue. How about the Glee Club making a showing one of these mornings. And how about a new song or two? Our Students' Council promised big things in this line and so far but one song has been introduced and that some weeks ago.

THISSA AND THATTA

The Auditorium was being used Wednesday and Thursday nights for the Y's Men's "Front Page Frolics" . . . Students were given the chance of seeing this performance at 4 bells Wenesday . . . . "Finally, in spite of the drastic fall in wheat prices, the national income derived from wheat exports will be larger in the present season than for some years past.

"True, the Dominion Government stands to lose $3,000,000 for each cent the world price falls below the minimum price (for no. 1 wheat) of 80 cents, and it is not likely that prices will rise much above their present level below 60 cents.

"But this may be partly offset by a lower deficit for the Canadian National Railways, and eastern Canada will benefit from larger orders for railroad and agricultural equipment and from larger mail order sales.

Something To Remember

"Much of the ground lost during the recession therefore may well be regained during the next six months. But there are certain fundamental conditions affecting Canadian economy which it is dangerous to forget.

"In the first place, Canada is still primarily dependent on the foreign demand for wheat, flour, pulp and paper, base metals and other products, all of which fluctuate violently in supply, demand and price.

"Again, aggravating the stresses and strains resulting from volatile industries, there are Canada's high overhead costs. Indeed, Canadian politics during the 1930's have seen an increasingly bitter struggle between conflicting economic interests—although the issues have usually been confused.

"These conflicts of interest have been more or less involved in constitutional struggles between the Dominion, provinces and municipalities.

"During the present regime Mr. Mackenzie King has once again displayed consummate skill in obtaining compromises, delaying crises and holding tensions. But another long depression is almost sure to create both local and national political crisis."

posing the admittance of any Jewish members of the profession from Europe. This was done so that the profession would not become crowded. Why should agriculturists not take similar precautions against competition?" he asked.

"We have not enough people in Canada for the size of the country or the money invested," said Reeve Anderson of Otonabee. I feel we should encourage a type of immigrant who would be a consumer. Reservations should exist to block those who use the alibi of agriculture as the doorway to get in. Following the war Canada accepted a large number of farm workers. They were a good type of immigrant mostly from the British Isles. However, even these only stayed on the farms a few years. Nine-tenths of them had no intention of remaining there and today a great many are on the relief rolls of Canadian cities. I would admit no person who has not enough money to buy a farm and pay his way. We don't want penniless refugees, we have enough problems now."

Feeding Enough Now.

"We might be called on to accept a quota from Germany soon if we do not register a protest. To my way of thinking we are feeding enough now. I agree with Reeve Anderson that if any immigrant has $10,000 he should be allowed in.

"If we must take immigrants let us have English, Irish, Scots or possibly Scandinavians," was Reeve Brown's comment.

"Eighty-five per cent. of the fruit now produced in British Columbia is controlled by Orientals," said Reeve Gifford. "Perhaps we are heading into a similar condition."

Reeve Griffiths of Belmont added his opposition to any immigrants from Central or Southern Europe.

The final decision was to have Reeve Milby prepare a resolution outlining the attitude of the Council which will be presented to the Council for approval Saturday morning.

National Unity Put First In Case Of War

NEWMARKET, Ont., Dec. 3 (CP) —Hon. Norman Rogers, Federal Labor Minister, said in an address last night that Canada's position in an Empire war crisis, under Liberal policies, was dependent upon the question of maintaining national unity. He said the Liberal policy supported peace when couched in terms of honor and freedom.

Mr. Rogers was speaking at Pickering College here, 30 miles north of Toronto. The address was the first in a series of community forums on national problems. The labor minister cited national unity as a major issue, both in general terms and in relation to constitutional problems.

In a question period, he was told by one of the audience that his definition of the peace policy was vague and by its vagueness held an inherent danger to Canadians. The questioner then asked what would happen if war was declared by Great Britain, under, for example, the same conditions as the recent crisis.

Mr. Rogers said liberal foreign policy was bound up in the maintenance of national unity and that if Canada was to bring the full force of her resources to bear in war it was essential to have a unified nation. There would not be, he argued, any advantage in taking premature action that would threaten national unity.

"We had to meet this question not long ago," Mr. Rogers said. "It was not easy to know when to speak and when to keep silent. But I am satisfied that whatever was said or left unsaid, the effect would have been to retain the unity of the country."

Von Ribbentrop's Paris Visit Is Suspected A Trap To Aid Nazi Colony Aims

Daladier To Reject Any Mediation Offers In Italian Land Demands; Corsicans Demonstrate Their Loyalty

PARIS, Dec. 5 (AP).—Premier Daladier, strengthened by organized anti-Italian demonstrations in Tunis and Corsica, is preparing to block any attempt by Germany to use French-Italian tension as a lever to further the Nazi's own colonial demands, political informants said today.

The German Foreign Minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, is to come to Paris tomorrow to sign the French-German friendship agreement, which both French and Germans agree is only the starting point for further negotiations.

A report Von Ribbentrop would offer to act as mediator between Rome and Paris already was mooted about Paris, but the question everywhere was "at what price?"

Premier Daladier's own Radical Socialist party newspaper, L'Oeuvre, referred to the fact that Von Ribbentrop's visit to Paris coincided with Italian agitation for French Tunis and Corsica and said flatly: "It is a trap."

Daladier, reliable informants said, was ready to reject Von Ribbentrop's bid if any strings were tied to it, such as aid for the German goal of returned colonies.

These informants indicated the French believed Premier Mussolini of Italy would be willing to call a halt to the agitation for Tunis if the French would recognize the Spanish insurgent General Franco as head of a belligerent government. Officials hinted that France would not offer such a price.

Corsica Loyal.

The French lost no time preparing to meet the Italian agitation. There were demonstrations of loyalty Sunday by Moslems in Susa-Tunisie, by Tunisians and French in the city of Tunis, and by thousands of Corsicans in Ajaccio and Bastia.

In Corsica, where the spirited inhabitants of Napoleon's Island birthplace never have been slow to demonstrate, organizers of Sunday mas smeetings received a telegram from the French naval minister, Cesar Champinchi, expressing his "full agreement" with the demonstrations.

Daladier, political informants said, was ready to tell the German foreign minister that France was not in a giving mood right now and that it was doubtful France would be so in the future.

Gaston Bergery, deput yof the Left, however, said what many politicians had been thinking in France when he drew a distinction between French colonies and territories held by France under League of Nations mandate.

"It goes without saying that our possessions across the sea are sacred," Bergery told a Frontist party meeting in Paris. "As to the former German colonies under League of Nations mandates, we declare that we cannot look forward to any modifications of the status quo, where France would be the only one to make sacrifices and where the German Reich would find new possibilities for aggression."

Unanimous "No."

Bergery's comment opened the question whether France might be willing, when the Nazis begin thumping drums for colonies in earnest, to cede Togoland and the Cameroons.

At present the only official and alomst unanimous unofficial answer is "no." Some Rightist groups, however, point out that such cession could be made gracefully—if Germans would consent to return to the League of Nations and then get the mandate for the possession from France with the League blessing.

The Union of Franco-Italian War Veterans in Paris, the popular Italian union of the Mountauban district, the Board of the French expansion centre, linked with the government tourist office and Corsican war veterans in Paris Sunday passed resolutions against the Italian claims to Tunisia and Corsica.

County Council Asks Probe Of Legal Costs

Reeve Griffith of Belmont led the County Council in an attack on legal costs as the county council sessions neared completion on Saturday. His drive received attention as the members unanimously supported a resolution calling for an investigation not only into the fees charged by the members of the legal profession but also into the costs of administration of justice.

"There is no common sense to the fees charged by lawyers, they are beyond all reason," he said in his first remarks on the subject. Reeve McColl of Asphodel seconded his motion, which read as follows: That this Council petition the Ontario government to appoint a commission of one farmer, a business man, a labor man and a lawyer to investigate excessive costs with a view to lowering the charge for legal services and administration of justice expenses to the public. That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Provincial government, also that a copy be sent to the Wardens of the counties in Ontario seeking their support."

County Forest.

A by-law covering a lease between the County and the Crown for 2,665 acres of land in the township of Dummer and Belmont which are to be used for reforestation purposes received its final reading on Saturday.

Reeve W. A. Anderson of Otonabee who has pushed the plan since it was first mooted some time ago was named chairman of a commission to supervise the project. He will hold office for six years. Reeve E. N. McDonald was named to the committee for a period of three years, and three other members, Reeves Gifford, McColl and Brown will serve for one year. It is hoped to always have at least one man on the commission who will be experienced and by appointing chairmen

British Upheld For Saving Jap Property

LONDON, Dec. 5 (CP-Havas). — The act of British forces in Hankow in severing fuses laid to dynamite charges in Japanese buildings after the Chinese evacuation of the city was justified on humanitarian grounds, Richard Butler, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House of Commons today.

Adrain Moreing, Conservative, asked whether the Prime Minister was aware that after the Chinese retreated from Hankow British bluejackets were sent to cut wires and remove explosives laid down by the Chinese in Japanese buildings.

"By whose order was this done and what reason was there for this interference with legitimate Chinese military operations?" Mr. Moreing asked.

"British naval patrols," replied Mr. Butler, "were landed to maintain order in the former British concession. On taking over temporary charge they removed dynamite and other charges from buildings which had been previously prepared for demolition.

"This was done to prevent damage to adjoining British property and loss of life in the former British concession.

"With regard to the latter part of the question, the British Government are satisfied that in the interests of humanity the action taken was fully justified."

Recluse Found Shot To Death

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Dec. 5. —(CP)—The house where the bullet riddled body of Charles H. Jones was fonud yesterday was searched by police today for possible clues in the slaying.

Dr. E. R. Frankish and Inspector George McKay arrived in St. Catharines yesterday afternoon and started the investigation.

There were two bullets, one in Jones' head and the other at the base of the spine. No weapon has yet been found.

Jones was somewhat of a recluse, raising canaries and chickens. He seldom left the house, coming into St. Catharines only about once a month for his mail. He had few friends, and according to reports, visitors were scarce.

A third bullet was found today in Jones' body, about two inches above the spine. A postmortem is being held.

372 Protest, 255 Approve Mars "Invasion" So U.S. Decides To Let Actor Welles Alone

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(AP). —The United States' Communications Commission has decided to take no action on complaints that the Orson Welles broadcast of Oct. 30 caused many radio listeners to believe that men from Mars were invading the country.

The Commission said to-day that it believed steps already taken by the Columbia Broadcasting Company were sufficient to protect the public interest.

"While it is regrettable that the broadcast alarmed a substantial number of people," the Commission said, "there appeared to be no likelihood of a repetition of the incident and no occasion for action by the Commission."

The Commission received 372 protests against the program and 255 letters and petitions approving it.

Wets Drink In Little Current Streets, Situation Grows Worse Says Mayor, As L.C.A. Is Shelved

LITTLE CURRENT, Ont., Dec. 5 — (CP). — Manitoulin Island, as "wet" as it cares to be, looked back to-day on its first week-end period since pre-war days when no liquor control law was made effective.

Beer and liquor was sold in some hotels and restaurants and a few gay spirits celebrated by openly drinking from bottles on downtown streets.

Mayor Harold Hembruff of Little Current said the situation had become worse since Attorney-General Gordon Conant's announcement Friday that the Liquor Control Act of Ontario would no longer be enforced on the island and that it was up to the Dominion Government to enforce the Canada Temperance Act.

Mr. Conant's statement meant that local option laws on the island would not be enforced by Ontario Provincial police. The Attorney-General pointed out that the courts had decided the Canada Temperance Act was in force and therefore it was up to the Dominion to do the policing.

Over a period of several years in which liquor law jurisdiction has been in dispute, beer has been sold more or less openly in some Manitoulin hotels. Many storekeepers on the island also sold beer, especially during the summer tourist season.

"No one but the bootleggers will be pleased by Attorney-General Conant's announcement" said Mayor Hembruff. "It will certainly tickle them. The liquor situation has been bad in Manitoulin, but now it will be worse."

Mayor Hembruff said there was not a single Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers stationed here to enforce the Canada Temperance Act, which forbids all sale of beer, wine and liquor.

Britain Will Defend Any Of Empire Says Chamberlain

London, Dec. 5 (CP Cable)

GREAT BRITAIN would rush to defend any section of the British Empire attacked by a foreign nation, Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today.

The prime minister said he was sure he was interpreting the wishes of the people of Great Britain in this regard. He added that the constitutional position was that each self-governing country in the empire is free to decide that contribution it would make if another part of the empire were attacked.

Mr. Chamberlain spoke in reply to a question from Arthur Henderson, Labor.

Go See Alberta Aberhart Urges

SEAFORTH, Ont., Dec. 5 (CP).— Go west and see what Social Credit is doing for Alberta, Premier William Aberhart of that province exhorted his hearers last night in the First Presbyterian Church here. The Premier came back to his home town before returning west after a trip to Ottawa in connection with a refunding plan.

It was Mr. Aberhart's first visit since 1935 to visit his 98-year-old mother, Mrs. Louisa Aberhart, and his two brothers, Charles and Louis.

In an interview, Mr. Aberhart denied ever promising a $25-a-month dividend to Albertans. He had told audiences he saw no reason why a dividend shouldn't be paid and that he thought this dividend shouldn't be less than $25 a month.

Dividends will only be paid, he said, out of a surplus created by Alberta's natural resources.

"Never will any dividends be paid from taxation. That only impoverishes one group to satisfy another."

On the question of relief projects, Mr. Aberhart asked: "Why build highways with relief labor when a machine with five men will do the work of 100 men at quarter the cost?"

Mahatma Gandhi Mellows With Age

OTTAWA, Dec. 5 (CP)—Mahatma Gandhi, Indian nationalist leader, has mellowed with age and is no longer a political force in India's affairs, according to Brigadier Francis H. Maynard, commander of Great Britain's Bannu Brigade at Waziristan, India, for the past four years.

Relating some of his experiences while in command of the Bannu Brigade, the Ottawa-born officer described the capture in May, 1937, of Sham Plain in a battle with a band of Torkhels. "They swore we would never get it, but we did by a night march and a surprise attack," he said.

"We climbed to an elevation of 1,500 feet and travelled a distance of five miles, the scouts acting as guides. We had 70 0mules with us to carry out supplies. It was coronation night (May 12, 1937) and after the fighting was over we listened to the King's speech which came in from London over a small portable wireless.

"When His Majesty concluded we were quite startled and thrilled to hear the announcer state that the Bannu Brigade had captured Sham Plain. In honor of the occasion we named Bivouac 'Coronation Camp'."

After graduating from Royal Military College at Kingston, Ont., Brigadier Maynard joined the Indian Army 37 years ago. He is retiring with the rank of brigadier and will return to England shortly to make his home there.

Quaker Trio To Plead Jew Cause With Nazis

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5.—(AP). —A trio of Pennsylvania Quakers, members of a sect characterized by trait sof peace-loving and neighborly affection, were bound for Germany to-day to plead with high Nazis, perhaps even Chancellor Hitler, on behalf of Jews and other persecuted minorities.

The group was headed by a 75-year-old college professor who helped feed destitute Germans after the Great War.

John Harvey, of Philadelphia, a member of the American Friends' Service Committe of the Society of Friends (Quakers), said the three men sailed from New York last Friday on the liner Queen Mary to "observe and bring back some idea how he could help alleviate conditions" in Germany.

He said the delegation consisted of Dr. Rufus M. Jones, Haverford College philosophy professor; D. Robert Yarnall, Philadelphia manufacturer, and George A. Walton, principal of a Friends' school at Newton Square, Pa.

Minister Enters Tory Race For Leadership

HAMILTON, Dec. 5 (CP)—Rev. Norman Rawson, minister of Centenary United Church, will be a candidate for the leadership of the Ontario Conservative party at the convention in Toronto, Thursday and Friday of this week.

Mentioned for some time as a possible contender for the leader's office, relinquished by Hon. Earl Rowe, M.P., Rev. Mr. Rawson made his decision today.

Widely known in the province as a preacher and an after-dinner speaker the Hamilton minister said his decision to stand follows representations made to him from all parts of the province.

His entrance brings the known aspirants to four, three of whom are lawyers. Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew, K.C., Hon. Earl Lawson, K.C., and Wilfred Heighington, K.C., are announced candidates.

In a brief statement announcing his candidature Rev. Mr. Rawson said:

"I have decided to allow my name to stand for leadership of the Ontario Conservative party. I believe there is a great opportunity for men of the right calibre to work in conjunction with others of vision and practical experience in meeting the problems of the province today.

"Anything that I have to say will be heard from the floor of the convention."

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Dec. 5.—(CP). —Originally arrested on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident, Orbay Alyea of Ameliasburg township, yesterday was charged with manslaughter, following the death of Edward J. Simond, fatally injured on Highway No. 14 when struck by a passing automobile.

George Asmith of Kingston, noticed a man lying on the road last night and rushed him to hospital here, where he died this morning. Police found an automobile one mile from the scene of the accident. Glass was broken in one headlight and the car was towed to Belleville.

Alyea and his son later went to the police station to find out why the car had been taken, police said, and Alyea was arrested. An inquest was held this afternoon and adjourned to Dec. 12 at Roblin's Mills.

Simonds, on Sunday, from injuries received when struck by a car allegedly driven by Alyea on Saturday night, appeared before a justice of the peace here today and was remanded until Wednesday. Gordon Walmsley, Crown Attorney, would not entertain a plea for bail until Alyea's appearance in court Wednesday.

France Is Playing With Fire Duce's Press Warns Of Anti-Italian Outbreaks

Rome Demands Coming With Berlin Backing Says Fiery Fascist Editor; Denies Ciano Bowed To Perth And Poncet

ROME, Dec. 5 (AP).—Virginio Gayda, who frequently is spokesman for Premier Mussolini, indicated today that Italy would make demands on France at some future date.

The Fascist editor did not disclose precisely what the demands would be or when they would be made.

The Italian campaign for Tunisia, meanwhile, gained momentum with Fascist warnings to France that she was "playing with fire" by permitting anti-Italian demonstrations such as those of yesterday in Tunisia and Corsica.

Gayda indignantly denied that Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian Foreign Minister, had been forced to back down in talks with the Earl of Perth and Andre Francois-Poncet, the British and French Ambassadors to Rome.

"He posed a problem," Gayda wrote in the newspaper Il Gionale d'Italia. "He will follow it up at the proper time with that energy which is his."

(In London Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons had received assurances that the Italian Government did not associate itself with the campaign for French territories. He said Lord Perth had warned Count Ciano that such agitation "must have a detrimental effect" on possible collaboration among the four Munich powers).

No Split In Sight

Gayda disputed French suggestions that Germany, about to sign a new no-war agreement with France, would refrain from supporting the Italian demands.

"The French reactions," Gayda said, "are in vain. Italy and Germany, which have some destinies, are marching together with resolute will as well as an enlightened spirit of responsibility."

The Fascist press questioned the spontaneity of the anti-Italian demonstrations in Corsica and Tunisia and almost unanimously accused France of trying to worsen already strained Italo-French relations. Some accused France of a "provocative attitude."

Il Lavoro Fascista said French "agitation" threatened to "bring Franco-Italian relations to the extreme."

Strike Ties Up 14,000 Men In Buick Shops

FLINT, Mich. Dec. 5—(AP).—The Buick plant of General Motors Corporation was closed at 10 a.m. today because of a shortage of automobile bodies incidental to a strike in the Fisher Body Plant No. 1, settlement of which was announced last night.

Settlement of the strike called at Fisher last night was announced following a 13-hour conference in Detroit Sunday.

At the Fisher plant, however, the picket line was strengthened this morning, and Henry Wilson, president of the Fisher local of the United Automobile Workers, said "we will do nothing until we receive a report from an international executive board member. Then it will be up to the membership to decide what will be done."

Wilson said a meeting of the local would be held to night to discuss the settlement.

Corporation spokesmen said no attempt would be made to operate the afternoon shift in the Fisher plant, Buick, which employs approximately 14,000 men, will not operate until Fisher plant is reopened, they said. The fisher plant employs 6,400.

Homer Martin, international president of the U.A.W., issued a statement in Detroit attributing the strike to a "misunderstanding that the local (Fisher) plan manager's decision on the question of changing from piece work to day work method of payment could not be appealed to higher corporation officials."

"This misunderstanding has been cleared up," he said. "And the case will be appealed immediately."

Martin said the agreement would be submitted to the Flint local tonight, and negotiations on the piece work dispute will begin Wednesday.

McCormick Fighting Breach Of Promise

CHICAGO, Dec. 5 (AP)—Counsel for Harold F. McCormick, chairman of the Board of International Harvester Company, said in a statement yesterday "there was no basis whatever" for the "$2,000,000 breach of promise suit filed by Mrs. Olive Randolph Colby, 51, of Kansas City.

Mrs. Colby, widow of a New York sportsman, alleged in her bill filed in Superior Court yesterday that McCormick had promised to marry her in 1933 but later that year refused.

The 66-year-old reaper magnate, thrice wed and twice divorced, took his third wife, the former Adah Wilson, 34-year-old nurse, in Pasadena, Calif., last May.

The statement, made public by Attorney John Wilson, said McCormick had given Mrs. Colby financial assistance from 1928 to 1933 after the death of her husband "to help her establish herself in business."

An exploding kerosene lamp was believed to have been the cause of the tragedy. The parents were away from home at the time and the house was swiftly burned.

Ontario Weekend Crashes Kill Six, 60 Accidents In Toronto Alone

May Bring U.S. Expert To Study Police System In Toronto

Toronto, Dec. 5 (CP)

A UNITED STATES expert might be brought to Toronto to make a survey of Toronto's police system, Mayor Ralph C. Day said today. The mayor said he and senior officers of the department would decide on the matter.

Police Chief D. M. Draper handed in his resignation last week after his request for 200 additional officers was refused. The commission will meet later today to decide whether the resignation is to be accepted.

Mayor Day said he would vote to accept it. Judge Frank Denton and Col. A. E. Kirkpatrick, other members of the commission, would not say what stand they would take when Chief Draper's resignation came up for consideration.

TORONTO, Dec. 5 — (CP). — Six persons were killed accidentally in Ontario during the week-end. Traffic accidents were responsible for all of the deaths, two of them in London. A seventh person died of injuries suffered in an accident earlier in the week. Scores of accidents were reported throughout the province, 60 being counted in Toronto alone.

Edward Cushman, 47, died in hospital at London early yesterday of injuries suffered when struck by an automobile driven by Harry Woods. He suffered fractures of the legs and head wounds.

Clare Marsh, 21, of London, died yesterday on the way to hospital of a fracture at the base of the skull, suffered when struck by an automobile driven by Thomas Payne of Thamesford.

A third death in London was that of Warren Hastings, 53, who died Saturday night from injuries suffered when struck by an automobile December 1.

Robert Middleton, 28-year-old Chatham man, was drowned Saturday night when trapped in an automobile that plunged into a deep drainage ditch at the intersection of the Big Point Road and the Fifth Concession in Dover township. Two companions escaped with minor injuries.

Frederick B. Scott, 79-year-old pedestrian, died yesterday in hospital at Ottawa. He suffered head injuries Saturday when struck by a truck.

27,426 Sudetenites Dare Vote Against Hitler As 98 p.c. Back Fuehrer, Electing 30 Deputies

REICHENBERG, Germany, Dec. 5 (A.P.). — Sudetenlanders lined up behind Chancellor Hitler, their "Liberator" from Czechoslovakia, 98.7 per cent. strong in electing their 30 deputies to the Reichstag yesterday.

Returns from all 66 of the districts Germany won in the Munich partition agreement on September 29 showed 2,152,256 "yes" votes and 26,497 "no." Of the 2,211,895 persons eligible to vote, 33,142 either did not vote or their ballots were invalid.

Hitler and two Sudeten Nazi leaders, Konrad Henlein and Karl Frank, headed the ballot which read: "Do you acknowledge our Fuehrer, Adolf Hitler, the Liberator of Sudetenland, and do you give your vote to the list of the National Socialist German Labor Party?"

A circle about 1½ inches in diameter was provided for "yes" votes and one four-fifths of an inch across for "no" votes.

Including Sudetenlanders who voted in other sections of Germany there was a total vote of 2,424,494 "yes" and 27,426 "no," raising the percentage to 98.9.

Tea Firm Often 2 Million In The Red Shares Profits, Makes A Million

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(AP)— Joseph Friedlander, treasurer of the Jewel Tea Company, told a United States senate committee today his firm had turned a loss ranging as high as $2,000,000 a year into profits averaging about $1,000,000 a year, after it began sharing profits with employees.

The Chicago merchandising executive said he believed his company's payment of $2,179,000 in profit-sharing and $459,125 in extra wages during the last 10 years had been "a good business investment." During that period, he said, $40,289,000 had been paid out in regular wages to employees now numbering 3,600.

On the other hand, Henry Dennison, president of the Dennison Manufacturing Company, Framingham, Mass., testified before the profit-sharing committee that his company had had a form of profit-sharing since 1911 but the system "discontinued itself" in 1930 because the company went "into the red" that year.

Dennison warned against generalization about the benefits of profit-sharing, asserting that a plan which worked for one company might fail for another.

10 Billion Program

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (A.P.). — prediction that the 1939 United States Congress will spend at least $10,000,000,000 and may equal or surpass this year's peacetime record of $11,361,815,000 came to-day from some members already here for the January sessions.

The Government's defence program and continued relief costs were among the factors they cited as tending to prevent any substantial cut in appropriations.

President Roosevelt's budget recommendations will not be disclosed for another month, but a House of Representatives sub-committee went to work to-day on the first of the 10 regular Appropriations Bills. It covers funds for independent Federal agencies.

Canary Real 'Jitterbird' Own Warbling Starts 'Jam Session'

Quincy, Mich., Dec. 5 (CP)

HAROLD HYSLOP, merchant here, claims to have the only "jitterbird" in the world.

His canary is really a pedigreed warbler from a distinct bird stock with an aristocratic lineage, Hyslop says, but when he sings he becomes a "rug-cutting jitterbird" that "gets in the groove" and is visibly "sent" by his music.

While singing lustily the tiny bird swings and sways his body in a marked arc in perfect rhythm with his song. Upon going into one of his grequent "jam sessions" he hops onto his swing at the top of his cage and starts it swinging rapidly. Then, hopping off, he sits under it and fairly sways the whole cage while moving his body to and fro in rhythm with the swing.

Pilot Falls Out Of Plane, Climbs Back In Again As Door Falls Off On Picture Taking Hop

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—(AP)—A 24-year-old amateur aviator today told a flying adventure story as strange as any that ever came out of a meeting of air men.

He was Otis Cleveland, who yesterday fell out of a plane he was flying alone, was saved from an 1,800-foot plunge to earth by a safety belt which caught around his legs, and somehow climbed back into the plane and pulled it out of a tailspin.

Cleveland said he was leaning out of a doorway at the side of the ship to take an air photograph of school buildings far below when the door gave way and he fell.

"Just as suddenly as I fell out, I was jerked to a stop by the safety belt that lay across my knees," he said. "I can't tell you what I did during the next two minutes. Earth and sky blended into one pattern—the motor roared—the plane plunged downward out of control.

"I managed to grab at the side as it lurched, and to haul myself into it. I didn't have much trouble righting it and flew right back to the airport (East Boston) and landed."

Michigan Strike Is Settled, Cheers 10,000

FLINT, Mich., Dec. 5 (AP)—Settlement of a strike at the Fisher Body plant No. 1 today brought a call for almost 10,000 employees to resume work at that factory and in the Buick division of General Motors Corporation.

The strike began Friday and left 1,400 workers at the big Fisher plant idle. Shortage of bodies caused the Buick final assembly line to halt and 3,000 of Buick's 14,000 employees were sent home. Continuance of the strike into this week ultimately would have brought a complete shutdown of the Buick division.

Terms of the settlement were not revealed in an announcement by a General Motors spokesman. Homer Martin, international president of the United Automobile Workers, said in a statement the strike was due to a "misunderstanding" and that the agreement to end it would be submitted to the Flint U.A.W. local 581 tonight.

The General Motors spokesman had said earlier there was a possibility work might be resumed in part at least, during the day.

Midnight Climax

The agreement to resume work was reached at Detroit soon after midnight in a conference between corporation and union representatives which opened at noon Sunday. C. E. Wilson and Floyd Tanner, General Motors vice-presidents, and Martin headed the negotiating committees.

A reliable source said that the principal accomplishment of the Sunday negotiations was the decision to resume work and that the underlying issue of the dispute—methods of pay for certain departments in the Fisher plant—remained to be smoothed out.

The union called the strike after, it said, it had been unable to get satisfactory consideration of its demand that day rates replace piece work in certain Fisher departments through the normal grievance procedure. General Motors denied this, said the U.A.W. had not carried the issue through the regular channels and charged that the strike violated the parties' contract.

Opposed Council on Bridge

When the council incorporated the report of committee of bridges into a by-law leaving all bridges not mentioned out of the county system;

Reeve Griffith and Reeve Mann both opposed this by-law even into the final reading. Reeve Mann sought to have the Lily Lake bridge retained as a county bridge while Reeve Griffiths was just as emphatic that the Burnt Mills bridge in Belmont be retained also.

In the vote the two Reeves lost out by the close margin of 6 to 5. Reeve Griffiths still voted against the by-law in its final reading.

A resolution was received from the Wentworth County Council seeking an enquiry into freight rates from Western Ontario points to Montreal. The resolution sought also to have Ontario wheat and wheat products receive the same rate as Western Canada and United States wheat from Sarnia, Goderich, and Owen Sound to Montreal. Reeves Gifford and Anderson moved and seconded that the county support the resolution and it carried.

At the close of the session Warden McDonald extended thanks to the council members for the fine co-operation and the friendly spirit that had marked all of their deliberations. He also thanked Miss Batten and County Engineer Chalmers for their devotion to county affairs and extended his appreciation to the newspapermen covering the council sessions. Reeves Milby and Gifford both spoke in reply commending Warden McDonald for his leadership and kindly way he had received the individual proposals from the various townships.

Hamilton, Dec. 5.

KNOCKED DOWN by an automobile on Cannon street, near James street, Saturday night, while he was pushing a baby buggy, Fran Ander, York street, suffered a fractured right leg and injuries to his back and face.

New Rail Line Taps Rich Mining Area

NORANDA, Que., Dec. 5 (C.P.).—Traffic began to-day on a new avenue of communication between rapidly-growing northern communities and the commercial and industrial centres of Southern Canada. It was the Canadian National Railways branch line between Senneterre and Rouyn, officially opened on Saturday in the presence of leaders in politics, mining and railway activities.

The line runs through one of the richest mineralized areas of Canada, a district whose annual mineral production rose from nothing to $35,000,000, and whose population increased from 15,000 to 35,000 in the past 16 years.

A part of the line from Senneterre to Val d'Or was opened to traffic a year ago and on Saturday Transport Minister Howe drove the last spike in the remainder of the 100-mile stretch of steel.

Some 20 mines, including such well-known gold producers as Lamaque, Sigma, O'Brien, and Siscoe, are along the route of the new railway. Hitherto heavy freight into and out of these mines has been transported by rail to Amos on the National Transcontinental Line and then southward by water, along a chain of rivers and lakes.

The new line cuts off the National Transcontinental at Senneterre and runs through the mining area and close to farming settlements established under the Quebec Government colonization scheme. At the twin towns of Rouyn and Noranda it connects with another C.N.R. branch line. These points are also linked with North Bay and Toront by the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway.

Planning To Fight Strike

Premier Edouard Daladier, RIGHT, of France, and Minister of Commerce Fernand Gentin, pictured when they left a cabinet meeting last week after having planned their fight on the projected 24-hour strike which was scheduled for November 30. The strike was a protest against Daladier's so-called "decree laws" which called for an extension of the work week in national defence industries of France. What was scheduled to be a walkout of millions of workers failed when Daladier requisitioned the personnel of all public services in France, thus calling on the workers' first allegiance to the government.

See Clear Roads Bringing Out Municipal Vote

TORONTO, Dec. 3.—(CP).— Citizens of many Ontario communities went to the polls to-day to elect municipal government heads after campaigns that grew intensive within the last two weeks when nominations and qualifications were held.

Predictions of rain threatened to cut the vote in some places, but Windsor was expected to set a new record for ballots cast after the hottest campaign in the city's history. There Mayor E. S. Wigle is opposed to David Croll, M.L.A., who has indulged in bitter personal feud with the mayor, and C. Roy Haight, an auditor who has promised a closer check on the cost of civic government if elected.

Though some Mayors were elected by acclamation with the submission of nominations or qualifications, there are contests for aldermanic positions in every city holding its elections the first Monday in December. Hamilton and Ottawa will name Boards of Control.

Biggest Mayoralty field in the province is Ottawa's, where Mayor Stanley Lewis is opposed by four men, including George Dunbar, Conservative M.L.A. for Ottawa South, who has promised to resign his Legislature seat if elected. The riding would be left open for the leader of the Ontario Conservatives, who will be named at a convention in Toronto ths week.

Four candidates seek the Mayoralty at London, Guelph and the town of Fort Erie.

Clear roads through most of the province promised to allow a majority of rural voters to turn out for township elections.

Switching Lights On Fired Bomb In Rear Of Perri's Car

Hamilton, Ont., Dec. 5 (CP)

INVESTIGATORS of the R.C.M.P. city and provincial police forced joined forces over the week-end in an effort to solve the bombing last Tuesday night which wrecked the car in which Rocco Perri was sitting. Perri narrowly escaped death while two men, Frank Depedro and Fred Condillo, who had been chatting with him, were seriously injured.

Detective Joseph Duffy and Ernest Barrett were instructed today by Joseph Rocker, acting chief constable, to devote all their time to the investigation which already has developed angles in distant parts of Ontario.

Saturday's examination of the wreckage by two experts disclosed that a high explosive was set at the rear of the car and was discharged when Perri turned on the lights.

Old 6th Avenue El Runs For Last Time

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (A.P.). — Workmen boarded up stations of the 60-year-old Sixth Avenue Elevated Railroad to-day after a sentimental farewell typical of the way noisy Manhattan says good-bye to the things it outgrows.

Because the "El" is to be torn down shortly and replaced by a city-owned subway, the city forgave it its perennial clangor and screeching wheels last night and made much of the dingy, overhead line as it became a ghost promptly at 12.01 a.m.

Four "last" trains were required to haul the throng of romanticists anxious to pay a nickel for a jolting journey into metropolitan legend.

The final trip just before midnight attracted a mob of souvenir-hunters, boisterous children, policemen, sentimental oldsters, and glum officials.

Fannie Hurst, who has immortalized in story the people who live in the twilight shadow of the "El," was there, nostalgic in a crimson gown.

Other passengers were William McColl, 78, who piloted the first wood-burning Sixth Avenue "El" train in 1878, and James Collins, 71, who rode as a boy of 11 on the "El's" maiden trip.

Ford Statement Written By Rabbi Father Coughlin Charges

DETROIT, Dec. 5 (AP)—Rev. Charles Coughlin said yesterday in his weekly address that a recently published statement by Henry Ford on the persecution of Jews in Germany "was a gigantic attempt to put into the mouth of America's foremost manufacturer words he did not say."

Father Coughlin said the statement was written by Rabbi Leo Franklin of Detroit after a conference with the motor manufacturer and "it was the rabbi's concept of not what Mr. Ford actually said, but what Rabbi Franklin would prefer he said."

The Ford statement said admission of Jews to the United States under immigration quotas "would constitute a real asset to our country" and remarked that a decoration conferred recently upon the manufacturer by the German government had no particular significance.

The Ford statement said also Ford had found Jewish workers loyal and able.

Harry Bennett, Ford personnel director, affirmed the priest's assertion that Rabbi Franklin wrote the statement. Bennett said Ford authorized it and that "we agreed" when the rabbi suggested that it be put in the first person.

Father Coughlin described Communism as "the cause of Nazism" and suggested that in view of the "magnificent publicity" given the persecution of Jews in Germany, the present would be an ideal time "to amalgamate the forces of a sympathetic world against all persecution, be it that of Catholic or Protestant, Jew or Gentile."

Cue From the Pope

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Dec. 5 (AP)—Rev. Charles Coughlin, says Rabbi Barnett Brickner of Cleveland, "ought to take his cue from his great Pope, who is opposed to Nazism and racism as well as to Fascism and Communism, instead of from Hitler and the Nazi propaganda."

The priest, the rabbi told a meeting at the Jewish Community Centre last night, "is guilty of having spoken half-truths and, through misrepresentation of facts, of having put the Jew in a bad light."

The rabbi said the Royal Oak, Mich., Roman Catholic priest's "distortions were calculated to undo the good will created by the vast number of expressions of sympathy and prayers of intercession for the persecuted Jews two weeks ago. His was a strident note in sympathy of religious and racial friendship."

Retire For Duchess Independent Advised

LONDON, Dec. 6—(CP-Havas).—The Liberal Federation of Lancashire and Cheshire to-day wired Mrs. C. A. Macdonald, Liberal candidate in the Kinross and Western Perth by-election, asking her to retire in favor of the Duchess of Atholl, who is running as an independent.

The Duchess, repudiated by the Kinross and Western Perth Conservative organization because she actively opposed the Government's foreign policy, resigned her seat in the House of Commons to stand as an Independent in a by-election fought on questions of foreign policy.

The Lancashire and Cheshire Liberal Federation's wire said: "We welcome those who leave the Government ranks as a result of honest conviction. We do not desire disunity in the Liberal ranks, but we hope that in the interests of Liberalism and the Liberal Party you will generously discontinue your present campaign."

Tennis Club Dance Is Big Success

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 5.—What was cenceded to have been the finest dance this town has had in years was held in Campbellford's Masonic Temple on Friday evening. It was not only the first dance of the season, but also the first since the building was dedicated several months ago. For many the occasion was reminiscent of the pre-war days when gay crowds who were members of the Twelve O'clock Club gathered to waltz and one step in a much less energetic manner than did the jitter bugs who held sway on Friday evening. Lights were treated with blue and yellow streamers, the Tennis Club's official colors and the platform from which came the strains of Bud Haines' music appropriately held the Graham Trophy and tennis racquets owned by the club members. Although the evening was primarily devoted to dancing many arrived early to play cards in the spacious club room and lounge on the ground floor. Bridge prizes were won by Walter Fowlds of Hastings and Mrs. W. S. Wiggins of Campbellford. Special prizes for the ladies' lucky spot dance went to Mrs. Ralph Locke and for the gentleman's spot dance by Harry Fowlds.

Wives Have No Fixed Value, Like Pearls Or Potatoes, But Each Man Writes His Own Price Tag; Some Wives Are Excess Baggage, But The Worth Of Most Is Beyond All Measure.

WHAT'S a wife worth? A farmer who recently spent 30 cents in his local paper in advertising for a bride commented: "Well, if I get a good wife it will be worth the money." The Bible puts the price of a good wife as beyond rubies, yet in the marriage ceremony the bride is invariably given away.

Apparently wives have no fixed market value like pearls or potatoes or any other commodity. Each man writes his own price tag for his own possession. For we will see one man who regards his wife as the treasure of his life and who keeps her wrapped in velvets and fur and spends his time admiring her and congratulating himself on her belonging to him. Another man regards his wife as merely excess baggage that he wished on himself in some unguarded moment, and that he would be glad to get rid of if he could.

So there we are, and the answer to the question: "What is a wife worth?" would seem to be that she is worth whatever her husband thinks she is worth, but that is not altogether true. Wives have their own intrinsic value, even apart from any consideration of them as Lady Loves, companions, penny-pinchers and household conveniences. Even the faults of wives are often assets to their husbands.

Many a wife's extravagance, for instance, is the basis of her husband's fortune. Many an easy-going man, whose real ambition was centered on catching a tarpon or winning a golf cup instead of becoming a millionaire, would have been satisfied just to work a little and play a lot if he hadn't had to hustle out and get busy to pay his wife's bills. But he did, and by the time he made enough to provide her with imported finery and emerald bracelets he had become a go-getter.

And any doctor will tell you that the best insurance a man can take out is to get married, and that while it may drive a man wild to have his wife incessantly nag him about going to see the doctor and wearing his rubbers and muffling up his throat, and not smoking so much and cutting down on his food and so on and so forth, it keeps him alive.

Of the value of a wife as a first aid to comfortable living, it is needless to speak. It puts the poor married clerk in the class with the plutocrat bachelor. For $20-a-week Johnny Benedict has his home in which his every taste is catered to; his dinner which he did not have to order himself ready for him, a valet who lays out his clothes and keeps them in order and sends things to the laundry and the cleaner. He has somebody to nurse him when he is sick and listen to him when he wants to talk about himself, and what more does any rich unmarried man have?

As an alibi a wife's value is beyond computation. A bachelor's sins of omission and commission are upon his own head, but a man who has a wife has a scapegoat upon which he can lay all of his own failures. If a married man is a drunkard, he was driven to drink by the way his wife treated him. If he is lazy and no-account, the reason he has never achieved anything is because his wife killed all of his ambition by her lack of sympathy. If he fails in business, it was his wife's extravagance that bankrupted him.

And this doesn't even include a wife's value as a social stand-in. For every husband expects his wife to write his letters to his mother and tell her that he is so overworked he doesn't have time to write himself, although he has six secretaries and a dictaphone in his office. And he expects her to tell all of his white lies when he wants to get out of going to a boring party. He expects her to write all of his notes of condolences and congratulations and to send the flowers that should be sent and the telegrams. He expects her to buy the Christmas presents and wedding gifts, and generally keep up his reputation for being a charming and well-mannered gentleman.

No other press agent is worth so much to a man as a wife. No one else can build him up as she can, for somehow we take a husband at his wife's valuation. Half of the reputation of every professional man rests upon the things his wife has babbled about him across a bridge table and at the sewing circle when she told how great and wonderful and wise and successful he was.

It is these by-products of a wife, so to speak, as well as her domesticity and thrift and industry and affection and loyalty that we have to take into consideration when we try to estimate how much a wife is worth. Few men ever sit down and try to figure it out, but it is observable that most men marry again as soon as their wives die.

I.O.D.E. Tea Is Given In Yuletide Setting

The spirit of Christmas with all its gay pageantry of light and color provided a happy background for the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. tea in the Y.W.C.A. Library and Green Room on Saturday afternoon.

Guests were welcomed by the regent of the Chapter, Mrs. I. H. Keefer, and by the vice-regent, Mrs. D. Loucks. Mrs. R. Lewis, assisted by Miss W. Batten, was treasurer.

In the Green Room a tall Christmas tree, its branches hung with crimson lights and glittering tinsel, any tiny trees glowing with colorful balls of color, were a festive setting for the tea table, on which three pairs of tiny reindeer dashed across glistening cotton snow to a lighted log cabin.

Low scarlet bowls arranged with sprays of white baby 'mums and slender scarlet tapers were at each side. Tea was poured by Mrs. A. Sollitt, Mrs. F. Hooper, Mrs. W. T. Regan and Miss M. Paterson. Assistant tea hostesses were Miss Edith Young, Mrs. R. Brown, Mrs. H. Borland, Mrs. T. Carley, Mrs. C. E. Graham, Mrs. C. S. Warne. Tea conveners were Mrs. Steggles, Mrs. C. McIntyre, Mrs. H. Cranford, Mrs. N. Hamley.

Evergreen wreaths with red cellophane bows decked the library, where the novelty table displayed an unusually fascinating assortment of Christmas gift suggestions, which included individual place cards with tiny scarlet or green candles on a silver base; baby dolls in hand-knitted suits of pink or blue; felt book covers with colorful appliques; knitted ski parkas with socks to match; felt water bottle covers zippered up the side, and toy brooms (for snow-covered shoes) with a black mammy in gingham dress and 'kerchief as a handle. Mrs. B. V. Moore was convener, assisted by Mrs. Wm. Derry, Miss Hazel Buller, Mrs. G. Hill, and Miss Florence Adams.

Scarlet poinsettias and a Yule log topped with lighted candles, decorated the homecooking table, with its tempting array of homemade goodies. Mrs. Gordon Ham was convener, and her assistants were Mrs. C. Upper, Mrs. S. Puttenham, Mrs. H. Borland, Mrs. L. Mitchell, and Mrs. E. L. Sackville. Tickets on a cake were sold by Mrs. S. Puttenham.

Do You Know?

Fruit cakes, steamed puddings, cookies and candies made with honey stay moist a long time.

Steamed puddings can be made days before serving, stored in a dry place and merely reheated when wanted. To reheat them, steam them in covered molds forty-five minutes in water to cover, or put them in the upper part of double-boiler tightly covered, for thirty minutes.

Eggs should be placed in the refrigerator as soon as they are brought home? Even a fresh egg will spoil if exposed to the air of a warm room for any length of time. When you plan to use them, however, take them out of the refrigerator and let stand at room temperature for a short time and and they will whip better.

The Silhouette Is Different For This Season

Aside from the hoop skirts, with which the wearers loop the overskirt up over the arm, revealing the hoop petticoat while dancing. The silhouette of the season is about as follows: Extremely nude shoulders (if the straps are present at all they are narrow and tiny in the extreme); contoured bustlines, often by means of loosened gathers, shirring, posing of conspicuous big flowers right at the front; wide corsetlike waistlines, shirred, or seamed or banded to give a very tight fit, sometimes almost to the hip bones and skirts which are full to a startling degree, but which hang straight when the figure is at ease. Some of these almost make a complete circle when the wearer dances, and time and again they are held out or slung over the arm for dancing. Yards of material goes into these skirts.

Fashions

A young bright raspberry woolen dress that will give loads of dash under your dark coat. It has the new "doll waist."

Its shag-swirl skirt will get you lots of tea-dancing invitations. The little girl collar is crisp white pique. A regiment of bone buttons parade from neck to hem. A clan plaid woolen is another ideal choice for school, college or office wear.

Again, it's adorable for afternoon and cocktail wear in the square neck version of the crush-resistant velvet or of rayon and silk moire. It's so simple and inexpensive to make it.

Style No. 2920 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38-inches bust. Size 16 requires 4½ yards of 39-inch material with ¼ yard of 27-inch contrasting.

No Soldiers There!

There was something in the paper about Iceland celebrating 20 years of sovereignty, peace and prosperity. There are plenty of lands which could celebrate sovereignty, but not so many of them which could with clear conscience include peace and prosperity.

And Iceland has not even one soldier.

Iceland does not own a battleship or a cruiser or any such thing.

And Iceland has not in its possession even one fighting plane.

Probably there are people in the world today who would conclude that the folk in Iceland are crazy, or some speaker might feel it a good time to dust off the pet phrase about them "living in a fool's paradise."

It may be that the hardy folk who live there and who have the oldest parliament in the world (founded 930 A.D.) feel secure in the fact that no nation wants to come and inhabit their land. There are 40,450 square miles of it; 20 per cent. larger than Ireland, but snow fields and ice take up a good one-eighth of the space, and much of it is rocky and rather desolate. But there are 95,000 people living there and they raise sheep and cattle; they have 100 dairies and export good butter. There are no railways, therefore there are no level crossings; but they have good telephone and telegraph service and a great amount of water power which is largely going to waste.

No army and no navy and no air force, and in the year 1938! Surely the Icelanders have reason to rejoice and we hope they have a good time at their celebration.

The Same People Pay

There have been several conferences between provincial and federal ministers to determine how much relief Ottawa is going to pay, how much Ontario will pay and what amount the municipalities themselves will have to raise. Ottawa has been paying Ontario $465,000 per month regardless of the total cost, and it is believed that with relief costs increasing in this province the Ottawa contribution will not be more than 20 per cent. of the total needed. That will leave the provincial government and the municipal governments to take up the 80 per cent. if the bills are to be paid.

Ontario stands ready to go on the basis of dollar-for-dollar with the federal government in meeting relief costs; that proposal was submitted some months ago but was never put into operation because Ottawa preferred to pay lump sums of a known dimension, a plan which does not operate well because the cost of relief cannot be placed on a definitely known basis. The plan aimed at is 30 per cent. each by federal and provincial governments, and 40 per cent. by the municipalities.

In one way municipalities are handicapped; they have so few ways of raising money. Property is the big source of revenue, and increasing the direct levy on the homes of the people is not good policy because there is no guarantee that the increase can be paid, and if it is not paid then it means hastening the process by which a man will lose his home.

Both provincial and federal governments have a variety of methods for securing money, or for that matter of compelling revenue to flow in their direction. Whether people in any community actually get off with paying less by having provincial and federal governments raise increased revenue rather than by paying an increased tax on property is something which would be difficult to determine.

In the case of relief costs there is each month a bill to pay and the people of the Dominion, regardless of where they live or what they do, have to pay it. When the municipality takes money from its people the transaction is out in the open; it is a straight case of standing and delivering a specified amount. When the provincial government collects part of the system is apparent, but much of it is concealed. The federal government does part of its levying openly in the way of stamps and similar small taxes, but the major portion of its collection is somewhat hidden from the public gaze, but is none the less real. Few people, for instance, realize that when they are buying they pay sales tax of eight per cent. or more and that in the cost of goods there may be tariff, dumping duties, etc. But in the end the people pay; they pay the whole bill regardless of which form of government does the collecting.

Municipalities like to feel that other governments are taking their full share of relief costs, but we have a definite feeling that it means that another set of collectors start to operate—and on the same people—when and where the municipality gives them a receipt showing they have paid in full.

A Splendid Idea

It has for some time been a custom for directors of the Millbrook Agricultural Society to gather at the farm home of Thomas Donaldson. The purpose of the trip is to make Mr. Donaldson aware of the fact that he is highly regarded and his services to the Agricultural Society are appreciated.

The 1939 pilgrimage was of slightly different variety, for this year Mr. Donaldson was presented with the Agricultural Service Diploma. This document is provided by the Association of Fall Fairs, and has the sanction of the Department of Agriculture behind it. The meaning is that the recipient has rendered the most worthy service to the local Agricultural Society and to the community in general.

Thomas Donaldson has been a director of the Millbrook Agricultural Society for 60 years, and next May he will be 89 years of age. Yes, he was associated with the fair seven years before the Northwest rebellion; he has also been president, but always an interested and active member.

Mr. Donaldson admitted he was pleased to receive the diploma, and no doubt he told the truth. It is a wholesome and entirely a commendable thing to go and call on a man and tell him plainly that the worthy thing which he has been doing for so many years has been appreciated. In most of our dealings one with another we do not do enough of that sort of thing.

Improving Their Time

The young people of our rural communities have a way of profitably investing their evenings. They have to provide their own entertainment to a greater degree than do young people in cities, and they are doing it in a way which adds to their knowledge and to their accomplishments.

An Examiner representative the other evening attended a gathering in the United Church at Springville, and the occasion was a debate between representatives of Springville young people and those from Hastings. These debating functions are going on over quite a wide area and finally a team of debaters from some section will emerge as winners. The school room where the event was held was well filled by young people; in fact they were nearly all in that class.

The subject to be debated was "Resolved that our present system of instalment buying is economically sound," and the amount of material brought out was large. There had been a keen searching of records and statistics, and those who listened received the benefit of it all. It was good substantial debating all through with a touch of wit and repartee in rebuttal thrown in for good measure. These young people knew all the questions and all the answers with regard to instalment buying and the evening was about as good as an extension course from some seat of learning in the subject of economics.

Whether young people living in cities are engaging in that sort of work to an equal extent is doubtful. There are too many other things going on; there are too many attractive places to go for entertainment without providing it themselves. But right there in that debating league there is something going on which will eventually place the young people from the rural districts in a preferred position. They are improving their minds; they are learning how to present a case clearly and well; they are finding that their facts have to be substantial so they will stand against criticism and attack, and they are doing all this with the expenditure of very little cash. Young people who are growing up in such an atmosphere are receiving a thoroughly good grounding for their future efforts.

Should Remember It

Rev. George A. Buttrick of Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, when giving an address in Toronto recently made it plain he did not have much confidence in the Munich agreement. He put it this way: "It was done hastily, in the open street and must of necessity be smeared. It is worth while only in that it offers a respite that may be turned to good advantage."

One cannot but feel that it might be better and indicative of greater frankness if speakers from New York City were to be more adequate in their statement of all that Munich meant. The trouble was Czechoslovakia; had that country not been brought into existence there would have been no occasion for the meeting at Munich.

Czechoslovakia, the dream-child of patriots for a home for the Czech people and their language, was born in United States as much as any other place, and President Wilson could at least be called the god-father after it came to the point of existence. It was also clearly understood at the time that United States was going to take its place in the League of Nations, but that never came to pass. It was considered sufficient that Czechoslovakia should be created, carved from enemy territory and peopled with folk many of whom had little in common, and then left to shift for itself.

It is possible to agree with the gentleman from New York that Munich was at least a respite during which humane instinct and common-sense had opportunity to become assertive, but it is well to have the background of Munich and its relationship to Czechoslovakia kept before the public mind. United States is at times prone to ignore it or forget it.

Maps And More Maps

The school geography years ago had printed in it maps of various parts of our Dominion. From time to time they have put in new maps and better maps. It appeared that always were there an increasing number of people going off into strange places and finding something new; a new mountain, a new lake or a few thousand more miles of territory which we owned. The increase in map production has possibly given us a feeling of larger and more urgent importance. And yet we learn today from topographical experts at Ottawa that only one-quarter of our Dominion has been mapped. We are informed too it will take some years to complete the business, so there will be no unemployment for the gentlemen who have elected to work at that sort of business.

Judging by the way the service stations hand out maps of almost any part of the country to which one desires to turn it might have been concluded that we had reached the point of saturation in the mapping business, but it is not so. The oil and gas companies have done more to make maps the common property of all who desire them than any other agency in existence. It may be bad news for them to hear that our land is but 25 per cent. attended to. If they are going to keep pace with the map makers they may find that in years to come they will have to build additions to the gayly-colored places in which they do business or else make use of their greasing pits for the storage of maps and yet more maps.

NOTE AND COMMENT

How is Santa Claus supposed to know that a man prefers a dark necktie and that he wears 11 socks.

We are speeding up our railway service but even the faster schedule is not sufficient to catch up with the deficits.

A Toronto woman was slapped by a peddler because she refused to buy. That over-zealous salesman should be a good prospect for a Christmas copy of "How to Win Friends and Influence People."

New York reports that in two weeks Jewish and Christian agencies subscribed over $2,000,000 for the relief of German refugees. Tapping the pocket book is a good way to show that the heart has been reached.

It is reported five Franco planes took part in an air raid on Valencia, during which 100 bombs were dropped. It may help to make you feel a little more comfortable, for the report continues by stating no person was hurt.

An Italian newspaper gives warning that Italy is ready to march against France if necessary. We wonder how far Italy could march in any given direction unless supplied by the world in general with the things necessary to make war.

Man in court at London when receiving an unfavorable verdict began pelting two bewigged judges with tomatoes. He missed every shot but was given six weeks for contempt of court—and not for poor marksmanship.

Some of our motorists found icy roads when starting out the other morning and after finding they were sliding badly on grades decided to leave their cars at the side of the road. And that was about the wisest decision they could have made.

In the Brantford Expositor we read that "Relief Officer Hunn has issued $58.72 in charitable disbursements for the month of November." We blinked, then read the item two, three times, finally discovering it was in that place headed "Thirty-five Years Ago."

C.C.F. convention in Alberta urged that farmers should go on a "planting strike" in the spring, as a protest against the 80-cent pegged price for wheat. Then if others went on strike against having to pay for the loss coming from the 80-cent price then we would have some news.

BETTER

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I got invited out to tea a kindly thing it seemed to me, the folk were very rich; I figured that we'd have a meal, to fill me from my head to heel, and served without a hitch.

¶ I hesitated for a bit, and figured how I'd act and sit, for things would be so grand; the home had an imposing air, and things would be quite swell in there, p'rhaps more than I could stand.

¶ They'd have a butler at the door, I'd heard about this chap before, impressive in his air; he'd take my coat I'd heard it said, and motion me to go ahead, and seat myself in there.

¶ And when they ate I'd get confused, I feared I'd feel myself abused, just sitting there in state; I was not sure just what to do, I feared before we got half through, I'd make some raw mistake.

¶ I trembled as I entered in, there was no handshake and no grin, my heart felt like a stone; I rather wished that I'd turned back, if I could just retrace my track, and eat in peace at home.

¶ But when it came on time to eat, I settled down upon the seat, and trembled in my legs; but I felt better right away, because I heard them up and say—how we'd have ham and eggs.

Soviet Justice Does Not Exist

(The Christian Science Monitor)

MOSCOW — The much-publicized changes in Soviet judicial procedure adopted at the recent sessions of the Supreme Court, or National parliament, have not diminished the "purges" which still proceed without interruption, as they have done for more than two years. They have caused the "disappearance"—which means execution, exile or imprisonment—of several hundred thousand men and women holding jobs in the Soviet bureaucracy.

Hundreds of Soviet executives are still being arrested every month, in all parts of Russia, charged with such offenses as wrecking, sabotage, espionage, counter-revolution. In some instances, important positions have been vacated several times within two years, and all incumbents have "disappeared." Apparently, the ruling group still does not know whom to trust, and is taking no chances.

The draft of the proposed new Judicature Act approved by the Supreme Soviet in August, is limited largely to so-called "normal" crimes, and does not affect the numerous list of charges against those involved in various purges.

THE "democratization" of Soviet courts, with presumble popular election of even the highest judges, is far less important than appears on the surface, because so many Soviet crimes are not referred to the courts affected by such reforms, but are tried in secret by the federal police, who need not even make public either the charges against defendants secretly arrested, or the sentences secretly imposed.

The new draft improves judicial procedure for ordinary criminals as murders and thieves, assures them of open trial before an elected judge, and the right to defense counsel. But several clauses in the draft end with the significant phrase "except when otherwise provided by law." And Soviet law provides an enormous number of exceptions.

For example, any man or woman in Russia who suggested, even in private conversation with a friend, that he or she doubted the truth of some Communist doctrine, or the official interpretation of some doctrine, might automatically be charged with "counter-revolution," and thus altogether removed from the ordinary processes of law.

HARDLY a week has passed, since the summer of 1936, without the arrest of several directors in Soviet factories, mines, railways, or other enterprises, who fell under official suspicion because the authorities believed their enterprises should have done better. Such persons have rarely been tried openly or by ordinary courts. The police have handled their cases from beginning to end, and sometimes even their relatives do not know what has happened to them.

The categories of offenses which may thus be tried outside the ordinary processes of law have increased tremendously. Included among them are such vague crimes as wrecking, sabotage, counter-revolution, which might cover almost any kind of crime if the federal police so interpreted them. Included also are several varieties of what can only be described as heresy—such as "Trotskyism," "Bukharinism," and the like. Any kind of independent thought can be—and usually is—regarded as a crime, deserving severe punishment.

IN FACT, almost every offense committed in Russia today may be removed from ordinary courts if the authorities desire. A thief, for example, may be classified as a "counter-revolutionist" if he steals state property, and most property in Russia is state property. A murderer who killed a Soviet official in a drunken brawl might—and probably would—be classified as a "Trotskyist" or "terrorist," even though the crime had no political motive whatever.

No changes in the Soviet judicial system can be taken very seriously so long as the system omits a law of habeas corpus. The absence of such a law makes individual Soviet citizens almost completely defenceless from their own police and authorities.

No amount of "democratization" of the ordinary courts, no number of popular elections of judges, can provide real security for Soviet citizens so long as the federal police are left free to arrest and imprison men and women indefinitely without trial, simply by classifying their offense as political.

SCHOOLROOM HONESTY.

(Christian Science Monitor)

PARENTS frequently pen notes to school principals and superintendents but rarely receive notes from these officials. Therefore, the residents of the Darby, Pennsylvania, community were recently surprised when the school superintendent wrote them about the occasional absence of students. He suggested that if Johnny went to the circus, his parents need not invent an excuse.

The lax habit of giving untrue reasons why Johnny or Susie could not be present at certain times tends to mislead the juvenile mind into a general acceptance of shady or near-shady practices. The Darby superintendent deserves commendation for insisting upon the truth; for the "phony-excuse" habit, though apparently a minor matter, can have far-reaching consequences, as many parents know. They also know how far-reaching can be the effects of examples of integrity.

THEY'LL GET RELIEF.

(St. Catharines Standard)

A LINDSAY RESIDENT with wife and five children on the borderline of starvation, and with the family certainly undergoing the pangs of real hunger from day to day, borrowed a car and went out and stole chickens from the farmside. His act was illegal, of course, but not morally reprehensible. In any event, as he is to spend five months in jail, there will be no question about his family now securing relief.

• County Pupils Are An Asset

THE TOWN of Walkerton needs a new high school, in opinion of the board, which has issued a comprehensive statement in support of proposed expenditure of $100,000. Some of the conditions parallel those existing in Woodstock, says the Sentinel-Review of that city. The Walkerton building is almost 60 years old, lighting bad, ventilation poor. The chemistry and physics laboratory is described as much too small. There is no accommodation for physical training, and pupils take their exercise standing in the classroom aisles, between the desks. Certain pupils have to go back and forth between the high school and public school buildings, several times a day, in all kinds of weather.

The board further points out that if the new school were built it may be expected that a large amount of money would be spent in Walkerton for wages, supplies, etc., which would stimulate business generally while the building was in course of construction.

Some Woodstock citizens have commented upon the high proportion of country pupils attending the collegiate here, as if this were in some way a burden upon city taxpayers. The fact is that Oxford county pays its share, not only of annual maintenance cost, but of principal and interest in retirement of debentures. The board here regards the attendance of county pupils as an asset to the city, in a business way, and that view is evidently held in the Bruce county town, where the board says:

"We believe we would be justified in expecting to draw considerably more pupils from the county and surrounding towns and villages if we had a well equipped, modern high school in Walkerton. This would result in larger grants from the county towards paying for the new school."

• Credit Is Ability To Go In Debt

EDITOR EXAMINER: Sir,—I notice by the papers that Canada's credit is still so sound that she is still able to borrow 35 millions in the United States' money market. It makes one proud to be able to borrow 35 million and pledge oneself to pay interest perpetually.

Great thing is credit and well worth sacrificing almost anything to maintain. Credit is the ability to borrow money. Borrowing money means going into debt. Therefore credit is the ability to go into debt.

The thrifty citizen feels it a disgrace to go into debt but our governments hold it a virtue and much to be desired. Now governments are our representatives and the collateral they are pledging is our income and our homes. The total bonded debt of Canada is now over 10 thousand million dollars.

The total real wealth of Canada is about 27 thousand million, so that means that over a third of our entire real wealth including yours and mine is mortgaged and we are paying interest on it and so will our children and their children ad infinitum because the public debt never decreases.

It increases every year. In fact it has increased from 2 thousand million in 1913 to over 10 thousand million in 1938. That makes an increase of 8 per cent a year compounded or an average yearly increase of about 320 millions. The annual carrying charge on that debt is about 400 million a year which takes over 20 per cent of the entire national income from all sources and it is increasing every year.

In another generation 50 per cent of everything we make will be taken to pay interest on a debt we can never discharge. If our governments can't do better than sink us further into debt, I say it is time for a change.

• The Globe Argues With the Mail

(Letter in Globe and Mail)

TO THE EDITOR of The Globe and Mail: Your Saturday leader "Not a Job for the Clock" was not convincing. It states that "the drink habit is injurious and wasteful" and yet places the weight of your paper back of eighty-four hours of weekly sale with no vote of the electors.

The editorial commends education for temperance, forgetting the highly financed campaign for intemperance. See the size of resplendent trucks upon the highways with trade names blazoned.

The editorial says: "Temperance or intemperance is a matter of the individual." It is also a matter of the provincial government that has ten millions of annual revenue, a matter of the City of Toronto that receives about $50,000 as a municipal rebate, and also a matter of a brewing corporation that by mergers now has an average profit of nearly half a million dollars a quarter.

The editorial states that closing beverage rooms at 10 instead of 12 would send drinkers to the bootleggers and blind-pigs. It does not do so in Old London where the hours of sale are thirty less than in Toronto. Inferentially you accuse drinkers of being ready to break the law and yet you protect the long hours of sale that break down respect for law in beverage-room customers.

The editorial advises temperance workers to "learn something about reasoning from Chairman Odette's explanations." From July, 1934, to April 1, 1937, Chairman Odette said that under Clause No. 172 he decided the hours of sale. From April 1 (note the date) 1937, to Nov. 23, 1938, Mr. Odette said that municipalities could decide about closing hours between ten and twelve o'clock. On Nov. 24, 1938, Chairman Odette said that Toronto could have no say in the matter. On Nov. 25, 1938, Chairman Odette said that Toronto City Council could still decide if it wished. One may be able to learn "something about reasoning" from this sequence of statements but it resembles the logic of "that charming young man on the flying trapeze."

Psychologically the editorial is of great interest as a dialogue between the former Mail and former Globe in the unconscious mind of the editorial office. The Mail won on points.

THREE MEN TO DIE.

(Winnipeg Free Press)

AMONG the worst and most cowardly of prairie crimes in recent years have been the robberies with violence and murders of aged people. These old folk, often living on old age pensions, dwell in isolated farm steadings, far away from any possible help. The men who choose such people for the victims of their assaults are criminals of the most abominable kind. For this reason there will be precious little sympathy for the three men who were sentenced to death by Mr. Justice Dysart at Dauphin on Wednesday. If there is value in deterrent punishment, the example set in this case should do much to check similar outrages in the future.

3,287 FLYING DAYS.

The other day Dr. Brock completed his ninth year of daily flying. He had flown on 3,287 consecutive days, in hot weather and cold, through wind, rain, snow, sleet and dust storms. Some days he stayed up only a few seconds, and once he was in the air for 20 hours.

His name ought to go near the top on the list of those who have done much to create confidence in the safety of aviation.

BICYCLE OF PAPER.

(Japan Times Weekly)

A BICYCLE with main parts made entirely of fiber and stiff paper materials, was recently announced here as being ready for the market, and is causing a considerable sensation in bicycle manufacturing circles here.

The bicycle, which is likely to revolutionize the entire bicycle manufacturing industry, is the first of its kind to be produced in any country and involves a frame of fiber (also saddle and other minor parts) and mudguards of stiff, hard paper material.

The "Paper bicycle" has been named the "kokusaku-go" and is the direct result of the shortage of iron and steel materials which has practically killed the manufacturing end of the industry. Some six months' research was required to perfect the strange but practical and timely innovation.

Voluntary Enlisting Suggested For Single Unemployed In County Council Resolution

Expansion of Canada's regular army through voluntary enlistment of single men now on the relief rolls was the substance of a resolution introduced at the closing session of the County Council Saturday by Reeve James Milby of North Monaghan. The resolution was endorsed by the members and will be sent along to the proper authorities.

He explained that the permanent force at the present time totalled only 4000 men and the non permanent militia was a tiny force when compared with any nation in the world. In his preamble before putting the resolution Reeve Milby suggested it would not be out of the way for Canada to have sufficient men under arms to form a division, that is approximately 36,000 men.

Insure Protection

"The country is paying out tremendous sums at the present time to give relief to single unemployed men and is getting nothing in return. In my opinion this money might well be spent to train these men in military camps or under some plan where they might be given specialized training that would not only fit them better to earn their own livelihood, but would insure protection for the country in the event of an attack from a belligerent nation," he said.

"The country is filled with young men who are drifting aimlessly from place to place seeking work. It is not their fault that they can't find jobs and yet people are beginning to point the finger at them and call them bums. The majority of them are fine fellows, but they are discouraged in mind and near a physical breakdown for lack of food and shelter. Why can't we give all such men a chance to regain physical fitness, a chance to regain their confidence and ambition and at the same time train them to defend their country. This certainly would result in a better class of citizen than we will have if they continue in their present state. We are paying plenty now to maintain many of them and it is doing no good."

Open Up Jobs

Reeve Milby contended that if 30,000 men were taken off the labor market by voluntary enlistment, the unemployment situation would be greatly alleviated. He further pointed out that such a plan would throw open many jobs for married men and for those too old to engage in military training.

"Some of you may raise the cry of regimentation, but it is not that because it is not conscription, but merely voluntary enlistment, and I am inclined to believe hundreds of young men would jump at the chance to earn a living, have a good bed and a chance to regain their health and strength. They feel too that Canada is worth defending and would not hesitate to train for that purpose."

Reeve Anderson in commenting on the resolution said: "I am no militarist but I feel Reeve Milby's suggestion has merit and I am going to support it." The other members of the Council offered no objections and when the motion was put it carried unanimously.

Reeve Milby in his remarks paid tribute to the Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence for the steps already taken for the defence of the country but he said the Minister has not gone far enough.

The resolution was as follows: That the Minister of Defence be congratulated on the measures he has taken for the defence of Canada but the Peterborough County Council does not think he has gone far enough. If the regular forces are expanded through voluntary enlistment of young men who are unemployed or otherwise who would be only too glad to take part in making Canada's defences adequate for its protection, it would take the men off the relief rolls and throw open employment for other men. This would alleviate the unemployment situation to a great extent and give these young men some hope of obtaining security and a means of livelihood when their term of enlistment is completed.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c

By MAX TRELL

LOTS of folks have heard a violin sing. But Knarf and Hanid the shadows with the turned-about names, heard one speak. I'll tell you how it happened.

The children had already gone to bed and the two shadows slipped through the keyhole of the door to the children's room and met outside in the dark corridor.

"What shall we do tonight?" Hanid asked Knarf.

"I've got a very good idea," Knarf answered. "Let's go downstairs and ask the violin to play us a song."

Hanid shook her head. "No, we musn't do that. It's too late at night, Knarf. If the violin played a song it would wake up the children. Besides, a violin can't play by itself."

"Well, let's ask it anyway," replied her brother.

So they went downstairs into the room where father kept the violin.

Raps on Case

Knarf rapped gently on the top of the case.

"Good-evening," said the violin sweetly. "I was taking a little nap, but I'm glad you've come to see me. Sometimes it gets very lonely lying here."

"Knarf thinks you would play us a song," Hanid explained. "But I told him it was too late at night. And besides, you can't play all by yourself."

"That's quite right," the violin replied. "I'm very sorry. But I'll be glad to talk to you about my family."

"About your family!" the two shadows exclaimed. "We didn't know you had a family."

"Oh yes, indeed. I've got a cousin and an uncle and a grandfather. My cousin's name is Viola."

"Viola!"

"Yes, she looks a good deal like me—only she's just a little bit bigger. And her voice is deeper. You really ought to meet Cousin Viola. And then there's Uncle 'Cello. His full name is Violincello, but everyone calls him 'Cello for short. He's quite big. In fact, he's so big that he always stands on the floor when he's played."

They slipped through the keyhole.

"And who's your grandfather?" Knarf wanted to know.

Name Is Bass-Viol

"Grandfather? Grandfather's name is Bass-Viol. We call him Bass. He looks like all of us, too, only he's tremendous. He's much, much bigger even than Uncle 'Cello. When he's played, even the person who plays him must stand up. And his voice is so deep that—do you know what it sounds like?"

"Like what," the shadows asked eagerly.

"Life gr-r-rump, gr-r-rump. But he's very nice, just the same. And that's our family."

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, December 6

THE ASTROLOGICAL forecast for this day holds conflicting testimonies. There is much promise for gain but, at the same time, there are hints of doubtful issues, losses and perplexing problems. There may be loss of money, possibly through carelessness, unsound decisions or the failure to grasp opportunities for growth and expansion which may be presented by friendly interests.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which affairs may call for the exercise of good judgment and sound business acumen, and require the ability to discern and grasp opportunities provided by helpful friends or other sources of influence and co-operation. Finances may be placed in jeopardy unless wisely managed and safeguarded.

A child born on this day may be fairly efficient and aspiring, but it may not have the cleancut ideas and shrewdness necessary to overcome obstacles or to take advantage of excellent opportunities in life.

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, creates a furor on the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, when she erects a sign in front of her cottage announcing "COUNSEL IN ROMANCE". Her plan is to help guide 100 student "members" in their social and love affairs for a small fee. Bob Towne, campus football hero, much attracted by Sara Sue, is the first to enroll. This enrages Peaches Pomeroy, a senior who regarded herself as "Bob's girl" the previous year. Worthington Gurley, unprepossessing freshman, provides another problem when it is evident he is interested in Sara Sue. The climax in her Cottage Plan occurs when sedate Dr. Thornton Holgate, begs Sara Sue to help him . . . then confides his love for Peaches Pomeroy. She does, and gives him his first lessons in "how to become more human". Then T. J. Sanders, a sports goods salesman, appears on the scene and seeks out Sara Sue to help him locate a pretty girl he had seen in the stands at a local football game. The girl, of course, is Sara Sue herself. Bob finds Sanders' dog at Sara Sue's and begins to suspect he has a new rival. Sanders, much taken by Sara Sue takes her to visit some dog kennels because she likes dogs, then makes other dates with her. Alone, she does some serious thinking about Sanders, Towne, Gurley and Dr. Holgate.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER 17

SARA SUE was alone when Dr. Holgate arrived at 10 a. m. Her mother-in-law was visiting friends in Galveston. Calculus had gone somewhere on a temporary job, and Cleopatra was at the grocery store.

"How do you do?" Dr. Holgate greeted her cheerily, if stifly. He even smiled, as if genuinely glad to see her.

"Nobody's here," she announced. "Don't come in so formally. Throw your hat at the table and slouch in, Thorny!"

He gazed intently at her. "Slouch?"

"Sure! Be human!"

"But, my dear Mrs. Davis—"

"I am not your dear Mrs. Davis. I am Sara Sue. Just like I am to the rest of the bunch, Thorny." She punctuated that with as sweet a smile as she could manage. "You must learn that you are one of the gang, not a stand-offish dignitary. Why, who are not—how old are you, anyway."

"I shall be 29 in December. When one nears 30, one puts away childish things, it would seem."

"Oh. You're almost 29. Tch-tch." She clucked as if in abject pity, shaking her head. "Poor old dear. Sit here, Uncle Thornton, and let me get your slippers, and then maybe you will tell little me about Goldilocks and the three bears. Will ums?"

He blushed rather miserably, and Sara Sue laughed out loud.

"Thorny Holgate, you ought to be ashamed! Why, I will be 21 at my next. Bob Towne—a lot of the seniors are as old as I, and a few are older. My first hus—I mean, Larry Davis—was five years older than I when we married. Why, silly, 28 isn't old! Nor 38 nor 48, for that matter. You have just been bashful and shy. Too scholarly. And too serious."

He sat down.

"It is true," he almost whispered it. "I know it is true, Mrs. D—Sara Sue. But—" He swallowed, looking beyond her.

"Thorny, I'm glad you came to me," she spoke ever so gently then, sitting beside him, and looking him. "The greatest happiness I have found is in helping other people find their happiness. I can see right through you now. I do want to help you. If you will co-operate with me, I think we can make you what you'd really want to be, and make Geraldine Pomeroy your sweetheart, too."

He touched her hand in gratitude, patted it abstractedly, thinking.

"Thank you, so much," he said, and meant it. "I will do everything you say."

She changed the mood, at that. "All right," she said, rather loudly and cheerfully. "Let's analyze. Now, first you have already attended to the clothing. By the way, you look fine this morning, Thorny. Really it is."

He looked at his coat sleeve.

"Your tie, too, is nice. Don't wear any more black ones, ever. And don't wear black sox. And, let me see—" She inspected him, hair to heel. "Listen, Thorny, take off your glasses a moment."

He obeyed, folding the heavy ear pieces.

"Well, my goodness! You have no idea what a difference it makes in you!"

"I daresay."

"It does, Thorny. Do you have to wear them?"

"Well, when I read, yes."

"But not all the time?"

"No. But I read a great deal, and it is convenient to wear them. I have just developed a habit of doing so. I am scarcely conscious of them."

"You wait a minute."

She hastened into her mother-in-law's bedroom, and came back bearing spectacles with small white gold frames and a different nose piece. "Try these on," she ordered. "They are mother's spares. I want to see this style on you."

He adjusted them, soberly.

"Now smile, Thorny. Look at me and say, 'How are you, Toots' and grin like a sophomore."

It was a different order, but he managed it. Sara Sue giggled in delight.

"You trot right downtown this afternoon," she commanded, "and get fitted in a better style of frame. This one improves you a hundred per cent, Really it does. Takes that owlish look away. And you must wear glasses only when you read. At least while you're wooing Peaches Pomeroy. Promise?"

"I promise." He smiled appreciatively.

"You know, Thorny, you are really quite a handsome man, when you give yourself a chance. I was just noticing the set of your chin. And you have a good nose and mouth, and very pretty eyes."

Thornton Holgate, Ph. D., blushed. Nobody had spoken to him like that ever, in all his memory. He smiled through his glow.

"You—ah—are ribbing me, I fear."

"No. I am giving you a professional analysis. Now listen further—you practice exercises before the mirror, will you? Remove your glasses, and do all sorts of facial contortions. Get that set look out of it, understand? You have too much of a scholastic, dignified expression. Try — try whistling, Thorny. And humming. And smiling. Smile a lot. Life isn't so serious. Really it isn't. The country isn't going to the dogs, or anything of the sort. You must be happy to be successful in love. So be happy. Mingle with people, and be gay with them. Promise?"

She edged off her lecturing then. In truth, she began to feel a trifle ashamed of herself. Could she be overdoing a job, in her enthusiasm? She almost apologized when that possibility occurred to her, but thought better of it and didn't.

They talked a bit more, and then he made a confession.

"I came with a report," he said.

"Oh. What? I'm so curious to know."

"I have spoken to Miss Po—to Geraldine—in person."

No! Really?"

"Yes! I, ah, accosted her in the sallyport only this morning. First I saw her coming from the physics laboratory, and when she was unexpectly alone, I hastened across the greensward and came onto her as if by chance. She was quite cordial."

"What all did she say?"

"Why—ah—nothing of importance. I mean—that is—only impersonal talk. But I was wondering if you would approve of my inviting her to go for some, ah, refreshments, at some convenient time. Such appears to be the custom in her set."

"What you mean is, Thorny, would it be all right to say, 'Come on and I'll buy you a coke.' Just do it casually, like that. Like any of the boys do."

"Oh!"

"Sure. Take her acceptance for granted. Just grab her arm and escort her on down toward the Autry house or some other hang-out where there's a soda fountain. Talk and laugh a lot. Kid her along. Promise?"

"I shall try."

Buckley's 2-WAY TREATMENT fights coughs and colds from within and without and gives even quicker relief than Buckley's Mixture alone. Buckley's White Rub is the only rub with a snow-white base. It is medicated with healing, analgesic oils that stimulate circulation, help break up congestion, and ease breathing. Its medicinal vapors freely inhaled, combined with Buckley's Mixture help to heal and soothe the raw, congested mucous membranes of the throat and bronchial tubes. The Mixture eases the cough and aids in correcting the over acid condition that tends to prolong coughs and colds. Try this combination—Buckley's Mixture and Buckley's White Rub. It must give relief in HALF the time—or your money back.

Urgent Problem Of Anti-Semitism Is Facing Canadians Rev. George S. Easton Declares

One does not need to look to Germany for evidence of anti-Semitism, but only as far as Toronto, declared Rev. George S. Easton in his evening sermon at Trinity United churh last night. In the Queen City it is not accompanied by persecution as in Europe but by an isolation that is marked, he said.

He cited an instance in which an owner of tenements in Toronto, faced with one empty building, rented to Jews and next day found notices from other tenants that they would leave if Jews were permitted.

"Those of us who have lived in the city of Toronto know that when a Jewish family works its way into a block, other races soon disappear. So, I say, there is a problem of anti-Semitism in this country."

He was speaking on the "Future of the Jew," in which he defended the Jew who has been faithful to his religion, and censored the apostate Jew—he who has departed from his faith. In the faithful Jew he found only admirable qualities, industry, zealousness, business acumen foresight artistic ability high morality.

"The apostate Jew as the apostate Christian, constitutes a very difficult problem," he said. "The apostate Jew is as cruel as Hitler, and his dictatorship is found in many fields. It is sometimes in the moving picture industry, sometimes in international banking, sometimes in sweatshops, sometimes in law offices. For the apostate Jew I have no defence as I have no defence for the apostate Christian."

He laid at the feet of the apostate Jew the blame for much of the hatred that has been piled upon his entire race urged a great revival by orthodox Jews to bring their traitorous members back to the Hebrew faith, that the problem of sympathetic treatment by Christians may be easier of solution.

No Solution Yet

No workable solution to the Jewish problem has yet been brought forth, he claimed, and urged assimilation, not isolation, as the only possible answer. He advocated arousal of a world-wide sentiment by theists—believers in one supreme deity—in favor of democracy, freedom, idealism, as opposed to paganism, oppression, dictatorship.

Such arousal is the great problem of today, one whose postponement will only make it more difficult of solution. The approach to the solution of the Jewish problem of today must be spiritual, not political, he said.

Jews As Scapegoats.

Relating from the Old Testament the story of the scapegoat—the goat that carried the sins of all mankind into the wilderness to die, as a part of the celebration of the Day of Atonment—Mr. Easton asked, "How often have the Jewish people themselves been the scapegoats of the peoples of the rest of the world?

"Many of you, possibly all of you, will disagree with some of the things I will say. But even if all of you disagreed with a hundred per cent. of the things I am going to say, I would be tempted to say them anyway, for they are what I believe and I am entitled to say what I believe even as you are entitled to say what you believe."

"The world is shocked today as it stands confronted with that old, old problem of anti-Semitism," he said. Such persecution of minority groups as is going on in Germany today is always accompanied by a trend to paganism, to apostasy and to absolute dictatorship, he said. He recalled various times in the history of the world when the Jewish race has been persecuted, and placed in oppositions names of Jews great in the history of half a dozen nations. "Christians should remember that Jesus as well as all His disciples were Jews," he reminded his audience.

The same thoughtlessness among the masses that permits dictatorships, permits persecution of minority groups on the grounds that confiscated property can be turned over to the majority grops to alleviate distress, he maintained. He claimed that never in history has the wealth so accumulated been turned over to such alleviation. Another reason that permits persecution is that through it the masses of oppressed see all their sufferings transferred to the heads of others.

It is absurd to believe all the evil that is being said of the Jews in Germany, the speaker said. "It is equally absurd to say that all Jews are communists. There are too many apostate Christians who are communists."

The Time Is Near

The time is rapidly coming when the decision will have to be made whether the world's problems are to be solved by peaceful or by bloody measures, he said. If bloody measures are to be employed, he saw the world left in the control of communism, groping for the light of freedom. "God forbid that such should come to pass," he said.

"Historically, every nation that has put down the Jew has gone down with him," he claimed. "The House of Israel will continue long after the bones of his persecutors have crumbled into dust.' There lies the problem of every theist nation, he said. "It is impossible for any follower of Christianity to sidestep this issue any longer. We must give the Jew a new place if we are to have any future ourselves."

OBITUARY

THOMAS GRACEY.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 5.—A resident of this town for the past thirty-five years Thomas Gracey passed away at his home on Thursday evening. Widely known in this community the deceased established an enviable reputation among concrete workers, having specialized in this field since coming to Campbellford. A bachelor, he came here from Milltown and one brother Edward has kept him company at his home here on Ragland street for the past two years, during which his health had been failing. The deceased was in his sixty-fifth year.

The funeral was held on Saturday morning from Bennett's Funeral Parlours to St. Mary's Church, where Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father J. V. McAuley. Interment was made in St. Mary's Cemetery. The pallbearers were Messrs. P. J. Sarginson, James Wilson, Henry Forestell, Patrick Keenan, P. Shannon, and T. Dooher.

Youth Injured As Car Skids

Thrown through the left rear window of an automobile as it rolled over after skidding on the icy pavement of Highway No. 7, three miles east of Peterborough Saturday morning, Kenneth Rylott, 10, of RR 7, Peterborough was fortunate enough to escape with an injured collarbone and lacerations on the face and head. The boy was tossed through the glass of the window after the automobile had gone into a tailspin.

Two cars were involved in this spectacular accident, and both were ditched although they did not come into contact with one another. An autombile driven by Herbert McKay, R.R. 1, Indian River, was proceeding toward Peterborough and was overtaken by another machine driven by J. B. Rylott, Otonabee. As the second car was about to pass the first one, it skidded and went out of control, turning around twice on the icy surface and then rolling over three times in the ditch on its wrong side of the road. Mr. and Mrs. Rylott escaped with bruises and shaking up but their son was more seriously hurt. Their car was virtually demolished.

A peculiar feature was that while this was happening the McKay car also got out of control and shot across into the ditch on its left side. No one was, however, injured and the car was not badly damaged.

ing ceremonies which ended with dinner here included Hon. T. A. Crerar, Federal Minister of Mines and Resources; S. J. Hungerford, C.N.R. President; Alastair Fraser, C.N.R. Vice-president; Hon. Onesime Gagnon, Quebec Minister of Mines; Hon. Thomas Coonan, Quebec Minister without portfolio, and Hon. Henri Auger, Quebec Minister of Colonization, and Hon. Paul Leduc, Ontario Minister of Mines.

Mr. Hungerford said the line was not the first contribution the Canadian National had made to the opening of new communities in the north. By building a line into Flin Flon, Man., the railway had made possible important developments in that area.

He said he believed in a policy of building up Canadian economic activities to the level of existing railway facilities rather than cutting down the facilities. The opening of the line might prove to be a step in the solution of the railway problem as it would lead to more traffic.

A. Kirk Cameron, president of the Montreal Chamber of Mines, said if there was any solution to the railway problem it lay in the north. If mineral production increased in the next ten years as rapidly as it had in the past the railway problem would disappear because there would be ample traffic for the railways. If this occurred the unemployment problem would also largely disappear because of the jobs created by increased activity.

Speeches at the dinner ranged over the fields of railways, mines and politics, with Mr. Crerar, Mr. Coonan, and Mr. Gagnon touching the subjects of national unity and Dominion-Provincial co-operation.

Richly Endowed Land

Canada was more richly endowed, having regard to its population, than any other country, said Mr. Crerar, if there was a spirit of disunity apparent in certain places it was not greater than had been experienced in other countries at similar stages in their development. He hoped it would disappear as Canadians became conscious they had received much from past generations and had a duty to pass something on to future generations.

Guarding Paris Subway In General Strike

Although labor disorders broke out in various sections of the country, Premier Edouard Daladier of France smashed the nation-wide general strike with the threat of armed force and military law. This radiophoto shows Mobile Guards in Paris guarding a subway station. The strike was called in protest against the Decree laws of the French premier, and although successful in crippling many private industries, failed to stop the functioning of public utilities, which were operated under the supervision of armed troops.

Mr. Coonan said if there was any spirit of disunity in Canada it was not to be found in Quebec. The government of Quebec had been forced to face the problems of the depression and take steps to meet them but in doing so it had accepted the unity of Canada as a fact.

Goodwill was the secret to the solution of all Canadian problems and the essence of goodwill was a frank recognition of the fundamental differences between English and French-speaking people.

Mr. Gagnon said the federal government grant for mining roads to Quebec had been reduced last year. If the federal government would provide more money he would spend it. This was by way of comment on a suggestion from Mr. Cameron that the two governments co-operate more closely in the development of the northern areas.

County Council Recommends Cutting Grand Juries From Thirteen To Seven Men

Reduction in the number of grand jurors from 13 men to seven and limitation of inspection of county buildings to once a year were recommended in a resolution endorsed by the County Council on Saturday.

Reeve James Gifford of Ennismore, who framed the resolution following the warm discussion on Friday afternoon regarding grand jury costs which were termed "exorbitant," introduced the motion. He said the committee of Reeves Griffith, Seeney, and himself felt the grand jury served a good purpose in examining indictments to determine of there is sufficient evidence to put a man on his trial. This protection, he said, should be given any person charged with a serious offence. He pointed out that county buildings were inspected by Government men now and under management of capable boards, therefore one inspection a year should be sufficient. Reeve Seeney seconded the motion, which carried unanimously.

County Clerk Replies.

Miss Batten, county clerk and treasurer, prompted by an article in Friday's issue of the Examiner said: "There was nothing personal in pointing out to the Council that county buildings had been inspected four times and the cost of grand juries was high. I merely did it in the course of my duties."

"I think Miss Batten is to be commended in calling this to the attention of the Council. It is her duty as well as ours to keep expenses down," said Reeve Tanner of Lakefield.

"In view of what has taken place," Reeve Anderson said, "I move that the Council endorse Miss Batten's action in advising the Council of these repeated inspections."

Reeve William Griffith seconded it, and the support was unanimous.

Resolution Passed.

The resolution was as follows:

Whereas the increase in many municipal services has in recent years caused a large increase in Municipal expenditures, and whereas, it is desirable that unnecessary expenditures be curtailed, and whereas, the duplication of inspection of public buildings and institutions is a cause of much complaint by reason of the great expense involved, and whereas, in the opinion of this Council it is not necessary or desirable that all grand juries should continue as at present to inspect at each sitting of a Jury Court our public buildings and institutions, Therefore, be it resolved, that the Government of the Province of Ontario be requested to pass the necessary legislation or regulations so that in the result, no grand jury inspection of such buildings and institutions shall take place oftener than once in any one year; That the number of Grand Jurors be reduced from the existing number of 13 to 7.

Batteries Stolen From Car And Truck

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 5.— Police are baffled by the latest series of thefts perpetrated in this town. It is the motorist who is falling victim in this new type of thieving. H. A. McArthur was first to complain after he had ordered garage mechanics to put a new battery in his car when it failed to start. The thieves made a neat job of it for they carefully replaced floor boards in the car leaving no trace of their work. Joe Dunk, local grocer, was the other victim and he also reported to the police that the battery had been stolen from his light delivery truck during the same night.

Agonizing Eczema (Salt Rheum)

No rest, day or night, for those afflicted with that awful skin disease, eczema, or salt rheum as it is commonly called.

The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night, or when the affected part is exposed to strong heat, or hot water, are almost unbearable, and relief is gladly welcomed.

To get rid of eczema it is necessary to have the blood cleansed by the use of a thoroughly reliable blood medicine such as Burdock Blood Bitters which during the past 60 years has met with great success in relieving such diseases by its blood cleansing and purifying properties.

Dr. L. J. Austin Addresses Queen's Alumni

An enjoyable dinner was held by the Queen's Alumni of the Peterborough district at the Kawartha Club on Saturday evening, with an attendance of over sixty from Lakefield, Norwood, Campbellford, Newcastle, Port Hope and Peterborough.

The long banquet tables heralded Christmas with miniature glowing trees, scarlet candles, and snowy evergreen branches. They were decorated by Miss Connie Wagar, Mr. John Londerville and Mr. Jack Mark.

After the toast to Queen's University, proposed by Dr. J. A. Bannister, Dr. H. G. Carlton, president of the Association, introduced the guest speaker, Dr. L. J. Austin, F. R.C.S., Professor of Surgery at Queen's University. Dr. Austin, distinguished as surgeon, teacher, and soldier, was greeted by the singing of "Old Soldiers Never Die."

With his usual witty repartee, the well known professor reminded former students that he had not yet "faded away," and at the same time congratulated former patients of his who were a part of the audience. A reminiscence of his life from the time he graduated from the usual private boys' school in England, where he was brought up to know absolutely nothing of the world—in direct contrast to the education received by Canadian boys—until his present appointment at Queen's, was given by the speaker.

Graduates From Cambridge.

After graduating from Cambridge University, he entered an East London hospital as an interne. It was in this hospital, located in a district of unmitigated poverty and slums, that his knowledge of life, with all its tragedies, began. While there he saw the crises of 1911 that compared with the crises of 1938 in September. He joined the forces as a Red Cross man and went to France, where he was captured by Germans and was a prisoner of war for three months. During that time he was tried five times for his life, finally being saved from hanging when it was decided that he was an indiscreet English doctor and not a spy. Back in London after the war, Dr. Austin found that life was knocked out of civilization, and that there were no jobs available. Accidentally running into some Queen's boys who were trying their Master's Degree, he became their coach, and through that contact came to his present position at the University.

Progress Made By Queen's.

The progress of University life up to what he said was one of the most important events in Queen's history, the Roosevelt convocation last summer, was traced b ythe speaker. From the remarks made by President Roosevelt that United States would not stand idle while an alien nation attacked, he came to the subject of "duty to Empire." He said that the reaction of the student body at Queen's to the late crises was shown in two ways. First, in an increased importance of the C.O.T.C., and second, in a too secure feeling of safety among an indifferent element of the student body who seemed to say, "let others go on with the job."

In answering his own question, "have we any obligations to Empire?" he remarked that it was up to all to serve, women as well as men. As an old soldier, he said he could not see how students could remain outside, and expressed as his opinion that in two or three years military service from an early age would be compulsory in Canada.

A vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Mr. E. R. Shirley, Honorary President of the Association, and a presentation was made to Dr. Austin by former students of his in the form of the memoirs of Sir Robert Borden, who was the war time chancellor at Queen's University.

Two solos were given by Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield, and an evening of games and dancing followed. Arrangements were in charge of Lloyd Hale, Arnold Noftall, Donald Munro, and Inspector Leo Copp. Music for dancing was supplied by Jack Telford, pianist.

Two Young Men Are Given Fines Of $25

Allen, 581 Rogers Street, $25, and $5.50 costs, each after they had pleaded guilty to a charge of supplying liquor to two young girls, 15 and 17 years of age.

T. J. Carley, K.C., appeared on behalf of the two defendants, and in explaining the circumstances of the case said that the two had taken two girls out and some liquor had been drunk, after the girls had said that they had had liquor on previous occasions.

"It is not a case for the minimum penalty," declared the Magistrate, as he named a $25 fine in each case.

The Rambling REPORTERS

WANTED FULL COURSE

A transient was making the rounds on George Street north between 12 and 1 o'clock. Apply- at one home for something to eat he was informed something would be prepared for him if he would just wait a little. It was wash-day and things were not running quite on schedule. His reply to the suggestion was, "Thanks ma'm, but I'm looking for a place where I can get a good hot meal." With that, he was off.—McG.

JUST HELPERS

Which of the three is the real Santa, children of the city who are taken on shopping tours with their parents want to know these days.

One mother has the answer. She had just taken her two children to visit each of the three in downtown stores on Saturday when an acquaintance stopped her and wanted to know which was the real Old Nick. "Oh, he isn't at any of them," came the answer. "Is he children?" she asked. "Oh, no," they chorused, "the real Santa is the one we hear every night on the radio. The others are just his helpers."—P.

RATHER EMBARRASSING.

Police embarrassed one couple exceedingly on Saturday night in the course of the department's demonstration of a two-way police radio system.

They cruised about the city, listening to and making conversation by way of radio, and picked up representative citizens to show them how effective the gadget was.

One householder was holding a ladies' bridge party when a burly policeman called at the door and said: "The police car is waiting outside for Mr. ——." And when the husband jumped into his coat and dashed off, the guests were somewhat amazed, and peeked curious glances at their ruffled hostess.—P.

15 Days In Jail Given Man Who Stole Wood

"That will let you out in time for Christmas," remarked Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning as he imposed a sentence of fifteen days imprisonment upon Joseph Delore after registering a conviction against him on a charge of having stolen, during the month of October, in the township of Cavendish, two cords of hardwood from Herbert Doig.

On a charge of drunkenness Delore was fined $10 and $3 costs and another charge of illegal possession of liquor was withdrawn.

Herbert Doig testified that Delore had been cutting wood for him in Cavendish township and was to have been paid $1.75 a cord or $2.50 if he built a road. He had not given him any authority to sell any of the wood but discovered that some had been taken in October and afterward Delore had admitted taking it and selling it to a man living on one of the short streets below the Canadian General Electric Company plant.

Inspector James F. Reid swore that in the police station some weeks before he was arrested Delore had told Doig in the officer's presence that he had taken the wood and would pay $12 for it.

Trucked Wood Into City

Truman Paton, a truck driver, told the court that Delore had asked him to go out to Cavendish to get a load of wood and he had gone to Doig's bush and obtained two cords of wood, Delore helping him to load the truck. The wood was brought into Peterborough and sold to a man living on Lafayette avenue. Witness had seen the man pay Delore for the wood.

James Barrie, 36 Lafayette avenue, said that Delore had called at his place soliciting orders for wood and he had given him an order for three cords of hardwood. A few days later Delore brought him two cords of maple which witness paid for.

Sam Webb, the last crown witness, contributed no material evidence.

Taking the witness box in his own behalf Delore said that Doig was a hard man to get money out of and that he had told the witness when he asked for money to get a truck and get some wood out. He had taken out two cords and sold them and had credited Doig with $9 that was left over after the trucker had been paid for the trip. In cross examination Delore admitted that he had no authority to bring the wood into Peterborough and sell it and also that he had not said anything about the matter to Doig until the latter had learned that a quantity of maple was mising.

Second Offender Is Fined $50 And Costs

Although Bruce Sloan, charged in police court today with being drunk on a second offence count, told the court that he did not think he was intoxicated on November 11, the date on which the offence was alleged to have taken place, he did admit that he had three glasses of beer and a drink of wine, and that, added to the evidence of Constables C. J. McGillen and John Stevenson that the accused had been very drunk on Park street when they arrested him, settled the matter.

Magistrate Langley registered a conviction on the evidence and fined Sloan $50 and $5.50 costs with the alternative of a month in jail.

On a charge of creating a disturbance on Water street on November 30 to which he had pleaded guilty, Sloan was given an additional jail sentence of ten days to commence at the expiration of the sentence in the liquor case.

It was stated that the accused had broken in a couple of doors and had made no restitution.

"I am not able to pay for the doors," Sloan told the court. "I am not working."

Ex-Follies Beauty Takes Suicide Out

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP)—Gas ended the life of Mrs. Helen Ryan Cressman Carr, former Ziegfeld Follies beauty, as her estranged husband, comedian Alexander Carr, searched for her.

The body of the 38-year-old former show girl was found in the kitchen of her Riverside apartment yesterday. Detective Eugene Reilly said she had turned on stove jets and written a farewell note as gas filled the room.

"There is no other way out," the note read.

Carr, member of the old "Potash and Perlmutter" comedy team, said he had searched for his wife in the hope of a reconciliation and thought notice of his opening a night club here would attract her attention.

Mrs. Carr divorced Paul Gugger, Connecticut millionaire, in 1923 to marry the comedian. They had been estranged for eight years.

Orchids Up Again

TORONTO, Dec. 5—(AP).—Prices of orchids are up again. A few weeks ago, during a spell of unseasonably mild weather, prices tumbled with $2 orchids selling for 50 cents. Florists report prices are back again to normal, or nearly so, again—from $2 to $5 each.

Little Indian Boy Gets His Six Dollars; Guitar Will Also Be Returned To Him

FAITH in the generosity and essential good-heartedness of people would have been restored in any cynic who had been in the Examiner office over the week-end, when nearly a dozen different people telephoned with offers to provide Gerald Johnson, young Indian boy at Nicholls Hospital, with money for Christmas presents.

On Saturday the Examiner told of the sacrifice the youngster wanted to make in order to buy gifts for his family. He wanted the Examiner to sell his guitar, his most prized possession, for six dollars.

Hardly had the paper reached the homes in the city when subscribers began to telephone with offers to send the lad the money he wanted, and all stipulated that the guitar was to be returned to him as well.

First to call was Mrs. Robert Hartley, 561 Weller street. She and some friends are raising the six dollars to send to Gerald, as well as some additional funds for gifts for himself.

To answer the telephone and hear offers of assistance for the youngster was an education in human nature that was startling in the extreme. "I would like to send the boy six dollars and his guitar," came many a voice. "It would never do to let him sell the violin." And when those good hearted people were told that Gerald's six dollars had already been provided the answer was always something like this: "Just so long as he doesn't have to sell the guitar."

Perhaps the most self-sacrificing incident in connection with the entire affair, one that matched the unselfishness of the Indian youngster himself, came from a 10-year-old boy. This reporter is going to risk the displeasure both of the boy and his parents by revealing his name. He is George Shaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shaw, Reid street.

George saw the story of Gerald's need and asked his mother if there was not some way in which the Indian boy could receive the money without selling the guitar. "I'd like to send him the money from my school savings account," he told her courageously.

"The police had better find out who supplied these boys with liquor," suggested Magistrate Langley. The youths and three other offenders were fined $10, and $4.50 costs, each. Two of the accused were on the black list.

BYLAW TURNED DOWN

Members of the County Council did not take kindly to a proposal submitted by the Bell Telephone Company. The company sought to have the Council approve a bylaw covering all telephone poles already erected in the county and to appoint one man with whom the company officials would meet with in event of any new lines or changes. The decision of the members was to frame a bylaw and submit it to the company.

TWO CONTRIBUTIONS

The Examiner received today one dollar each from Fred T. Tuggey and John Harran for the Gerald Johnson fund. "If you don't get the six for the boy's guitar just let me know," Mr. Tuggey added. This fund was over-subscribed before these two contributions came in, and Mr. Tuggey requested that the money be given to the boy anyway.

SANTA CLAUS NEEDS HELP

At the relief office this morning A. G. Metheral told the Examiner he was preparing a Santa Claus list which he expected would be larger than a year ago. To avoid duplication in giving, the churches that participate in this work of distributing Yuletide cheer submit the lists of families they are going to assist, but there will be many others who will have to be aided directly through the relief office. "Just mention that the need is somewhat heavier than a year ago," Mr. Metheral said, "and kindly citizens who like to extend the spirit of Christmas to others will no doubt help us as in other years."

"GOD THE ONLY CAUSE."

"God the Only Cause and Creator" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon for First Church of Christ, Scientist, Peterborough, on Sunday. The Golden Text was, "I am the Lord, your Holy One, the creator of Israel, your King." (Isaiah 43:15). Selections from the Bible included the following from Romans 11:33, 36: "O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out! For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things; to whom be glory for ever. Amen." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, included the following: "The starting-point of divine Science is that God, Spirit, is All-in-all, and that there is no other might nor Mind—that God is Love, and therefore He is divine Principle."

Havelock Ladies Christmas Fair Proves Decided Success

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Dec. 5. — Brilliantly lighted Christmas trees and other decorations appropriate to the approaching holiday season, provided a very pretty setting for an interesting Christmas Fair sponsored by the ladies of the Havelock United Church on Friday afternoon in the church basement. The event proved a decided success, both socially and financially, the proceeds for the afternoon amounting altogether to about $75. Each organization of the church looked after its own booth and the fair was officially opened at 3 o'clock by Rev. Andrew McLauchlin. A supper was served between 5 and 6 o'clock by the members of the Ladies' Association.

The individual booths where a variety of goods were exhibited for sale were looked after as follows: Women's Missionary Society, fancy work, Mrs. T. Easterbrook, Mrs. Rae Williams, and Mrs. A. New Police Radio Equipment Is Demonstrated

A convincing demonstration of a system of police radio which Constable W A. Clark of the Peterborough police department hopes to build and instal here if the necessary funds are forthcoming was given here Saturday by W. H. Millman of Kitchener, who is in charge of police communications at Guelph.

Mr. Millman, whose advice and cooperation will be sought by Constable Clark if the local project is authorized, installed a transmission station at the Westclox plant Friday night and experiments were satisfactorily carried out Saturday by means of a radio cruising car.

Among those who had a good opportunity to see at first hand the capabilities of the system and the remarkable clearnes sof reception of the massages picked up by the radio car was Judge Sheldon Smoke, chairman of the Police Commission, who put in a telephone call to the police station for the car and found it arriving at his residence in remarkably quick order, the message having been received in the cruiser as it was passing the northeastern gate of the Exhibition Grounds. Afterward Judge Smoke took a trip in the car and heard the conversation of the operator at the temporary broadcasting station as he and Constable Clark talked without difficulty as the automobile sped around city streets and out on Highway 28 toward Lakefield.

Quick Work.

Saturday night Ald. Dutton, Glover, Stocker, Wilson and McIntyre were among those who put in test calls to the police station and who were amazed by the quick arrival of the radio car at their homes. "They were here in about a minute," said Ald. Stocker in describing his experience.

Later an Examiner reporter in company with several other newspapermen had a long ride about town in the cruiser car and had a fine chance to judge of the satisfactory nature of the reception and the ease with which communication is set up and maintained. The system whic his a two-way affair and is notable for its lack of interference, was given a thorough test, including a stop between the switches and the generators of the power plant at Auburn, where interference should have been at its worst but where reception of messages was just as clear as anywhere else.

The advantage of such equipment to a police department impressed itself upon everybody who had anything to do with the test Saturday. "One radio-equipped car would be the equivalent in effectiveness of three patrol cars without radio" one citizen stated to the Examiner and that seemed to be the general opinion. The point is that wherever the cruising cars are operating a radio system keeps them constantly and instantly available and in police work, like that of the fire department, the time element is of course very important.

Wheat Picture To Be Shown Here

Peterborough county may some day have a national memorial within its confines, according to a statement made in Toronto the other day by J. J. Duffus, M.P. He told reporters that a movement is gathering strength in eastern Ontario to have the Fife farm in Otonabee township, only ten miles from this city, recognized as a national memorial to the contribution made by David Fife to Canada's wheat trade. Fife wheat, he said, had been one of the major factors in carrying Canada's reputation to all parts of the world, and as such it was entitled to recognition.

He was speaking at the premiere of a motion picture produced by the Canadian Wheat Board in which David Fife's farm in Otonabee plays a major part. The film will be shown in England to acquaint British buyers with the conditions which have made Canadian wheat so excellent in grade and quality and among its major themes is the story of the development of the universally known Fife strain. But it will not go to England before Peterborough audiences have had the opportunity to see it. It will be shown in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Young Men's Association.

Edwin Fife, grandson of David Fife, saw himself in movies in Toronto for the first time last week. "I didn't look like a movie star," he submitted afterwards, "but I did get a big kick out of seeing the old farm on the screen. Looked just as natural as if we were right there."

Planning Dinner For Builder Of Casa Loma

Three local men are making plans to attend a birthday dinner to be tendered Sir Henry Pellatt, on January 6th in Toronto when the distinguished soldier and the man who built Casa Loma will celebrate his 80th birthday.

In 1910 Sir Henry, then Colonel of the Queen's Own Rifles took 640 men all ranks at his own expense to the Autumnal manoevres of the British Imperial army in England. Among the soldiers were Wilfred F. Huycke, K.C., William H. Ashby, 588 Water street and Major H. K. Clifton. All were buck privates and they had a grand time.

A number of the men who went on the trip conceived the idea of having a dinner for SirHenry on his birthday which would also serve as a reunion for them after 28 years.

Tentative plans already outlined indicates the dinner will be held in the Royal York Hotel in Toronto, and those in charge are making efforts to locate all members who made the trip, that the greatest possible number may attend.

Wilfred Huycke remembers vividly the trip and the two weeks spent at Levis, Quebec, where the officers put the men through a strenuous period of training.

The men sailed on the same boat which carried Dr. Crippen and his girl friend Ethel LeNeve back to England there the doctor faced trial for the murder of his wife and was finally hanged.

This murder case attracted world wide attention and is particularly notable because it was the first time that wireless had been used to bring a criminal to justice. Dr. Crippen escaped on a slow boat to America and had dressed his paramour Ethel Le Neve in boy's clothing. The two however, attracted the attention of the captain by their devotion to each other, and the Captain wirelessed his suspicions to England. Scotland Yard immediately sent an officer by fast boat to Montreal and this man was waiting for the pair when the boat arrived.

They were taken off the boat at Father Point and returned to England on the boat carrying the 640 soldiers.

"When we arrived in Liverpool the crowds were packed so tightly on the pier that there was grave danger of the soldiers being pushed off into the water. I don't know whether they were there to welcome us or to see the famous criminal and his girl friend," said Alderman Huycke.

He explained that the soldiers went on to Aldershot where the manoevres took place. Then Queen's Own were brigaded with three of the regular British regiments and during the program acquitted themselves nobly although they were mere rookies compared to the veteran regular troops.

William Ashby and Major Clifton are both making plans to attend the dinner and renew acquaintances while Mr. Huycke also expects to make the trip. If there are any other members of the regiment in this district they are asked to get in touch with Mr. Huycke or the other two men.

Dan Whetung Calls For Plenty Of Snow In Time For Ski Meet

IT MAY BE A LITTLE LATE in the season for a winter's forecast but perennial prophet Dan Whetung, Indian chief from Curve Lake has just had time to get around to his prophesying.

"We've had an old fashioned autumn and we're going to have an old fashioned winter now," oracled Dan with Delphic gravity. Then he elaborated, "There will be lots and lots of snow and your ski meet will be a big success. You can bank on that." Dan hasn't decided yet whether Peterborough is to have snow for Christmas, will consult the auspices further on that matter.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

JUST BEFORE we blow the frost—we'd say froth, if we lisped!—off and plunge into the hockey whirl, let's issue a warning to the ball officers. Things don't look bright for a grouping up this way next year, with Belleville dead, Fliers and Napanee out as senior prospects, Kingston doubtful, Lakeshore Loop still intermediate, and even Oshawa luke-warm to a Central Ontario League. Unless the O.B.A. does some grouping, things here next spring for the ball moguls will look blacker than a ton of coal: And we wouldn't be at all flabber-gasted if several of the 1938 Petes, good players like Burton, Starr and Calladine, were not in Petes' uniforms next year. We'll need at least four imports, maybe five. So it behooves the ball men to get down to brass tactics these winter months and do a lot of work. Or else....

HERE IS A BOOST for Pick Hines in the Baltimore Sun: "In other years the Orioles have been handled by former players with limited experience in coaching. Pick Hines coached hockey 12 years in Canada where babies get ice skates and hockey sticks instead of rattlers. Hines has been able to drive his players and get the most out of them. He brought many of the boys with him from Canada, and was acquainted with their ability before practice here got under way. A threat of issuing return railroad tickets to Canada to some of the players who failed to sparkle—and many hockey players are lazy—turned the trick. One players was released and, unless a defenceman begins hustling, his job will hang in the balance. Hockey is a fast game. Some experts call it the fastest of all sports. It calls for hustle and fight throughout the 60 minutes of action each battle."

Southenders Are Set

SOUTHEND PUCK LOOP already has 11 entries, after a two-day notice here of a meeting. Four bantams, four midgets and three juveniles. They want another juvenile. Ossifers are: Hon. presidents, Rev. J. C. Maloney and Don Crawford; prexy, Mike O'Brien; vice-president, Joe Collins; sec., Pete Fleming. We imagine the efficient Pete will have his hands full but he'll handle things okay. They're a fine gang of men to head this good minor hockey circuit. All experienced in hockey and in promoting sports among the younger lads. P.C.I. or St. Peter's may round out the juvenile division. We note King Edward and Canucks represented in all divisions. With the Junior City Loop folding, many of these players will enter the Southend Intermediate League, we expect.

JIM GUIRY, Gord Beavis, Pete Vitarelli and the rest are waiting anxiously for ice to trot out their O.H.A. junior "C" prospects and see what's what. They figure they can dig up a good gang of young puckists to carry the name of this new O.H.A. team into the wars on various battlefronts. With an eight-team junior circuit, local fans will see lots of the new Monarchs and the Colts. The Monarchs will wear a flashy sweater of red, white and blue—but mostly red—with a lion's head crest. This team was entered in the Junior City Puck Loop last winter, and many of the boys from that league will dot the lineup in Ontario competition. Hop to it, boys, and give us fast and exciting hockey home games!

Lotta Beef On Skates

BILL JACKSON'S junior Colts will be plenty heavy, we imagine. He favors big boys, if they can skate fast and play good hockey—as who wouldn't? But he won't turn down any good local lightweights. Several of the better district players are in the Colts' mentor's mind, also—and this wouldn't hurt gates here either, if some of 'em should catch on. The Colts will wear white and blue uniforms (old Peterborough puck colors) with sweaters mostly white and the pants mostly blue. But more again on the younger hockeyists here.

DOWN AROUND BELLEVILLE, they aren't any too tickled either over the three-team senior "B" grouping of Fliers, Redmen and Petes. But it looks as though that's the best we can bank on for the winter—the three Kingston teams apparently not wanting an interlocking schedule with this trio. Meantime, the Thomas team and the Airmen are getting in shape fast with their pre-season games in the VanHorne series, while the locals will have to wait about a week for ice, on account of the weather. But the Petes still managed to start off last season with a bang, despite lack of condition, so they may repeat this semester. The Fliers are making efforts to line up an exhibition tilt in Belleville against the senior "A" Oshawa outfit—which is playing senior "B" calibre hockey lately—before Christmas. Not likely to be any exhibition frays here unless maybe the Petes and Colts put on a practice session.

Let's Look At The Petes

WITH HONEY TOMPKINS BACK, the local puckists may trot out a pretty fair outfit. Lots of goalie material, but we dunno yet about the defence. Probably Joe McNulty, Don Crowe, Archie Weir and either Johnny Shields or Dude Brady—but this is only a guess. Of the six forwards, we surmise that Tompkins, Eddie Starr and Bun Kingdon are sure starters; while Shrimp McDougall, Red Creighton, Gray and Nicholson are other prospects. The latter is a Hamilton player, while Gray hails from the west, but did his ice chores in Germany a year ago. We heard something of a guy named Pecord, too, but haven't any dope on him. There may be other local lads, ex-juniors or intermediates, worth considering, also. The team will be oke.

SARNIA IMPS dropped their second grid game of the year on Saturday—one to our Orfuns and then to Argos. The razzle-dazzle Argos knocked 'em out of Eastern Canada finals by a 25-8 score to qualify for the Dominion finals 'gainst Winnipeg Bombers next Saturday. The Imps were badly beaten for three quarters, though they battled hard near the finish. The 14,000 fans were disappointed in the Sarnia showing. We note this item in the game account: "There was an uncertain wobbly Sarnia offence which could not become geared to a winning gait because a charging Toronto team choked it into submission with its keen defence." That sounds exactly like the setup here some time back when a charging local gang caught the Imps in an off-day and made 'em look bad." Argos have a great team.

GRAB-BAG: Lindsay juniors will have St. Mike's there Friday for an exhibition puck joust....Bill Calladine and Ned Vitarelli may be home from Baltimore around Dec. 18th for a few days visit....Annual curling meeting is tonight at eight in the club rooms, and a big attendance is requested to draw up rinks, etc.....Don't forget the gals' and boys' swim meet at the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday e'en....Who is the Petes' coach this winter?....Andy Rutter, on a travelling job through Eastern and Western Ontario, is buying himself a pair of skis which may be folded in the middle; something new, eh?....Regina junior gridders claim the Canadian title by beating Montreal Westmounts, but it's tainted as they didn't play the junior O.R.F.U. winnah....O.H.A. referees and coaches meet in Toronto on Wednesday aft....City rinks are being readied up for a freezing spell.... Local football fans returned Sat'day from Toronto raving over Stukus' one-hand grab of a forward pass for the last touchdown; they said Stirling was off-form....If ya want our guess, Argos will trounce the Bombers, too....The Shadow knows—heh, heh, heh, heh, heh!

Argos Trounce Imperials To Win Eastern Final

Toronto Argos earned a chance to take a crack at the Winnipeg Blue Bombers when they trounced Sarnia Imperials 25 to 8 in a sudden death game at Toronto Saturday. This action shot was taken during the first quarter of the game when Argos scored 12 points against Sarnia. The victorious Toronto team will now meet the Blue Bombers on December 10 to decide on the winner of the Canadian title and Grey cup, which is at present held by Argos.

Picton Owner Drives Own Horse To Three Straight Wins In Saturday's Card At Dufferin

No. 1 Gridder

While Canadian fans are currently discussing the 1938 feats of Bummer Stirling, Greg Kabat or Herbie Westman, the topic of conversation in a good many cases across the line is Davey O'Brien, ABOVE, 150-pound quarterback with Texas Christian University, one of Uncle Sam's major undefeated teams. O'Brien gained recognition as outstanding player of the year by winning both the John W. Heiman Memorial and the Maxwell trophies, two awards made by coaches and writers. O'Brien had a wide margin on Marshall Goldberg of Pitt, and Sid Luckman of Columbia, in the voting for each.

Bears Drop 1-0 Tilt To Providence Then Take Stars 2-0; Hold Lead

Eastern section of the International-American Hockey League has developed into a bit of a dog-fight for top place, but Hershey Bears seem determined to let nobody threaten their lead of the western section.

Bears dropped a 1-0 decision to Providence of the eastern division Saturday night, but came right back last night to score a victory where it did the most good—a 2-0 decision over their closest rivals, Syracuse Stars.

Lashing in four goals in the first period drive, Stars had picked up two points on the section leaders Saturday with a 4-2 victory over the third-place Cleveland Barons, but last night's loss shoved them two games back of Hershey again. The Bears have a game in hand too.

Cleveland lost ground by their Saturday licking and an idle night last night, dropping to two games behind Stars, but they have played two less games. Pittsburgh crept a little closer with two points in two games, tacking a 4-3 beating on Philadelphia and then losing 4-2 to Providence.

A Perfect Weekend

Providence had a perfect weekend with their victories over Hershey and Pittsburgh, and moved into the eastern section lead as Philadelphia faltered. The extra two points they have, however, took three extra games to collect, their 18 points in 14 games comparing with Philadelphia's 16 points in 11 contests.

A former Providence player did a lot to help knock Ramblers out of the section leadership. Charley Mason paced Pittsburgh to the 4-3 win with two goals, the second being the one that broke up a 3-3 tie with less than four minutes to go.

New Haven Eagles showed they still had hopes of crawling out of the section cellar, by picking up a game on the third place Springfield Indians. Eagles went right into Indians' own back yard for a 4-1 victory Saturday, and then held Springfield to a 1-1 overtime draw in the return engagement last night.

Granddaughter Of Madoc Man Is "Stand-In" For Jane Withers Whom She Resembles

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Dec. 5.—Kay Connor, 12-year-old granddaughter of M. W. Connor of Madoc and daughter of Charles Connor of Prince Rupert, formerly of Madoc, bids fair to bring honor and fame to Madoc and perhaps as another child screen actress to Canada.

A clipping from a Hollywood magazine states:

"When she (Kay) is working at her job as stand-in for Jane Withers, whom she resembles so closely that it is almost uncanny, her day is so arranged that she has three hours of schooling and one of recreation, but between pictures she attends a junior high school, where she is president of her class and a member of two orchestras. She studies French, Italian, voice and violin and passed her last examination with a mark of 'perfect' in every subject but one, and teachers wrote 'satisfactory' on that. This year she had five music examinations and won three scholarships. Her singing teacher is Ralph Thomas, one of the discoverers of Deanna Durbin. It might be a good idea to keep your eye on Kay Connor, who seems to have all the essentials of another wonder child of the screen."

Nellie McQuade, 97 Still Stage-Struck

SYRACUSE, Dec. 5—(CP)—Nellie McQuade, who made her debut as a chorus girl in American Civil War days, is still "stage-struck," she acknowledged on her 97th birthday last month.

Although years have passed since she played before an audience, the heart of a trouper still beats in the breast of the bright-eyed little lady who at 19 ran away from home to begin a career on the stage.

"I'm sure I don't know what I would have to think about now if it weren't for my memories of the theatre," said Miss McQuade with a smile. To her those early years, when footlights were crude lamps and the theatre considered a daring profession for women, were full of glamor.

Her first appearance on the stage was as a member of the chorus in "The Bohemian Girl." For two years Miss McQuade remained with the troupe, touring the principal cities of the East during the '60's.

One of the members of the troupe was William H. Crane, who later won fame for his characterization of the title role in "David Harum." Later Miss McQuade tried her hand at "straight drama." Memorable to this day was the scene in "The Wandering Jew" in which she was required to jump from a burning building.

"I guess I got a little nervous when it came time to jump," she said, "for I nearly jumped into the audience."

A reminiscent smile crinkled her eyes as she looked back down the years: "It was all very wonderful, and all too short."

Southend Loop Has 11 Entries

The Southend Hockey League has been re-organized for the winter with 11 teams in to date, and several others expected. This is apart from the independent Southend Intermediate League. Officers are: Hon. Presidents, Rev. J. C. Maloney and Don Crawford; president, Mike O'Brien; vice-president, Joe Collins; secretary-treasurer, Pete Fleming.

Entries received so far include: Bantams—St. Peter's, King Edward, Canucks, Red Aces; midgets—King Edward, Beavers, Southenders; juveniles—King Edward, Canucks, Beavers. There is an opening for one more juvenile team—and possibly a midget squad—with P.C.I. or St. Peter's possible entries in the juvenile division. Since there will be no Junior City Hockey League operating at the Brock St. rink this winter, some of the junior players, who miss catching on with an O.H.A. club, may line up in the Southend Intermediate League.

Closing date for entries will not be for some time, but there is room for only a few more, and clubs interested should contact the secretary or some of the officers. Plans for going ahead for a fine season in this popular young loop playing at the Sacred Heart rink. Further particulars will be announced later.

TORONTO MAPLE LEAFS DROP TWO GAMES OVER WEEK-END

Canadiens And Wings Whip Leafs; Bruins Blank Hawks 5-0; Rangers Batter Amerks In 6-1 Feud

By Jack Calder
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

New York's fierce intra-city hockey feud is on again and many a stitch will repair the wounds before the Rangers and Americans end their National League warfare this season.

The heated rivalry broke out anew last night when Rangers walked over the strengthened Americans by a 6-1 score before a capacity crowd of 16,246 persons in Madison Square Garden. The Blueshirts were starting to apply the finishing touches to the rout in the second period when the teams plunged into a free-for-all fight.

Lynn Patrick, son of Lester Patrick, the Ranger manager, came out of the mauling with a six-stitch cut over the right eye and his brother, Nuzz, and Joe Jerwa of Americans drew major penalties for their parts. The game was dotted with arguments and flares of temper, and Nels Stewart of Americans drew a match penalty for the way he talked to Referee Norman Lamport in the frenzied second period.

Seventh Straight.

The victory was Rangers' seventh straight this season over the Americans—for they won six consecutive games when the teams played a preschedule series in Western Canada.

It put Rangers alone in second place behind Boston Bruins, who took sole possession of the top by blasting the Black Hawks 5-0 right in Chicago. Bruins, Americans and Hawks had been tied for the lead before the weekend games.

Bruins and Rangers, the league's siege-gun corps, crushed two of the strongest defensive systems of the year. Oddly enough, it became increasingly apparent that they may be given their greatest trouble in the next little while by the last-place Montreal Canadiens.

Canadiens Step Out.

Gathering momentum and confidence, Canadiens whipped the Maple Leafs 3-1 Saturday at Toronto. It was their third straight victory and the return to form of Defenceman Babe Siebert seemed to foreshadow bigger things for the Habitants, who opened their schedule with seven consecutive losses. They tackle Rangers Thursday at Montreal and Bruins a week from tomorrow at Boston.

It was a disastrous weekend for the Leafs, who were beaten 1-0 by the Red Wings at Detroit last night and lost the services of two of their brightest stars, Gus Marker and Bingo Kampman, for indefinite periods through injuries suffered in the contest at Toronto. Marker suffered torn ligaments in the left knee and a ghastly cut in the calf of Kampman's left leg required 50 stitches. Jack Howard was summoned from the Syracuse farm to replace Kampman on the defence last night and a right winger may be promoted to fill in for Marker.

As usual, Rangers divided their triumph all through the lineup and the six goals were shared by six players, Alex Shibicky, Art Coulter, Lynn Patrick, Cecil Dillon, Bryan Hextall and Neil Colville. Stewart pulled Americans level in the second after Shibicky's first-period score but Coulter's unassisted goal soon put Rangers ahead to stay.

3 Goals in 58 Seconds.

Bruins set a season's scoring record with three goals in 58 seconds of the third period at Chicago. Milt Schmidt scored twice and Dit Clapper twice, Charlie Sands getting the other counter as young Frank Brimsek scored the first shutout of his N.H.L. career.

Toe Blake, whose star didn't dim all the time Canadiens were in the depths, started them to their win after 11 minutes. Bill Summerhill, just up from the minors, scored in the second and Stew Evans made it 3-0 in the third. Claude Bourque, Canadiens' rookie goalie, came within seven minutes of his second shutout in two games, Harvey Jackson beating him after 13:42 minutes of the third.

Tiny Thompson, bought by Detroit last week, co-starred with Mud Bruneteau against the Leafs. Thompson got a shutout, after holding Chicago to a single goal in a Red Wing victory Thursday. Bruneteau got the winning goal less than six minutes to play, sinking a relay from Marty Barry and Syd Howe.

Whizzer White Tops Career With A "Touch"

By Bill White
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—The clock has struck 12 for football's "Cinderella Man," Byron (Whizzer) White.

A year ago Byron was tops in United States college football. Yesterday he wound up a career that took him to the peak of the professional game here with a flash of glory as Cleveland Rams whipped Pittsburgh Pirates 13-7 in a national professional Football League game. White, the Pirates' star left halfback, was bottled up until the last two plays of the afternoon, but then saved his mates from a blanking by racing 46 yards to set up their lone touchdown.

After the game White shed the helmet and padded pants that made him famous and plans shortly to don the sombre cap and gown of Oxford University which he will attend on a Rhodes Scholarship.

The lad came out of a minor high school fotball league in Colorado five years ago with an ambition. And that ambition—to outstrip his older brother Clayton in athletics, scholarship, and everything else—has made him one of sportdom's big names.

He could go on playing football, as he did this season, as tailback of Pittsburgh Pirates, for years. His six foot, 190-pound frame, beautifully muscled, would carry him along at top speed for at least five more years in the neighborhood of his present salary—$15,000 a season. Started at 93.

As a spindly-legged kid in Wellington, Colo., he grabbed the quarterbacking job of his High School team when his 93 pounds hardly justified the selection. Then his ambition carried him—and his Colorado University team—to a Rocky Mountain Conference victory, and brought a bid to Dallas' Cotton Bowl. It brought him all-American rating, and the highest salary ever paid a professional gridder.

Now ready for Oxford, White said he had found the pro football wars "an experience I wouldn't have missed for anything." But Oxford fits his desire to equip himself with all the academic background possible before stepping out into the law business. He has seen a danger in pro football.

"Most of the buys are paid comparatively well, but they haven't any future," he said. "They've learned the give and take that brings immediate results—a wel-placed straight arm—but they cannot seem to become really interested in something that may not bear immediate results for years."

White said the Oxford professors already had frowned on his starting school three months late, and he wouldn't dare try it again—for fear of losing his scholarship, and for him football is all over now.

JOHNNY GAUDES

Not only is St. Boniface noted in the sports world for having the Dominion junior hockey champions, but that Western town claims the Canadian bantamweight boxing champion in Johnny Gaudes, shown above. He is a smart young scrapper, and has been seen in action often in Toronto.

BEDFORD, England — (CP). — Reggie Meen's attempted ring comeback met a snag here the other night when Tony Arpino won by a technical knockout in the fifth round. Meen was one time British heavyweight champion.

Dame, San Jose Both Drop Final Games

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—(AP).—Two teams which had waded through their October and November opposition without a hitch, Notre Dame and San Jose (Calif.) State, were beaten in their final games of the season Saturday to reduce the list of undefeated and untied United States college football teams for 1938 to 16.

Notre Dame took a 13-0 thumping from Southern California when the Trojans flashed a brilliant pass from Ollie Day to Al Krueger for the opening score in the last minute of the first half and then tallied again on a 35-yard drive after recovering a fumble in the last quarter. A record crowd of 101,000 saw the western Rose Bowl entry win.

The University of Hawaii gave San Jose its first setback in 12 games at Honolulu, 13-12, as Joe Kaulukukui scored once on an 85-yard run and threw a pass for the other Hawaiian tally.

Two others of the undefeated brigade came through their final regular-season tests unscathed and can head for their "Bowl" engagement with records of 10 victories apiece.

Tennessee volunteers swamped Mississippi 47-0 as George Cafego led a brilliant array of backs, six of whom scored the seven touchdowns.

Bombers Arrive Mourning Gainor

TORONTO, Dec. 5—(CP).—Winnipeg Blue Bombers, bearing another great Western challenge, arrive today for next Saturday's Dominion senior football final with Toronto Argonauts, who defeated them in last year's East-West playoff here.

The players will be bustled off to Oakville, Ont., 15 miles west, but officials of the Winnipeg club likely will stay here to argue a case that may make or break the Bombers' chances against Argos. It's the case of Martin Gainor, charging middle wing who has been declared ineligible by the Canadian Rugby Union, sponsor of the playoff.

Winnipeg claims that Gainer should not be forced out by the residence rule, which makes a player ineligible if he has not been a continuous resident of Canada since Oct. 1, 1937. George Ballard of Hamilton, Ont., president of the C.R.U., has promised that Gainor's case will be re-opened if sufficient evidence is presented to warrant reconsideration.

The Bombers contend Gainor is eligible under the student clause. He allegedly was out of Canada from Jan. 8 to May 18 and from May 23 to Aug. 15, but Winnipeg says he was taking post-graduate work at North Dakota University, his Alma Mater, during those periods.

Argos Humble Imps In Final Battle By 25-8 Victory Before 16,000; Meet Peg's Blue Bombers Next

By Sydney Gruson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Dec. 5 (C.P.). — The East, its doubts finally dispelled, hailed Toronto Argonauts to-day as worthy successors to the football machine that won the Canadian championship in 1938.

It has been a long time coming, this recognition of Argos of 1938. But there was doubt until Saturday, when they drubbed Sarnia Imperials 25-8 for the Eastern title, that Argos had replaced satisfactorily losses at centre and end.

The championship team last season never gave a better performance than Argos did before 16,000 in Varsity Stadium on Saturday. In mild weather and on a soft, yielding field, they ran and passed the Ontario Union representatives dizzy, outplaying them in every department.

There was no one player whose work overshadowed that of the other Argos. Every man was a star—big Bob Isbister for his great kicking; the Stukus brothers, Bill and Annis, for their passing and catching; Art West for his running, and Ian Reid for tackling and pass catching. It was an all-star line-up that licked Hugh Stirling and company.

Confident to an extreme, Argos will tackle Winnipeg Blue Bombers here next Saturday for the national championship. They beat Bombers 4-3 for the title last season.

The First Touch

Warning of what was to come, Doug McPherson sliced through the centre of Sarnia's line for 32 yards shortly after the game opened. This was the spark for the first touchdown. It came four plays later, after two end runs and a pass, West scooting around the end for the major score, converted by Bill Stukus.

Passing and running Argos scored another touchdown, again converted by the younger Stukus, in the first quarter. West again was the scorer, taking a 25-yard pass from Bill Stukus and running another three over the line. From then on, the game was a series of Argo marches up the field, broken only occasionally by Sarnia successes.

Imperials got two singles from Arnie McWatters' fine punting in the third quarter and a touchdown by Bernie Moroz from four yards out in the last quarter. Annis Stukus scored Argos' other major, taking a pass on the goalline in one hand while on the run. His convert and field goal, a safety touch and two singles by Isbister completed the scoring.

Imperials missed Henry Living sorely. The big snapback, key man of their secondary defence, was ruled ineligible under Canadian Rugby Union residence requirements. Without him to back it up, Sarnia's line was weak and Ted Morris, MacPherson and Earl Selkirk smashed it wide open time and again.

Costly Fumble

Sarnia lost a fine chance for a major score early in the game when a fumble by Alex Hayes on the Argo 14 stopped a long march. They got that far twice more—for the touchdown and on the last play of the game when Hayes went to the three on a long pass by Bummer Stirling.

The Bummer, triple threat of Sarnia's backfield, was stopped all afternoon by the charging Argo line. And more surprising, he was outkicked by Isbister, whose punting was reminiscent of his great work of last season. Isbister averaged 49 yards on 15 kicks against 46 for Stirling and McWatters.

Argos made 14 first downs to 10 for Imperials. They gained 218 yards rushing against 123 and 158 yards from eight completed forwards against 71 yards from seven forwards Imperials completed. Argos tried 14 and Imperials, forced to throw the ball around recklessly after the early setbacks, 23.

Mike Hedgewick, who was the best runner, McWatters and Mike Clauson starred in the Imperial cause. At the end Sarnia had no excuses. They were outplayed and beaten by a club superior on the day—and probably any other day too.

13 CHANGES LUCKY

OXFORD, England — (CP). — They're not superstitious here. Making 13 changes in the team beaten the previous Saturday, Oxford University defeated Edinburgh Academicals 19-10 at rugby.

IN MEMORIAM

McCULLOCH. — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Hugh McCulloch, who entered into rest December 3, 1935.
When evening shades are falling,
And we sit in quiet alone,
To our hearts there comes a longing:
If she only could come home.
—Ever remembered by her Sons and Daughters.

DAVIS.—In loving memory of Gertrude Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Davis of Ennismore, who departed this life three years ago to-day, December 5, 1935.
Every day bring sweet memories,
Every memory brings a tear,
Deep within our hearts we cherish
Thoughts of one we love so dear.
Though the world is full of sunshine,
Full of sorrow and of pain,
Still to us it would be Heaven
If you were only here again.
—Ever remembered by Mother, Father, Brother and Sisters.

FAULKNER.—In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Rachel Faulkner, who passed away one year ago to-day, December 5, 1937.
To know you never said good-bye
Will always bring regret,
And those who always loved you most
Are the ones who won't forget.
—Ever remembered by her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Burgess.

LANG.—In loving memory of Norah May Lang, who entered into rest December 5, 1930.
Some day, some time our eyes shall see
The faces, kept in memory.
Some day, their hands shall clasp our hand
Just over in the morning land.
—Lovingly remembered by Mother, Dad, and daughter Grace, Auntie Elsie, Uncle Sid and Keith, New York City.

Jew-Polish Women Ordered Out By Nazis

BERLIN, Dec. 5—(AP).—A report Jewish women of Polish origin had been ordered to leave Germany by Jan. 1 was the latest indication today that the anti-semitic campaign would be widened.

The report originated in Warsaw and could not be confirmed here, but a government spokesman said "it is not impossible."

It is understood in Warsaw that those who had been ordered to leave were wives of Polish Jewish citizens expelled from Germany in October, when the Nazi government feared new Polish passport regulations might deprive them of citizenship and leave them as German charges.

The Jewish relief committee in Warsaw has estimated the number expelled at 14,000.

German Jews themselves awaited more decrees restricting their participation in German life. Decrees become effective tomorrow barring them from certain streets and public places.

Christmas goods appeared in repaired shops taken from Jews after the Nov. 10 anti-Jewish violence. The new proprietors were told they must not refer to "the previous standing" of their business.

King's '35 Opponent Held For Forgery

CALGARY, Dec. 5.—(CP).—Alex R. Bedard of Macleod, Alta., unsuccessful Social Credit candidate against Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King in Prince Albert constituency at the 1935 general election, was arraigned in police court here Saturday on charges of forgery and theft. He was remanded for nine days on bail of $500.

Bedard, arrested last week by Royal Canadian Mounted Police in Macleod, is charged with forging two banking agreements on the Alberta Structures Holding and Development Company and theft of $221 from the company in May 1937. He also faces a theft charge of $60 from Carl Haggbloom, Medicine Hat, Alta.

Bedard, a former wrestling promoter in Southern Alberta, and one-time resident of Medicine Hat and Lethbridge, was defeated by more than 6,000 votes in the Prince Albert, Sask., four-cornered general contest three years ago.

Michigan Police Test Out Sending, Receiving Written Radio Message

EAST LANSING, Mich., Dec. 5. —(CP). — Michigan State police hailed the successful test yesterday of equipment to send and receieve printed messages by radio as a major advance in perfecting crime-fighting machinery.

Officers said the new equipment was the first in the United States to be developed to such a degree of efficiency. Advantages of the new system they listed as follows:

1—Secrecy. Criminals have been known to escape capture because they tuned in on police broadcasts. Under the new system messages can be received only by special equipment tuned to the proper frequency.

2—Speed. All material would be instantly available to all State police and sheriff's offices and the system would permit transmission of more complete records as it would avoid the present system of repeating messages to assure accuracy.

3—Simplicity. Every received tuned to the central transmitter would instantly turn on when the broadcast started, regardless of whether there was an attendant. The message would be received in typed form and the central station would automatically turn off the receiver at completion of the message. In this way every station would be assured reception of the message.

WRDS at East Lansing, WRDP at Paw Paw and a state police patrol car equipped to receive the printed messages, about 50 words a minute were transmitted. The only difficulty so far, engineers said, was occasional fading.

How It Works.

Under the system an operator sits at an electrically operated typewriter and types off the message on a tape. The tape is inserted in the transmitter, which is turned on and automatically completes transmission of the message.

At the receiveing end the machine turns on automatically and receives the message in typewritten words on other tape. Receiving device is small and is readily installed in patrol cars.

The radio facsimilie system was attempted in Pennsylvania some years ago, but did not reach the state of perfection which has attended the Michigan experiments. The word transmission by radio is an out-growth of use of radio by law enforcement officers, in which Michigan State police also pioneered.

Should the system prove satisfactory in the course of further experiments State police are expected to make it universal throughout the State. The system involves little if any additional expense on the basis of costs of regular equipment, engineers said.

Canadian Weather Expert Is Honored

TORONTO, Dec. 5—(CP).—Dr. E. W. Hewson of Toronto, of the staff of the Dominion Meteorological Service, was awarded the Buchan prize for 1938, it was announced today. The prize is awarded every two years for the most important original contribution appearing in the journal of the Royal Meteorological Society, London.

Dr. Hewson is the first Canadian to have won the award. His subject was "Wet Bulb Potential Temperatures and Their Application to Air Analysis." The article was said to represent a step forward in weather forecasting.

Several other scholarships have been awarded the Canadian meteorologist since he graduated from Dalhousie University, Halifax, and University of Toronto. The Buchan award is a prize of 15 guineas (about $78) and a certificate.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

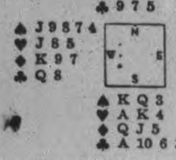
"The Authority on Authorities"

FORGET YOUR HABIT

ANYBODY WHO leads an honor from a queen-jack toward an ace has a more or less fixed habit regarding the move. If his card is not covered by the king, he finesses. If the king covers, he comes up with the ace. That may be good bridge on most occasions, but if a player is not prepared to vary that procedure in unusual spots, he may suffer the humiliation of seeing a good contract kicked away.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable)

North and South reached a contract of 3-No Trumps on this deal after bidding of 1-Club by South, 1-Diamond by North, 2-No Trump by South, 3-Diamonds by North and 3-No Trump by South.

The spade 7 was led by West and won with the A by East, who returned the spade 10 to South's Q. With two winning tricks in spades, two in hearts and one in clubs, declarer needed four diamond tricks to make his game. The diamond Q was led and when West covered with the K, the A was played from dummy. That play limited declarer to two tricks only in diamonds. With the K, 10 and 9 missing and no other entry to dummy in the other suits, declarer should have allowed the K to hold the trick. Then on the next round of the suit the J could have been played and the third round would have cleared the suit, so that four tricks could have been taken in it.

County's Move Is Described As Most Cruel

"What Germany has been doing to the Jews seems to me most cruel," but to refuse them admittance to Canada is also most cruel" declared J. H. Burnham in addressing a largely attended meeting of the Men's Forum in George Street United Church on Sunday afternoon on the subject of "Is The Old Order Changing?"

"To refuse to let them come in is neither Christianlike nor sensible," said Mr. Burnham "we have got to give people a chance to live and yet the county council seems to be taking the attitude of "let them starve".

Mr. Burnham's address of nearly an hour concerned itself largely with a flaying of the higher critics, the speaker maintaining that the world had got itself into the present mess because instead of an appeal to God there had been substituted an appeal to reason "and reason is such a poor weak thing that it would not take you from here to the market hall."

Thrown in with this spirited attack on higher criticism, was a note of admiration for the fascist movement and the tribute that Mussolini was the "greatest man in Europe since Julius Caesar."

"The world has heacher a stager" said the speaker on beginning his address "where they seem to care for nothing, or trust nobody and everybody is preparing for war. We have reached a state of savagery."

Mr. Burnham pointed out that formerly in every country the people recognized some supreme power or other, some kind of god. Then had arisen a body of men, many of them ministers,and learned men,who had taken the Bible and ripped it to pieces and substituted for an appeal to God, an appeal to reason. We have lost the Bible and lost eternal life" said the speaker.

This higher criticism has liberated humanity from all obligation to one God" he continued "There is no longer any specific obligations to any one and all the nations of the world are beginning to think as they please and as a result we have nothing but war, the prospect of war and the fury of war."

Mr. Burnham declared that the position of the higher critics as stated by one of their leaders was that God was open to criticism the same as any one else and the Bible was like every other book. "We are done and well done and ought to be done" Mr. Burnham said "unless there is once more an appeal to the religious feeling of the people, bringing them into touch with a Supreme being, rather than depending upon their reasoning as a substitute".

Charles E. Coleman who was chairman for the meeting expressed the thanks of the audience to Mr. Burnham for his unusual address.

Three other passengers and two members of the crew lost their lives attempting to reach the shore through the pounding surf.

Need For Defence May Force Project

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5—(AP).—The new United States defence program, broadened to embrace the entire western hemisphere, may become a factor in deciding the long-standing controversy over development of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence basin.

A war department spokesman said today the huge seaway plan was being studied by the army high command in connection with "other national defence matters."

What part the proposed project would have in any defence scheme was not disclosed. President Roosevelt said some time ago that demands for electrical energy by industry located in the St. Lawrence area probably would increase tremendously in time of war.

New Cabbage Extract May Shelve Danger Of "Insulin Shock"

By Guy Rhoades
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Dec. 5.— (CP).— Two University of Manchester research workers have obtained encouraging results in experiments designed to find a substitute for insulin in diabetes treatment which would eliminate danger of "insulin shock" and could be given by mouth instead of injection.

A. D. Macdonald, Professor of Pharmacology at the University, and Dr. L. Wislicki have described in the Journal of Physiology a series of experiments in which they used extracts of cabbage to control the blood-sugar concentration of animals.

(Control of blood-sugar concentration in the modern diabetes treatment discovered by Sir Frederick Banting, Dr. J. R. MacLeod and Dr. C. H. Best of Toronto, is effected through injections of insulin derived from the pancreas of oxen).

Professor Macdonald and Dr. Wislicki worked with two separate cabbage extracts. With the first they raised the blood-sugar concentration of normal rabbits so rapidly that some died of diabetes in six hours.

Then they administered a second extract which had the effect of reducing the concentration in accordance with the size of the doses. They found the second extract equally effective whether injected or administered orally and noted it caused no hypo-glycaemic convulsions such as occur in "insulin shock" from large doses.

Tests With a Dog

Next they experimented with a dog whose pancreas they had removed. Depancreatization of the animal without corrective treatment caused its blood-sugar concentration to mount rapidly and they kept the dog alive initially with insulin treatment.

Then they gradually cut down the insulin injection and substituted cabbage extract until they were able to discontinue the insulin treatment entirely, controlling the blood-sugar concentration with the vegetable extract alone.

The workers were led to hope they had made a discovery which would have the beneficial properties of insulin without its somewhat toxic effects. However, The Lancet, commenting on the experiments, says:

"In view of the failure of previous attempts to establish a practical substitute for insulin, it would be a mistake to wax over-enthusiastic about these new findings. Several conditions must be fulfilled before we are certain that insulin has been replaced and that its action has not merely been simulated. But the observations are certainly encouraging."

U.S. Reclaims Isle Map Maker Gave To Canada

Albany, N.Y., Dec. 5 (CP).

THE UNITED STATES has reclaimed a tiny island in the St. Lawrence River which an erring map-maker ceded to Canada several years ago.

New maps published by the secretary of state's office show Barnhart Island colored yellow, again in the United States. Previously copies erroneously had shown the 400-acre spot in white to conform with the Canadian territory on the map. No international incident had arisen over the error.

In fact, no eye was keen enough to notice it until A. J. Bellfuss of Chicago looked over a map sent by him by the secretary of state's office last July. He wrote to Clarence Knapp, editor in the state department's bureau of publications, who took the matter up with the state land bureau.

Bailey; committee, Chris Burkitt, G. Bailey, Stan Peterson, Percy Bateman, Charles Lough; tyler, Thomas Webb.

The newly elected officers were later installed by Right Wor. Bro. H. A. Graham, organizer for Ontario East after which short appropriate addresses were given and a delicious lunch served.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 5.—James Farrell received severe burns on his left hand as a result of an accident in the manual training room at the high school on Friday afternoon. The student was said to have been refilling the lower part of a double boiler with water after it had boiled dry. The vessel is used for heating glue and as it was held under the water tap steam poured over the boy's hand.

Butter Held Steady On Market Eggs Covered Wide Range With Business Much Livelier

Business seemed to be livelier on the market Saturday. Most of the morning's stock was sold by noon to a more general extent than on recent Saturdays. Prices were moderate, so the folks on both sides of the benches must have been satisfied.

Chickens were fairly plentiful and sold at 20 cents down to 16 cents, most of them going around 18 to 20 cents. Ducks were steady at 20 to 23 cents, turkeys 25 to 28 cents, but there was more range in the prices of geese from 23 cents off to 16 cents as the morning ended.

Butter was 23 to 25 cents, and eggs varied from 30 cents all the way up to 38 cents, and one woman said she got 45 cents for her first grade. No affadavit was taken with that statement, so it has to be accepted for whatever it was worth. At any rate from 11.30 o'clock on, there was still quite a supply of eggs selling at 33 to 35 cents, and some at 30.

On the outside market potatoes sold from $1.10 to $1.25. Hilliard Strong was asking $1.25 for his Green Mountains, and they looked like full value. Harold Doig quoted the same price for White Stars, and Dooleys were $1.00 and $1.15.

Fresh Beef Arrives

The offering of fresh meats was complete for the first time this winter with an offering of beef by the quarter sold by James Healey of Westwood at 10 cents a pound for fronts and 12 cents for quarters. Pork was 14 and 16 cents, rather plentiful, and Alex Gordon reported lamb a little cheaper at 15 and 18 cents; also mutton at 8 and 10 cents.

Norman Moncrif's price list for the morning was: Baxters 30 cents, Snow apples, especially attractive, attractive, 40 cents, McIntosh Reds 45 cents, Talmans 40 cents and Spies from 26 to 45 cents.

B. Isaac of Norham quoted $2 for their first grade Spies, and V. Boundy of Cobourg asked 30 cents for McIntoshs in six quart baskets, and 45 cents for Talmans and Snows. The hardier apples are developing their full winter quality.

Several other growers had Talmans at $1.25 a hamper and Spies at $1. The apple row was as attractive as usual, and one of the producers brought in a barrel of cider that was tagged at 35 cents a gallon.

Incidentally, Earle Tully reports the annual meeting of the county U.F.O. is to be held on Tuesday, December 13 in the Paragon Hall. Following up an incident of last week in which a farmer collected $1.15 twice for a bag of potatoes, on the market and at the house, it was learned on Saturday that the market purchase was made from a friend who was left in charge of the car for a few minutes and neglected to mark down the purchase as having been paid. Probably the best plan all around is to make the buying of produce conditional on the C.O.D. plan. From Saturday's acknowledgement the farmer restored the market's reputation to full integrity when the circumstances were called to his attention.

Rollie Dixon's covered wagon seemed to be the most comfortable spot on the outdoor market, but he told the Examiner that his trailer made a rather nerve-racking trip into the city, especially on the icy surface of No. 7 highway.

Here are some more prices: Onions 30 cents the peck, parsnips 25 cents, carrots 50 cents a hamper. Cabbage 5 cents each; white kidney beans 15 cents a quart, yellow eyes 15 cents; also parsnips at 60 cents the bushel. Arthur Stinson's prices were yellow danvers onions 25 cents a peck, red onions 25 cents, beets were 25 cents for an eleven quart barket quantity, and turnips three for ten cents. Honey prices were unchanged four pound tins of the clover and basswood crop selling at 55 cents.

From the price indications of Saturday there is likely to be an ample supply of turkeys and other fowl for Christmas at prices that should meet with the approval of buyers.

The wood section of the market was larger than it has been for the last three weeks. H. Mace of Burleigh Falls quoted $8 for a cord of body maple, about half of it dry.

MISSING VIRGIN

LONDON — (CP). — A shilling stamp of the Virgin Islands, with the figure of the Virgin missing from the middle of the stamp, was sold here for $550.

Looking Back
On This Date

One hundred years ago yesterday (on December 4, 1838) took place a raid on Windsor by a band of American fillibusterers, aided by a few Canadian refugees, which for callous brutality by the invaders equalled any incursion by sea pirates.

After landing from the steamer Champlain, which they had stolen at Detroit, "General" Bierce and his army of invasion marched upon Windsor, then with a population of only a few hundred. On a site later occupied by the town hall was a small frame barracks in which were 28 men in charge of Sergt. Frederick Walsh, who declined to retreat to Sandwich, but, instead, said: "No, we will have a slap at them." When the rabble neared, a sentry fired twice, and then a general fight began. The garrison fought until its small stock of ammunition had gone; then some were able to make their escape, while others were burned to death in the barracks, fired by Bierce's men.

Then the so-called "patriots," a majority of whom had never been in Canada before, moved to the village square where Bierce read a proclamation dated at Detroit, Nov. 30, and signed by "William Lount, military secretary" (a son of Samuel Lount, hanged at Toronto, April 12 before). "Arise, then, soldiers of Canada! Let us march to victory or death!" shouted Bierce.

One section of the invaders set fire to a steamer at her dock; another started to raid and pillage houses, which they burned, terrifying women and children and shooting a Negro, named Mills, because when asked to join their ranks he replied: "God save the Queen." But their operations were short-lived. A force of militia under Colonel Prince and Captain Sparke proved that they had no fear of "Yankee bullies," and gave them a dose of British courage. The chief fight took place in an orchard on Francis Baby's farm, now bounded by Sandwich, River and Chatham Sts. and Dougall Ave. As the Canadians advanced they were met by an irregular fire, which did not do much damage.

One volley from the militia was all that was necessary to scatter the raiders. Their standard bearer, "Colonel" Harvell of Kentucky, was killed "defending the flag of the provisional government," while another "general," Putnam, fell during the retreat. Four militia were killed and four wounded during the fight; 44 of the raiders were captured, and Colonel Prince reported that 21 of the enemy were killed in action, as well as four others whom he had captured and whom he ordered "shot upon the spot, and it was done accordingly."

This act of reprisal created much excitement, some condemnation and much praise for the colonel, and it will be told of tomorrow. It should be noted that the raiders were repulsed solely by the Essex militia the regular troops from Fort Malden not arriving until the "pirates were fleeing for their lives!"

Canada Manufactures War Airplanes

When the British government recently announced in the House of Commons its intention to place a large order in Canada for fighting planes, the cities of Vancouver and Ft. William were singled out for especial mention, in view of the fact that the aircraft factories of those cities, not being members of the Canadian Aircraft Manufacturers' Syndicate would receive separate orders. The Boeing Aircraft of Canada at Vancouver has had a rather unique career. Formed at the height of the boom, its initial contract was to build mail planes for the Canadian government's trans-prairie mail service, but the mail contracts were cancelled before the planes were delivered and for a number of years the aircraft factory was idle. Now it is working 24 hours a day turning out 17 Blackburn Sharks, of the type shown above.

Proposed Referendum Is Withdrawn By Council; Two Other Bylaws Held Up

Conditions Said Not Favorable For Vote So Council Divides 7 To 2 Allowing Tenants To Vote Is Discussed

The proposed referendum on the question of acquiring land not to cost more than $30,000 for a new market site will not be submitted to the ratepayers at the municipal elections on January 2, the City Council decided Monday night, exercising a discretion which persuade them, in the words of Mayor Hamilton, that present conditions were not favorable for a bylaw suggesting the expenditure of public money.

The bylaw authorizing taking of the vote on this question was withdrawn in second reading on Mayor Hamilton's motion, seconded by Alderman McCannan, resulting in a division of 7 to 2. An incidental issue as to whether tenants should be consulted lapsed with the broader decision not to proceed with the referendum.

Alderman Bradburn raised that point, contending that the proposed bylaw should be referred only to the property owners who were entitled to vote on money bylaws. "If we go over their heads we are doing something that is contrary to our authority and the Municipal Act," he said. "If the vote by all municipal electors was favorable to the bylaw, the council might decide to go ahead with the issuing of debentures to buy land. Then you would have to get the approval of those citizens who are entitled to vote only on money bylaws, so you might as well do that first as last."

"There's nothing binding in the bylaw," Alderman Wilson remarked. "It simply asks for an expression from the people as to whether they are in favor of the city buying land for a new market site. Its a crime that women have to climb those stairs to the basket market."

Alderman Glover said he agreed with Alderman Bradburn, believing that the government would not sanction the issuing of debentures on a bylaw of that kind.

Alderman Gordon said he thought the vote might be small in the coming elections. He said he could see no reason why the customary two-year term should not be extended to Mayor Hamilton, an expression of goodwill that brought a responsive "hear, hear" from some of the aldermen.

"I thought," Ald. Gordon said, "that if we had the opinion of both tenants and property owners it would be an influence on the pro-

Italians Recall Cruiser In French Crisis

ROME, Dec. 6 (A.P.). — Several hundred Italian students, after an unsuccessful attempt to reach the French Embassy, demonstrated in the streets of Rome to-day in support of Italian claims to French-controlled Tunisia.

The students deserted classrooms of several Rome schools and trooped through the streets shouting "Tunisia is ours." They converged on the French Embassy, but found it blocked by strong police guards, established on the surrounding streets.

Turned back, the students marched to the Palazzo Venezia where they called for Premier Mussolini and sang Fascist songs. Mussolini did not appear.

The crowd then made a second attempt to approach the French Embassy and again ran against the adamant police line.

The students next marched to the Palazzo Barschi, Rome headquarters of the Fascist Party. Their continued uproar brought the Provincial Secretary, Andrea Ippolito to the balcony.

Ippolito told the students their demonstration was "more than legitimate" and that they had "done well to show their spirit."

"Once it was students who led a warlike people forward," the Fascist official continued. "But we have no need of such methods for we have a chief who knows his people are ready for his call."

Again when the students raised the cry "Tunisia," Ippolito roared back. "There is no need of talking of Tunisia—we will go there."

Cruiser Recalled.

The Italian cruiser Raimondo Montecuccoli, in Adriatic waters for the past 15 months, was called back to the Mediterranean as the Fascist press intensified demands for French-controlled territory.

The newspaper Il Messagero said the 1935 accord, in which France ceded Italy a strip along the Tunisian frontier, should not be regarded as a final settlement of the territorial question but merely a starting point for new negotiations.

"Some English newspapers justly observe that the Italy of to-day is no longer the Italy of 1935; that the Italy of to-day is an empire which has undiminished demands against which it is useless to prote t," the paper said.

"The accord of 1935 strove for Mediterranean equilibrium which conformed to the situation of that time. But may anyone seriously and in good faith compare the Italy of 1938 with the Italy of 1936?"

Pleads Guilty

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 6 (C.P.). — Melville Campbell, 37, who was sentenced last month to nine years in Penitentiary after pleading guilty to taking part in the holdup of the Royal Bank branch at Mount Brydges, was brought to London last night from Kingston Penitentiary. It was understood Campbell would be used as a witness against Raymond (Dolly) Quinton of Windsor, also charged with armed robbery in connection with the holdup.

Drunken Woman To Start Probe

HAMILTON, Dec. 6 — (CP). — Statements of an accused woman that she and a friend purchased and drank beer in the women's beverage room of a local hotel Monday forenoon—election day—should be investigated, James Chambers, city liquor prosecutor, said in Magistrate's court today.

Mrs. Mary Collins, Hamilton, charged with the illegal possession of liquor, was asked by Mr. Chalmers how it came about that she was found intoxicated in her apartment if she had not drank part of a bottle of alcohol found on her dressing table.

She and her friend went to the hotel in the forenoon yesterday. "There were just the two of us. We were there half an hour, and had three glasses beer each, I paid the waiter," Mrs. Collins testified.

"I think the story about drinking beer in an hotel on election day should be investigated further," Mr. Chambers submitted.

"It looks rather peculiar, doesn't it?" remarked the Magistrate.

For the illegal possession of alcohol, Mrs. Collins was fined $125 or three months in jail and her

Never Has 'Grilled Millionaire' For Breakfast Roosevelt Confesses To Students

Chapel Hill, N.C., Dec. 6 (AP)

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT is not an "ogre," and he does not breakfast on "grilled millionaire."

Said the president yesterday in his address at the University of North Carolina:

"You undergraduates who see me for the first time have read in your newspapers and heard on the air that I am, at the very least, an ogre—a consorter with Communists, a destroyer of the rich, a breaker of our ancient traditions.

"You think of me perhaps as the inventor of the economic royalist, of the wicked utilities, of the money changers in the temple.

"You have heard for six years that I was about to plunge the nation into war; that you and your little brothers would be sent to the bloody fields of battle in Europe; that I was driving the nation into bankruptcy, and that I breakfasted every morning on a dish of 'grilled millionaire.'

"Actually I am exceedingly mild mannered person—a practitioner of peace, both domestic and foreign, a believer in the capitalistic system, and for my breakfast a devotee of scrambled eggs."

Daladier Orders Marines To Man Liner

PARIS, Dec. 6.—(AP).— Premier Daladier, determined to break the shipping strike at Le Havre, ordered 259 sailors to man the liner Paris to-day and take her to New York on schedule.

Sources close to the government indicated the Premier had decided to keep all French trans-Atlantic liners moving with naval crews and requisitioned stewards, if necessary, to break the strike.

Three destroyers arrived at Le Havre early to-day with sailors from the Cherbourg base. More sailors, all specialists trained to handle merchantmen in time of war, were called from other bases.

Lest the strikers attempt to interfere with the sailing of the Paris, the government ordered the navy to sail her to Cherbourg where she will pick up most of her trans-Atlantic passenger by tender to-morrow and leave for New York. The usual port of sailing for the Paris is Le Havre.

Approximately 1,500 of the liner Normandie's crew, 2,000 workers on the liners Paris and Ile de France, and 1,500 dock workers and port handlers were on strike at Le Havre in sympathy with 60 of their numbers discharged for taking part in the general strike last Wednesday.

322 Americans Waiting

Among passengers on the Paris, officials said would be many of the 322 American volunteers evacuated from Spain last week.

Just before the government's decision to use naval crews became known the striking seamen sent a delegation to Paris to talk with L.

Cars Rocket Mile Down Scotia Colliery Strewing Bodies Along Shaft As Cable Holding Over 200 Men Breaks

Toll Mounts As Mangled Victims Are Dug From Debris In 11-Foot Passage; Weeping Wives, Tots Jam Shaft Mouth

By Arthur Andrew (Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

SYDNEY MINES, N.S., Dec. 6 (CP).—The full extent of an underground tragedy that struck Princess Colliery early today began to unfold in a crowded hospital ward where injuries proved fatal to five more miners, bringing to 19 the tentative toll of death.

Because of the crowded quarters and the large number of injured requiring immediate aid, doctors were unable to make a definite list of the men who died or were injured fatally when a mine train broke loose from its steel towline and hurtled to destruction down a 10,000-foot incline.

But 14 bodies were brought up on improvised board stretchers and more than two score injured were carried to the open by rescue workers who found bodies and injured men strewn with wreckage for more than a mile along the narrow railway shaft. Five of the injured died in hospital and were carried off to the morgue to await definite identification.

Just what happened no one could say definitely. But survivors, carried or dragged from the shaft, said the steel cable towline snapped about 1,000 feet from the last car. There was not even a split-second's hesitation as the cars, known to the miners as a "rake," shot downward. The train gained terrifying momentum as the jolting cars hurtled down the 10 per cent. grade. There was a horrible suspense. Then the crash.

Over Two Hundred Men Start Fatal Ride

In the shaft house, the operator knew the cable had been released of its burden. But he was unaware of what lay at the bottom of the black pit. It was not until the hurriedly mobilized rescue squads were lowered down the slope that extent of the tragedy was discovered.

More than 200 men were believed to have been riding on the "rake" at the time. But none could tell in any detail exactly what happened. Some said the leading car jolted itself off the track and formed a wedge on which the others piled up in the narrow passage only 11 feet in diameter. Others believed the train, swaying wildly, jumped the track and smashed against an abutment, causing the chain of cars to snap like a cracked whip.

All 26 cars were piled up in "one tangled mass, a mile and a quarter down," according to George Dwyer, one of the first rescue workers to clamber down the slope.

"All the way I passed bodies," he said after returning to the surface. "They were strewn out the whole mile and a quarter down. Some, maybe three or four, were still in the wreckage."

Cadell Nicholson, one of the survivors, could only repeat: "It was awful. Awful." He said "there wasn't any jolt when the rope broke. We just burst into a terrific speed, maybe 60 miles an hour. I guessed what had happened and jumped off. Men were jumping off all around me. I saw some get killed and others hurt. There were lots killed, I think. It was awful."

Worst Tragedy Since Halifax Blast

Word of the tragedy, one of the worst in the province since the Halifax explosion of 1917 which killed 1,200 persons and left another 400 "missing," spread like wildfire through the neighboring coal mining communities.

There was hardly a sound except possibly for the occasional voice of a child. Numerous children, gathered around mothers or brothers, stood in the tense throng and waited with their elders for some word from underground. There was little to do but wait.

It was a slow process, carrying up the broken bodies and the moaning injured. Each time the rescue squad appeared at the mine mouth there was a deep, tense silence among the crowd as they waited for the answer to the unasked question, "Who is it?"

Doctors and nurses were summoned from all neighboring towns, most of them other mining centres long acquainted with such disasters. They were lined in front of the big crowd which kept growing as the news spread deeper into the neighboring districts, and administered aid as rapidly as the injured were handed out on improvised stretchers.

Scores of women, standing on tip-toe to see over the crowd, watched the shafthead for the appearance of each survivor. But hardly a word was spoken. There would be a slight shuffle as a woman, generally accompanied by children, would make her way to the front to greet a man who had escaped death by a chance of luck. Then there would be a brief embrace, a tear or two and survivor and his family would disappear into the throng.

Mine Washhouse Becomes Morgue

A tense silence fell each time a body, laid out on rough board stretchers and covered by tarpaper, was carried into the open. The colliery washhouse was turned into a temporary morgue where the dead were taken to await identification. The injured, too, were carried to nearby shelter, where they were aided by doctors and nurses, mostly covered with red clay from sloshing around in the heavy muck. From the shelters the injured were rushed to hospital.

Company officials were unable to suggest any cause for the break. The cable had been tested to haul a weight of 65 tons while the load carried at the time of the crash would total about 15 tons, they said. A full "rake" of men had been lowered only a few minutes earlier into the mine, one of the oldest in the province and employing about 600 men.

Survivors Tell Of Terrifying Experience

From hospital cots and from first-aid shelters, survivors told of their terrifying experience while roaring through a dark mine shaft on a runaway string of cars.

Sixty-year-old Billy McKeigan wanted to leap along with others as the wild ride reached its terrible end but he found himself unable to move. As the crash came he was thrown

Contests Leadership

Another entry in the race for the leadership of the Ontario Conservative party was made known when Rev. Norman Rawson, of Hamilton, announced he would be a candidate for the party leadership at the forthcoming Conservative convention.

Coalition Taboo For Both Drew, Lawson

TORONTO, Dec. 6 (C.P.) — At least one certainty developed to-day from the pre-convention struggle for the Ontario Conservative Party leadership—Coalition Government is not a political factor just now.

Two of the candidates seeking election at the Provincial convention here on Thursday and Friday to succeed Hon. Earl Rowe came out definitely with statements that they are not interested in the subject of Coalition. Premier Hepburn has indicated complete lack of interest also.

"If I am elected Leader there won't be any Coalition with the Hepburn Government," said Hon. Earl Lawson in denying a charge that his candidature had been put forward by "Ottawa Conservatives."

"The way to assure no truck or trade with Hepburn is to elect me Leader," asserted Col. George A. Drew, regarded as one of the most dangerous leadership candidates in the field.

The question of Coalition came up in April, 1937, during the Oshawa strike of automobile workers when

Italo-German Pressure May Force Switzerland To Oust League

By Dewitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer.)

GENEVA, Dec. 6 (AP)—The fresh outburst of bitterness between France and Italy—this time over Italian minority claims with respect to French territory—has added to the unhappiness of Switzerland as host of the League of Nations and increased the possibility that the league, ill though it is, may have to abandon its marble palace and seek haven in some other country.

The point is that the league is a red rag to the Rome-Berlin axis, and because little Switzerland is sheltering the peace organization she is very much in the bad graces of Messrs. Mussolini and Hitler. That is a disadvantageous position for Switzerland to be in. There is a well founded tradition that Swiss policy must never run counter to any two of her three great neighbors—Germany, Italy and France.

Swiss relations to the league certainly cross Italy and Germany, the wrong way. Both Nazis and Fascists are so incensed at league activities that Switzerland not only is deeply worried but frightened. Some Swiss actually fear that the country may be invaded unless is dissociates itself entirely from the league. This fear probably is based on the fact that she has a "minority problem" of her own, since the majority of her population is of Germanic blood.

Sixty-five per cent of her trade is with Germany, Italy or German controlled countries. Should this commerce be cut off it would be a catastrophe for the Swiss. I understand that Swiss officials are

And he played Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" for the judge.

Howard Quinn Re-elected Liberal Head

Howard Quinn of Douro township was returned as president and most of the other officers were re-elected with him at an enthusiastic and well-attended meeting of the Peterborough West Liberal Association held in the Moose Hall on Monday night. The only new names in the list were those of Dr. Ralph Honey and Clarence Laing of North Monaghan who were elected vice-presidents replacing James Lundy and Earl Tully who asked that they be allowed to retire. The slate of officers was as follows:

President—Howard Quinn, Douro.
First vice-president — Thomas Doughty, Peterborough.
Second vice-president—Dr. E. M. Crough, Peterborough.
Third vice-president — Dr. Ralph Honey, Peterborough.
Fourth vice-president — Clarence Laing, North Monaghan.
Secretary — Jacob Low, Peterborough.
Treasurer—E. B. Fowler, Peterborough.

A feature of the meeting was the statement from J. J. Duffus, M.P., that while he did not know whether or not there would be a Federal election next year he was rather inclined to think there would be no appeal to the people until 1940, and his further remark that as a result of the Liberal housing program, the number of houses erected in Peterborough had increased from 32 in the first eleven months of last year to 53 in the same period of 1938.

Representatives from all parts of the riding were in attendance with a fair sprinkling of ladies present when President Howard Quinn called the meeting to order. George Nicholls acted as song-leader and with Miss Dorothy Whatley at the

Nazis, French Sign Pact To Avoid War

Ribbentrop, Bonnet Use Golden Pen At Paris Ceremony

PARIS, Dec. 6—(AP).—A Franco-German pact intended to prevent future wars between the two countries was signed at the foreign ministry here today by foreign minister Georges Bonnet and the German foreign minister, Joachim Von Ribbentrop.

In the large clock room, lighted with great electric candelabra, the signing took place at a Louis XVI. desk placed before the monumental fireplace under the clock from which the room takes its name.

Von Ribbentrop and Bonnet sat in armchairs at the desk. Near them were the German ambassador, Johannes Von Welczek, Alexis Leger, secretary general of the French foreign office, and Robert Coulondre, French ambassador to Germany.

On the desks lay the document in French and German, in ornamental handwriting on cream-colored vellum bordered by a simple red line.

At a word from Maurice Loze, chief of protocol, Bonnet took a gold pen from an ornamental inkstand and signed under the French text, followed by Von Ribbentrop, who was first to sign under the German text.

The document was also witnessed for France by Premier Edouard Daladier and high officials of the foreign office, and for Germany by members of the delegation accompanying Von Ribbentrop.

More To Come

What the pact left unsaid was the subject for further negotiation between Von Ribbentrop and his staff, Premier Daladier, Bonnet and their veteran advisors on foreign affairs.

France wanted to know whether Germany backed the Italian agitation for Tunisia and Corsica. France wanted to know also how determined was Germany on her own colonial demands.

Premier Daladier said yesterday France would resist both colonial aspirations.

Paris buzzed with rumors on the eve of the signing ceremony.

One published reports said the wife of one cabinet minister declined an invitation to the official reception for Von Ribbentrop and wrote she and her husband "are dining at the Czechoslovak legation."

One report attributed by several papers to a "high official of the foreign office" said the french had been assured Chancellor Hitler would cut many attacks upon France from the next edition of Mein Kampf, his autobiographical-Political volume.

Rent Collector Is Drummed Out By Dishpans And 132 Families Get Lower Rates

LONDON, Dec. 6 — (CP). — A group of 132 families residing in the Mile End district of East London today emerged victorious from a clamorous rent "strike."

The families, occupying flats rentals of which varied between 16 and 20 shillings $4 and $5) per week, decided they were paying too much. The tenants entrusted their case to the "Tenants league of Stepney" which promptly organized the "strike."

When an agent of the owners arrived in the quarter to collect rent he was greeted by huge streamers bearing such slogans as "We want lower rents!" "We want repairs!" and "Tenants unite!" When he approached housewives to collect the weekly bill he was met with a unanimous but polite "No." He left the district amid boos and the din of kitchen pans and dustbins pounded by the housewives.

Members of the tenants' league collected the rent, placed it temporarily in a bank, and opened negotiations with the proprietors. The latter finally agreed to establish a maximum rental of 15 shillings ($3.75), two shillings more than the maximum demanded by the tenants, and agreed to undertake necessary repairs and alterations.

Germany's Jews Are Given Orders To Liquidate 3 Billion Wealth

BERLIN, Dec. 6. — (AP).— The Deutsche Allgemeine Seitung today placed $3,080,000,000 the total of Jewish wealth which "must be moved" under the Economics Ministry decree authorizing Nazi officials to liquidate Jewish possessions.

The newspapers said this total (7,700,000,000 marks) took in 2,900,000 marks ($1,160,000) in real estate and working capital and that the remainder was in "other wealth."

The decree announced yesterday stipulates that Jews no longer can sell or pawn any valuables without a government permit, that they must deposit securities within banks, and that they can not acquire real estate.

It impowers officials to order Jews to sell or liquidate real estate and other possessions wherever it was held necessary for the national welfare. A trustee may be appointed for an owner living abroad who declines to sell.

The decree contains "the legal basis for the full aryanization of German economics. German real estate and other important parts of the national wealth," an official explanation said.

Newspapers generally welcomed it as a measure "to break the last Jewish stronghold." A date for making it effective likely will be published by the official Gazette Monday.

The Gazette yesterday published a new ruling making Jews in former Czechoslovak Sudetenland liable to Marshall Hermann Goering's order of last April, that they must declare their fortunes as of Dec. 1 before Jan. 31, 1939.

The first extensive measures restricting the areas into which Jews may go meanwhile, were applied in Berlin to-ay.

The places forbidden from today on were the Wilhelmstrasse, where government buildings are situated; the Square before the Great War Memorial in Unter Den Linden; theatres, museums, public play and sports grounds, and public bath houses.

Italian Marines Fight French —And Pay Costs

Shanghai, Dec. 6.

ITALIAN MARINES will pay for damage done to a cafe in the French Concession's "Blood Alley" early Monday in a brawl with French sailors, it was learned today.

The fight developed, it was reported, when an Italian—a member of a unit sent her recently—shouted, "Tunis! Corsica!"

The brawl lasted several hours. In an exchange of shots with French police ten persons were wounded.

MORE ABOUT—
Coalition Taboo

Mr. Rowe was Conservative Leader. Premier Hepburn has stated he did not discuss Coalition personally with Mr. Rowe and that he was not in favor of it at that time.

Mr. Rowe has charged that Col. Drew resigned in 1937 as Conservative organizer because the Party Leader would not accept Col. Drew's demands for Coalition. Col. Drew says he favored Coalition then, but his resignation was tendered because he could not accept Mr. Rowe's labor policy.

When more than 1,200 delegates gather here on Thursday they will have at least four candidates definitely in the Leadership race—Mr. Lawson, Col. Drew, Wilfred Heighington of Toronto, and Rev. Norman Rawson of Hamilton.

Drew's Letter to Rowe

There was published a letter written April 30, 1937, by Col. Drew, former Conservative organizer, now a leadership candidate, to Hon. Earl Rowe urging Mr. Rowe to accept proposals for a coalition government. (Premier Hepburn has denied he proposed a coalition.)

Col. Drew last night said his only knowledge of the union government offer came from Mr. Rowe and that two weeks after they were made, Mr. Rowe told him he was inclined to consider them favorably.

"I want it clearly understood that the talk of coalition came to me from Mr. Rowe," said Col. Drew. "All the facts I refer to in the letter were communicated to me by Mr. Rowe apart from this: That I was in the room when he (Mr. Rowe) made arrangements by telephone to see Mr. Hepburn."

Mr. Lawson became the fourth declared candidate for the place vacated by Mr. Rowe. Others who have announced they will be in the balloting Friday are Col. Drew, Wilfred Heighington and Hon. Earl Lawson. All four say they are in to the end.

In the letter published yesterday, Col. Drew told Mr. Rowe he was resigning because he felt there was definite need of a stand in Ontario against the C.I.O., then called the Committee for Industrial Organization, now called the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

A Very Live Issue

The C.I.O. at that time was a live issue in Ontario because of the Oshawa General Motors strike—so live an issue that it led Premier Hepburn to call for the resignations of two ministers who he felt were out of harmony with his anti-C.I.O. stand.

Col. Drew's letter to Mr. Rowe said he was convinced that the C.I.O. threat was even more serious than Mr. Hepburn indicated. The opinion was based on "confidential information."

Added to the information made public by the letter, was a statement from Col. Drew that Mr. Rowe told him he first considered the coalition proposal about April 20 and "was considering it favorably under the terms he outlined to me. I believed it was in his interests to accept the proposal."

Col. Drew said he was not going to be diverted to side issues on the eve of the convention. The Oshawa strike and its sequel was a past issue.

"If Mr. Rowe had the interests of the party at heart, he could have taken up this matter before this. I do not intend to be diverted from the issues that must be considered now by this carefully-planned last-minute campaign."

Croll Defeats Wigle By 5,000

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 6 (CP). — David A. Croll, elected Mayor again of the city in which he worked his way from newsboy to Cabinet Minister, invited "best wishes" today from his opponents in Windsor's bitterest, most tumultuous mayoralty campaign.

But Mayor E. S. Wigle, 79-year-old life-long Conservative who carried into the balloting yesterday the support of Ontario's Liberal Premier, Mitchell Hepburn, had no best wishes for the 38-year-old, Moscow-born lawyer.

"I don't wish him luck," Col. Wigle said. "When a man is elected on promises that he can't keep, you can't wish him luck, can you?"

Croll, who came to Canada at the age of six and worked to put himself through school and college, wrote what he called his greatest victory into a stormy political career in his election over Wigle and Roy C. Haight, an accountant in a firm that formerly audited the city's books. The predominantly industrial community gave Croll 19,888 votes, Col. Wigle 14,277 and Haight, never considered a contender, 990.

"If I had been the unfortunate one in this election, I would have given my opponents my best wishes," Croll told election-night audiences as his plurality mounted steadily. "I want —and I want you to know that I want—their best wishes even in victory."

He saw the result as a warning to a "great many" that they will not be allowed "again to put down the iron heel."

apartment declared a public place under the Liquor Control Act. In addition, she must spend three months definite, and two months indeterminate, in Andrew Mercer Reformatory, for breaking the terms of her probation.

The two sentences were made concurrent.

Mrs. Collins' case was investigated yesterday when her husband told the probation officer that he could not renew his bond for her probation. "He is a very sick man. He was operated on, but nothing could be done," the officer said.

When the husband's bond was withdrawn, the probation officer and constable Hurst visited the apartment, and found the alcohol.

Rap At Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—(AP).—A Washington minister who relied in income tax returns as his basis, to-day criticized James Roosevelt, son of the United States President, for apparent neglect to make church contributions.

Rev. Howard Anderson, minister of the First Congregational Chuch here, and the first of a series of "affirmative" witnesses before the House of Representatives committee investigatin unamerican activities, said in a statement that young Roosevelt's income tax reports for several years showed that "in not a single year had he contributed to a church—and in only one year did his gifts out of income running high into five figures, exceed $28 per annum."

Delayed Dynamite Blast May Cost Farmer And Son Eyesight

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Dec. 6. — (CP).—An emergency operation was performed early to-day on Richard Fleming, elderly farmer of Huntingdon township and his son Percy Fleming, 30, at the Belleville General Hospital in an effort to save their eyesight after a dynamite explosion on their farm 20 miles north of Belleville yesterday.

The men were blasting stone in a field on their farm near White Lake. After waiting for some time in a place of safety after the charge should have exploded and thinking something had happened to prevent the dynamite from exploding they went to the place to investigate when a shower of rocks "blew" in their faces. Dr. James H. Forrester is attending the injured men.

considering whether it would not be better for this mountain republic to withdraw entirely from the League of Nations, in an effort to placate Germany and Italy. There is small doubt, also, that many Swiss, without being inhospitable, wish their guest would pack up and move out altogether.

Classed as Neutral

The council of the league already has granted Switzerland complete neutrality. This means that the Berne government would not be called upon to participate in sanctions such as were applied to Italy in an effort to halt Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia. But Switzerland nevertheless is being branded with unfriendliness by Fascists and Nazis on the basis that by harboring the league she is party to its actions.

So acute is the feeling that in September when the question arose of holding a league council meeting to consider the Nazi-Czechoslovak crisis, it was openly suggested that the Swiss might ask that the conference be held elsewhere. They did not dare have it on Swiss soil with Germany involved.

Another illustration of how things are going lies in the suppression by the Swiss government some time ago of the "Jounal des Nacions" an international newspaper which had been running some five years. This was done under pressure from the Italian and German ministers in Berne. This paper had been against revision of the frontiers in eastern Europe. It also happened—though this may have had nothing to do with the protests—that one of the editors, Sarlo Oprato, had crossed swords with Rome previously.

Draper Stays On As Toronto Police Chief

TORONTO, Dec. 6 (CP)—Brigadier-General D. C. Draper today continued his duties as Toronto's chief constable, his resignation to the police commission having been withdrawn for the third time within a year.

Immediately after withdrawing his resignation at the request of two of the commissioners yesterday, Chief Draper urged the police commission to enlarge the department personnel by appointing 50 cadets each year for a period of four years. The move would bring the force strength to 1,125 men.

The recommendations supplemented earlier requests for 200 more men on the force, a suggestion which had not been acted upon when the chief tendered his resignation Nov. 30 last.

On the withdrawal motion, Mayor Ralph Day dissented. He said the chief's new report, advocating an increase in personnel to cope with a rise in automobile traffic toll "will be considered by the board."

Outside Influences

The chief charged in his report that the matter of personnel and other police administrative details have been "surrounded by influences of ulterior motives from outside the department.

Mayor Day stated after the conference the commission had not taken a vote on the withdrawal, but the other commissioners, Judge Frank Denton and Colonel A. E. Kirkpatrick, approved it.

Under Chief Draper's recommendations, the cadets would be available for service as fourth-class constables, following a two years' duty period and training course. The commissioners were advised the increase in cadet recruits would relieve regular constables for general police duties.

clear and was unconscious when found by his brother, Albie, and another rescuer.

The grizzled veteran of the pits insisted on walking to the surface though painfully bruised and cut. When he sat down after reaching the open, he related his experience to a Canadian Press reporter:

"I was in about the fourth or fifth car from the front. Sitting with me were William Hancock and Joe Earle and some others.

"I thought I'd die on the way down. It was awful. I didn't think I'd live through that ride. We were going terribly fast and I wanted to jump but I knew I wouldn't have much of a chance if I did, so I hung on.

"Some of the men who jumped before we hit that curve must have been all right. But the ones that jumped after that were just thrown against the walls and back under the cars. After that it was just too bad. I don't know what the others that were with me did. Men were jumping out all around me.

"I remember the awful crash but that's all."

McKeigan, a car veteran, is the father of nine children.

Cadell Nicholson, another aboard the rake, said "there wasn't any jolt when the rope broke. I guessed what had happened and jumped off right away. Men were jumping off all around me. I saw some get killed and others hurt. There were lots killed, I think. It was awful."

George Dwyer, one of the first of the rescue workers to reach the scene, said all the cars were piled up in one tangled heap a mile and a quarter down.

Message From Premier.

OTTAWA, Dec. 6 (C.P.). — The deep sympathy of the Canadian Government for the families and survivors of the men who died in the Sydney Mines accident to-day was expressed in a statement issued by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

The statement read:

I have been shocked and deeply grieved to learn of the tragic accident at Sydney Mines. It has been many years since the toll of human life in a single disaster has been so heavy, and the tragedy is the more regrettable because it has occurred at a time when steady progress was being made in safeguarding the lives of mine-workers by all possible precautions. News of this tragedy will be received with sorrow throughout the whole of Canada, to the families and survivors of the men who perished, I express the deepest sympathy of myself and my colleagues in the Government.

Fourth Recent Disaster

Sydney Mines' disaster in which at least 19 lost their lives was the fourth comparatively recent accident in Canadian mines in which death or injury resulted from runaway miners' conveyances.

Five months ago at Bourlamaque, Que., five engineers were killed when a hoist cage plunged 700 feet.

One was killed and six injured April 20 near Beardmore, Ont., when a cage ran wild from the 600 to the 1,400-foot level of a gold mine.

In August, 1937, 17 men escaped with their lives near Princeton, B.C., when a cage broke loose.

The Sydney mines conveyance was a string of cars or "rake," used for taking miners down an incline to the pit.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 6 — (CP). — Wheat future prices held at higher levels throughout to-day's moderately active session on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Trading for the most part was quiet but spasmodic bursts of buying livened operations. Quotations closed ¼ to ½ higher, December at 60¾, May 62⅞, and July 63⅝ cents.

Export business was placed at around 300,000 bushels, moving the week's output to date over the 1,000,000 bushel mark.

Fairly active buying by southern houses absorbed Canadian Wheat Board offerings, and the volume of trade was moderate.

Liverpool closed ¼ to ¾d higher on firmer North American prices yesterday, and Buenos Aires was ½ cent lower to unchanged at noon; American markets held steadily most of the day.

Mute's Message To King, Hitler Baffle Police

HALIFAX, Dec. 6 (CP)—A mysterious mute with messages to King George VI and Reichsfuhrer Hitler in his pocket is aboard the steamship Samaria bound for Liverpool England. And the thing that's bothering officers of the line, according to a wireless message they sent their Halifax agents last night, is that the mystery man has no tickets or passport.

Harbor police took him off the Samaria's gangplank at her dock here Sunday when he tried to get aboard without the necessary papers. He refused to answer their questions so they turned him over to city police.

At headquarters when questions were put to him in writing he produced a billfold containing an Ontario motor licence registered in the name of an Ingersoll man. He would not explain his presence in the city.

Police persuaded him to take a hotel room but he disappeared from the room yesterday morning, and no word was heard of the smartly-dressed stranger until a radio message was received from the Samaria last night.

Though police maintained the man was a mute, a hotel clerk said he had spoken to him several times. Police said he carried messages addressed to "Hitler" and "His Majesty the King."

Indian Boy Given His Guitar Back Along With $6.00

GERALD JOHNSON was a happy little Indian boy today when he received his guitar back, with six crisp new dollar bills and a Christmas card signed by his Peterborough benefactors. Gerald recently wanted to sacrifice his prized guitar for six dollars in order to buy Christmas gifts for his family. The article appeared in The Examiner and a number of Good Samaritans offered to "buy" the guitar and then make a gift of it back to the lad. Mrs. Robert Hartley of Weller street was the first to call and she and some friends took care of the matter. Mrs. Hartley, who returned the guitar and gave the money to the boy, had as her "cohorts in kindness" Zeller's, Schneider's, King's Hotel, J. K. Hughes and the Oilateria.

Shop Cleaned Out

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 6—(CP).—Raiding a specialty shop, operated by Miss Ann Barrs, for the second time in a week, thieves early today boosted their loot of women's wear to goods worth $2,000. The store was practically cleared of stock.

It was the second store robbery on the principal shopping street within two days. Early Saturday $1,200 worth of jewellery was taken by four men in a smash-an-grab robbery at Alex Johnston's store.

....For teen-age girls—an adorable dress with a blue satin bodice and a blue crepe skirt, tied, like a present, with satin ribbons.

....Tiny rolled bands in green and blue marked the skirt of a pink taffeta dress, and at the neckline were little inserts of net.

DOROTHY DIX

There Is No Surer Way To Turn a Husband Into a Philanderer Than To Make Him Believe By Your Jealousy That He Is a Devil Among The Ladies.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been married two years to the finest man God ever let live, but my trouble is this: When my husband looks at another girl it makes me feel as if he is comparing me to her to my disadvantage, and this makes me envious of her clothes, money and looks. He thinks I am jealous and we quarrel over it, and this makes me unhappy. But he loves me dearly. Please suggest a cure for this attitude of mine. —MADAM X.

ANSWER:

Well, I don't think that your husband will love you dearly very long if you continue to torture him with your senseless jealousy. There is nothing that a man resents more than injustice from his wife, and nothing that you can possibly do will kill your husband's affection for you so quickly as for you to be always accusing him of sins he has never committed.

If you want to turn your husband into a philanderer, you are taking the surest way to do it by making him believe that he is such a devil among the ladies that no female can resist him. He will think that if he is so fascinating as all that he had better try out his charm technique upon the girls.

Moreover, if you are going to suspect him of having affairs and accuse him of being untrue to you, he will think that as he is going to be lectured anyway he had as well have the game as the name.

If you want to teach your husband to deceive you and lie to you, go on as you have begun. Make scenes over his casual attentions to any woman he meets. Make him afraid to even ask his Aunt Jemima to lunch with him down town. Make him know that if he is polite to his hostess at a party, or if he shows he enjoys the conversation of an entertaining dinner partner, or if he asks a girl to dance that you will have hysterics as soon as you get home, and keep him awake half the night quarrelling with him.

He will learn how to hide everything he does from you, and to tell you falsehoods about where he has been, what he did, and whom he saw, when he knows the price he has to pay for telling the truth. But he won't love you for it. There is nothing that makes a man hate his wife so much as being afraid of her.

Anyway, when you come down to brass tacks, don't you think your jealousy is pretty foolish? Your husband picked you out for a wife from among all the other girls in the world. Isn't that enough proof to you that you are the one he preferred above all others? Can't you keep your mind concentrated on that instead of thinking that you haven't as beautiful eyes as Mary has, nor as slim a figure as Sally has, nor as entertaining a line as Margie has? You may wonder what he saw in you to want you, but it was there for him, or else he would have passed you by. If you can hold on to that thought, perhaps it will be a cure for your inferiority complex.

But, take it from me, one thing is certain. If you were as beautiful as Miss America herself and as glamorous as a movie star and as witty as Dorothy Parker, it wouldn't offset your quarrelling with your husband about every time he speaks to a woman. If you don't stop that, you are going to lose him to the very first amiable woman he meets.

DEAR MISS DIX—We have a boy almost 18 who has been going with a girl about his age. She is as nice a girl as you can find and from a well-respected family, but thinking he is so young we have broken them up. Since then he is blue, disheartened, dissatisfied and doesn't seem to care for other things, not even girls, and now he has started to drinking and running with wild wild boys. Should we let him go back to his girl and be happy, or should we keep them apart? — WORRIED PARENTS.

ANSWER:

There are times when parents should climb down from their know-it-all pedestal and apologize to their children and confess that they have been wrong in their judgments and have made mistakes. And that is what you should do as soon as possible to your son.

Don't be afraid that it will lower you in his esteem. It will exalt you to the skies, because it will give you the human touch with him and make him realize that what you did was motivated by love for him and desire for his well-being, not to exercise a petty tyranny over him.

I urge you to act quickly because your boy is in mortal danger. A lad of his age is bound to have pleasure, companionship, something interesting and thrilling to do all the time. He must play around with girls. He isn't going to sit around home of an evening and read an improving book, or talk to papa and mamma. He is going out to find diversion for himself. And it is heaven's own mercy if he doesn't get in with the wrong kind of a gang and with some wild girl instead of the nice girl with whom he wasn't permitted to go.

It is easy to understand why fathers and mothers, to whom their young son still seems a baby, should object to his going "steady" with any one girl. They are afraid that he may take his calf love for the real thing and run off and get married. So he might, but that doesn't very often happen. Usually the affair just wears itself out, or perishes of anemia when the children are sent off to school, or the boy goes to work. But, anyway, it is far less of a hazard than trying to keep a boy entirely away from girls.

As a matter of fact, there is no greater safeguard or better education for a boy than a bread-and-butter romance with a nice girl. Her influence is for good and she is the best known protection against bad women. More than that, she civilizes and refines the young cub and teaches him the principles of gentlemanliness. The first indication that love has begun to flower in a boy's heart is when he begins voluntarily washing behind his ears, blacking his shoes and wearing a clean collar. Lucky is the boy who first learns about women from some nice girl, and foolish are the parents who break up such a friendship.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX.—I am a bachelor of 42, desperately in love with my neighbor's wife. Her husband treats her brutally and she is terribly unhappy. I could give her love and tenderness and money, but I have never told her how I feel about her. How can I break the ice? —HARRY.

Fashions

Little grown-ups will simply adore this sophisticated shirred elastic waistline dress, for isn't it exactly the same type of dress older sister and mummy are wearing? And mummy will be pleased, too. It's so easy to sew it, for it cuts in one piece from neck to hem. And it's fun to make the elastic waistline. Merely thread your machine bobbin with elastic thread and sew in the usual way. The long sleeved dress is of practical navy blue wollen and has a detachable crisp white pique collar, so it can easily be removed for laundering. Sew a bias band to the inner edge. The cotton percale dress in wine background has pretty posies in pastel shades. There is a wine grosgrain ribbon bow to accent the quaint tied neckline. Plaid gingham or plaid woollen is another popular choice with school girls. Again the spun rayon challis prints that have warmth and are washable are most attractive for this simple dress. For Sunday-go-to-meeting, it could be made of velveteen or of a printed or plain rayon crepe silk.

Style No. 2925 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2¼ yards of 39-inch material, with ¼ yard of 39-inch contrasting for long sleeved dress.

Home and School Association News

QUEEN ALEXANDRA SCHOOL.

With the president, Mrs. V. R. Henry, presiding, the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association held its regular meeting in the school room on Monday evening. A Christmas carol and the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison opened the program.

A demonstration of the regular class-room activities, when the following program was given, was most interesting to the unusually large number of parents who were in attendance.

Mr. J. E. R. Munro's Grade 8 girls' group sang Christmas carols, with Miss Shirley King at the piano; Miss H. Staples' primer class gave Christmas verses and a chorus; from Miss E. Eagleson's room Miss Helen Lyons gave a reading; ten little girls from Miss G. Cox's room gave a very pretty Danish folk dance in costume, and were accompanied at the piano by their teacher; Mr. E. E. Frost's Grade 7 girls sang Christmas carols, with Miss Mary Lillow at the piano; from Miss V. Burgess' room a solo was given by Miss Betty Maher, accompanied by Miss Thelma Zavitz; a dialogue, "Pied Piper of Hamlin," was given by a group of boys and girls from Grade 7, and the last number was Christmas carols sung by Mr. Munro's Grade 8 girls.

QUEEN MARY SCHOOL

"Religious Education in the Public Schools" was the subject of an address given by Rev. F. W. Craik of St. James' Church to the members of the Queen Mary Home and School Association at their meeting on Monday evening, with the president, Mrs. L. H. Ingram, in the chair.

A report on milk requirements for school-age children was given by Mrs. L. Maguire; a report of the Home and School Council by Mrs. R. C. Prophet; of the Local Council by Mrs. R. Hinton; and of the membership committee by Mrs. J. Turnbull, when it was stated that it was decided to carry out the class mother idea for the coming year. A regime of the past month's current events was given in an interesting way by Mrs. T. J. Carley. A very delightful solo by Mrs. E. Kitney, accompanied by Mrs. T. P. Hooper, was enjoyed by the members.

A vote of thanks to the guest speaker and the soloist was moved by Miss I. Madill. The Junior attendance banner was won by Miss Madill's room, and the senior banner by Mr. Telford's room. The purpose of the report cards which are being given out was explained by the principal, Mr. O. M. Steer, who also showed some fine travel slides.

An announcement was made of the Red Cross Nutrition Course which is to be given at the Y.W.C.A. in January under the supervision of Mrs. C. B. Muir, and of the annual Christmas tea and open school which is to be held by the Queen Mary School on December 16. Of particular interest, also, was the announcement made by Miss E. Deyell that the proceeds of a bazaar which had been given by a group of the school girls would be turned over to the Home and School Association.

A thick paste made of two parts of sand, two parts of sifted coal ashes, and one part of white flour, with enough water added to get the proper consistency, will be a splendid cement with which to repair a broken place in the plastered wall?

An old suede or chamois leather glove filled with soft paper makes a good pad for rubbing over suede shoes to remove dust and freshen the surface? A rubber nail-brush is also useful for cleaning suede without harsh friction. Grease spots should be treated with a stiff paste made of fuller's earth and water. The paste should be allowed to dry on and then lightly brushed off.

Looking Ten Years Ahead

Peterborough County has concluded negotiations by which 2,665 acres of land in Dummer and Belmont will be developed jointly by County and Forestry Department officials in a reforestation project. There has been a good deal of negotiation going on, and the County finally got the price to be paid to the Government down to $3,000, which may be fair enough although it would have been good business to sign such land over for the purpose in question for the nominal sum of $1.

There are a good many things which have to be done. It is not merely a matter of starting out to plant more trees, although that will be done. The area has to be carefully considered, and the natural increase in tree parentage and growth must be protected. There can be no mature timber taken out of the area without the consent of the Forestry Department. It means that the area in question will become a timber preserve in much the same sense as have other tracts marked out as game preserves, and the growth of timber will be protected.

The County Council did a good stroke of business, and those who have been carrying on the project for months in its formative stage have shown skill and good business sense. There will be no immediate benefit and no immediate return because the scheme is now on what can well be termed a ten-year basis. That in itself is commendable because if we are only honest enough to admit it too many of our plans in the past have not been made after trying to look ten years ahead.

Ask The Government

We are increasingly living on the theory—if things are not right go and ask the government to put them right. Thorburn in Nova Scotia is a community of some 1,300 people and things are not right there because the mine which used to support the place has ceased to operate. It was worked out and operation had not been profitable. The demand to be made on the government is that another mine should be opened in existing coal seams.

No one is going to blame the Citizens' Committee of Thorburn for having a deputation start for Ottawa. Their town is in a bad way because the people are not working. Undoubtedly people who go there on such a mission have more and better reasons for going than a good many other deputations which chart their course toward our federal capital.

The problem is here: If there is a good brand of coal to be had by digging for it at or near Thorburn, and if it is possible to find a market which will absorb the output of the mine, then it should be possible to go ahead and do business. We take it that the existing company which abandoned one mine would be willing enough to open the new one if the prospects are at all bright.

The fact that no company wants to proceed with the work causes one to believe that at best the prospects are not so good for successful operation. Money will be needed for development purposes and probably it will be necessary to grant some sort of subsidy in the way of freight rate allowances to put it on the available markets. That is why an appeal is being made to the government because people now look to the government to undertake enterprises which private companies will not touch because they can see no prospects of making a success of the venture and they do not wish to lose their money.

Defacing Road Signs

Theodore Maron from Tillsonburg paused by a highway sign and carefully wrote out his name and address on it. He seemed to like the idea and was going to add his name in another corner, but a traffic officer happened along, after which it was necessary for the young man to appear in court. When the magistrate looked up the book of rules it was found that the fine for defacing such signs could not be less than $25 and there was also the question of $5 costs. The name-writer did not have the cash so he went back to the cells while an effort was made to secure it.

When the case was being heard it was stated there were scores of road signs all over the provincial system which had to be repaired or replaced because injury had been done to them. Those signs which give warning at night of curves and dangerous places are expensive and yet they are often enough subject to attack by mugs who seem to find delight in destroying them.

Then there is that other old custom of people wanting to write their names wherever opportunity affords. Whether they consider it historically important that it should be recorded they have passed certain places or buildings we do not know, but Theodore from Tillsonburg found it cost $30 to operate on a highway sign.

Perhaps it is well that attention has been directed to this habit. We noticed one a few days ago at the entrance to a community where the sign about the speed limit being 30 miles an hour had been altered to read "130 miles an hour." No doubt that was considered quite a smart thing to do, but paying $25 and costs would have taken some of the smartness out of it. Road signs are placed in position in the interests of safe driving and as a guide for those who may be strangers. People should leave them alone and the knowledge that it costs $30 to tamper with them may inject a little much-needed fear and respect into the minds and hands of those who delight to deface or destroy them.

It's Worth Trying

A report from London says the Duke and Duchess of Windsor have invited a workman from London together with his wife and children to be their guests at Christmas at their chateau in France. The name of the workman has not been divulged at the moment but he is described as an ardent trade unionist who has never been outside of England.

It is added the Duke desired to have "somebody from his old home during the Christmas festivities" and it was also stated the children had been especially asked because that would give opportunity and sufficient reason for having a Christmas tree.

We regard it as just the outcropping of a normal and natural desire and feeling. The Duke of Windsor is not seeking to play upon the emotions of the people in England. He and his wife are doing a decent thing as quietly as they know how.

And there is something in it which a good many people might well consider—and that is sharing their Christmas with some other person. As a rule we are apt to draw the family connection rather closely at this festival season. First thing we do when we "make up lists" is to see that the relatives are all attended to, and likely we also include those with whom we have exchanged gifts on previous occasions. And then we quit.

Without much effort we could easily enough find a good many folk who need a little attention; perhaps the going has been a trifle tough for them and under their own power they cannot create much of a celebration at Christmas. Worth noting here that the Windsors are not merely sending out some gifts to this family in London, but they are taking that family into their own home and paying the bill as well. In other words they are going the whole distance, and we dare say they will have a thoroughly good time out of it.

So when you are in the Christmas list business it might be well to look outside the family circle and the names of relatives. Give something where you know there is little chance at all of ever receiving anything in return apart from thanks and gratitude and the feeling that you have done a kindly thing.

Addressing 14 Ladies

A number of Ontario municipalities have held their annual elections. They prefer to have it done with before the Christmas rush gets under way. As usual there hase been much said about people taking an interest in municipal affairs.

In St. Thomas they held a meeting for ladies in the afternoon at the Y.W.C.A. building, the ladies being members of the Local Council of Women. The idea was that in the quiet of such a room the candidates for office could come and in turn address the ladies and enlighten them regarding city business and possibly advise them for whom to vote.

When the meeting was called to order there were but fourteen in attendance; there were seven candidates present and one had written he was unable to attend. And each candidate ran true to form; each in turn submitted a number of reasons why the fourteen ladies and their relatives should hasten to the polls and vote for him.

At best though it must have been just a trifle tough addressing a gathering of only fourteen ladies. When a fellow got up to speak he could not help but look at all the empty chairs and empty chairs do chill the ardor and sap the enthusiasm. A speaker would keep on thinking as he was speaking that he would have to go and make municipal harvest in a field where the grain was thicker. In the presence of ladies he would hesitate to wade into the record of an opponent; if he made a thrust at him at all he would consider it advisable to place a large button on the end of the foil; nor would it be becoming to jump up and down and thump his fist on the table for emphasis. Possibly the seven candidates would be glad enough when the task of addressing fourteen ladies was brought to a happy conclusion.

Making Them Vote Right

The Globe and Mail is convinced there is something or other wrong with democracy. It does not seem to produce the sort of results which the Toronto paper yearns to behold. When people go out to vote they have a selfish motive; they often enough desire to promote some small and unworthy scheme, or lend their influence to some "ism" which at best is not a good "ism." The Globe and Mail is certain democracy needs some disciplining, but just how to apply it is the hurdle yet to be mounted. The suggested cure is like this:

"Rather than submit to the alternative of dictatorship it would be preferable to restrict the franchise until discipline is learned, or surround it with conditions which would rule out destructive factors. How close do Toronto electors come to upholding democracy, for example, when they elect Communists to the City Council and Board of Education? Communism as it has functioned so far in Russia is dictatorship as surely as fascism."

At the top of the editorial page of the Globe and Mail are a few lines which were carried for years by the Globe and now by the amalgamated paper. The wording is:

"The subject who is truly loyal to the Chief Magistrate will neither advise nor submit to arbitrary measures."—Junius.

The suggestion that there should be a form of disfranchisement until democratic voters learn how to record their ballots as the Globe and Mail would have it done is arbitrary in the last degree. Who, for instance, would we have in this country to say whether people were voting the right way or the wrong way? We are fortunate in having no existing machinery for such purpose, nor will we have any in the future.

Hitler has it in Germany. Only a day or so he allowed the people in the Sudeten area to vote and by their voting say whether or not they approved of Hitler and his National Socialist German Labor party. The ballot used was one which might appeal strongly to the Globe and Mail because it contained a large place in which to mark "Yes" and a very small spot in which to put down a "No." And the result of such an election was simply great for one who loves a disciplined vote because almost every last voter in the land lined up and marked "Yes," and they did that because they were afraid to do anything else.

When electors in Toronto elect Communists to the City Council or the Board of Education they are not transgressing the laws of democracy. Not for a minute. If there were sufficient Communists in the Dominion of Canada, and if they used the ballot box to elect sufficient members to form a majority in our House of Commons, then we would have a Communist government, and it would have been placed there by the most democratic means under the sun—the ballot box. Or we could have a Socialist, or a Liberal or a Conservative government by exactly the same process. The Globe and Mail might well read again the few words of Junius which it is pleased to carry on top of its editorial page.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Prince Edward Island has been swept by a blizzard. Both east and west have now been favored with this kind of thing and we are not a bit envious.

Col. Drew charges that Hon. Earl Rowe is attacking him with "poisoned arrows." Trouble is there is nothing in the game laws covering a case where one Tory goes forth seeking to bag another Tory.

Man in Hamilton wheeling a baby buggy was struck by an auto. That seemed tough indeed, but the baby was not hurt as the load in the buggy consisted of two cases of beer.

Woman in Kansas City is suing Harold F. McCormick, age 66, for $2,000,000 heart balm on the breach of promise score. McCormick is a son of an implement maker, and her claim seems to be that in this case McCormick didn't binder.

William Rocks, 17, of Philadelphia, is dead. He was shot by a policeman who said a car in which Rocks was riding failed to stop at his command. So the policeman was jury, judge and executioner without a trial and without a charge being laid.

County council wants to direct Canada's immigration policy and regulate lawyers' fees. And yet Premier Hepburn talked about abolishing such bodies.

Two police officers' cars were stolen in Ontario over the week. That is carrying coal to Newcastle or something of that nature.

SURE THING

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Jim told me I should play the nags, and quit my flattened purse and rags, I'd find the thing would pay; he said he'd put me on my feet, he'd bring around his racing sheet, explain the proper way.

¶ He had a system so he said, where one could always get ahead, not merely pick and choose; he knew each horse and how 'twould start, he knew the jockeys off by heart, and really couldn't lose.

¶ Jim came across when he was done, and I got lesson number one, he figured what we'd get; just where or how our cash would go, I must admit I did not know, for Jim would place the bet.

¶ We picked Green Onion for one race, his jockey had an honest face, be good in any group; we searched the records yet once more, and then we picked race number four, selected Bowl of Soup.

¶ I watched the papers hard that day, to see how much our nags might pay, and I was filled with woe; Green Onion was an also ran, fell flat according to our plan, I think he stubbed his toe.

¶ And Bowl of Soup he made the start, and then he seemed to fall apart, we didn't win our bet; he took a place quite well behind, and I've been trying since to find—if he has come in yet.

Five Billions For Bonus On Wheat

A staff writer of the Christian Science Monitor (Boston) has been in Winnipeg investigating the wheat situation. He gives this report of his findings:

CANADA'S WHEAT FARMERS, who this year will see three fourths of their 30,000,000 bushel wheat crop set adrift in a glutted world market, are looking for some device which will produce a better world price for next year's crop, and lessen their dependence on Ottawa's subsidy. The new Canadian-American trade agreement helped them not at all. If anything they lost by it, for Canadian wheat was deprived of its six-cent preference on the British market.

Officials at the Winnipeg central offices of the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers Limited — the "wheat pool"—argue that the possibilities of persuading the nations to sign a wheat cartel are brighter now than they have been for years. When Argentina wrecked the original London Wheat Agreement of 1933 by demanding a supplementary quota, Canada was not interested in reviving attempts at international control of production. Successive droughts and lean crops since 1929 had simply wiped out the problem. But this year's near-normal crop has revived the demand for action.

Cartel advocates point out that, in the United States, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, in his Hutchinson, Kansas, speech of Sept. 29, and later utterances, expressed a willingness to see international co-operation attempted. And that Argentina shows signs of being ready to return to the fold. The Argentine Chamber of Deputies recently passed a bill empowering the Government to negotiate treaties with other wheat countries.

SINCE 1931, a wheat pool expert figures, nations of the world have spent between $4,000,000,000 and $5,000,000,000 keeping their farmers contentedly producing wheat. Canada, with the world price hovering down around 60 cents, has had to guarantee its farmers an 80 cent minimum price per bushel. This means millions of dollars paid from the Dominion Treasury to subsidize Canada's wheat farmers, money gathered largely from taxes in eastern Canada.

The cartel proposal calls for an eventual agreement between the chief wheat exporting and importing nations. It would begin with the "big four" exporters, Canada, the United States, Australia, and Argentina. These would agree to limit their wheat exports; presumably they would effect this limitation by reduction of acreage or by bushelage control.

Once these countries were in accord, the other wheat-growers, Soviet Russia, Hungary, Poland, the Little Entente, would more easily fall into line. And nations striving for self-sufficiency would likely join too, proponents say. For those nations fear cheap wheat, since they have to raise their tariff dikes to keep it out and to keep their own farmers growing wheat at home.

W. A. MacLEOD of the Manitoba Wheat Pool has listed other arguments. Falling wheat prices do not bring any appreciably greater consumption of a necessity like wheat, he has contended. The few countries where thousands starve for the lack of it, such as India and China, are too poor to be able to buy wheat at any price. Moreover, he added, world consumption per capita has lately gone down.

So the point is made that world nations cannot continue indefinitely to bonus their farmers, and that therefore they should be willing to make at least one international effort to bring order out of the present chaos of overproduction.

AGAIN, it is contended that if the price should be pushed up by agreement among the "big four" producers, then the millers of Europe would turn to the smaller wheat-growing nations for their supplies, and the dictators would order their peoples to use potatoes and wheat substitutes. In short, that Canada would lose customers.

Moreover, opponents say, there is the vital domestic argument that reduction of wheat acreage would throw out of employment hundreds of workers who now handle and process Canadian wheat, railway employees for example. This would add to Canada's relief load. And the drop in farm purchasing power would hurt Canadian industries. Whereas, it is said, if Canada put its emphasis on freeing world trade through an all-around lowering of tariff barriers, Canadian wheat would find foreign markets, and reasonably priced foreign goods would find their way into prairie farm homes, and there would be profit all around.

To which the cartel advocates reply: "Well and good! But there is no known speedy process of increasing world trade, especially when the Canadian East is not willing to see its tariff walls fall. Keep up the efforts to build Canada's foreign trade. But do not neglect this possibility of holding up wheat prices until the world trade millenium arrives."

VALUE OF COURTESY.

(Marketing)

ONE REASON why train service employees do not show as fine a quality of salesmanship as do the operators of the buses, is because they started their railroad service when passenger trains had a monopoly on public travel—people had to use trains, whether they wanted to or not. This frank opinion is taken from an editorial in The Baltimore & Ohio magazine, which suggests that one reason why bus lines have taken so much passenger traffic away from the railroads is the greater courtesy often shown by the bus operatives.

CHRISTMAS TREE TRADE

Stratford Beacon-Herald: Canada's Christmas Tree trade with the New England States is expected to be helped by the reduction in duty provided for in the new agreement. The present half-million dollar mark may be doubled in this growing industry.

• Has the Church Lost Its Power?

EDITOR EXAMINER: Sir,—When a man writes a letter to a newspaper on his 81st birthday you will probably be prepared to fix it up a little before printing it. My hand is not as steady as it used to be and writing is not a very easy task for me. I find it much easier to talk as one's tongue seems to remain as good as new right to the end.

I want to write about an old question. I see letters now and then about churches, and I feel that more should be said because we are drifting and the joy of salvation is something which is a strange thing today because no person talks about it any more.

I remember years ago when we had class meetings in the Methodist church on Sunday morning before the regular service. There the people talked and prayed and testified and Christ Jesus was given His place. It seemed that in those places God was very close. He was in fact in that very room and in the heart of all those people.

Today we have gotten far away from that old idea, and we have not a testifying church and they appear to be tongue-tied when mentioning the name of the Almighty. They will talk about every other thing and they will become much interested in sending missionaries to other lands but I wonder if the great cause has actually gripped our own people at home or whether they have actually gone gone cold.

We have a lot of energy for everything else. I see now and then where some of the church organizations advertise that they are holding rummage sales. That is as miserable a way to raise money as can be found. It means sorting out all the old things in the house, sort of cleaning out stuff people have no more use for and then sending it down to be sold to people who cannot afford to buy it, and after that turning to the Lord with the proceeds and saying it is a gift for His cause. It is not a gift at all and I do not see how the Lord can bless the work of any people who carry on in that way.

I wonder too if our church and my church has lost the power to cause people to repent. It used to be a common and a warming thing to see people get up out of their pews in the old days and go boldly to the front and kneel there for prayer and guidance. I have not seen that in years and it leads me to wonder what is the cause. If our church has lost the power of God that turns men's lives from evil ways to a new life in Christ then I fear it has lost everything which is worth while.

I know I've been here a long time and the day of my departure cannot be far removed, but I would like to witness once more the outbreaking of a great revival in our midst. Thanking you for the trouble I know you will have had in making this so it can be printed.

• An Exile In Search of Health

(Overseas Daily Mail)

THE FUNERAL SERVICE for Earl Beauchamp was held in New York. He died at his suite in the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria there.

He was aged 66. The body will be brought to England for burial at his home, Madresfield Court, Worcestershire.

With Earl Beauchamp when he died were his heir, Viscount Elmley, and Viscountess Elmley, who had rushed to New York ten days ago when they heard that he was desperately ill, and his youngest daughter, Lady Dorothy Lygon.

Earl Beauchamp had gone to the United States to attend the reunion of the American branch of his family in Washington.

One-time leader of the Liberal Party in the House of Lords and Governor of New South Wales until 1937, he had not been in England for more than a few days for a period of six years.

He had been wandering round the world—Germany, the Far East, and Australia—in a vain quest for health. Only the death of his son, Hugh Lygon, killed by a fall after an attack of sunstroke, brought him back to England two years ago.

Earl Beauchamp severed all his connections with public life seven years ago.

He resigned the leadership of the Liberal Party in the House of Lords and the chairmanship of the National Liberal Party. He closed his house in Belgrave-square—one of the few political salons in modern London—and announced that he was to take a cure in Germany.

Afterwards he resigned the office of Lieutenant of the City and County of Gloucester, and the City and County of Bristol, Warden of the Cinque Ports, and the Chancellorship of the University of London. Ill health was the reason given in most cases for these unexpected resignations.

He married Lady Lettice Grosvenor, daughter of the late Earl Grosvenor, and sister of the Duke of Westminster, in 1902, and was divorced two years ago. They had two sons and four daughters.

By the succession to the earldom of Lord Elmley, a by-election is necessary in the East Norfolk division.

HOME, SWEET HOME.

(London Sunday Dispatch)

"THE HUT was eight feet square with no fireplace, no ventilation apart from the door, no window and an earth floor. There was an improvised bed of boards and straw, dirty blankets and odd garments. There was no way of heating the hut." A century ago Charles Dickens was describing scenes like that—and shocking a nation into a sense of its responsibility. But that paragraph is not Dickens—it is a 1938 police court description of the "home" of a man, woman and baby near Chelmsford. The parents were bound over for neglecting the baby by bringing it up in such surroundings. I suggest that the hut should now be re-erected in a corner of the Essex County Council's luxurious new Chamber at Chelmsford to remind the councillors what they are there for.

AUTONOMY?

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

PERHAPS Ontario has achieved autonomy after all. It used to be the prerogative of the federal government to announce that it would contribute dollar for dollar with the provincial authorities for the relief costs of the provinces. But yesterday Ontario served notice that it will in future contribute dollar for dollar with the federal authorities. The result will be a greater burden on the municipalities unless the federal Government increases its relief grants.

SPEED OF ENGINES.

(W. L. Clark, in Windsor Star)

WHEN streamlining was starting its vogue, some railways put their engines in the shops and covered them with plates to give the appearance of streamliners. The idea was to create less wind resistance and give greater speed.

Railwaymen say that the scheme may have impressed some persons, but the old locomotives could tune up just as much speed without the fancy plates as they could with them. High speed engines could scoot along at speeds getting on to 100 miles per hour and that will make a fast schedule on any railway.

The Diesels go in for streamlining, but the ordinary looking locomotive pulls the other trains. Railwaymen like utility and they find that type of engine can travel over 1,000 miles without being put into the roundhouse.

FOR WORLD TITLE.

PATRONS of a restaurant noticed tacked on the wall a sheet of paper which was printed in bold characters:

"The umbrella in the stand below belongs to the champion heavyweight fighter of the world. He is coming right back."

Five minutes later umbrella and paper had disappeared. In their place was another notice:

"Umbrella is now in possession of the champion marathon runner of the world. He is not coming back."—Labor.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

AND as Jesus passed by, he saw a man which was blind from his birth. And his disciples asked him, saying, Master, who did sin, this man, or his parents, that he was born blind? Jesus answered, Neither hath this man sinned, nor his parents: but that the works of God should be made manifest in him. I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work. As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world.

When he had thus spoken, he spat on the ground, and made clay of the spittle, and he anointed the eyes of the blind man with the clay, and said unto him, Go, wash in the pool of Siloam, (which is by interpretation, Sent). He went his way therefore, and washed, and came seeing.—John ix. 1-7.

GET THEIR MAN.

(Lethbridge Herald)

THE HORSE was still being used in 1914, but the automobiles were beginning to run away from the man on horseback. And so, reluctantly the Mounted Police began to take to motor cars. Today most men on detachment depend on the automobile for transportation. There are no more horses in the Mounted Police except a few used for ceremonial occasions.

And now it looks as if the motor car might follow the horse out. For Deputy Commissioner Dann of the Mounted announced in Ottawa the other day that there will be established in the North West Territories next Spring an airplane base, and patrols will be done from the sky. There where, in the days gone by, the dog sled and the canoe furnished transportation through the north country just as did the horse, and later the automobile, carry the Mountie on his law enforcement errands in the older parts of the former North West Territories, the Mounted Police will take to wings to run down wrongdoers and keep law and order in the hinterland of the Dominion.

But wings or not, we'll venture to say that the public will still think of them as Mounties, the scarlet-coated "riders of the plains."

NOT CRICKET.

(St. Catharines Standard)

THE CHALLENGE to Germany that Britain will beat her at her own game in trade has not been taken lightly in Germany. But one would be an optimist to expect any improvement in trade ethics in that country. German emissaries for long past have gone to foreign countries, where contracts were being let for big jobs and have made this proposition: "You get the British figures, and ours will be 25 per cent under. Only let us know the British tender and we will do the rest." The Nazi government provides the necessary subsidies for this system and the German people pay for it in household hardships and sacrifices.

RELIEF SOLUTION.

(Niagara Falls Review)

CANADIANS ARE, or were, a proud people, but that pride is falling low indeed when we permit hordes of people to live without working and without the hope to work. We must get away from that frame of mind which accepts unemployment and unemployment relief as things inevitable, unchangeable. They can become inevitable only if we accept that attitude. Let us refuse to recognize the inevitability of unemployment and see if we cannot devise some better system for our people. If our leaders cannot find a solution, then it is our duty to see that men and women, willing to find a solution, shall be elected to the high places in the Dominion.

A. L. Elliott, M.P.P. Gives Rotarians Of Lindsay Reforestation Hints

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Dec. 6. — A. L. Elliott, M.P.P., Peterborough, was the guest speaker at the local Rotary luncheon on Monday. His subject was the problem of reforestation in Canada, and he dealt with it in a very instructive manner.

He pointed out that with the capital of $500,000,000 the pulp and paper industry is one of the biggest in the Dominion, and the largest employer of labor. tI also heads the list of salary distribution. Over fifty municipalities, Mr. Elliott stated, are entirely dependent on this industry. Canada leads the world in the manufacture of paper, and in the year 1937 one hundred and eighty-one dollars' worth of pulpwood was exported. Fully 9 per cent. of the rail freight in 1937, the speaker declared, was pulp and paper. This industry is also the largest user of electricity, with a power bill of $18,000,000.

Touching on the preservation of our forests, Mr. Elliott stated that what went on in Southern Ontario might easily take place in the northern part of the province. If sufficient matured trees are left in an area, Mr. Elliott declared, natural regeneration would follow and would add greatly to the provincial assets. Mr. Elliott told his hearers that in Southern Ontario considerable reforestation has taken place. Referring to Victoria County, Mr. Elliott stated that 2,700 acres of forest are under the protection of the county.

A campaign of public education was stressed by Mr. Elliott in order to develop an appreciation of the value of our forests.

Mr. Elliott was introduced by L. M. Frost, K.C., M.P.P., who referred to the guest speaker as a friend of many years, and more recently an occupant of the same side of the Legislature as a result of the number of Liberals extending into the Conservative section.

Other Peterborough men present were Colonel John A. Dewart and R. F. Downey.

Two Lindsay youths, Frank Moore and Jack Hoar, were victims of a collision on Kent Street on Saturday night. A car in which they were riding collided with a truck driven by Gregory Donaghue of Peterborough as he attempted to turn north at an intersection. Moore and Ross received cuts about the face and head, and the car sustained extensive damage.

William Norton of Cambray, A. Sinclair and M. Lindsay of Lindsay, and a local girl aged fifteen years, figured in an auto accident on the Fenelon Highway on Saturday, and the three men were later arrested by Provincial Constable Adair. Sinclair and Cameron appeared in the Police Court on Monday morning before Magistrate Gee. The former was charged with reckless driving and with being intoxicated, and the latter, who was the owner of the car, with having liquor in an illegal place, and with being drunk. They were remanded until Friday. The coupe, it appears, swerved across the highway into the ditch, vaulting a two-foot culvert and landing against a telephone pole. It was badly damaged.

"Looking Back" On This Date

Although the gallantry of the Canadian militia, under Colonel John Prince at Windsor, Dec. 4 1838, put an end to raids upon Canadian territory, the colonel's action in ordering the summary shooting of five of the raiders had a long aftermath. One school denounced the colonel as a "butcher"; the other as an "avenging judge"; and the verdict of history seems to be now in favor of the gallant colonel.

If Prince needed any justification for his action, apart from the burning of the barracks and the militiamen unable to escape, he had it in the shameful murder of Dr. John Hume, as deliberate a killing as that of Colonel Moodie on Yonge St., above Toronto, just a year before. After the doctor refused to surrender to Bierce, he was shot in the breast and then deliberately killed with an axe. His body was found partly eaten by hogs after the shameful outrage became known, and it was rescued for burial. His tombstone in the old cemeter yat Sandwich declares that "he was inhumanely murdered and his body afterwards brutally mangled by a gang of armed ruffians from the United States, styling themselves 'patriots,' who committed this cowardly and shameful outrage on the morning of 4th December, 1838, having intercepted the deceased while proceeding to render professional assistance to her majesty's gallant militia, engaged in windsor, U. C., in repelling the incursion of this rebel crew, more properly called pirates."

Colonel Prince was thereafter for years a storm centre. A court-martial was held at Sandwich and evidence taken. The result was tantamount to a vindication, but over in Detroit a reward of $1,000 was offered for Prince's capture, or $800 for his dead body. One man was arrested at Sandwich for plotting Prince's murder, and was given six months in jail. The doughty colonel seemed to take little notice of the threats, carrying on his civil and military duties regardless of danger. Only when his personal honor was attacked did his temper rise; then he challenged his "enemies" to duels, and did actually meet one, Wood who was wounded.

In 1839, Colonel Prince was tendered a triumphal dinner at Toronto, and he made a "fighting speech." Frequent applause punctuated his speech as he gave his version of the Battle of Windsor. He was proud of his prompt dealing with the raiders, and observed, with regret, "The rest will be kept to fatten in our jails, or will be sent, at an enormous expense, to some distant colony, instead of being (as they ought to be) swept off the face of God's creation."

The people of the Sandwich district showed their pride in John Prince by electing him to the assembly in 1849 and re-electing him until 1859, when he was named district judge of Algoma, where he remained until his death at Sault Ste. Marie, Nov. 30, 1870.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

"I've got a surprise for you this afternoon," father said to Dinah and Frank as he walked into the playroom. The two children ran to him smiling and happy.

So did Hanid and Knarf. They were the children's shadows, and their names are just like the children's—except that they are spelled backward.

But father only paid attention to the children. He didn't eve nnotice the shadows.

See a Show.

"We're going to see a show," he said. "Here are the tickets."

Finally they were all ready and they set out with father for the theatre. They had to take a trolley-car. The children sat in the seats and the shadows sat on the floor as the trolley clanged and banged along. But at last they reached the theatre.

Father took out three tickets and gave them to the man who stood by the little box on the way in. Father and the children walked in. Then Knarf and Hanid walked past the man. He didn't even seem to see them.

And there they all were, inside the theatre.

It was lovely. There were seats all over. And way at the front was the stage with a huge red velvet curtain hanging down to it. The musicians were sitting just under the front of the stage. They were playing. The show was about to begin.

You can't imagine how happy the children were. And their shadows were even happier. But alas! the shadows were soon to be disappointed.

This is what happened. The usher showed father and the two children thei rseats. But he didn't show the shadows any seats at all. There weren't any seats for them. They had to sit on the floor.

Couldn't See.

Oh! how unlucky that was! For the curtain went up the next moment and the acrobats came on the stage to do their tricks. But the shadow's coudn't see anything except the children's feet. How would you like to go to a show and only see feet?

But tht next moment Hanid had a wonderful idea. The theatre, except for the stage, was quite dark. When it is dark shadows don't have to stay near the children they belong to. They can go wherever they please. Do you know that Hanid did? She took Knarf's hand and they both slid silently under all the rows of seats until they came to the very front row. And there was the stage, right in front of them! They could see the acrobats—they could see everything in the whole show! And what a fine time they had!

ROMANCE INC.

BY OREN ARNOLD

Read This First:

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, creates a furor on the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, when she erects a sign in front of her cottage announcing "COUNSEL IN ROMANCE". Her plan is to help guide 100 student "members" in their social and love affairs for a small fee. Bob Towne, campus football hero, much attracted by Sara Sue, is the first to enroll. This enrages Peaches Pomeroy, a senior who regarded herself as "Bob's girl" the previous year. Worthington Gurley, unprepossessing freshman, provides another problem when it is evident he is interested in Sara Sue. The climax in her Cottage Plan occurs when sedate Dr. Thornton Holgate, new member of the faculty, begs Sara Sue to help him . . . then confides his love for Peaches Pomeroy. She does, and gives him his first lessons in "how to become more human". Then T. J. Sanders, a sports goods salesman, appears on the scene and seeks out Sara Sue to help him locate a pretty girl he had seen in the stands at a local football game. The girl, of course, is Sara Sue herself. Bob finds Sanders' dog at Sara Sue's and begins to suspect he has a new rival. Sanders, much taken by Sara Sue, takes her to visit some dog kennels because she likes dogs, then makes other dates with her. Alone, she does some serious thinking about Sanders, Towne, Gurley and Dr. Holgate. Sara Sue gives Dr. Holgate more advice to help him with his courtship of Peaches.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER 18

"Did she ask you about your mathematics work this morning?"

"Yes. She was quite interested—ah, how did you know, Sara Sue?"

"I didn't. But I guessed. You see, she was just applying what I told you to apply. Smart girls know how to entertain men. She knew [illegible] that you would talk about yourself, and your interests. Now, you go back and lead her into talking about herself, and her interests. The same trick will work both ways. Women use it to win . . . Men can use it to win women."

"I shall try," he promised. "I am determined to try everything you order. I am convinced that you are a most remarkable woman."

"Girl, Thorny."

"Girl," he amended.

CLEOPATRA came in and Sara Sue left Dr. Holgate for a moment to give her a pointer or two regarding lunch. Meanwhile, her guest sat thinking. Thinking deeply.

"Oh, persimmons, Cleo!"

"Yassum. It was some on the fruit countah, and I remembered you-all liked 'em. Fust ones this season, the man say."

"Fine!"

Few fruits are more delicious than the wild Texas persimmon, touched to delectable sweetness by early frost. Sara Sue washed a dish of them and came back to the living room. Dr. Holgate, reared in Yankeedom, had never tasted them before.

"Delicious," he declared. "Do you serve fruits to all your guests?"

"No. You are special. I couldn't afford to, with all the students who have memberships here."

"You have 100 members, you said?"

"Yes. You were No. 100, Thorny."

"How did you happen to conceive so clever an idea?"

"Well, I don't know exactly. I just got to thinking. Mother and I had limited cash. She's Larry's mother, really, you know. But I love her very much. I could have hunted a downtown job. But, Thorny, I just didn't want to slave in some office or store for a few dollars a week!"

"No, indeed. I commend you for it. Your ingenuity is to be praised."

"Well, I just happened onto it, I guess. I talked to my banker friend. And a lawyer. And just went into it. The plan has certainly worked out fine."

"Have you some special training for work of this sort, Sara Sue?"

"No. None whatever. I just drew from my own background."

"Tell me about your background."

"Well, I mean my love life, so far as this is concerned. You see, I knew—I absolutely knew—that love is very poignant when you are at college age. The colleges don't recognize that enough. It causes much trouble, much heartache. I was in love, and married, when I could have been a freshman. I don't mean to bring up my personal history that way, but it gave me this idea.

"And then I have seen my friends need help. So few people will try to understand boys and girls in love, don't you think? Usually they just laugh at them. That's wrong, Thorny. Love is—is magnificent, I guess. It is. It's extremely important. It is what makes people happy or unhappy."

Thornton nodded agreement.

"Have you — experienced romance—since?" He expressed genuine interest.

"Me? Oh! Well, no. That is, a couple of the fellows are kidding me a lot. Three of them really. You know about that, because Bob Towne talks all the time, the big silly. He's a dear boy, but I'm not in love with him. He goes around telling all the gang that I'm his girl, but everybody knows it doesn't mean anything. But you know, Thorny, a girl likes that, even so! It sort of tickles her vanity, I guess." She paused to giggle.

"Quite so," Thornton agreed. Has he proposed marriage? If that's not too personal."

"Oh, no. I mean, I don't care if you ask. Yes, he has asked me a dozen times, I suppose. I just tease back at him. I will say one thing, though, he never tries to get too fresh or anything like that. I can't stand men that get too intimate. Have another persimmon, Thorny."

"Thank you. You mean you have other admirers, too?"

"Yes. I mean, a couple of the boys are asking for dates some, and I enjoy going out with them. But there's nothing serious to either of them. I do not intend to get married again. What are your ideas on second marriage, Thorny?"

"What are yours?"

"Well, I just don't know. I was terribly in love with Larry Davis. But it doesn't hurt to think about it now, and in fact I almost never think about it. Time does change things an awful lot. I was very young, then."

Sara Sue spoke as if she were a matron in her late fifties now. She was gazing seriously at her dog, Nightmare, who was stretched on the rug near her.

"But I am sure I could never be in love like that again. Or maybe I could. I don't know."

Dr. Holgate was watching her closely.

"I think," said he, "that you deserve a lot of credit, for adjusting yourself as you have."

"Well, I just couldn't sit down and mope all my life."

"To be sure. And you doubtless enjoy the business end of your Cottage Plan."

"There's not much. Cleo is a good cook. She's loyal to me. Calculus does the heavy work—he's Cleo's husband, you know. Mother helps a great deal when she's here. For my part, I enjoy the constant house-party atmosphere."

"That's because you are young, isn't it?"

"I guess so. I hadn't given it any th—"

All at once Sara Sue Davis stopped.

She had been lifting a persimmon to her lips, but she held it now mid-way and stared at Dr. Thornton Holgate as if in consternation.

"Thor-ny Hol-gate!" she suddenly exclaimed. "I just hate you!"

There had been a twinkle in his eye. Now he burst into real laughter. He laughed more heartily, more naturally, than she had ever heard him before.

"You were doing it on purpose!" she exclaimed. "Weren't you? . . . Weren't you? . . . Weren't you just trying to make me talk about myself?"

"But you commanded me to!" he blushed, partly at his temerity, partly in gladness at the success of his coup. "Did you not say I should lead other persons into talking of themselves? I knew your instructions to be sound. So I set in to apply them. And I am quite sure they worked admirably!"

He was as happy as if he had killed a bear. He had overcome shyness for one brief quarter hour. Now, if he could only master himself like that, get that same confident control of himself, when in the presence of Miss Pomeroy—

He discussed that yearning with Sara Sue.

"You can!" she assured him. "You are a brilliant pupil, Thorny. You took the lesson right out of my hands. But after all, you DO have a Ph.D degree. Weren't you Phi Beta Kappa, too?"

He nodded.

"I thought I had seen your key. Well, you have the brains, of course. You had just gotten acquainted with me, enough to feel at ease. It's proof of what you can do. I am so happy for you!" She smiled admiringly at him.

Dr. Holgate left her cottage in a positive glow.

He even whistled some as he walked across Main boulevard and back onto the campus. But there he encountered a fellow professor, and paused for a chat. Before he realized it he was his old self again. Stilted. Formal. Scholarly.

The other man happened to be old Pettigrew, of biology, who smelled eternally of dead animal matter anyway, and who was a social boor of 60-odd years. People said he was smart in his science, but he was uncouth otherwise. He exerted a counter-influence on Holgate, after the delightful session with Sara Sue.

Holgate moved on, feeling older. It occurred to him that he had perphaps made a fool of himself in the Davis cottage. Goodness, he couldn't afford to drift off in frothy details concerning women; he had cut himself out a scholastic career!

And yet, there was Miss Pomeroy. She was most powerful. Her trim, well-dressed figure, her dark hair and colorful features were etched deeply in Dr. Holgate's consciousness. He could not slough that off; in fact he did not want to.

He ambled on back toward the administration building, a somewhat badly confused young faculty man.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, December 7.

A very lively day is presaged by the ruling planetary configurations The energies are keyed to hard work, important objectives and a worthy attention to details and constructive effort. This may incite some rather surprising situations, in which sudden moves or changes may be brought about by the intervention of elders, superiors, or those willing to assist in developing meritorious projects.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very active year in which really sound and practical plans and objectives may enlist the support of elders, superiors, or other influential personages. A wise attention to details and a disposition to make needed revisions or changes of plans and methods of procedure will be of benefit. Otherwise, there may be friction.

A child born on this day, talented in unusual ways, with ability for details, may be practical and constructive, thus winning the support of important persons or elders.

Millbrook Is Given Waiting Room Through F. C. Scott's Generosity

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 6. - Last week end there was opened to the public at Millbrook, through the generosity of Mr. F. C. Scott, public-spirited citizen and philanthropist, a well-furnished, well-heated and lighted, community waiting-room, with an up-to-date radio; writing-desk with special light and seat; long mirror; four solid oak tables, with chairs about each, and on which are placed the leading daily papers, and magazines.

The building has been erected on the east side of the new quarters of the local telephone exchange, and has a frontage of twenty-one feet, with a length of sixty. At the rear of the large waiting-room are two lavatories.

The rooms will be open from 8 a. m. until 10 p. m. daily, and may be used by the general public as a place of waiting, or for meeting friends. Hardwood floors with light walls, and two large windows, add to the attractiveness of the waiting-room, which may be secured by various organizations of the village, or countryside, for holding their meetings, or possibly for teas, sales, and similar gatherings.

Printed signs on the walls give notice that children must be accompanied by their parents, that smoking will not be allowed, and other reasonable and necessary restrictions. It is hoped that there will be no abuse of Mr. Scott's kindly generosity in providing the community with much-needed conveniences such as this fine building supplies.

New Picnic Ground

Included in Mr. Scott's benefactions to the village are the three fully-equipped shuffle board courts, which provided much healthy pleasure last summer; and back of these the children's playground, with swings, slides, teeters, etc. Next season Mr. Scott intends further to extend the list of his contributions to civic betterment by having a rustic bridge built over the small stream back of the playground, and furnish this extra land with picnic tables and benches, so that any organization, church, or Sunday School, may hold its garden-parties, or other outings, at this central and convenient location.

The land for this last-named project has already been purchased, and the work will go ahead as soon as suitable season and weather arrive.

Mr. Scott is the local undertaker and furniture dealer, and has been a citizen of Millbrook but little more than eight years. He has done much to help the Sunday Schools of the district, at considerable expense; and for several Christmases played 'Santa Clause' to any needy family in the village and within a definite radius of miles, providing, at his personal expense, new clothing, toys, and other seasonable supplies, recommendation by the local clergy of the actual condition of the families concerned being the only credential required.

The new community waiting-room, with the adjoining lavatories, are the first of their kind in the province of Ontario in a village of less than one thousand population.

Know Do's and Don'ts for Fun on Skis

Have a good time your first day on skis. Be sure of what to do—and what not to do—at those points where most novices go wrong.

Look over the ground before you begin. Keep to gentle slopes—don't start on steep trails.

Urge heels inward when you glide on the level. To toe-in makes your skis cross each other.

Keep the knees bent on downhill runs. To bend only from the waist prevents the flexibility necessary for smooth skiing.

Lean away from the slope when you traverse (go across) a hill. To lean toward the slope makes you side-slip.

Crouch low, drop slowly sideways when you can't resist a tumble. Don't sit down abruptly.

Motor Boats Heard At Chemong; Skaters Are Out At Curve Lake

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ENNISMORE, Dec. 6—As if to make the very fine weather seem almost more spring-like, the sound of motor boats could be heard on Chemong Lake on Sunday in the vicinity of the floating bridge. But not so at Curve Lake; there the click of steel sounded as skaters enjoyed the first ice of the season.

The regular meeting of the Young People's Club of St. Martin's Parish was held in the parish hall on Wednesday evening.

These meetings afford very profitable as well as enjoyable evenings for those atetnding. They feature a question box which provides discussion of matters of faith which seems a very necessary item for the youth of today in order to cope with general world conditions. Numerous games provide very wholesome recreation for a portion of the evening.

This club, one of the most active of its nature in Peterborough diocese, had as its representative at a recent convention held in Ottawa, the secretary, M. J. Cavanagh, teacher in St. Ann's Separate school.

Officers Elected

The Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary is at present under organization in St. Martin's Parish. At a meeting of the young ladies the following officers were elected:

Prefect, Frances Hennessey; first prefect, Julia Marie Hickson; second prefect, Nell Conway; secretary, Rose Lessard; treasurer, Marie Sullivan.

The reception of members into the society will take place on December 8, the Feast of the Immaculate Conception.

The Misses Mary, Eleanor and Regina Shannon, all of Buffalo, spent a few days last week at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Shannon.

Many here who knew the late Percy Udy of Bridgenorth as an upright and congenial business man, learned with regret of his death during the past week. A number called at his late residence to offer sympathy to Mrs. Udy in her bereavement.

Mr. D. Flynn and family of Peterborough have taken up residence on the farm formerly owned by Mr. John Perdue.

Mr. Patrick Twomey, Detroit, who spent the summer here has returned to his home. Accompanying him to Detroit was Irvine Twomey, who will visit friends there.

Millbrook Vote Carries On Hydro Plant

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 6—The vote taken on Saturday, regarding the purchase of the local Hydro plant, was carried by over one hundred of a majority, the figures being: For the bylaw to purchase the plant, 128; against, 27. For the purchase of power from the Hydro Electric Commission of Ontario, 125; against, 23.

The property owners were out in good strength to vote on the question, and it is satisfactory to know that the results were so decisive on both questions on the ballot paper.

perty owners showing what the public thinks on this question."

"That was my idea," Alderman Dutton commented. "This was to be only a referendum giving the tenants a right to vote on it."

Alderman Bradburn said that "it looks as if we were afraid of the property owners" if all the municipal electors were permitted to vote on the market question.

"This is not the right time," said Alderman McIntyre who stated that he would second Alderman Bradburn's motion.

It remained for Mayor Hamilton to present the degree of opposition that suspended the bylaw indefinitely. "I'm opposed to having the vote taken at all," His Worship said. "I can see no good in it at the present time.

Every member of this council feels land should be purchased, but I am afraid the bylaw, would not carry. We are not giving the people enough information, nothing definite enough is set forth. Besides conditions generally are not favorable to the spending of any more money than we can help, and I think it would be wiser not to submit the bylaw than have it defeated and this question would be set back for the next two years or more.

Alderman Gordon said "we proposed to ask the City Trust for the money," and then the vote was taken, the market project was relegated somewhere into the discard for the time being and deliberations of the last two years halted at an impasse the extent of which was indicated by the majority of 7-2.

Restaurant Bylaw

Three other bylaws were halted in their second reading last night, an indication that the council in its final meeting of the year was not disposed to any precipitate or snap decision.

One of them embodied an amendment to the Transient Traders bylaw, making it applicable to residents of the city going into business, and requiring of them that they pay $250 as guarantee of their intention of continuing in that business.

Alderman Glover opposed that change, contending that the bylaw was originally aimed at "fly by night" traders, who opened a store for a short time and dumped goods to the detriment of established merchants. He said it was not fair to persons who had lived for years in Peterborough and who wished to go into business. If they had to pay the $250 in addition to other charges it would mean the imposing of conditions that would be a serious handicap in some cases. On the other hand the bylaw could not set up discriminatory conditions. Alderman Glover moved, seconded by Alderman Dutton, that the bylaw be sent back to the finance committee. This motion was unanimously adopted.

New Theatre Bylaw

Another bylaw leasing to Trio Theatres Limited for twenty-one years the land occupied by the New Centre Theatre, formerly the Royal Theatre, was held up for more information from the City Trust Commission.

"We want the new theatre to open, but we also want some more details about the lease," Alderman Gordon said.

Alderman Glover said the old lease had still about one year and a half before it expired. It was acquired by the Stratton estate when they took the theatre over from M. Pappas.

A letter from Arthur Stevenson, secretary of the City Trust Commission, informed the council that the old lease was being cancelled and a new one was to be granted for twenty-one years at the same rental, the only change being a provision to prevent the building remaining vacant beyond a reasonable time.

The bylaw fixed a rental at $800 a year together with taxes and other chargeable rates.

"And such further terms as may be agreed upon," Alderman Gordon pointed out. "I think the council should know definitely what those other terms are likely to be."

Alderman Glover said he understood that if the property was vacant for two years the rent would be increased from $800 to $1,200. In opening a theatre in Peterborough the company naturally sought a lease for a period that would warrant their investment of $40,000.

"We are anxious for them to open," Alderman Gordon said. "We don't want the theatre closed, but I think we should ask the Commission for more details about the lease. The Mayor may have to call a special meeting some time this month, and the bylaw could be reported then for further consideration."

Alderman Gordon's motion was seconded by Alderman Stocker, and carried without dissent.

Restaurant Bylaw

At the request of a deputation headed by Gordon Powell, the so-called victualling house bylaw, a measure that has been giving the council considerable difficulty, was referred back to the Legal Committee. Alderman Gordon said the committee would meet Thursday night after the Relief Committee had completed its work.

Alderman Gordon said he agreed with the deputation that the hours during which "eating houses" other than restaurants could remain open should be extended, especially during the season from May 1 to the end of September.

Mr. Powell was accompanied by Percy Harrison, Herb Hill and Gordon Hopcroft, who said they represented fourteen citizens in the same business.

The bylaw declared that refreshment booths could not be open after 12 p.m. any night during the week except Sundays when they were required to close at 11 p.m., opening at 10 a.m. And a refreshment booth was broadly defined as a place where food or soft drinks were served to be eaten on the premises, such places not having the equipment of restaurants. This equipment included seating accommodation for 12 persons and also sanitary conveniences for the public.

Mr. Powell said these restrictions would curtail his revenue 45 per cent and would seriously reduce his business. According to the Public Health Act a restaurant had to be equipped with washrooms for men and women, but this clause had not been strictly enforced. The bylaw further required seatin gaccommodation for twelve persons, and such other equipment as the Medical Officer of Health might order.

"It seems that this law is being dragged forth to affect us on Sundays and after midnight on the other days during the week," Mr. Powell said. "How can it be unsanitary for us to sell after midnight without toilets, and yet we can sell all during the week days also without toilets. So, it is not a sanitary question at all."

Mr. Powell explained that he derived a substantial part of his business after midnight, and especially during the months of the tourist season when there was also considerable trade early Sunday mornings.

Alderman Dutton said the council and the Board of Health were giving more and more attention to regulations applying to food bought by the public, and he believed other changes would develop from time to time simply as safeguards to public health. The question of milk supply was only one that had given the council a great deal of thought with amendments to the law that are now in effect.

Mr. Hill, proprietor of Dinty's Inn said he realized that he could not be too careful in the handling of food. Midnight closing during the period of daylight saving would cause a loss to him of a lot of business from farmers returning home at their time of 11.30 when in the city it was 12.30 at night.

"Don't let us put them out of business right away," Alderman Glover counselled, suggesting that hours mentioned in the bylaw might be reconsidered. "These refreshment places could stay open all the time if they put in sanitary conveniences and the required seating accommodation."

Mr. Harrison requested that "we be permitted to stay open from 8 a.m. until 12.30 a.m. on Sundays from May 1 to the end of September, and on week nights at least until 1 a.m." He said he was closing now around 9.30 p.m. because there was not so much business as during the summer.

Mr. Powell said he found it profitable to remain open at Bethune and Charlotte streets until 2 a.m. because of the people going home late at night. He said there had never been any complaint about the conduct of his refreshment place, no drinking or any objectionable condition, and he added that some of the restaurants could not make that claim.

As a result of these and other arguments arising out of the discussion it was decided to ask the Legal Committe to go over the bylaw again.

Marmora, Lake Return 1938 Council

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Dec. 6.—Last year's Marmora and Lake Township Council were returned to office on Monday following what was possibly the heaviest polling in the history of the township.

John A. Bell, retiring reeve was opposed by Lindsay E. Neal who until his defeat by Mr. Bell two years ago had held the reeveship for a number of years. Victory was assured last year's reeve as the first three polls to be heard from—Polls 2, 3 and 4 register in his favor. Mr. Neal however led in poll 1 Marmora Town Hall and Poll 6 Dave Vansickle's residence.

W. J. Pack again headed the councillors, polling the record number of 415 votes. Irwin McCoy who headed the three defeated candidates, received strongest support at No. 1 poll.

Results are appended according to polls and in the order in which the candidates finished:

piano conducted an enjoyable singsong. Members of the executive, along with J. J. Duffus, M.P., and Alex Elliott, M.L.A., occupied seats on the platform.

After the singing of "O Canada," President Quinn in his opening address thanked the members of the executive for their fine co-operation and assistance during the year. There had been a great deal of organization work accomplished; city wards having been taken care of during the winter while in the summer months practically every polling sub-division in the rural parts of the riding had been organized.

"Our organization is in perfect order and ready for any eventuality," said the chairman.

After community singing had been enjoyed Reeve Charles Tanner, chairman of the Lakefield division, expressed his pleasure with the fine attendance, declaring that it showed that there must have been some purpose behind the efforts of the excutive and hoping that the same enthusiasm that had been shown during the year would be continued.

Mrs. Clarence Laing, of North Monaghan, contributed a most interesting and informative address on the career of Sir Wilfred Laurier, her tribute to that great Canadian being thoroughly appreciated.

"He is doing a fine work and I wish him Godspeed," said F. D. Kerr, K.C., in a graceful tribute to the Federal member, J. J. Duffus, of whom he said that the people of this community were learning more and more to appreciate the energy the activity and the zeal Mr. Duffus was putting into his duties at Ottawa. "We are proud," said Mr. Kerr to the member for West Peterborough, "not only of the speeches you have made on the floor of the House but upon the very favorable impression you have made upon the members of the Cabinet."

The speaker stressed particularly what Mr. Duffus had succeeded in having done in turning a "neglected asset"—the Little Lake—into a permanet beauty spot.

Speaking of the general situation Mr. Kerr said that Canada was passing through strenuous times and he pointed out the important strategic place this country occupied as a link in aviation. Because of that and its material resources it was a temptation to greedy nations and Mr. Kerr remarked when Premier Mackenzie King who was not a swash buckling militarist felt it necessary to take steps to preserve our heritage Canadians should look and listen. Canada could not be protected, he warned, by pious expressions of good will and friendship. "I look for great things from Mackenzie King," said the speaker "because of the great things he has done in the past."

Mr. Kerr concluded his address by paying a tribute to Alex Elliott, the member in the Ontario House. "We are pleased to know," he said, "that one of our boys has the goodwill of the powers-that-be in Toronto and has shown capacity in his duties."

Dr. E. M. Crough

Dr. E. M. Crough after declaring that his faith in Liberalism had been confirmed by the record of the Liberal party and the success of its national policy which he said had always meant more prosperity for the people of Canada, paid a warm tribute to Mr. Duffus for devoting, as he said, his entire time to the task of looking after the interest of his constituents.

Jacob Low, secretary of the Association, referred to the success the Liberal party had achieved in extending trade treaties and in developing Canada's trade. Referring to the work of the Association the speaker said that he felt that a political association should not be a mere election machine but should have a social angle, and he reviewed what had been accomplished along that line, stating that much progress had been made in organization and enthusiasm had been the rule everywhere.

At this point President Quinn vacated the chair and Reeve Charles Tanner presided over the meeting for the election of officers, and after that important business had been completed, Thomas Doughty, Dr. E. M. Crough, Dr. Ralph Honey and Clarence Laing spoke briefly in voicing their appreciation of the honor that had been conferred upon them.

No Election Next Year

After expressing appreciation of the fine attendance, congratulating the officers upon their election, and welcoming the new members of the executive, J. J. Duffus, M.P., said the officers would find plenty of work to do.

"I do not mean by that," he said, "there is going to be, as one speaker has said, an election next year. I don't know whether there will be or not. However, the Liberal party was elected in 1935 by the largest majority in the history of the country and I am inclined to believe that unless there is something unforeseen develops, the government will not appeal to the country until 1940."

Mr. Duffus pointed out these were dangerous times to make statements from public platforms. A person might say something today and before a month was passed his statements might look ridiculous because of the rapidly changing conditions.

The speaker reviewed some of the more recent political history in Canada pointing out that while under Liberal rule between 1925 and 1930 Canada had enjoyed a period of great trade expansion with decreased public debt and reduced taxation, the reverse had been th situation during the next five years under Opposition control. When the Liberal party came back into office in 1935 they found 20,000 young Canadians incarcerated in semi-military relief camps and one of the first acts had been to close up those camps.

Liberal Achievements

Relating some of the achievements of the government of the day Mr. Duffus stressed what had been done by trade treaties with the United States and trade agencies in other countries to increase Canada's export trade, as a result of which he said that Canada had made more progress since the depression than any other country in similar circumstances. The youth training project of the government, the speaker said, had been taken advantage of by 56,000 Canadian young people.

One of the most important achievements Mr. Duffus said had been the government's housing program, as a result of which the building trades had been started to work again. The speaker quoted figures he had obtained yesterday as to the results of this policy in Peterborough. These showed that while building permits here during the first eleven months last year amounted to only $196,751, the total for the same period this year had jumped to $293,069. The number of residences built here to the end of November a year ago was 32 for a total value of $79,950 as against 53 for a total value of $148,450 to the end of November this year.

The speaker sketched some of the outstanding members of the Cabinet, commencing with Premier Mackenzie King whom he described as one of the foremost statesmen in the British Empire and one whose judgment had been sound in every crisis that had arisen. Hon. Chas. Dunning was recognized as one of Canada's greatest financiers, Hon. Ernest Lapointe's statesmanship and leadership were stressed as were the achievements of Hon. Norman Rogers, as minister of labor, Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of transport, Hon. W. D. Euler, minister of trade and commerce and Hon. T. A. Crerar, Minister of the interior and resources and immigration.

In conclusion Mr. Duffus said that he felt that a member of parliament had nothing to offer but service and he stated that since October, 1935, he had given practically every day of his time to public business. Some things had been accomplished, others were on the way and he hoped that eventually every justifiable thing the riding was entitled to would be secured.

As for the next election Mr. Duffus said that if there was any one who could give better service, or put it another way, poll more votes than him, that man should be the nominee at the convention. "The Liberal party is greater than any one man," he said in conclusion.

It was announced by Chairman Quinn that Alex Elliott, M.L.A., who had been present earlier in the meeting, was to have spoken but had to leave because of another engagement.

Before the meeting adjourned Mr. Duffus made the announcement that the annual Liberal workers at home would be held in the Canadian Legion Hall on the evening of Friday, January 6, and that all Liberal workers were invited.

Ministers Urge Tolerance Among Peoples

The Peterborough Ministerial Association on Monday placed its strength behind that of the Peterborough Presbytery of the United church, and voiced its condemnation of the treatment Jews are receiving in Europe.

The secretary introduced a resolution from the United church presbytery respecting the plight of the Jews in Germany and after some discussion the following motion was passed, "The association views with alarm the regrettable situation in Europe where privation and suffering have been visited upon men, women and children as a consequence of racial prejudice and religious intolerance in circumstances in which they have been prevented from defending themselves. We, therefore, would make a plea for tolerance, and would express our sympathy with all suffering such cruel persecution." The executive members were appointed as a committee to follow up this resolution according to their judgment.

The association met in Y.M.C.A., under the chairmanship of Rev. M. C. Parr, with Rev. F. W. Craik as secretary. The following ministers were present, Revs. C. C. Robinson, J. R. Trumpour, Dr. A. T. Barr, C. L. Brown, Canon J. D. Paterson, Major Neil Warrander, F. H. Floyd, V. E. R. Zufelt, Dr. E. W. Young, R. T. F. Brain, and J. H. Sutcliffe. Revs. J. R. Trumpour of Cavan and F. H. Floyd of St. George's church were heartily welcomed on their first appearance at the meeting.

The matter of provision for needy families at Christmas was introduced by Major Warrander, and it was decided to co-operate with the relief authorities by every means possible, and to consult them regarding persons who come to ministers asking for help.

The speaker for the meeting was Rev. J. Thornton Meek of Uxbridge who was introduced by Dr. A. T. Barr as one of the greatest artists of Canada. Mr. Meek spoke on the work of The Holy Spirit. Whitsuntide, he said, stands for Pentecost, the birthday of the Christian church. It was on that occasion that the church became a corporate body. Jesus left the disciples, but the Holy Spirit came to carry on His work. It must be remembered that He came to a prepared people; the early Christians had been drawn together by a common desire. The wind is a symbol of gentleness and of strength. The giant trees, and the mighty ships are broken up by the tempest. The spirit of God brings power to the soul of man and to the church.

He came as fire bringing light, heat, and purification, three basic needs of humanity. The speaker discussed the mystery of The Holy Trinity. All illustrations, he said, are futile, but they are the only things we have to help us in grasping this great truth, which is so clearly outlined in the New Testament.

Christians should aim at being filled with the Spirit, should seek this gift earnestly, and God would impart it. The greatest power on earth is spiritual power, and it is often unsought. We grieve the Spirit in many ways, and lose that influence which is able to make our souls strong.

Dr. E. W. Young and Rev. R. T. Brain thanked the speaker for his illuminating address. Arrangements were made for the Week of Prayer services, to begin on Monday, January 2, 1939.

Firemen Are Still In Need Of Toys

Firemen are still keeping their fingers crossed, hoping that no fires will call them away from their work as Santa Claus' helpers. Well into their work at the present time, they report that toys are coming in quite well since the Examiner gave notice of a shortage a couple of weeks ago. All are firm believers in the power of advertising now.

During the past month fire loss reached a total of only $170, according to Fire Chief George Gimblett. A barn fire and a small outbreak in a grocery store were chief contributors to that figure. There has not been a fire reported to the department in a week, outside of chimney fires, Chief Gimblett said. With such breaks firemen are progressing rapidly with repair of toys for the city's underprivileged children, are hoping for a continuance of their good fortune. But so active have they been that the need for toys is again being felt despite the fact that they are coming in quite regularly. Any additional toys citizens could provide would be greatly appreciated, and firemen will call for them if they are given the address. Just call "24—no fire."

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY pounds of pure white honey were removed from a dead cedar tree, when Frank Walsh, Asphoded township farmer cut the tree down Saturday. Mr. Walsh, in company with Constable W. Wellman and George Lynch of Hastings made the discovery in a swamp near his own residence.

The tree is said to be more than 110 years old according to the rings counted on a cross section of it and is over three feet in diameter at the butt.

Mr. Walsh, who had more than enough honey for a winter's supply, gave Mr. Wellman 25 pounds and George Lynch brought a cross-section of the tree containing a supply to the village where it was on exhibition yesterday.

Turkey Thieves Are Busy In District

Turkey thieves have been operating in several sections of Central Ontario recently and last week Provincial Constable Adair of Lindsay was here endeavoring to trace a number of birds that had been stolen in his district.

Monday night the thieves struck closer to home when eighteen fine turkeys were stolen from Mrs. Will Fairbairn, who lives on the Lakefield-Young's Point road near the House of Refuge. The birds were taken from a barn on the premises and the tire marks of an automobile could be seen, leading from the barn, across a field to the road. Constable Wallace Hendren of Lakefield and Provincial Constable David Silvester were notified of the theft and the services of the Peterborough police were also called in in an endeavor to locate a car that had been seen near the Fairbairn property Monday night.

City Council Passes Highway Resolution

Assumption as a provincial highway of the road from Port Perry west to Yonge stret at Schomberg, completion of the Peterboro-Port Perry link, and the undertaking as a three year program the finishing of eastern Ontario highway work including the paving of No. 7 from Peterboro to Perth, were requested of the Ontario Department of Highways in a resolution by Alderman Dutton, seconded by Alderman Glover, passed by the city council Monday night.

W. M. Bowe sof Port Perry, one of the most active promoters of the Ottawa to Sarnia highway, briefly explained the extent and importance of the work that remains to be done to equip both eastern and western Ontario with this trans-provincial artery. Similar resolutions have been passed by town sand cities all along the route, and Mr. Bowe said he was proceeding easterly on the same mission, his final appeal for support to be submitted to the Montreal Board of Trade.

21 Years Since Explosion Rocked Halifax

Twenty-one years ago today at 9.15 in the morning the greatest disaster in the history of Canada occurred at Halifax when a munitions ship carrying 4,000 tons of T.N.T. and much benzine was rammed by a Belgian relief ship and exploded killing about 1,600 persons, maiming twice that number, more than two hundred of whom will be blind for life. Property damage was set at twenty-five millions of dollars.

Several Peterborough people at that time in Halifax or on board ships in the harbor had narrow escapes, among them being Constable Jack Naples now of the city police who was on the Niobe, a light cruiser being used as a training ship, and docked in the harbor. The ship was within 300 yards of the munitions ship when it exploded, but as far as Constable Naples can recall none of the sailors on the Niobe were killed. One sailor named Bradley from this city had several ribs smashed.

The Ships Collided

The Belgian relief ship Imo, a steel vessel was outward bound with 1,000 tons of wheat and the French ship, Monte Blanc, carrying 4,000 tons of T.N.T., one of the most powerful explosives known and a large quantity of benzine was coming up the harbor. In some manner the ships got their signals mixed and the Belgian ship rammed the munitions boat. The latter immediately caught fire and the Belgian ship backed away and ran aground, the crew escaping. The crew of the Monte Blanc realizing that an explosion was inevitable manned the boats and rowed frantically to shore. Twenty minutes later there was a slight explosion then a terrific blast that did the damage. Only one of the crew of the Monte Blanc was killed.

Naples had been standing on the deck of Niobe talking to a fellow-sailor named North from Belleville and was watching the blazing ship for a few minutes then went below to the second deck. He had just stepped away from a port hole when the explosion took place. He was thrown against the wall and received bruises and cuts as wreckage fell on him. The blast caused a tidal wave 20 feet high to roll away from shore leaving the training ship almost high and dry, then when the water rolled back, the crew were hurled in every direction as the ship righted itself, many being washed or thrown overboard.

Almost the entire north section of Halifax was flattened, the roof was lifted from the north station, windows were broken in the Learmont Hotel at Truro, 62 miles away, the explosion was heard at sea more than a hundred miles distant, 500 houses were destroyed, more than 200 children were killed in one school, and the streets were actually littered with corpses. Final records revealed the names of many who were never recovered. The total number killed was set at 1,600 persons. All troops including the sailors on board the Niobe were immediately ordered to emergency rescue work and Red Cross duty. About one fifth of the city was in flames within two hours and pitiful scenes of tragedy and horror met their eyes.

Among the local men who wrote home about the disaster were W. Bennett and Gunner A. H. Lonergan, both of whom were unhurt and took part in the rescue work. Kenneth Mackenzie, now headmaster at the Grove School Lakefield was among the injured.

A news despatch from the stricken city which appeared in the Examiner on December 10th, 1917, read as follows: "Halifax today is a place of hospitals, of morgues, of bitter cold and blackened wreckage."

Rescue work and rehabilitation was made more difficult and the distress was increased by a raging blizzard which swept Halifax district a few days after the explosion and the temperature dropped to fifteen below zero.

W. L. Ferguson of the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Company could still vividly hear the reverberations of the Halifax harbor explosion of December 6, 1917, on the twenty-first anniversary today of the disaster that took more than 1,600 lives, left 10,000 persons homeless and wrecked property to the approximate extent of $35,000,000.

"I was with the Dominion Textile Company, Limited," Mr. Ferguson recalled at the request of the Examiner. "The plant was up near the Exhibition Park. I remember very distinctly that I was opening the mail. At the first blast I thought the factory boiler had blown up, but with the second explosion that quickly followed the first a big plate glass window blew into the room in pieces. There wasn't a window left intact in the whole plant, the roof collapsed, and the whole place was in a great tangle. The first thing we did was to survey the plant to make sure all the employees were out. We found one man pinned to a machine in the spinning room and we had to jack up a section of the roof to release him. Several others were badly hurt. I remember one girl had the side of her face almost completely slashed by flying glass. The flesh was just hanging."

Elopes At 82

COLLINGSWOOD, N.J., Dec. 6 (A P). — "Why can't old people get married—like the young folks—without causing such excitement?" That was the plaint of Wilson B. Van Asdlen, 82, and his bride, 61-year-old Bertha F. Watkins to-day to friends offering congratulations because they eloped. They were married on Saturday in Elkton, Md.

60 Years Wed Some idea of the high regard in which this elderly couple is held throughout this district was evident on Monday when neighbors and friends crowded their home in Smith Township to pay their respects. They are Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Milburn, and they were married sixty years ago. Visitors had to go into the house almost in relays so many were calling.

Spelling Contest Awakens Interest

The spelling contest organized by the Kiwanis Club in the Collegiate on next Friday and Saturday nights should awaken keen interest amongst the citizens of the city. There will be humor in it, for if the interest flags at any moment members of the club may be invited to the platform and put through their paces at spelling. You may see foremost men in the city, ministers, doctors, lawyers or even merchants failing to spell correctly some words that the children in public school could manage successfully in their sleep. Please do not laugh at them, remember that if you howl with amusement you too may hear your name called, and be compelled to face the music.

The important side of the competition, however, will be the meeting between people from the rural districts and the city folk. Boys and girls are coming from such places as Bobcaygeon, Young's Point, Havelock, Apsley and Norwood and their parents and friends are coming to see them perform. We hope that the city people will turn out to welcome them, amongst these boys may be a future mayor of the city or better still prime minister of Canada.

The event will give us an opportunity of meeting the leading educationalists of the city, J. L. Pettit, Carl S. Brown, Fred Johnston, Leo Copp, who will be there in good form.

They will use red lights, and green lights, and we hope an opportunity will be given to them to spell some of the words that the young people miss. Probably there may be gaps in their knowledge, too. The proceeds will go to the work amongst underprivileged children.

Youth Is Being Held For Parole Officer

Thomas Graves, 20, was charged with vagrancy in police court this morning and at the request of the police was remanded by Magistrate Langley until Saturday, awaiting the instructions of the parole board.

The youth who is on parole arrived in this district last Wednesday, having been placed by the parole board with a farmer in the Indian River area. Apparently the arrangement was not satisfactory and Monday young Graves was turned over to the police by his employer and the vagrancy charge resulted.

It is expected a parole officer will be here on Saturday when the case is called.

Chief Gimblett reported last night 46 fire alarms in November, the loss $171.50, and inspections 390. FOR CHRISTMAS PRESENTS

Grants passed by the council Monday night included $25 each to the Children's Shelter and St. Vincent's Orphanage to buy Christmas cheer for their wards, $25 to the Peterborough Unemployed Workers' Association for the Christmas tree entertainment they hold for children, and $50 to the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion.

OPPOSE BY-LAW CHANGE.

A petition from William H. Buller and 135 other citizens urged the Council on Monday night not to alter the anti-noise by-law, and opposing the amendment suggested last week reverting to the old custom of placing on engineers the responsibility for sounding their whistles as warnings at crossings.

"THE KINSMEN" TONIGHT

The council accepted Monday night an invitation from Dr. J. J. Craig, president of the St. Paul's Men's Association to attend tonight the showing of the picture "The Kinsmen," telling the story of David Fife and his wheat. The pictures will be screened in the Sunday School room of St. Paul's church.

SECRETARY REMAINS

Although Jacob Low expressed a desire to be relieved of his duties as secretary of the Peterborough West Liberal Association at Monday night's annual meeting he was persuaded to reconsider his decision, the deciding factor probably being a graceful tribute from F. D. Kerr, K.C., who said that the Liberal party could make no finer gesture at the present time than to re-elect Mr. Low as its secretary.

WON FIRST PRIZE

Robert Armstrong of Cavan, one of this district's best wheat growers captured first prize at the Royal with his exhibit of registered white winter wheat.

FAVOR MONDAY HOLIDAYS

JUST ONE CONTEST

There was only one contest for the election of officers of the Peterborough West Liberal Association Monday night, and that was for the position of fourth vice-president. The nominees were Clarence Laing of North Monaghan and Wesley Leonard of Lakefield and the former won by four votes.

THE "SCENERY" WAS GRAND.

A main street lad relayed this little incident this morning in telling about the Sonja Henie show at the Arena Gardens in Toronto Monday night. His party of four spiked tickets for box seats down on the rail amid the refinements of evening dress that was decidedly de rigeur, and for all their sense of equality and democracy and that sort of off-handed commingly that goes rather well at such places as race tracks, they felt slightly de drop. One of them, not easily abashed by fine feathers called out "Yay tiger" at a comic duo of a clown and a girl who were really good. A C.G.E. companion, in the same spirit of kidding the spot, nudged his arm with the advice: "No, no, that won't do at all, Bravo is the correct word." Finally as they were going out a tall woman beautifully dressed, coiffured and so on nonchalantly remarked to a friend "That was the best performance I ever seen," and the C.G.E. lad said: "Relax, everybody, we're right in our own company."

Tory Convention Opens Thursday

With one exception it is expected that all Peterborough County delegates and alternate delegates will attend the Conservative Provincial convention in Toronto on Thursday and Friday of this week when a new Ontario leader will be chosen. The only possible absentee may be one of the alternate delegates, Mrs. Douglas Miller, Ashburnham, who is ill.

The convention opens at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon with a civic address of welcome by Mayor Ralph C. Day of Toronto, the appointment of a striking committee and addresses by Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, K.C.; Hon. Dr. John M. Robb, national organizer, and Hon. Earl Rowe, M.P.

On Friday morning, commencing at 9.30 o'clock, there will be the reports of committees, followed by the nomination of candidates for the leadership and a pledge by all nominees to abide by the choice of the convention. Then the candidates will address the convention.

Balloting will take place at the afternoon session and when it is concluded the new leader will deliver his first speech.

In the evening there will be a banquet in honor of the new Ontario leader and addresses will be given by him and by Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, the Federal leader. These addresses will, incidentally, be broadcast over CBL between 9 and 10 o'clock.

The banquet will wind up in a reception and dance.

Canada Packers Loading Trucks On Street Is Protested To Council By Local Lawyer

Those who are charged with the responsibility of defending the interests of the people "haven't what it takes" to fulfill their obligations to the public. Ozias de Laplante wrote in his second epistle to the Council Monday night, renewing his protest against the alleged practice of Canada Packers Limited in unduly occupying a section of George street in front of their factory.

Mr. Laplante says six trucks were backed up against the plant loading and unloading, their fronts reaching out to the west rail of the street car track. He says the company has "erected on the street" a platform four feet high and twenty feet long, that they dump refuse from the cannery into the river, and that they have beautifully sodded and bedded part of their George street frontage. He informed the Council he had "twice had close shaves" driving past the parked trucks, that he has heard many complaints against the company, "but no one else seems to care."

"I do care and would like to see this company do their loading on trucks on their own property. They have lots of it."

Mr. Laplante's letter was referred to committee without comment.

The Rambling REPORTERS

A CHAIRMAN'S REMARK.

At one stage in the proceedings at the annual meeting of the Peterborough West Liberal Association on Monday night, President Howard Quinn called upon Miss Dorothy Whatley and George Nicholls, who were in charge of the community singing, to have two lively numbers ready "to cheer up the meeting after the next speaker." And no one made a heartier contribution to the spontaneous outburst of laughter that followed the chairman's remark that the "next speaker," who happened to be Jacob Low, popular secretary of the Association.—C.

NOW A SECOND-HAND CAR

Wiseacres are refusing to buy tickets today on an automobile that is being drawn for sometime soon in a western Ontario centre, claiming that when they want a second-hand car they'll visit a dealer.

This particular automobile has been seen regularly on Peterborough streets since last summer and it is now beginning to show signs of wear. For instance, one prospective ticket buyer happened to get a look at the speedometer, found the car had been driven close to 16,000 miles. One fender is bent and two others have been welded. It has probably been driven all over the province in the ticket-selling campaign.—P.

Grey Owl Leaves $14,562 Estate

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Dec. 6—(CP).—Net estate of $14,562.05 left by Archie McNeil, widely known as the author and wild life lover, Grey Owl, will be divided between his wife, Yvonne, who is known as Silver Moon, and Grey Owl's daughter, Shirley Dawn.

Grey Owl bequeathed an indefinite amount to Anahareo, whom he described as "my one-time companion," to be allowed her according to her need, illness or distress as long as she lives apart from any man.

Grey Owl requested the Canadian Government to allow Jelly Roll, Rawhide and the other beaver that were his care and attention in Prince Albert National Park be allowed to live out their natural lives in peace in their present habitat and under no circumstances to be sold or parted.

Care For Anahareo

Grey Owl bequeathed an indefinite amount to Anahareo, whom he described as "my one-time companion," to be allowed her according to her need, illness or distress as long as she lives apart from any man. Anahareo was at one time the common-law wife of Grey Owl and mother of Shirley Dawn.

The executors were requested to consult from time to time with Olga Pavolva, Regina artist on the education and career of his daughter. Grey Owl praised the Regina artist as a practical woman of ability and artistic attainment. Her expense for consultations with Shirley Dawn were to be paid from the funds of the estate, he said.

The will executed Nov. 4, 1936, set out that up to $100 per month was to be set aside for the support and education of his daughter, Shirley Dawn, attending school in Prince Albert.

Grey Owl, having married soon after its execution, a codicil was added Dec. 31, 1936, providing half the estate should go to his wife, Yvonne or Silver Moon. He directed that the bequest to his daughter be reduced to give effect to this bequest. In the event of his wife bearing him children "which are alive at the time of my decease," Grey Owl directed that such children and Shirley Dawn shall share and share alike in the estate and that in such event the bequest to his daughter, Shirley Dawn, be further reduced to give effect to his provision.

Ennismore Native Riverside Mayor

(Special to The Examiner)

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 6—Dr. E. C. Young, native of Ennismore township, was elected mayor of suburban Riverside by a record vote Monday. Dr. Young, a Windsor dentist, polled 1,131 votes against 583 for Mayor George Scott. Dr. Young previously served six years on the Riverside Separate School Board and served as chairman during the past year.

He is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Young of Ennismore. His father was a former reeve of the township. Dr. Young's brother and sister reside in Peterborough and Ennismore township. He is an uncle of Dr. R. J. Young of Peterobrough.

City Trust Asks Right To Cut Annual Demand

After long and persistent divergence, the paths of the City Trust Commission and the Council finally met on Monday night on the common ground of agreement that the only legal way in which the Commission's surplus might be utilized to assist the ratepayers was in reduring the amount of their annual demand on the city treasury.

Some of the members, of course, will contend that they have adhered to that conviction all during the period the Council as a whole was being led off to Queen's Park in a frontal attack on the money bags guarded by V. Eastwod, G. A. Gillespie, and the other Commissioners in the interest of those persons who bought the city's debentures and must in the end get back the money they loaned.

A letter from the City Trust on Monday affirmed that "reluctantly" they had concluded they could not disburse part of their funds in the manner of grants suggested by the Council. "The only legal course possible would be to divert part of the surplus to the prepayment of debentures shortly to become due," the Commission wrote, thereby reducing their annual demand on the Council.

This and another suggestion is being submitted to the Ontario Municipal Board for their approval, the letter concluded.

Alderman Bradburn remarked that he had suggested early in the year asking the Commission to retire some of the City of Peterborough bonds they had bought, or otherwise to reduce the amount of their annual demand to meet sinking fund and interest payments. "Under the Municipal Act they have no power to make a refund to the city, but they might be able to reduce their annual requisition."

"If they could lessen their annual demand by $20,000 to $30,000," Alderman Dutton suggested, "the Council would have that much money for necessary work.

Other members suggested that some representations be made to the Municipal Board, but it was thought that the Council could not do any more in that direction than the Commission was proposing.

"All we can do is wait until we hear from them," Alderman Glover observed.

Alderman McCannan Given Appointment

Alderman H. J. McCannan has been appointed representative of the Peterborough district for the Sun Life Assurance Company to arrange for loans under the Dominion Housing Act, Sun Life Assurance Company. Their activities have been carried on in Western Canada on a broad scale, and as they have been gradually building up their organization they are now giving more attention to the eastern section of the country. Mr. McCannan has been engaged in the contracting and real estate business for thirty years, and from that experience is well equipped to discuss questions pertaining to both home loans and construction work with those who desire to acquire their own properties under the attractive terms of the Dominion Housing Act.

PETERBOROUGH CURLING CLUB HAS LARGEST ENTRY IN YEARS

38 Rinks Are Scheduled For Club Play

An extra large number of applications for curling this season forced the local Curling Club last night, to their fall meeting, to raise the number of rinks to 38 for this winter. It is the highest number of Peterborough rinks in a decade and speaks volumes for the interest in this ancient game and for the prospects of a successful season in 1938-39.

The Curling Club had high hopes this year of filling in 36 rinks, more than usual in recent years, but the drive put on this fall by the Membership committee exceeded all hopes and the new arrangement had to be made. Many of the new members are prominent local citizens, while a good percentage includes young men, an aim of the club for some years. Curling will begin as soon as there is ice. Herb Martin had a good bottom on the sheets until the recent mild spell put him back.

There was a large turnout of members last night in the club rooms on Charlotte street for the annual fall meeting to line-up rinks for the season. Late applicants held the meeting up for a time, but all was finally arranged. President Jim Richmond gave a short address welcoming the curlers for another big season and pointing out what repairs and work had been done on the arena. He expressed the sorrow of the club at the loss last year of two members, Tommy McDonald and George Robertson, and added that there were so many new members that two extra rinks would be required to avoid a waiting list.

Reports Read.

Secretary Harry Foote read the minutes of the last meeting. R. P. Best gave a report on the O.C.A. annual meeting. Alex Kay's report on the Junior Curling Club was read and Mr. Kay was re-appointed to look after formation of this valuable part of the club. The new members were voted in before the formation of rinks was undertaken for the 1938-39 season.

The re-appointed skips were: R. L. Dobbin, J. M. Lowes, A. W. Pratten, L. I. Hamley, E. R. Shirley, G. W. Hall, W. E. Taylor, D. W. Harvey, R. D. Bacon, J. J Howden, V. R. Currie, N. H. Hamley, G. D. Carlisle, A. C. Kay, G. F. Cairns, J H. Sedgewick, Dr. J. C. Green, C. B. Westbrooke, G. W. Green, R. P. Best, T. F. McArthur, W. M. Cruthers, G. S. Matthews, H. Clegg, W. J. Oke, R. F. Downey, J. W. Richmond, P. B. Scott and W. E Metcalfe.

New skips named included: Max Comstock, J. E. Thomas, J. W. Mayneord, Jack McWilliams, T. H. Holyman, Geo. A. Robertson, J. W. McDermid, T. A. McKay and W. Widdess, the last two being the extra skips appointed when the new membership demanded two added rinks. The skips appoint the vice-skips, while the seconds and leads are drawn for each season.

Ski Club Drive Adding Members

The Peterborough Ski Club has set its membership drive goal at 250 members by next Saturday. The drive was quite successful during the past week and keen competiton is developing between the teams signing up new skiers before the end of this week. To add zest to the contest, the Peterborough Canoe Co. and the Playmor Sports store have put up prizes for the lady and the man leading the "signer-uppers" at the finish.

One of the popular privileges inducing new members into the club is the free instructon class on Tuesday and Thursday evenings all winter. Instructor Jack Holland, a topnotch skier himself, turned out many improved ski artists last season and is anxiously awaiting snow to start again. And members also have the use of the club properties at Nassau and Bethany, the cabin and jump at the former having been improved and floodlighting is planned. The Bethany district has been developed recently and is ready for a snowfall—it is practically perfect for all types of skiing. The Canadian Ski Association put its stamp of approval on this place by naming Peterborough the place for the provincial championships in February.

Hartnett Happy

Smiling Gabby Hartnett, catcher and manager of Chicago Cubs, will be able to wea rthat smile for another year. Owner Phil Wrigley of the National League pennant winners announced that "Leo the Leon" had been signed for the 1939 season at an increased salary. Gabby who will be doing the Cub catching the 18th year, took over the managerial reins from Charley Grimm last July and steered the club to the pennant. He is still forgetting the world series.

With The Boy Scouts

St. Andrew's Cub pack is steadily advancing as will be seen in the results of tests passed. Bobby Murray, Tommy Tynedale, Ken Nicholls, Jack Braund, Phil Monkman and Bruce Finnie passed athletics' tests. Jim Airth, David Johnson and Douglas Head passed ball throwing and athletes. Douglas Morrison was presented with his first year service star, while Clifford Smith was awarded his second year star.

The assistant scout master took a step further in scouting, when he was invested at a ceremony at the last meeting.

Scout Jack Ridyard was also taken into the great brotherhood at a like ceremony. We wish Scouter Bigelow and Scout Ridyard the best of scouting. Assistant Commissioner E. Wolfe was present for the occasion. In the patrol competition the Beavers are still pulling ahead.

Friday night saw signalling tests, in which Jim Brown, Don Metherill and Jim Hooper were successful.

On Saturday five members of the troop took in a hike out east of Peterborough.

Only two-thirds of the boys turned up at the All Saints' troop meeting, and after absence of leave was given to see the Santa Claus parade ten boys were left to enjoy an evening of games. Next week the Bulldog patrol will be duty patrol.

The Sacred Heart cub pack held its third birthday party, at which about 125 cubs, officials, mothers, dads, and visitors, enjoyed a good program.

Mr. W. J. Grady of the group committee acted as chairman for the occasion. Rev. Father O'Brien gave a short talk, stressing importance of scouts and cubs in the life of the church.

District Commissioner J. T. Hornsby gave praise to the pack in the progress it had made during the three years of life.

Musical numbers were given by the following: Violin solo, Cub George Clarke; Cub song by the Cub choir; Selections with toy band; Don Corrin, Bernard Rose and Don De Noble with their melody band filled up the program with music and song.

Two of the original boys who have been with the pack since its inauguration were presented with their 3-year service stars. They were Frank Lucarno and Jim Daley. Jim was also presented with the artist's and swimmer's badges, making five badges held by him.

A.D.C. Grant presented J. O'Dette and Lionel Neary with their two-year service stars, and Ron Gilmour, John Crowley, Jack Fontaine and Anthony Giardiano with 1st year service stars.

Rev. Father Maloney, A.D.C. Wolfe, and Troop Committeemen Messrs. Bogue and Demars were present.

The place was beautifully decorated and laid out. Refreshments were served and thanks went to Mesdames J. Grady, Coss, LeBarr, Drum, Gilmour, F. Lucano, R. Locano, Fontaine, Chenier and Miss Francis Leary.

All scout masters, rovers and members of the local association are requested to reserve next Monday night when it is expected that the rover council with the combined efforts of the rover crews will put on their annual banquet.

This Thursday night will be the monthly meeting of the scouters' club and Christmas party. Every officer and assistant officer is requested to be on hand, and to bring along a gift to the value of not more than 10 cents, to be wrapped, just as a nice Christmas gift should be.

We also want one car to pick up the necessary cooking utensils. So please phone me at 3067 for arrangements.—The Skipper.

Straight-Heat Victories Feature Races

TORONTO, Dec. 6.—Straight heat victories seem to be the "thing" in harness racing circles at Dufferin Park.

Saturday it was Lastic Grattan who performed the feat, while Monday Little Saratoga's patrons watched Sandy Signal and Al Grattan pick up where they left off Saturday and win their respective events in straight fashion.

Close Call For Driver

A pair of bad spills marred yesterday's racing. In the third heat of the first race, Jimmy Grattan went down halfway through the home stretch and Driver Wellwood was hurled from his perch. Berry Direct couldn't evade colliding, piling into the broken sulky. Driver Wellwood was extricated from the bottom of the heap. He was badly shaken up, but was able to get up after a few minutes and walk off the track without assistance.

The other spill occurred in the fourth heat of the first race. This time Bertha Lee, Florence Powell and Baron Rothschild tangled and spilled and none was able to finish the heat.

Sandy Signal tucked away a pair of triumphs in the two heats of the fifth race Saturday, and yesterday he paced home in front in the third heat to clinch the affair. With Sandy Signal in the barn, Colonel Tom proved to be the best of the rest and won the final heat.

All Grattan had a win to his credit when he started yesterday's racing, having won the only heat of the second event raced Saturday. And under owner-driver Hillcock's astute handing he had little difficulty chalking up two more victories. With All Grattan ineligible, Miss Peter Grattan came home in front in the concluding heat.

Reta Bars, winner of two consecutive heats on Saturday, failed to display the same form yesterday and it was Joe Patch, first home in the third heat, who repeated in the final heat yesterday.

A merry old scramble ensued for the honors in the first race. One heat was finished Saturday, with Idol Princewood picked up in the same manner, won the second heat handily, but in the remaining pair of heats Cap Grattan and Charlotte's Boy got down in front.

Blue Bombers Go Easy "On The Water," Bring 'Peg Brand

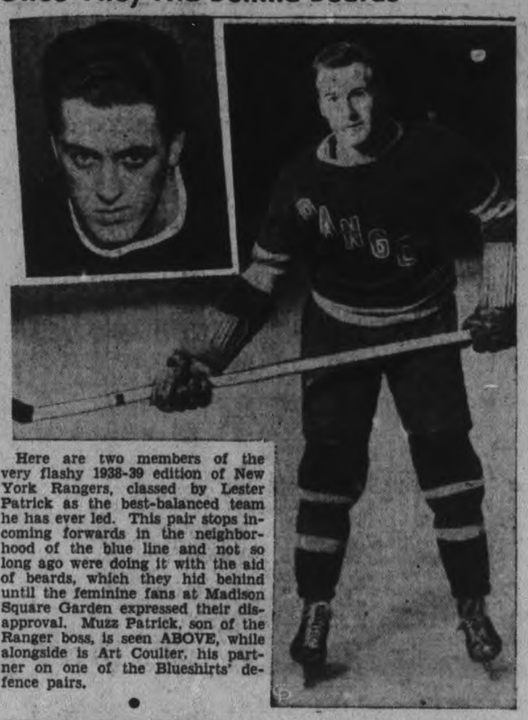
Oakville, Ont., Dec. 6 (CP)

WATER is precious in the camp of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, in training here for the Canadian football final in Toronto Saturday against Toronto Argonauts.

Bombers brought 100 gallons of Winnipeg water with them when they arrived Monday and the commodity is dipped out frugally by Trainer Alex Smith. It's got to last until the westerners arrive back home in another week.

A change of water, it was explained, sometimes tends towards sickness because of the different mineral and other content. Bombers are taking no chances on that.

Once They Hid Behind Beards



Here are two members of the very flashy 1938-39 edition of New York Rangers, classed by Lester Patrick as the best-balanced team he has ever led. This pair stops incoming forwards in the neighborhood of the blue line and not so long ago were doing it with the aid of beards, which they hid behind until the feminine fans at Madison Square Garden expressed their disapproval. Muzz Patrick, son of the Ranger boss, is seen ABOVE, while alongside is Art Coulter, his partner on one of the Blueshirts' defence pairs.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

BLOOD AND THUNDER NIGHTS at the Brock St. rink seem to be naught but gory memories, as the Senior City Puck Loop will not be operating there this winter. Three O.H.A. clubs in competition, plus a couple of skating nights a week, knocked on the conk all chances of the return of the Blood and Thunder League frays. Aside from playoffs, these "outlaw" fracases didn't draw well, but the red-hot fanatics who followed the clubs never missed a melee, come hail or high water. There were four district and two local clubs in last year, Millbrook, Hiawatha, Bewdley, Lakefield, Westclox and Southenders—with the latter winning. Since the old E.P.L. dropped out several seasons back, the district clubs have been ready for any good league so long as they had decent competition. And the City Loop helped in that. But it seems on the way out right now.

FROM MILWAUKEE comes a letter to us from Secretary Walter Dinesen of the old Blood and Thunder Loop. He's over there on business for a time, and will hardly be back ere Prexy Leo Allen calls a meeting of the league to see what's what. Dinesen says he won't be able to act this year and points out that the league is a bit in the red financially, down about 11 bucks. May we suggest that a meeting be called right shortly to check up on possibilities for this winter and—don't go away for a minute—invite Omemee and Norwood, along with last year's entries.

And The Omemee Slant

UP IN OMEMEE, where they have a fine new rink, they are hoping to line up a good district circuit down in this direction. Possibly Lakefield, Peterborough, Millbrook, Bewdley, Keene and Norwood. Or some such setup. A circuit like the old E.P.L. The smart Black Hawks of Omemee are willing to play all games in their rink—allowing the visitors maybe a percentage of the gate expenses—or anywhere within reason. Lakefield, Norwood and Keene, for instance, might insist upon home games and that would be oke, too. Surely something in the shape of a decent district hockey circuit can be lined up, with one or two Peterborough squads in. High time the various district clubs organized and decided what they want—and also the local loop. Let's hear from youse gees who are interested before winter hits us.

LAKEFIELD has an O.H.A. intermediate "B" team this year, grouped with Lindsay, Oakwood, Bobcaygeon and Beaverton. They're gonna call the team the Legionnaires in appreciation for the help the Lakefield veterans have offered. Club officrs are Alf Hudson, president; Beecher Blake, secretary-treasurer; and Cy Hopkins, manager. They expect to line up a good team with many of last year's smart Senior City Leaguers on board. A season opener is planned with a Toronto team for Dec. 23rd. We are glad to see O.H.A. hockey return to the village just north of here, and we wish 'em well in their new grouping. Lots of puck talent has been developed in Lakefield.

Oodles Of Curlers

A WORD ABOUT CURLING—and if we're not careful about visiting the rink down on Charlotte St, we'll be induced to tackle the game, too! At their re-organization meeting last eve it was shown that the Membership Committee had excelled itself in the drive and that almost too many new members were applying for a berth. So they upped the number of rinks to 38 and will give 'em all a chance at this ancient and honorable sport. Seems like a lot of young chaps are taking it up, and Alex Kay is lining up a big junior grouping for the besom an' stane game. While Herb Martin moans about the January thaw early in December which is ruining his first ice!

YOU MAY HAVE HEARD of honey-dipped wafers, but have ya heard of water-dipped honeys? Well, that's what you'll see at the swim meet in the Y.M. pool tomorrow after dusk when Y.W. and Y.M. splash artists strut their stuff in competition and exhibition. Races, life-saving, diving and plain and fancy stunts, we are assured, will be on tap with Miss Caroline Littlefield the gals' swim coach, and Gord Minty the men's aqua mentor. The affair is slated to start at 8.15, and will include a showing by the Silver Finettes, than which there are no whicher. The publicity gee says bring the lady friend to this, as it'll be followed by a jitterburg jamboree. We can hardly wait to swing it on the push-pipe with the alligators.

Just Argos An' Orfuns

RED WILSON, Sarnia sports scribe, is a large man with a red face. He got his second chin and paunch after exchanging a grid position for a swivel chair in a sports department, and he got his red pan from sitting out too often on frosty December days covering Sarnia Imps in finals. But Red takes it all in stride and does not weep overloud at the Imps' sad beating Saturday in Toronto. Says Imperials were pretty bad and Argos real good, so what would you? "Only once before this season, that ill-fated day in Peterborough," says Wilson, "has the Imperial machine limped along like it did Saturday!" Stirling was several furlongs from being in form, and we maintain that as the Bummer goes, so goeth the Oilers. But the Argoes have a grand gridiron squad this semester, and should take Winnipeg handily, too.

EDDIE THOMAS of Belleville, who pilots the Redmen and also the junior "B" boys there, is quite peeved at his junior grouping with some Kingston teams. Says they've got artificial ice and he hasn't, so he just won't go for that grouping. Eddie of the city where umps are a dime a dozen (and not worth it) reckons as how he'll either seek a bye in O.H.A. junior "B" playdowns or will try to wangle into the "C" group of Picton, Napanee, Trenton, Havelock and the other Belleville band. Stating, ofc ourse, that he'd remain with the "B" rating. And games with his club could count or not, just as the rest desired. Thomas has a legitimate squawk and such a group as he proposes wouldn't do any harm. Boss Edward isn't worrying about the senior "B" setup as he has spies hanging around the Brock St. rink to see that we don't have ice before he does. We trust there is no sabotage!

Expecting Break Bombers Keep Gainor Fit
